'People Very Cooperative'

Mixed Trash-Garbage Off To Smooth Start

"We assume that there was garbage in the collections," said Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti. "You really couldn't tell."

It was Ricciuti's way of saying that opening day of the controversial mixed garbage and rubbish collections in Quincy went off without a hitch Monday.

Ricciuti and Joseph Shea, Mayor Hannon's executive secretary, were up at 5 a.m. and rode the collection route through Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown, Merrymount and parts of Wollaston with the collectors.

"We saw a few barrels that apparently had been knocked over by the wind during the night," said Ricciuti.

"And we saw one dog working on a plastic bag. There was no garbage in it but there was some paper with meat drippings."

"It was a normal, everyday sidewalk operation along one of the largest collection routes in the city.

"The disposal part of the operation was normal, too. There was no additional trash."

In addition to Ricciuti and Shea, a superintendent, a general foreman and three other foremen monitored the first day's collections.

"We'll do this for 30 days," said Ricciuti, "although I personally don't believe we'll have to do it that long."

"People were very cooperative."

"But I might suggest that they tie the tops of their plastic bags. Sometimes the wind can tip them over."

Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, the leading critic of the mixed collections, declined to comment on the first day's operation. He said he had no reports from the route and it was too early to tell.

Shortly before collections were made, an ordinance introduced two months ago by Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly quietly went into effect banning the placement of rubbish outside more than 15 hours before collections.

Kelly, in whose ward collections started Monday, said a lot of the rubbish was put out very early in the morning instead of the night before and he expressed surprise at the small number of dogs in the streets Monday.

"Someone from City Hall must have been down talking to them," he quipped.

Kelly said he is still opposed to the mixed collections but he added, "I was quite surprised by what I saw this morning."

The City Council on June 3 passed unanimously a resolution opposing Mayor Walter J. Hannon's plan for mixed collections.

Meanwhile, efforts were being made in the State Legislature and in the courts to have the collections halted.

Field Days, Parades, Concerts To Mark 4th Celebration

Quincy residents will observe the 198th anniversary of American Independence tomorrow [Thursday] with field days, parades and band concerts in neighborhood parks throughout the city.

The long-range forecast was for good weather.

The celebrations include:
HOUGHS NECK - LaBrecque Playground from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., sponsored by the Houghs Neck Community Council.

WEST QUINCY - O'Rourke Playground from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., sponsored by the Morrisette Legion Post.

QUINCY POINT - Fore River Field from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., sponsored by the Ward II Civic Association.

SQUANTUM - Wendall Moses Playground from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., sponsored by the Squantum Fourth of July Committee.

SOUTH QUINCY - Faxon Park from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., sponsored by the Adams Heights Men's Club.

ADAMS SHORE - Heron Rd Playground and Beach from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. with a band concert from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m., sponsored by the Adams Shore Community Association.

GERMANTOWN - Baker Beach from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

MERRYMOUNT - Pageant Field from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., sponsored by the Wollaston Women's Club; Merrymount Beach from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. featuring a Miss Merrymount contest.

There will also be band concerts tonight [Wednesday] from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Merrymount Beach, and from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at Fore River Field.

$60,000 Start

Mini-Parks For Downtown Area Improvement

By TOM HENSHAW

A section of Hancock Street at the intersection of Cliveden St. is to be narrowed and converted into a stretch of mini-parks as the next phase in the improvement of the downtown area.

Work is expected to begin sometime after the Sidewalk Basaar [July 18-20] and be completed before back-to-school sales start in late August.

City Development Coordinator John Cheney said each side of Hancock St. will be narrowed by about the width of an automobile for about 100 feet in order to create a concept of "a living room out doors."

"We plan to plant mature trees along Hancock St.," he said. "We will have benches surrounded by brick pavement and greenery with low lighting so that people can sit on the benches and read in the evening."

The work will cost some $60,000 with the money coming from the funds remaining from the bond issue for the parking garage. Architect John Donahue is working on the plans now.

Cheney said the development will not interfere with traffic on Hancock St. or Cliveden St., which has two-way traffic in and out of the Ross parking area even after it was narrowed last year.

"Hancock St. will lose a few parking spaces on the easterly side," said Cheney.

Cheney said the work is not the first step in making a mall of Hancock Street.

"But the same concepts can be applied up and down Hancock St.," he said, "particularly at the intersections of Granite St. and School St."

"It is only a move to allow people on foot to co-exist with cars on Hancock Street."

Over 1,000 Apply For Food Stamps

Considerably more than 1,000 have applied for a chance to stretch their food dollars in this area as the new federal food stamp program went into effect Monday [July 1].

At the last count taken June 25 welfare offices had received 832 applications from public assistance clients and 127 applications from persons not on public assistance.

And the number is expected to increase substantially within this week's count becomes available.

So reports Arthur DePietro, Community Service Board Chairman and Paul Provencher, South Shore Community Service Center.

Provencher explained that the program, like Medicaid and the out-going "Surplus Food" program, is available both to welfare recipients and to other persons of limited income.

"It is different however," he added, "because it is not completely 'free'. Food Stamps have to be bought and paid for at a participating bank, then brought to a participating food store, where they are worth much more than the cash amount paid for them."

Eligibility depends on many factors, particularly net income, size of family and certain expenses like shelter, utilities, and education. An individual or

Council Votes For New Hospital Job

The City Council has voted to create the position of "Evening Supervisor for Administration" at Quincy City Hospital and to appropriate $11,291 to fund the post.

The vote was 5-2 at a meeting Friday with Councillors Warren Powers and James Sheets dissenting.

Councillor John J. Quinn, whose son, John, Jr., is being considered for the job, and Councillor Clifford Marshall did not vote.

Voting for the job were Council President Arthur Tobin and Councillors Joseph LaRaia, Leo Kelly, John Lydon and Dennis Harrington.

The proposal read:

"Upon the request of the [Quincy City] Hospital Board of Managers and with the recommendation of the Mayor, the sum of $11,291 is hereby appropriated from available funds within the 1974-1975 Hospital Administration Personal Services Account for the purpose of establishing the position of "Evening Supervisor for Administration" in lieu of the position of administrative assistant to the Director."

Seniors Hot Lunch To Cost 60 Cents July 15

The price of a meal in the Senior Citizens Hot Lunch Program in Quincy is going up a dime, from 50 cents to 60 cents, effective July 15.

Putnam S. Borden, executive director of the Quincy Council on Aging, said the increase, voted by the council June 27, is necessary because of the continuing rise in food prices.

But he held out one hopeful note for the future.

When subsidized funds from the state expected during the coming fiscal year finally become available, he said, the price will be returned to the original 50-cent level.

12-Year Old Andy Carrera Hero To Willard School Classmates

Willard School graduated a class of 63 sixth graders - one a hero.

Andrew Carrera, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gildo Carrera, 9 Buckley St., received a plaque from Mayor Walter Hannon and a Senate citation from Senator Arthur Tobin, praising the youth's heroic rescue of first-grader James Daly, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Daly, 3 Montillio St.

Andy, 12, was awarded both plaque and citation at graduation ceremonies held last week. The plaque inscription read:

"Dear Andy,

On October 1, 1973, your quick thinking saved your classmate James Daly...from being hit by a truck in the Willard schoolyard. Your heroic action is indeed commendable, for when a moment's hesitation may have proved fatal, you instinctively came to the aid of your classmate.

On behalf of the citizens of Quincy, I officially commend you for your courageous effort."

The special Senate citation, signed by Kevin Harrington, president of the Sante, Edward O'Neill, Senate clerk and Arthur Tobin, read:

"Be it resolved that the Mass. Senate hereby extends its congratulations to Andrew Carrera, a student of the sixth grade at the Willard School, Quincy, in recognition of his unselfish, heroic action in rescuing a classmate who was in imminent danger of being injured by the wheels of a truck.

"And be it further resolved that the Mass. Senate extends best wishes for continuing success and that a record of these resolutions be entered in the journal of the Senate and a copy thereof be transmitted by the senate clerk and parliamentarian."

On that day in October, Jimmy Daly had hidden behind the wheel of a milk delivery truck. Andy noticed the youngster hiding there, and as the truck began to back up, Andy pulled Jimmy from under the moving vehicle.

An annual spaghetti supper was served in honor of the graduates. During the evening, diplomas were granted.

Graduates, parents and guests were entertained with a student-created fashion show and a rock combo comprised of former Willard School students.

Sixth graders receiving diplomas were:

6 Civic Groups Plan 'Citizens Seminar'

Plans have been finalized by the presidents of six active Quincy civic-community organizations to conduct a "Citizens Seminar" at a joint meeting of the groups at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School July 9, at 8 p.m.

The six presidents met recently to formulate plans for the joint meeting and to develop an agenda. Pat DiStefano, president of the Quincy Citizens Association was named chairman pro tem by the others.

The other presidents are: Donald Macleod, Cranch Hill Association; Bernice Mader, South Quincy Civic Association;

Jeffrey Isaacson, South-West Community Council; Robert D. Meenan, St. Moritz Association; Timothy P. Cardwell, Quincy Taxpayers Revolt.

The purpose of the seminar, the first to be held in the city, is to hear how issues affect geographical areas of the city, with resident input and comments forming a major part of the forum.

The presidents expressed a feeling that many areas of concern will be discussed with Freedom Park, building height limitations, South Quincy MBTA, Quarry St. development, flood plain zoning and the combined rubbish-garbage collection among the key topics planned by the leaders.

"The seminar will be opened with a brief presentation by each president outlining views on one or two issues affecting his area and group. Following the presentations, the audience will be invited to ask questions with a general discussion to conclude. The membership of each group will be invited and the seminar is open to the public.

It is expected that the meeting will serve as a work-shop for annual gatherings to include an additional number of Quincy organizations."

City To Present Annual $1,000 Scholarship

Mayor Walter J. Hannon announces an annual scholarship of $1,000 for Quincy residents who are entering or presently in graduate work in the Arts and Sciences.

The funding for the scholarship was made available by the Sons of Italy, Quincy Lodge 1295.

Hannon said the money, which will be donated annually by the Sons of Italy, will be used to establish a scholarship with the following stipulations:

• Recipient must be a resident of the city of Quincy for a period of three years.

• Recipient must be a full-time student entering or presently doing graduate work in the Arts and Sciences.

City Faces Court Action In Refusal To Pay Nurse

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

The city of Quincy is being taken to court over its refusal to pay $1,000 sick leave pay to a 75-year-old retired Quincy Hospital registered nurse.

The court action by the Massachusetts Nurses Association follows an arbitrator's decision handed down last March favorable to Mrs. Frances Kemp of 199 Upland Rd.

The MNA says an arbitrator's decision is "final and binding on both parties" by state law.

The city has balked at paying Mrs. Kemp who will be 76 in September, claiming she is not a retired employee on the grounds she is not eligible for a pension.

Mrs. Kemp worked as an evening staff nurse at Quincy City Hospital from Jan. 2, 1962 until Sept. 1, 1973. She was 63 when she began her duties.

According to Mrs. Ruth Paven, Quincy's representative in the Massachusetts Nurses Association, Boston, Mrs. Kemp was therefore unable to join the municipal retirement system which stipulated - at that time - that a person be 60 or under in order to qualify for a pension.

Mrs. Kemp was therefore ineligible.

In 1969, the law was changed. Retroactive to Jan. 1, 1966, persons under 65 are eligible for retirement pensions.

Although Mrs. Kemp was under 65 when she began work at Quincy City Hospital, the law was changed four years too late to benefit her.

However, according to Mrs. Paven, Mrs. Kemp's contract states that a nurse who is terminated is entitled to one-quarter of her unused sick leave in cash, not to exceed $1,000.

Mrs. Kemp had accrued 153 days of unused sick leave, according to Mrs. Paven. One-quarter of Mrs. Kemp's earnings for those 153 days exceeded $1,000, and under the terms of her contract, she is entitled to a cash payment of $1,000, said Mrs. Paven.

But the City of Quincy refuses to pay it.

According to state law, municipal employees must retire at the maximum age of 70. However, they may be retained on a year to year basis until they reach 75.

Mrs. Paven said that in the spring of 1973 City Auditor Alexander Smith informed Acting Director of Nurses Miss Michaeline Russell that Mrs. Kemp, then 75, must retire. Mrs. Kemp then formally did so.

The Nursing Office then asked Mrs. Kemp to work during the summer. According to Mrs. Paven, Mrs. Kemp was "reluctant but agreeable."

Near the end of the summer, Mrs. Kemp took a three or four week scheduled vacation due her. She was "terminated" after that vacation.

Mrs. Paven emphasizes that throughout the retiring process, the hospital was merely complying with the law.

Yet, she said, when the hospital attempted to collect the $1,000 owed to Mrs. Kemp, the city auditor's office refused to pay. According to Mrs. Paven, the office contended that since Mrs. Kemp was not receiving a pension, she was "not really retiring."

A grievance was filed with Hospital Director Harlan L. Paine Jr. He replied, according to Mrs. Paven, that he was "not allowed to pay it." The decision, he reportedly said, was dictated by city administration.

The issue seems to be one of the proper definition of retirement. Massachusetts Nurses Association defines retirement as occurring on account of age, said Mrs. Paven. The City of Quincy, on the other hand, defines retirement as necessitating a pension, she said.

Yet according to Mrs. Paven, Section 30 of the state law dealing with retirement does not stipulate a pension as a prerequisite for obtaining retirement benefits.

The grievance filed with Paine went to arbitration - the next step taken in airing a complaint. Both the City and MNA agreed upon Marcia Greenbaum as arbitrator, said Mrs. Paven.

Mrs. Paven noted that under Chapter 150A of the General Laws of Massachusetts, an arbitrator's decision is "final and binding on both parties".

The arbitration hearing took place March 8. MNA won the case. Mrs. Paven said the decision stated that under Ordinance 172, the money in dispute is payable if someone retires under the General Laws of Massachusetts. Those laws, said Mrs. Paven, do not cite a pension as necessary to obtain retirement funds.

Despite the victory, Mrs. Paven reports that Smith refuses to honor the arbitrator's decision. According to Mrs. Paven, Smith called the decision "illegal before and illegal now."

Mrs. Paven added that Smith has not formally refused payment. It is Smith, however, who must verify the legality of the payment, said Mrs. Paven.

When asked for comment by The Sun, Smith said, "In my opinion she is not entitled to it. I have written a request to the city solicitor, asking for his ruling on the matter."

MNA has now taken the next step in its grievance by filing in Suffolk Superior Court an "Application To Confirm Arbitration Award."

A hearing is set for July 16. The City of Quincy will have an opportunity then to respond.

Mrs. Paven is confident that the court will issue a judicial order to pay Mrs. Kemp the $1,000. Describing Mrs. Kemp as "a bright, charming, active, vigorous lady", Mrs. Paven said: "There is no question in my mind that the money will be paid...Justice will ultimately triumph."

Mrs. Paven said she respected the judgement of Smith. "He has a right to deal with the situation as he sees it," she commented. But Mrs. Paven differentiated between "judgement that is careful and scrupulous" and judgement that is "obstructive." She said:

"I respect Mr. Smith. But there is a point at which the situation becomes intolerable. This is it."

ATTENTION Citizens Of Quincy

On July 1, 1974, a joint collection will be in effect wherein garbage and rubbish will be collected together.

There will be no separate garbage collection.

It is suggested that the following steps be taken to insure a successful transition and pickup operation:

1. Wash out all cans before depositing in rubbish container - Especially cans with meat base.
2. Wrap all garbage in either a brown grocery bag, newspaper or plastic bag - wrap securely so that odors will be contained as much as possible.
3. If available, apply a spray of Lysol, Ammonia, Moth Balls or similar product to rubbish receptacle or bag to deter animal activity such as dogs, etc.
4. Either tie plastic bag or cover metal container when they are placed on the sidewalk.
5. It is suggested that receptacles containing garbage, if at all possible, be put out the morning of collection rather than the evening before. If you are still going to use a garbage receptacle, it is suggested that it be lined with a plastic bag, garbage be individually wrapped in either newspapers or grocery bags, deposited in the garbage receptacle and also be put out on the morning of collection.

The above mentioned suggestions will aid us in the implementation of this program which, with your cooperation, will be successful.

Don Orione Home Drive At $518,675 Mark

The state-wide silver anniversary campaign to raise $1,000,000 for the Don Orione Home and Madonna Shrine in East Boston has passed the mid-way mark, announces Ernest J. Montilio of Quincy, campaign general chairman.

Total of $518,675 has been pledged to the drive to date, Montilio reported.

Funds raised through this campaign will enable an expansion of services for the elderly men and women residents, modernization of the physical facilities, and a continuation of the erection of the Madonna Shrine.

The Home and Shrine are maintained by the Don Orione Fathers and Sisters who are totally committed to serving the poor, sick, aged and mentally handicapped.

More than 1,100 persons have been cared for at the home since it was established in 1949, with the average stay being 10 years for a resident.

Contributions to the Silver Anniversary Fund campaign may be sent to: Don Orione Home & Madonna Shrine, 111 Orient Ave., East Boston, Mass. 02128. Contributions are tax deductible.

Giving anniversary party?

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

My husband and I are planning the party we will give in August to celebrate our golden wedding anniversary. We will be sending out invitations engraved in gold. We do not want (or need) any gifts from friends or family. How can we get this message across on the invitation?

Mr. and Mrs. Bellows

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Bellows: "Good wishes only," should go in the lower left hand corner of the invitation. If you're asking for an RSVP the "good wishes only" should go in the lower right hand corner.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

My name is Patricia but everyone calls me Pat. My husband is Patrick and everyone calls him Pat. It sure is confusing and it looks funny to write "Pat and Pat Riley" on invitations. We've been married a year and still haven't worked out a solution to the problem. Any suggestions?

Patricia R.

Dear Patricia:

How about calling yourself "Patty"? It is the diminutive and feminine form of Patricia.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I want to comment on your answer to "No Palmist" who asked about tipping a restroom attendant. You are right when you say a woman should tip for a special service. But 25 cents just because the attendant is there? Never!

Donna B.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I can top "No Palmist's" story. In one restroom I know about, the attendant has removed all the paper towels from the holder. She hands one to each patron with one hand and reaches for a tip with the other. Bah! Humbug!

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

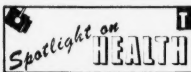

I always feel so elegant when I patronize a restaurant or shop that hires an attendant for their restroom. I wish they all did.

Margery McC.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I once asked the restroom attendant in a nightclub to tell the maitre d' to summon my husband as I was quite ill. She told me she was not allowed to leave the premises. Needless to say I'll never tip again or have we ever returned to that club.

Health & Beauty Briefs

Laugh lines, under the eye pouches and wrinkled skin under the chin are the most frequent symptoms that send older women to the plastic surgeon, according to a new book called "Ageless Aging." Men go for such operations most often for sagging eyelids, a frown between the eyebrows, or a "turkey gobbler neck."

As hair grays, it becomes thicker and coarser. It's scalp trouble that brings on early gray hair, author Ruth Winter writes. Injury or disease of the nervous system sometimes cause graying patterns, she adds.

Coved freshmen in Kansas who were considered physically fit had fewer menstrual discomforts, digestive disorders, backaches, fatigue, colds and allergies, than other college girls.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

How can you refuse puppy?

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

Next to a new baby, there is probably no more exciting addition to a family than a new puppy. But there are some differences.

I mean, you don't bring a baby home from an afternoon outing because some kid had a box of them marked "free" outside a supermarket.

Have you ever tried to walk a normal boy past a box like that? It's not hard, it's impossible.

"Mom, look!" my son said, as he held a small black pup close in his arms, "She needs a home..."

I looked at them and the pup raised innocent, suffering eye toward mine. So did the boy, but he was as phony as a three-dollar bill. I know that kid.

Television has robbed him of his innocence, and all he knows of suffering is a restaurant that doesn't serve hamburgers.

"Mom, free," he said.

'She needs a home.'

"Free like an evening with Zsa Zsa Gabor," I answered. "There are attending costs. Shots. Food. And when we leave town we'll have to board that dog in a kennel that costs more per day than our motel.

Free, my foot."

But I had made the mistake of letting the boy hand her to me. So we brought her home — after phoning my husband at work to make sure it was OK. He took the easy way out and said yes.

Now we show her off to visitors, holding her up like a first-born heir, and say absurd things about the unusual color of her eyes. We've done everything but give out cigars.

Yet, a dog is a dog is a dog. I mean, most new babies have the decency not to chew up your cactus plants. Or eat your bedroom slippers.

And new babies don't paw your legs with sharp claws, ruining your last pair of support hose.

But then, people don't rub a baby's nose in its mistakes and shove it out the door into the night either. Or smack it with a newspaper to get a point across. So it all evens out.

Anyway, we call her Roxy, and she has the most unusual eyes.

Keep courtship in check in love. (9)

Josie

Dear Josie:

You are picking out your silver pattern too soon. Slow down or you will lose all. Men still like to think they are the pursuers and competition is the spice of courtship. Don't be so available.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My daughter is a terrible housekeeper. The house is absolutely filthy. She does keep herself and the children clean. Her husband must be blind because he seems not to notice. Anyway, this is not my business. I say nothing when I visit because her family seems happy enough. The problem is with the neighbors.

Is fish really 'brain' food?

Almost all parts of the body contain some phosphate, with the brain containing more than most.

Fish does contribute phosphate to the diet, especially if you eat the bones in sardines and canned salmon, but the brain obtains the phosphate it needs, regardless of how much fish you eat. — CNS

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — There are pressures in real estate matters, properties and home environment. Get good advice from an objective source rather than friends or relatives. Be realistic — start nothing new, but work on existing projects.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Put the final touches on projects for presentation next week. Possibility of an honor coming to you. Be especially cooperative with others. Disagreements with mate should not be arguments, but discussions.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Work in the background on things already in progress. Listen to advice from superiors. Good time for a vacation if possible. Shop for bargains in wearing apparel. Entertain friends at home over the weekend.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Ideas for new projects come to you now. Find the need that others have and work to fill it. Old problems can be solved now. Curb desires to over-extend your budget or credit. Matters at a distance are important.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Curb feelings of laziness. Do each day's tasks on time and headway is made. Read all communications very carefully. If possible, delay making commitments until next week — sleep on decisions for now.

VIRGO: (August 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Curb impulse to be slipshod in work habits. Energy may be low, so work at a slower but careful pace. Financial investments are favored now — use your own good judgment. Be realistic about romance.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — You may be forced into a decision to discard outworn methods and relationships. Clean out attics and drawers — clear out all areas of your life for new beginnings. This appears to be a turning point of your life.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov.

21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — You can take a breather this week and clear up loose ends you have been too busy to handle. Actively pursue your artistic talents and hobbies. Good time to undertake a diet to change your weight.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Social affairs sparkle for you now, and all pleasurable pursuits. Share your joy with others and your enthusiasm for life. Complete important work ahead of schedule. You could be working toward promotion.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Seriously plan for the future and lay the groundwork. Good time to study or take additional training. Dealings with superiors may be "touchy." If possible wait until next week to have discussions.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Curb impulse to invest in promotional schemes. Don't spread yourself thin financially. Be realistic and level-headed in romance.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — A good luck atmosphere is around you regarding career and profession. Creative imagination geared to service ideas will pay off for you now. Curb tendency toward extravagance — be practical and realistic.

Rubella vaccination fights birth defects

Children from 1 year of age to 12 are prime targets for rubella vaccination because they are the principal transmitters of the virus.

Rubella (German measles) is a mild childhood disease, but if a woman becomes infected early in pregnancy there is risk of severe birth defects and sometimes death to her unborn child. — CNS

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS 'Y' loop shows loss of faith

By DOROTHY ST. JOHN JACKSON

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I feel like the fifth wheel on the wagon. What do you see for me?

W. Z.

Dear W. Z.:

You can either be the spare in case the other four fail or you can be the awkward extra. When you pile up a mound of minuses against your pluses, you automatically spring a personality leak.

Your friendly personality, seen in your forward slant, your love of people, seen in the evaluation of the lower loops, and your generous nature, seen in the word endings along the line, could take you anywhere you wanted to go, if you'd let it. Yet, you have overloaded your personality with so many years that you have punctured your charm.

In a room full of people, your vision is blurred as you wonder — wonder how they'll accept you, seen in the high part on the m and the high point on the y. With an inner turmoil, your freedom of expression is inhibited.

Then, your overworked imagination, seen in the large loop on y, builds a situation which causes you to lose faith in yourself and in your efforts, seen in the very low t crossings. So, instead of doing as much as possible to extend yourself, you do as little as possible. Consequently, you feel unproductive, unimportant, and even unwanted.

Your natural tendency is to be with people, but someone or something (somehow or somewhere) has given you cause to be ill-at-ease, and for really no reason at all.

"Trunk" your fifth wheel image, and join the four which will steer you onto the road of desire, hope, and faith in yourself.

D.J.

CHILDREN AND FIRES

Thousands of persons die each year in home fires, and one-third of these are children. Yet many of these young lives could have been saved if only precautions and general rules of fire safety had been followed. A child's natural curiosity can cause trouble when matches or lighters are left within their reach. They always should be put away after use. Other precautions are:

Never leave a young child home alone.

Show your baby-sitter the escape routes from the house [two from each room should be designated] and give instructions to get the children out of the house the first instant smoke or escaping gas is found, followed by a call to the fire department from an alarm box or a neighbor's house.

Parade, Road Race, Olympics, Beauty Contest Among Merrymount's '4th' Attractions

Rex Trailer, Big Bird, Mickey and Minnie Mouse, Snoopy and Donald Duck will march in the Merrymount Association's Fourth of July Parade announced Chairman Fran Fareri.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the association.

Festivities will start Wednesday evening, July 3, with a road race supervised by Robert Seamans. This will be followed by the selection of Miss Merrymount and Little Miss and Master Merrymount. The Miss Merrymount contest will be directed by James and Dorothy Mulcahy. The winner will ride in the parade.

Junior Olympics for the children and teenagers will be held the morning of the Fourth at Perkins Field. Chairman William Lewis said track, field, and a basketball free throw event have been added to the traditional dashes and wheelbarrow races. The shot put, discus throw, and javelin throw will be included.

Assisting Lewis will be John

Molloy, Joe McConville, and Joseph Cuniff. Immediately following these events, James Mulcahy and Si Tutunjian are in charge of the blueberry pie eating contests.

Bugle call for the parade will be at 12:30 at the Merrymount School. Marchers will proceed down Narragansett, Chickatabot, and Norton Rds., to Sea St., Samaset Ave., Longwood, Moreland, Waban, Maypole, Squanto, and Victoria Rds. with the finish at Merrymount Beach.

A Stanley Steamer will transport the officers of the association in style. They are Paul Hussey, president; James Iorio, vice president; Robert Mitchell, treasurer; Regina Whalen, recording secretary; and Diane Rochelle, corresponding secretary. The street competitions will follow interspersed with bands and the bicycle and doll carriage competitions. Among the bands marching will be the Quincy Renegades, Sir Thomas More of Braintree, St. Peter's and St.

Ann's of Dorchester and the Milton Post Band.

A special 50th anniversary float will feature the Merri-Shore Senior citizens and the teenagers of Merrymount.

Among those expected to march are Mayor Walter Hannon, Senator Arthur Tobin, Rep. Thomas Brownell, and Councilor Leo Kelly.

Finishing up the parade will be the Roadsters and Street

Rods' antique cars. The cars will range from a 1928 touring car to a 1941 Ford Continental.

On July 5 and July 6, the semi-finals and finals of the tennis tournament will be held, chaired by Ann Cosgrove. Following the final contest, there will be a Block Party at the Narragansett Road tennis courts, chaired by Paul and Marilyn Flynn. Awards for all events will be presented then.

Thomas Brownell Seeks Second Term

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] announces his candidacy for re-election in the Second Norfolk District.

At the end of this year, Brownell will be completing his first full term in the state legislature. In seeking a second term, he said he "wants to continue his efforts to bring about meaningful reforms to make state government work better and be more responsive to people's needs."

Brownell is married and lives with his wife, the former Margaret Donovan, and two children, Karyn, 2, and David, 5 months, at 15 Moreland Road, Merrimount. A graduate of Quincy schools, he holds a B.S. degree "cum laude" from Suffolk University, graduated in the top 10 of his law class at Suffolk Law School where he received a Juris Doctor degree in 1967. From 1968 to 1970, he attended part-time at Boston University Graduate Law Taxation Program, during which time he was Legislative Counsel for the Massachusetts Taxpayers Foundation, a statewide civic group dedicated to economy in government.

Since 1970, Brownell has been a part-time lecturer in government at Suffolk University. Recently he was appointed to the faculty of Suffolk Law School as a part-time lecturer in law. This month, he was appointed Credentials Chairman of the 11th Congressional Democratic Caucus held in Braintree by Congressman James A. Burke and elected to the Board of Governors of the Quincy Bar Association.

During his legislative career, he has served on the legislative Committees on Insurance and Local Affairs, and also was a member of the Special Legislative Committee in the Matter of the Removal of Judge Jerome P. Troy.

Currently he is serving as a member of the Judiciary Committee where he sponsored and supported legislation to improve the judge selection process, divorce reform and to improve the quality and administration of justice.

This year two bills sponsored by Brownell providing sorely needed property tax relief for the property owners in the City of Quincy are slated to become law. Together both measure H. 2828 and H. 2829 will save Quincy taxpayers over $1,182,000 for 1974. For many years, he said, Quincy has been paying more than it should in county assessments, and also has been short-changed in its gas receipts. His legislation corrects both situations so that Quincy will pay a fair county and receive its correct amount of gas tax receipts, he said. "Saving Quincy taxpayers over a million dollars can only be regarded as one of the most important achievements of the 1974 legislative session," he said.

Brownell cites property tax relief as one major area where people are crying out for change and help. One of the original sponsors of "circuit breaker" concept of property tax relief legislation, Brownell has been fighting for legislation that would limit a homeowner's property tax payment to no more than 8 per cent of his useable income. He believes property taxes should be based on a person's ability to pay, not on a theoretical arbitrary value established by an assessor.

William Olson Retires From Post Office After 43 Years Service

Fellow workers honored William A. Olson at a surprise party recently on the eve of his retirement after 43 years with the Post Office Department.

He was presented with gifts and a special cake by fellow employees.

Olson, who lives at 1322 Quincy Shore Drive, joined the Post Office in 1931 as a temporary summer worker and had been foreman of the mails in Quincy for eight years when he retired.

A native of Dorchester, he served in the 82nd Airborne Division in the African and European Theaters during World War II. He has lived in Quincy for the past 25 years.

He and his wife, Olive, have two daughters, Cathlene and Arlene.

Herbert Reppucci Candidate For State Representative

Herbert Reppucci of 62 Shirley St., West Quincy, a Wollaston businessman for the past 20 years, announces his candidacy for state representative from the new Fourth Norfolk District as an independent.

Reppucci, defined the issues as "crime in the streets, the dump situation, the construction of the South Quincy MBTA station and taxes."

"Our present state representative has constantly voted on Beacon Hill for programs that are not only expensive to the taxpayers but moreover are completely out of step with the feelings of his constituents," he said.

"We in West Quincy have been fighting the situation at the dump for over two years yet the present representative has only become involved in the past two weeks. Where was he when the situation was developing?"

"To curb crime in the streets, I support the reinstatement of a mandatory death penalty for all first degree murderers; and I also support the tightening of prison furlough regulations."

The area covered by the new Fourth Norfolk District is part of the old Third Norfolk District, currently represented by Reps. Joseph E. Brett and William D. Delahunt. Delahunt is running for re-election in the Fourth.

Reppucci, who studied business administration at Boston University and criminology at MIT, is a member of the Sons of Italy, the Quincy Citizens Association, the South West Community Council and the South Quincy Civic Association.

He is married to the former M. June Luther and they have one son, Michael W. Reppucci, 22.

Ceremonies July 11 To Honor John Q. Adams

Special ceremonies Thursday, July 11 at 10 a.m. will mark the 207th anniversary of the birth of John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States.

They will take place on the steps of the United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq., where John Quincy Adams is buried along with his father, President John Adams.

The official wreath from President Richard Nixon, will be presented by Commander James Schneider, USN, of the Naval Reserve Center, Quincy.

Receiving the wreath on behalf of the City of Quincy will be Mayor Walter J. Hannon and City Council President Arthur H. Tobin. Rev. John R. Graham will receive the wreath for the "Church of the Presidents".

The public is invited to attend the ceremony. Quincy is the only city in the United States where two Presidents of the nation were born and are buried.

A color guard from the United States Navy will be present as will a contingent of Naval Sea Cadets.

Following the ceremonies on the steps of the church, the wreath from the President will be laid on the tomb of John Quincy Adams in the crypt beneath the church.

Alan Boyd Candidate For Sheriff

Alan J. Boyd of 89 Walnut St., Braintree, formerly of Quincy, announces he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for sheriff of Norfolk County. Boyd attended the Quincy school system through high school. He is 35, married to the former Beverly [Sadler] of Canton, and father of five. Boyd served two years in the U.S. Navy.

He is employed by the Registry of Motor Vehicles and has been an Inspector for the past seven years. He has been attending Massasoit College for the past two years to receive his Associate Degree in Law Enforcement in June of 1975. Some of the courses required to attain this degree are: Corrections and Administration, Police Organization and Management, Juvenile Delinquency, and Psychology.

Boyd has been a member of the Braintree Yacht Club for the past 10 years and is also Past Commander of Chapter 29, Disabled American Veterans, Braintree. He is currently a life member.

With his background in Law Enforcement and his education in related fields, Boyd said he feels he qualifies to fill the responsible position which he seeks.

"I am not and never have been politically motivated, but am greatly interested in the area of corrections, and what can be done to improve the rapport with the incarcerated, and also to gain the confidence of society in the rehabilitated offender," he said.

Reception Held For Rep. Clifford Marshall

A reported 2,200 guests and campaign workers attended a reception for Rep. Clifford H. Marshall, candidate for Norfolk County sheriff, held recently at State Street South, North Quincy.

Marshall, his wife Louise, and their four sons greeted those attending.

Marshall, a Marine Corp

veteran, and Quincy City Councillor for five terms, is now an assistant majority leader of the House of Representatives. He is a member of the Joint Committees on Counties and Rules, and three special Commissions: To Reorganize the Department of Youth Services, State Aid to Cities and Towns for the Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency and to study human development and conditions in the Massachusetts Correctional System. He was recently elected chairman of the Eastern Regional Conference on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.

Representative Marshall has served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives since 1969.

DOUBLE DEATHS

On July 4, 1826, former Presidents John Adams and Thomas Jefferson both died — on the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. Former President James Monroe died this day in 1831.

Seniors Half - Fare Registration Here July 9

Registration for MBTA Senior Citizen half-fare ID cards will be held in Quincy on July 9, from 9 a.m. to noon and from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The location will be the auditorium at the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., Quincy, originally, the registration was to be held at the Woodward School.

The registration is for senior citizens who have reached the age of 65 and have not yet applied or have lost their half-fare passes.

To be eligible for the identification cards, which contain the name and address of the holder and a color photograph for positive identification, the senior citizen must bring proof of age, such as a Medicare card, birth certificate, baptismal record or drivers license.

Also proof of residency in one of the 79 communities in the MBTA district and a 50 cent cash fee are required.

Quincy Community Co-op To Accept Food Stamps

The Quincy Community Food Co-op has been authorized by the United States Department of Agriculture to accept Food Stamps.

Thus, those people in the area who are participating in the Food Stamp Program may achieve a double savings by participating in the Food Co-op.

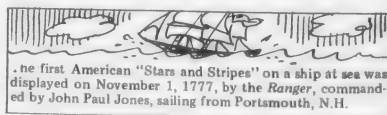

The basic premise of the Quincy Community Food Co-op is that by combining a number of households' food orders into one large order, food can be bought at wholesale prices.

The Co-op operates out of the South-West Community Center, 372 Granite St., Telephone 471-0796.

Membership is open to anyone, regardless of income or geographic location.

Food may be ordered on Tuesday or Thursday from 2 - 8 p.m. The food may be picked up on the following Thursday between 2 - 8 p.m.

The first American "Stars and Stripes" on a ship at sea was displayed on November 1, 1777, by the Ranger, commanded by John Paul Jones, sailing from Portsmouth, N.H.

Want To Reach 90? Don't Smoke, Drink, Worry

By HENRY BOSWORTH

If you want to live to 90 and feel spry enough to look forward to your 100th, listen to Roland [Pop] Josselyn of Houghs Neck.

Pop, sporting a colorful crown on his head—and looking like he just stepped out of one of those margarine TV commercials—was honored Saturday at an open house and dinner.

And, of course, he was asked the inevitable question: Do you have a formula for longevity?

"Yep", replied Pop. "It's simple. Don't drink. Don't smoke and don't worry. Most of the things you worry about, don't happen anyway."

How about diet. Is he careful about what he eats.

"Nope," he said. Eat all you want. I eat everything that comes by me. If it's edible, I eat it and enjoy it.

The open house for which half of Houghs Neck must have turned out for, was held at the home of his granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. William MacDonald of 1109 Sea St.

There were a lot of signs posted for the occasion including one proclaiming Pop "Houghs Neck's best friend."

And there was one that reminded all attending that on June 29, 1984 Pop will celebrate his 100th birthday.

"But it won't be held here," said MacDonald. "We'll need Boston Garden for that one."

Pop asked everybody to be sure to remember the date: June 29, 1984.

THE GOOD OLD DAYS — If the city changes at all in the passing years, it's only in dimension.

Council President Arthur H. Tobin was speaking the other day about the Chief of Police who asked the City Council for an increase in his budget so that his men could better protect the city against the rising number of crimes.

He said he figured $2,500 would do the job nicely.

He was the chief of the Quincy Police Department in 1888, the first year of its existence, and his little band of 21 officers had made 185 arrests, one of them for the rare crime of breaking and entering.

"If someone had praised them for their police work they would have said, 'We're just doing our job,'" Tobin told the 1974 Quincy police at their memorial services for departed comrades.

WELL, THAT'S POLITICS: Tom O'Neill, III, son of House Majority Leader Tom [Tip] O'Neill, dropped into The Sun office the other day campaigning for lieutenant governor. While here, someone remarked:

"I saw your father on TV the other night."

"That's the only time we see him, too," smiled young O'Neill.

JAMES MICHAEL CURLEY really left his mark. The Norfolk County treasurer now has envelopes spelling out in capital letters his name: JAMES MICHAEL COLLINS.

FAMILY FRIEND: Paul Barry of Quincy is one of the Democrats who hope to wrest the sheriff's badge away from Republican incumbent Charles Hedges.

Coincidentally, Barry's late father, Edward, long-time assistant clerk of Boston Municipal Clerk, and Hedges went to Quincy High School together.

MILESTONES: Two well known Quincy figures will celebrate birthdays July 31. Hattiemay Thomas, city clerk back in the 1940's, will be 85... And, former Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa will be 74.

Incidentally do you remember when Della Chiesa, self-styled penny pincher, used to walk around City Hall turning off lights? Those were the simple days even though they weren't too long ago.

Chair Ramps At McIntyre Mall

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The impact of the recently completed landscaping of McIntyre Mall is quite dramatic. The azaleas, "instant lawn" and lighting make for a show place in the center of the city.

But of all the features of this park, I'd like to compliment Mayor Hannon and Public Works Commissioner James Ricciuti for including in the design two wheel chair ramps at the curbs near City Hall. A six inch curb can be a tremendous barrier to many handicapped people.

I'm hopeful that similar ramps can be included in the design of future sidewalk projects in Quincy Center to help make schools, parks, transportation, and shopping areas more accessible for the city's handicapped citizens.

Poet's Corner

I REMEMBER PAPA

Nineteen years have gone by without him and sometimes I wonder how Remembering his love for everyone makes it seem bearable now.

I remember when he played his accordion,
How my heart would swell with pride.

As I looked at the others approval for I never left his side.
No gathering was complete without him,

He made many a happy day.
Who could feel sad or downhearted,

When the Mazurka's and Waltzes he'd play,
The memories of my childhood are precious,
To Mama, my three sisters and I.

I'll carry them with me my lifetime
But someday they too will die.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Nobody Taught Me To Ditch'

"Nobody taught me how to ditch" ... said Malcolm. I was taught how to succeed in business ... how to play 80 golf after 40 ... how to beat the IRS legitimately. But nobody taught me how to ditch." He was referring to his recent divorce.

Malcolm had been married nineteen years. He and Mary had had their "ups and downs" ... and finally separated. Whose fault? What difference does it make? They were both unhappy ... the marriage had become destructive. Mutually they agreed ... as two intelligent adults that the best solution was divorce ... "no fault divorce".

But for Malcolm it was a devastating experience. That's what Malcolm meant by "nobody taught me to ditch." He had been a Navy pilot. He was taught in the Navy how to ditch a plane. "But nobody taught me how to ditch a marriage."

He had several problems. One was that he didn't know how to TAKE CARE OF HIMSELF. He had never cooked ... never done his own laundry ... never made his own bed. His mother ... or his wife had always selected his clothes. The every day mechanics of living were more than Malcolm could cope with alone. "Nobody taught me how to ditch."

Secondly ... Malcolm MISSED HIS CHILDREN. They were 17-16 and 13 ... all busy in school ... with their friends ... and part time jobs. They were not much concerned about their mother's and father's life problems. They had their own lives to live. Malcolm missed the day to day contact with his children. So far as his children were concerned ... "nobody taught me how to ditch."

The most severe part of his unsuccessful "ditching" was the AWFUL LONELINESS. When he was home he had a garden ... there were the high school sports events in which his boy participated ... there were the fix-it jobs on the property. Now in divorce and in an apartment he had none of these responsibilities. He took walks many nights ... alone ... remembering how he used to play with his dog in his yard while his wife sat on the steps. Now in the apartment ... no dog ... no yard ... no wife. "Nobody taught me how to ditch."

With the increasing number of divorces realism seems to dictate that somebody needs to teach people "how to ditch." Is it more difficult for men ... or women? It all depends on the individual man and woman. It isn't easy for either. More next time on some ditching suggestions that would have helped Malcolm.

family "adjusted net income", figured from a 6-page application, determines not only whether a person can buy food stamps, but how many and at what price.

This means that the "bonus value" of the stamps can vary considerably from one applicant to the next. For example: a single person with adjusted net income of $170 per month would pay $36 for stamps worth $46 in the market, a "bonus value of 22%".

A family of eight, on the other hand, with adjusted net income of $400 per month would pay $117 worth $256 at the market, a "much larger bonus value of 54%".

The Welfare Department is processing applications along a carefully determined set of statewide priorities, according to DePietro and Provencher.

The first priority is persons whose income is so limited that they require financial assistance for the basics of food, clothing and shelter; namely, welfare recipients. Second is non-welfare recipients who are now enrolled in the Donated Commodities Program "Surplus Foods". Third is any other citizen who wishes to apply.

The first group has received forms by mail. The second group can pick up forms during the regularly scheduled monthly food distribution in each community. The third group can get an application by writing, calling, or visiting the nearest Welfare Office in the South Shore area, or by contacting the Quincy Community Action Organization at South-West Community Center, 372 Granite St., Quincy, [471-0796], or Germantown Service Center, 9

Bicknell St., Quincy, [471-1189].

Other small clusters of volunteers are also becoming active in some communities, and details about them can be obtained from the Welfare Offices or the Community Action offices.

The Quincy Community Action Organization, a private non-profit organization, has hired three part-time workers to help launch the Food Stamp Program. According to DePietro, this is "a good example of public agency/private agency cooperation." These three workers will be available to go out along with trained volunteers to explain and help establish the Food Stamp Program anywhere in the South Shore area.

Provencher also noted that upon being found eligible, an applicant receives a letter of notification and an ID card. These items, however, are not enough to present at a participating bank to make a purchase. The person must wait until he receives in July and each month thereafter an "Authorization to Purchase" produced by computer and sent by mail to the person's home. This authorization will repeat the number of coupons which can be purchased, their price, and the Bonus Value.

The Welfare Offices in the South Shore are: South Shore Community Service Center, 23 School St., Quincy; Hingham Welfare Service Office, 7 East St., Hingham; Randolph Welfare Service Office, 1 Turner Lane, Randolph; and Weymouth Welfare Service Office, 1431 Pleasant St., East Weymouth.

Shipbuilders Coop Plans Name Change To 'Presidential Coop'

Francis X. McCauley, president and treasurer of Shipbuilders Cooperative Bank, 1 Granite St., Quincy, announces that a meeting of the Bank's shareholders has been called for Monday, July 22, at 3:45 p.m. at the bank's office to act on a change of bank name.

If the proposal is approved by the share holders, the new name will be "Presidential Cooperative Bank".

The name change, which has already been unanimously approved by the Board of Directors of the bank, is being proposed to eliminate confusion which has existed for many years since many people believe that the bank deals only with shipyard employees.

Although the bank was established in January, 1920 by a group of Fore River employees, the bank has no affiliation or business connection with either Bethlehem Steel or its successor at Fore River, the General Dynamics Company, McCauley noted.

When the bank first opened, office space in the shipyard was provided by the Bethlehem Steel Company. In the late 1920's, the bank's offices were moved to Quincy Sq. over the present Burgin & Platner Insurance Company office. The bank subsequently was located on the second floor of the South Shore

National Bank and at 15 Chestnut St. before moving in 1965 to its present location at the corner of Granite and Hancock Sts.

The Shipbuilders Cooperative Bank is a state chartered cooperative bank offering the same services as the state's 144 other cooperative banks. Its services are available to all persons and they are not restricted to employees of the shipyard.

McCauley said the Board of Directors believes it is in the best interests of the bank to eliminate the image projected by the name "Shipbuilders" and to change the name to "Presidential Cooperative Bank".

BANK AMERICARD AGENT - Charles A. Pearce, president of Quincy Savings Bank shakes hands with William W. O'Brien, Jr., Assistant Treasurer of the State Street Bank and Trust Co. of Boston, after signing an agreement that makes Quincy Savings Bank an agent for Bank Americard.

Quincy Savings Agent For Bank Americard

Quincy Savings Bank has become an authorized agent for Bank Americard by signing an agreement with State Street Bank and Trust Company of Boston.

Upon signing this agreement, Quincy Savings Bank joins a vast network of banks and merchants nationally and world-wide that will honor Bank Americard credit and cash advance transactions.

After the signing, Charles A.

Pearce, president of the bank said:

"We are pleased to become a part of the Bank Americard system, that will offer card holders instant credit and cash whenever or wherever the need arises. And as newer, simpler, more convenient ways of handling financial transactions are made available, Quincy Savings will make every effort to offer them to the public."

Colonial Federal Offers New Service On Social Security Checks

Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy has begun a new community service.

Area residents receiving monthly Social Security checks may have these checks sent by the government directly to their savings accounts at Colonial Federal Savings. Money can then be withdrawn as needed.

According to President Philip J. Lawrence, this service marks the first step towards an electric funds transfer system whereby the government and banks will eventually credit bank accounts electronically. The cost, inconvenience and possible loss of checks will thus be eliminated. At the same time, the depositor earns interest on the money in his account.

This electric system can help to eliminate the theft of checks from mail boxes, the bother of cashing monthly checks and the danger of toting a sum of money for a good part of the month.

Colonial Federal Savings also offers a NOW account which pays interest from day of deposit to day of withdrawal. NOW accounts are also available to senior citizens without the 15-cent check service charge.

S.S. Chamber U.S. Commerce Dept. Associate

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has been named an associate office of the Department of Commerce by Frederick B. Dent, United States Secretary of Commerce, announces Thomas Hollyday of the Boston District Office of the Department of Commerce.

Since last June, 206 new members have joined the South Shore Chamber of Commerce which represents the business communities of Braintree, Canton, Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Rockland, Scituate and Weymouth.

The South Shore Chamber is the fastest growing Chamber in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and currently ranks fourth in size in the state.

An update of the 1974 program of Work and a tour of the physical plant will highlight the reception program, hosted by George Keardon, president of the South Shore Chamber.

Dr. Charles Merrill Attends London Health Services Convention

Dr. Charles Merrill of 204 Billings St., North Quincy, has returned from a one-week trip to London, England where he attended the International Hospital and Health Services Exhibition.

Dr. Merrill who is president of the Board of Trustees of the Huntington General Hospital and chairman of the Board of Directors of the Longwood Hospital attended as an official delegate by invitation of the British consulate.

Dr. Merrill also spent several hours as the guest of the "House Governor", an English term of Administrator, at St. George's Hospital, London. The hospital was built in 1730, and has a 300-bed capacity plus a 30-bed maternity ward. It has but two elevators, one for people and one for freight, plus a manually operated lift. The lift was operated by a porter cranking an enormous wheel.

Said Dr. Merrill: "The hospital was spotless, the equipment satisfactory, and personnel dedicated. How they accomplished their objectives under such handicaps was a marvel to behold. St. George's Hospital has also a medical school attached to it which has a long tradition in medical history. The Administrator took us to the library where he proudly displayed the cowhide from the cow that Dr. Jenner did his original work on, developing cowpox as a form of vaccination for the prevention of smallpox."

Rev. Dennis Schmelzenbach, missionary to South Africa, will be the guest speaker at the 55th Annual Missionary Convention of the New England District of the Nazarene World Missionary Society which is being held in the Lahue Center at Eastern Nazarene College and the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene today [Wednesday] and Thursday.

Mrs. Albert D. Stiefel of 43 Greene St., Wollaston, who has served as New England District president of the Nazarene World Missionary Society for the past five and a half years, will preside at the convention. The convention will conclude her official duties in this office as she will be moving to Nampa, Idaho, in August where Mr. Stiefel will be joining the faculty of Northwest Nazarene College.

The convention will begin with a Workshop Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. in the Wollaston Church. The evening missionary rally will be held in Lahue Center at 7:30 with Rev. Schmelzenbach as speaker.

Included will be the presentation of the convention theme "Declare His Glory To All The People" under the direction of Mrs. Donald Irwin, Vice President. Rev. Donald Irwin is superintendent of the New England District of the Church of the Nazarene and will preside at the District Assembly to be held in Lahue Center Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Business sessions for the Missionary Convention will be held Thursday morning and afternoon in the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene. Rev. Mr. Schmelzenbach spoke to the Wollaston Neighbors, the seniors of the Wollaston Church, Tuesday noon, in Spangenberg Parlor of the Wollaston college. He was also the guest speaker for the Nazarene Young Peoples Society meeting in Lahue Center Tuesday evening.

Rev. Mr. Schmelzenbach has spent this past week [June 26-30] as special Chapel Speaker and Missions Consultant at the International Institute of the Nazarene Young Peoples Society of the Church of the Nazarene in Switzerland.

Plenty Doing For Wollaston Youngsters On 4th

Free ice cream, tonic and balloons will abound at a gala 4th of July Field Day for Wollaston youngsters.

The Field Day - to be held at Pageant Field - will kick-off with a Doll Carriage Parade at 9 a.m. for youngsters aged 3 to 7.

Two more parades follow at 9:30: a bicycle parade and a horrible's parade for youngsters 14 and under.

From 10:30 to noon there will be races - running, three-legged and wheel barrow - and contests - pie-eating, egg-throwing and foul-shooting.

Prizes will be awarded to the winners of the parades, races and contests.

The Community Improvement Committee of the Wollaston Juniors - headed by Mrs. Pam Spring - is co-sponsoring the Field Day with the Wollaston Community Association, chaired by Mrs. Kathy Roberts. Aiding them are Mrs. Margaret Kelly, Mrs. Victoria Smith, Mrs. Carol Sarruda and Mrs. Fran Cook.

$43,873 Grants For QJC, ENC

THE LIFE OF IVORY SOAP

Hi, there! I'm a bar of Ivory Soap.

We have different life spans. In a family who gets dirty quick it is very short. In a family who does not get dirty fast it is very long.

I'm with a family that does not get dirty quick.

Do you know how hard it is to be a bar of soap? Well, let me tell you, from a bar of soap with experience, its hard!

You always get soap in your eyes. One day someone left me in the hot sun, I almost melted! One day I fell in the sink, and almost went down the drain. Sometimes they use me to wash the dishes, I almost drowned! Sometimes the kids like to squeeze me, I'm telling you, its no way to lose weight!

Well, thats my life. I was born five inches wide and three inches tall! Now I'm half a inch both ways!

Wish me luck, I'll need it!

WITH A LITTLE BIT OF LUCK

With a little bit of luck, I could find a gold ingot. It would be worth one million and nine.

But the best thing about it is it'll be all mine.

I could find a mine of gold, And it would be all mine to hold,

With only a little bit of luck.

With my millions of dollars in gold,

I would buy a great big boat. I would sail round the world in the sea,

Then who would be famous but me.

Fame for taking the longest boat cruise,

With only a little bit of luck.

Oh boy, Oh my, for goodness sake,

What if I found the gold to be fake.

Oh boy, would my heart sink, I would really feel like a fink. No more millions of dollars for me,

Well, you can't be that lucky you see.

City's 31 Playgrounds Open

The Quincy Recreation Department's 31 playgrounds are open for an eight week period during July and August. Director William F. Ryan said each playground will be staffed with two leaders, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Mondays through Fridays, and each will offer a wide range of activities, including leagues of baseball, basketball, softball, trips, family evenings, special events, games, and other sports.

In addition to the regular playground leaders, playground specialists will visit each area on regular weekly schedules, offering instruction in golf, archery, tennis, nature study, arts and crafts, music, drama and dance. City-wide tournaments, performances and exhibits climax each of these activities.

Playground registration is at the following locations:

Ward 1 - Faxon Field, behind the Voc Tech School, Whitwell, Baker, Bayside, Harborview, LaBrecque, Quarterdeck, Snug Harbor, Heron Rd and Perkins.

Ward 2 - Elm St., Fore River, Pollard, Pond St., Faxon Park and Bradford.

Ward 3 - Forbes Hill, Stoney Brae, Wollaston and Montclair. Ward 4 - Shea Rink [Curry Field], O'Rourke, Columbia and Kincaide.

Ward 5 - Mass Fields, Beechwood Knoll and Merrymount.

Ward 6 - Myles Standish, Atlantic, Squantum and Welcome Young on Sagamore St.

Quincy Track Club Off To Good Start

It looks like an interesting summer of track in Quincy.

The Quincy Track Club made its official debut last week with the first of several weekly meets at Veterans Memorial Stadium and the turnout and the competition were heartening to the officials.

Several Quincy boys and girls had been appearing unofficially under the Track Club colors in meets at Braintree, Brockton and Falmouth, and had made excellent showings.

More than 20 events were run on the opening card and competition was keen.

Winners in the girls' 100-yard dash were Michelle Riggs in the 9-11 year old class, Karen Candlaff, 12-15, and Roberta Mahn, open.

Boys' 110-yard dash winners were Jack Brown, 9-11 years of age; Doron Ezickson, 12-15, and Lee Watkins, open.

Boys' 440: Pat King, 9-11; Doron Ezickson, 12-15, and Dave DiBona, open.

Boys' 880: Don Jones, 12-15 and Tex Varrasso, open.

Boys' long jump: Dave Church, 9-11; Brian Djerf, 12-15 and John Johnson, open.

Girls' 12-15 long jump: Rory Nolan.

Boys' shot put: Harry Knudson, 12-15 and Paul Doherty, open.

Men's Discus: Dave Popsie. Boys' relay: Andy Levitsky, Steve Donovan, Dave Church and Jack Brown, 9-11.

Girls' 12-15 relay: Patty Micelli, Gera Foy, Paula Church and Ann Sullivan.

● Senior Babe Ruth Quincy Bows To Milton, 4-0

The Quincy Senior Babe Ruth League team, Data Services, dropped a 4-0 decision to Milton Sunday when Milton scored three runs in the fifth inning to wrap things up.

Quincy, which is having a good year in the South Shore League, was held to three hits as it suffered its first shutout of the season.

Last week Quincy out-slugged South Boston One, 10-9, with two runs in the sixth inning.

Southie had exploded for six runs in the third inning for a 9-4 lead but strong relief pitching by Gerry Gavin halted South Boston and his mates scored three in the fourth, one in the fifth and won it with the two in the sixth.

Gavin allowed only two hits in 4 2/3 innings. Paul Messina was three for three including a double, drove in a run with a long sacrifice fly, scored a run and stole a base. Dave Power was three for four and scored three runs and Spike Cooney also scored three runs.

Earlier in the week Quincy avenged an earlier defeat by defeating Randolph, 5-1, behind the four-hit pitching of Gerry Bugden. In the first game of the year Randolph had erupted for 19 runs against Quincy. Bugden also sparked the attack with a triple and single while Paul Conner and Nick Anastas had doubles.

● Babe Ruth League Firefighters Win 3, Police 2

The Police Club won two Babe Ruth League games during the past week, defeating Gino's, 16-2, and edging Morrisette Post, 6-5.

Against Gino's, Ronny Donovan was the winning pitcher. Chuck LoPresti had two hits including a home run, John Ferris, Brian Connolly, Ed Laracy, Mike Murphy and Rich Boyle each had two hits and John Andrews a double.

LoPresti was the winning pitcher against Morrisette and struck out 11. Donovan, Boyle, LoPresti and Murphy each had two hits and Lou Fishman and Andrews had other hits. John Silva had two for Morrisette.

Morrisette defeated Burger King, 14-9, with Brian Harding the winning pitcher. Brian Dierf, Tom Cahill, Brian Reidy had two hits each, Mark Forrester had a double and Jimmy Hanrahan a single. Mike Nee sparked defensively.

Houghs Neck defeated VFW, 8-5, with Art Davis pitching, and Gino's topped Sons of Italy on Paul Barry's four-hitter.

Firemen continued their winning ways with three more wins and lead the American League with a 9-3 record.

The Firemen nipped Sons of Italy, 3-2, with Bud Daley pitching a three-hitter and striking out eight. Both teams played fine defensive ball with Firemen's Tom Wilkinson making several outstanding plays at shortstop. They followed with a 6-3 win over Burger King as Sal Coscia allowed only four hits and struck out eight, and they blanked Bersani Brothers, 5-0, as Daley pitched a no-hitter.

Babe Ruth National All-Stars In Tourney

The Quincy Babe Ruth National League All-Stars will open state tournament play tomorrow [Thursday] at Kelly Field in Milton at 2 p.m.

If Quincy wins on the holiday it will continue tournament competition at Adams Field in Quincy Saturday.

The all-stars are coached by Dick Laracy of the Police Boys Club, assisted by Ed Hutchins of Hancock Bank and Jack Kelly of Morrisette Post.

The roster:

Lou Fishman, Chuckie

LoPresti, John Ferris, Mike Murphy and John Andrews, Police Club; Paul Bowen, Maltby King and, Mike McCormack, Hancock Bank; Brian Kelly and Brian Ready, Morrisette Post;

Dave Rafferty, Bob Stack and Steve Bowen, brother of Paul, Granite City Electric; Jim McGinley and Frank Cangemi, Sons of Italy. Bat boys are Peter Murphy and Bobby Laracy.

Mulroy, McPeck Win May Bowl At FB

The women of Furnace Brook Golf Club completed the May Bowl with Ellie Mulroy and Helene McPeck defeating Mimi DeFederico and Eileen Clifford. In the consolation Florence Eramo and Barbara Spinello defeated Edna Phelps and Rena Roche.

In Class A of the first round of the Directors Cup, Mary Morrissey defeated Mimi DeFederico, Mel Corbin defeated Florence Eramo, Jeanne Doherty defeated Rena Roche and Joyce Robbins won by default over Priscilla O'Neill.

● Squirt House Murphy Scores 5 In Team 1, 11-0 Win

Tommy Murphy had five goals as Team 1 exploded for an 11-0 win over Team 4 in the Squirt House League. Ricky Miller had two goals and Kevin Craig, Kevin Chase, Billy Curran and Mike Marshall one each. Craig had five assists, Chase, Marshall, Rich O'Cullivan, Mike Chennette and Joey Enggrassia two each and Murphy and Curran one apiece.

Team 5 nipped Team 2, 2-1, on goals by Mike Sullivan and Dick Mahoney and excellent goal tending by Tommy Corliss.

Paul McCabe scored for Team 2 with assists for John O'Connell and Rich Milano.

Team 6 edged Team 3, 5-4, with Dennis Burtado having the hat trick and Rosendo Castilla and John Burm one goal each for Team 6. Furtado also had two assists, Dave MacMurdo and Burm one each. For Team 3 Frankie Reynolds, Kevin Duff, Jim Kustka and Chris Gorman had the goals and Teddy Walsh had two assists, Mike Connolly, Kevin White and Reynolds one each.

● Pee Wee House Boussy's Hat Trick Sparks Team 5

Team 5 rolled over Team 2, 9-1, in the Pee Wee House League, as Mark Boussy had the hat trick, Dick McCarthy two goals, Mark Veasey, Tommy Mullen, John Lyons and Bob Larsen once each.

Boussy, Mullen and Freddie Palmer each had two assists, Lyons and Bob Currier one each. For Team 2 Dick Tyan scored and Tom McHugh and Bill Doran had assists.

Team 6 defeated Team 3, 6-4, with Steve Walsh scoring twice, Mike Doherty, Bobby Bolster, Bob Beniers and Jim Paolucci once each. Walsh and Doherty had two assists apiece, Beniers and Mike Nevins one each. Robbie Craig had two goals for Team 3 and Robbie Zanardelli and John Toland one each and Zanardelli had three assists, Craig two and John Coleman and Toland one each.

Team 1 romped over Team 4, 11-3.

● Mite House Kelly Scores 4 As Team 4 Wins

In the Mite House League Team 4 defeated Team 1, 5-2.

Danny Kelly scored four goals and Sean Laughman one for the winners with assists for Jeff Murphy and Pete Quinn. Steve White and Bobby McCabe scored the Team 1 goals.

Team 2 topped Team 5, 7-4, with Mark Chambers scoring four goals and Brian Chase three for Team 2. Chase also had three assists and Jim Daly one. For Team 5, Scott Messina had all four goals with assists for Ray Paul Welliver and Brian Spring.

Team 6 edged Team 3, 4-3, with Jimmy Milano having the hat trick and Paul Marshall the other goal for the winners. Chris Hurley had two goals and Jimmy Crossman one for Team 3, while Billy Hughes had two assists and Ed Fleming one.

MUSIAL'S RECORD

On May 13, 1958, Stan Musial of St. Louis Cardinals joined seven other players in baseball history in scoring his 3,000th major league hit.

MOTORCYCLE FIRST

On May 16, 1903, George A. Wyman of San Francisco became the first person to try to cross the United States by motorcycle; he arrived in New York two months later.

● Senior Summer League

Clovers Win Protested

The Quincy Clovers won their second straight Senior Summer Hockey League game last week at the Quincy Youth Arena but their 5-3 decision over the Atlantic Flames was protested.

"I protested the game because of what I felt was an illegal goal which cost us the game," said Flames Coach Barry Blesedell.

"On the third Quincy goal, Fred Ahern came out of the corner with the puck and attempted to backhand it into the net. The goalie made the save. In the process of shooting, Ahern fell on the goalie, pinning him in the crease.

"Another Quincy player shot the puck into the net and referee Mike O'Connell called it a goal. NHL rules clearly state that a player in the crease nullifies a goal."

● Bantam House

Teams 5, 2 In Tie

Team 5 and Team 2 played to a 4-4 tie in the Bantam House League.

Louis Mathews had two goals for Team 5, Mike Van Tassel and John Norton one each with two assists for Eddie Kane and one each by Brian Norton, Ray Coleman, Russ DiPietro and John Kelley. For Team 2 Danny Sullivan had two goals and Bob Collins and John Kelley one each. Mike Pitts had three assists, Kelley two, Mike Bennett and Bud Wells one each.

Team 1 topped Team 4, 5-2, with Mike Bonarick and Dave Lewis having two goals each and Jim Crossen one. Danny Gorman and Bud Richardson had assists. Kevin McGrath and John Cotter scored for Team 4 and Cotter made it 2-0 with an unassisted goal.

Atlantic tied it with two goals in the second period but Quincy quickly regained the lead at 2:21 of the third period on Ahern's disputed goal and Frankie Guest scored the winning goal at 4:54 with Tim Morrill assisting. After an Atlantic goal, Morrill scored the insurance goal at 19:41 with Cunniff assisting.

Charlie Rheault was outstanding in Quincy's goal with 40 saves, seven in the first, 13 in the second and 20 in the final session as Atlantic put on the pressure.

Boston Budmen remained in first place with a 3-0 record as they defeated the Newman Club, 7-4, and Whitman Cats gained their first win, 5-3, over the Walpole Chiefs.

and John Rafferty had assists.

Team 6 defeated Team 3, 5-1, with Billy Allen having the hat trick and Bryan McGilvray and Bobby Hayes scoring once each. Steve Whittemore had three assists, Jim McHugh and Billy Deitsch two each, Hayes, Mike Walsh, Danny Higgins and John Molloy one each.

Perez, Durkin Win At SYC

By JAMES COLLINS

Light air and a sea fog caused an abbreviated race course of the Squantum Yacht Club on Saturday.

In the Flying Scot class over a 5.5 mile windward-leeward course the Brandy skippered by Gabe Perez was the first home followed by Jim Beaton's "Dream Awhile".

The Turnabout Class sailed over a 2.5 mile windward-leeward purse with Margaret Durkin's No. 1558 claiming the winning spot.

The summary:

Brandy, Gabe Perez, 1-10-16.
Dream Awhile, Jim Beaton, 1-10-24.

No. 414, David Gwynn, 1-11-00.

Other finishers: No. 421, No Name; No. 2422, Bob Montgomery; No. 1331, P. Ottobri; and No. 2454, Earl Sunderland.

Turnabout Class:

No. 1558, Margaret Durkin, 0-39-25.

No. 1433, Nick Ranzalli, 0-39-27.

No. 773, Sandy Stover, 0-39-29.

Quincy Wins 5-3, 17-6

Quincy got good all around hitting and solid pitching from Paul Craig and John Earle last week in sweeping a pair of Zone 6 Legion baseball games from Hingham, 5-3, and Wollaston, 17-6.

Craig allowed five hits and fanned eight in beating Hingham. He also banded in two runs with a triple and scored a third on Paul Sutherland's single in Quincy's big three-run fourth. Quincy scored six runs in the first inning on singles by Sutherland, Frank DiSalvio and Bill Berberan, three walks and two wild pitches to touch off the one-sided victory over Wollaston.

Dave Sten pitched to the first four Wollaston batters, then retired in favor of Earle, who went the rest of the way.

●Junior Baseball

HN, VFW Each Rack Up Pair

Houghs Neck and VFW each won two Quincy Junior Baseball League games during the past week to move up in the standings.

Houghs Neck defeated Burgin Platner, 6-1, behind the strong pitching of Jeff Giordani. Mike Abboud and Tom McFarland had doubles and Greg Oriola, Giordani, Abboud, Kevin McKinnon, Frank McPartland and Matt Kenny had singles. Tom O'Connor started at second base and played an outstanding game. Joe Phelan finished up at second.

Houghs Neck also topped Elks, 14-5, with Abboud and Oriola sharing the pitching duties. Steve Notorangelo, McKinnon and Abboud had doubles and Oriola, Giordani, Kenny and Bob Cronin singles. Marty McLaughlin excelled at third base.

VFW blanked Elks, 7-0, with Gordon Spencer starring on the mound and Jim Sullivan catching. Paul O'Toole had a double and two singles, Sullivan two singles and Danny Boyle a single.

VFW also defeated Keohane's, 4-1, with O'Toole pitching a one-hitter and striking out 13. Tom Roche had a double and two singles, O'Toole, Boyle, Sullivan and Spencer a single each. For Keohane's Brian Reale had the only hit and made an outstanding diving catch at second base.

●Quincy Softball

Marcel Wins 3 Straight Shutouts To Take Lead

Marcel Corp. won three successive shutouts during the past week to move into first place in the Quincy Softball League's American League West.

Marcel started the streak by clobbering Alumni, 23-0, playing errorless ball. It edged Barry's Ship Haven, 2-0, with Ed Cahill pitching a strong game and rolled over Bill's Texaco, 21-0, with Ray Connerty going five for five including a home run. Bill Plant pitched one-hit ball.

Sabina's kept winning with a 14-3 breeze over Berry Insurance. Tim Flynn and Paul Jay sparked the attack. Flynn was four for four, including a home run and drove in four runs, while Jay had three hits.

A & T Movers broke out of a batting slump with a come-from-behind 14-9 win over Dee Dee's. A & T trailed at one time, 9-3, thanks mainly to Fran Lacy's clutch triple, but A & T bounced back led by the big bats of Bill Osborne and Ken McPhee. A & T then defeated Wells Grille, 12-5, despite two home runs over the left field fence at Rotary Field by Garry McGrath.

Elks Present Memorial Football To Mrs. Edward Densmore

engraved in memory of the late Edward A. Densmore of Quincy, to his widow, Mrs. Grace Densmore, at her home at 28

Wollaston Ave., Wollaston, Monday night.

Densmore was a Past Exalted Ruler of Quincy Elks Lodge, a past district deputy for ten Elks Lodges in the area, was very active in services to the Elks' hospitalized veterans program, and was a strong supporter of all Elks' charitable and benevolent programs, one of which was the annual Elks' Charity Football Game, to which were invited each year as guests of the Elks, a large number of hospitalized veterans.

Attending the presentation ceremonies were Quincy Lodge Exalted Ruler John J. Gorman, Representative Joseph E. Brett, a past exalted ruler, past district deputy, and past state president of the Elks; and Thomas M. Garrity of Braintree, Quincy Lodge representative in charge of veterans' services at the Jamaica Plain VA Hospital.

New South Shore Summer Players Open In August

South Shore Summer Players [SSSP], a new theatrical organization in Quincy, invites the public to participate in its first, kick-off production, to be scheduled in August.

Paul J. Goslin, the club's clerk-secretary, calls SSSP "a wide-open organization." He said, "We'd be glad and thankful to accept people."

Other officers of SSSP are Kevin Veronneau, president; Joseph Smongeski, first vice-president; Paul Marcantonio, second vice-president; and Richard Meredith, treasurer.

All of the officers are former students of North Quincy High School. They were members of the concert choir, band, and drama club, participating in such musicals as "The Roar of the Greasepaint", "The Smell of the Crowd", "The Music Man" and "Fiddler on the Roof".

The officers are now continuing their training in the arts at Boston Conservatory of Music, Northeastern University, University of Massachusetts and other institutions.

SSSP has decided to produce "Dames at Sea", a spoof on the escapist movie musicals of the 30's. The two leads are Ruby and Dick. Ruby is the starry-eyed girl from Utah who arrives in New York with hopes of becoming a Broadway star. But she only has a pair of tap-dancing shoes in her suitcase.

Lucky, Joan, Mona Kent, Hennessy - and Captain 'Kewpie-doll' Courageous round out the rest of the cast.

Dr. Lawrence Creedon, superintendent of Quincy Public Schools, has allowed the group to rehearse at Atlantic Junior High School throughout July and August. An organizational meeting at the school is planned for early July. Help is needed in all aspects of the production - stage crew, lighting, set design, advertising, and of course, acting, singing and dancing.

Most people stop counting birthdays after 40 - or they try to forget them.

But Roland [Pop] Josselyn is still counting, and remembering, at 90. An open house was held on the big day - Saturday - at the home of Pop's granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. William MacDonald of 1109 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

Pop's great-grandchildren decorated the house which welcomed 75 birthday-wishing neighbors and passers-by. Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly stopped by to congratulate Pop.

Late in the afternoon, Pop and 50 friends and relatives feasted at a cookout. A group of friends headed by Mrs. Kay Dennis presented Pop with a money tree. A cake baked and decorated by Mrs. Abbie Sinesand had the number "90" inscribed on top.

But Pop laughingly turned the "9" upside-down, saying, "Look how old I am - 60!"

Pop Josselyn was a carpenter and builder by trade, working out of Brockton and Quincy. He was fourth in a family of six children.

He was active in boy scouting for 35 years. He was a cub master for many years and served on scout committees.

Pop's advice to others wishing to match his age will be welcomed with cheers:

"Don't worry about weight and height, about being fat or thin. I eat everything."

But then Pop wisely adds, "Keep busy."

Pop raised four children of his own and has 11 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren. No wonder he says:

"Look at life the right way. Take an interest in your children. And don't be an old grouch."

Guest Jogs 180 Miles To Wedding

Sixteen-year-old Peter J. Creedon, nephew of Quincy School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, traveled from St. James, Long Island to attend the wedding of his uncle Eugene Creedon.

But Peter did not drive to Quincy. He did not fly, nor did he hitchhike. He jogged.

Peter and three friends jogged the 180-mile distance between St. James and Rosindale, earning money for a Long Island hospital mile by mile.

By the time Peter, Glenn Luce, 16, Jeff Quinn, 15, and Bryan Shea, 16, cooled their tired feet in Dr. Creedon's pool, they had raised $1,500.

Monday equipped with sturdy jogging shoes and a wagon-toting-bicycle. The wagon contained a tent and sleeping bags, for the boys camped out most of the time. One night, however, they stayed in a dormitory at Brown University. Their trip ended five days later in Bellevue Park, Rosindale.

The boys took turns riding the bike while the other three diligently jogged behind. They covered approximately 38 miles each day.

But the boys were certainly prepared for their grueling trip, for all of them are members of the cross-country team at Smithtown High School in New York.

Reminds Candidates To Obey Sign Laws

Quincy Building Inspector Allan F. MacDonald has issued a reminder to candidates in the fall election that the city has laws governing the display of political signs.

Zoning Ordinance Chapter 24, Section 81, as amended, states:

"In any business or industrial district, signs or advertising devices shall be permitted only as follows:

"Temporary political signs, not exceeding 32 square feet in area, may be erected no sooner than 30 days before any primary election and must be removed by the property owners 14 days after the general election."

"No political signs shall be permitted in any residence district."

Congresswoman Margaret M. Heckler, 10th Congressional District, addressed the graduates.

LaRaia: 'Can Be Reversed'

Council Continues Battle With Mayor Over Trash-Garbage Collection

By MARYANN DUGGAN

The City Council this week refused to toss in the towel in its battle with Mayor Walter Hannon over the combined collection of garbage and trash.

Although the Mayor was saying the operation was "going smoothly" and praised residents for their cooperation, Councilor Joseph LaRaia declared:

"The Mayor's actions can be reversed. The important thing is not to let the issue die when the Mayor says the operation is going well."

Meanwhile Councillors James Sheets and Warren Powers continued their efforts to halt the disposal of garbage in any sanitary landfill facility in Quincy.

A special City Council meeting was called by Council President Arthur Tobin for Wednesday night at the request of LaRaia.

At this meeting the council was to formally receive Mayor Hannon's veto of three council orders pertaining to the trash-garbage collection.

LaRaia noted that the council would then have seven days before it could officially act on the vetos. A two-thirds [six] vote would be required to override the vetos.

"There's a chance-50-50," said LaRaia, "that his [the Mayor's] actions can be reversed."

LaRaia also said: "There have been trucks from out of town coming into the Quincy dump. Do we take their garbage, too?"

The council's agenda listed three vetoed items for discussion. The first was introduced by LaRaia calling for the separate collection of rubbish and garbage in Quincy. Underscoring the urgency of the order, the Council had attached to it an emergency preamble declaring the order "an emergency law necessary...to promote the health, safety and welfare" of Quincy residents and property.

The Mayor, however, discounted the need for an emergency preamble. In his veto-statement to the Council, Hannon noted that the Mass. Department of Public Health approves the combined collection and disposition of garbage and rubbish.

"Therefore I see no danger to public health and no need for an emergency preamble," he said.

The Mayor also cited Norfolk Superior Court Judge Vincent Brogna's ruling that a mixed collection is not a health hazard.

Hannon called the City Council ordinance "unenforceable," since it would force the Quincy dump to close and thus "cost the city millions of dollars to dispose of its rubbish and garbage outside city limits."

The City council had also approved a resolve which would have prohibited cities and towns in Massachusetts from mixing garbage and rubbish.

But the Mayor also vetoed the resolve, saying that 81 cities and towns throughout the state operate under a contract dictating a combined pick-up of rubbish and garbage. The passage of the resolve would thus force those communities to breach their contracts, he said.

The Council's special agenda also dealt with a proposed change in city ordinance introduced by Councillors Sheets and Powers. The change would clarify Section 37, Chapter 15 of the City ordinances which now reads:

"No person shall deposit in any dump, public or private, any animal or vegetable material, or other material which shall become a breeding place for rodents, flies or vermin."

The Sheets-Powers amendment to this ordinance would read: "No person shall dump garbage in a public or private landfill facility or dump in Quincy. Garbage is defined as animal, vegetable or other organic waste."

Powers delineated the differences between Section 37 as it stands and Section 37 as amended, noting that the latter specifically mentions as well as defines "garbage" and specifically mentions the phrase "landfill facility."

The present Section 37 neither mentions nor defines garbage, nor does it use the

SOUTH SHORE NATIONAL VS. THE SAVINGS BANKS

A savings account at a savings bank will pay you about 1/4% more than a savings account at South Shore National Bank.

For most people, who average somewhere under $1000 in savings, that comes to around $3 a year.

So we say, put your savings into South Shore National, in a Multistatement account.

We'll give you free checking.

And 10% refunds on the interest you pay on your loans.

And you'll come out way ahead with us. (We're beating the savings banks at their own game.)

THE MULTISTATEMENT PACKAGE:

FREE CHECKING, 10% REFUND OF THE PAID FINANCE CHARGES ON ANY INSTALLMENT LOAN OF $1000 OR MORE WHICH IS PUT ON MULTISTATEMENT WITHIN 90 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF THE LOAN. MAXIMUM INTEREST ALLOWABLE BY LAW ON ALL SAVINGS. REQUIREMENTS: (1) MULTISTATEMENT CUSTOMER MUST HAVE CHECKING ACCOUNT AND AT

LEAST ONE SAVINGS OR NOW ACCOUNT WITH SOUTH SHORE NATIONAL BANK; (2) MINIMUM TOTAL MONTHLY BALANCE SPREAD AMONG ALL ACCOUNTS: $200. Tax Rate Will Still Increase Despite $1.1 Million Windfall

By JAMES COLLINS

Although Quincy will receive an additional amount of $1,141,982 in state reimbursement as a result of revision of the Cherry Sheet there will still be a sizeable tax increase for Quincy homeowners Mayor Walter J. Hannon reports.

The additional reimbursement the city will receive is equal to a saving of $4. on the city's tax rate city officials pointed out. Last year's rate was $154.50.

The funds the city will receive are in addition to the $8,262,126 the city is due to receive in state and county reimbursements when the first Cherry Sheets were released in April.

Mayor Hannon said the tax rate will increase because of three factors already known: A City Council passed a budget of $62,028,177; a total assessed valuation of the city of $154,000,000; and the total revised Cherry Sheet figure of $9,438,107.

Mayor Hannon said that it will be some time yet before all the city employee bargaining units agree on their contracts and the tax rate can be set. The only city department near a settlement is the Public Works.

Quincy will pick up under the revised Cherry Sheet figures $519,825 on its County tax; $27,724 on its County hospital tax; $22,527 on MDC park taxes; $40,125 on highway taxes; $232,271 on Chapter 70; $132,877 on the State highway fund; and $274,933 on State lottery reimbursements.

These gains are offset, however, by Cherry Sheet revisions which will cost the city $8,172 in taxes on state owned land and $100,228 on machinery distribution tax.

'Millions Lost'

Shipyard Strike In 114th Day

The strike at the Quincy Shipyard of General Dynamics which entered its 114th day Tuesday in the opinion of a Federal Mediator has cost the South Shore area millions of lost dollars.

Federal and State mediators, the shipyard unions, and management officials were called into a mediation session Tuesday at the John F. Kennedy Building in the Government Center, Boston.

W. J. Usery, head of the Federal Mediation Service in Washington, D.C., said the economic loss to the company, union members, and the communities on the South Shore has already run into millions of dollars.

Attending the meeting were members of the shipyard unions, representatives of General Dynamics, federal and state mediators. Representing the Federal Mediation Service was Norman Walker of the Washington office; Richard Goggin of the Boston area office; and David Grodsky of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

The talks have been hung up on the issue of union stewards doing union work outside of their trades on company time.

General Dynamics terms it "production improvements". However Local 5 composed of production workers calls it "shipyard mechanics" or jacks of all trades. The union has sent a letter to its members listing 64 issues still unresolved.

Legislation Will Save City

$1.1 Million In Assessments

The City of Quincy will save over $1,100,000 this year and in coming years in county assessments by a locally initiated bill signed into law by Gov. Francis Sargent.

The bill was co-sponsored by Representative William D. Delahunt and Thomas F. Brownell of Quincy.

The legislators in a letter to Mayor Walter J. Hannon said they hoped that savings resulting from the legislation coupled with the city's efforts to cut spending on the local level will hold the line on any property tax increase this year.

Delahunt and Brownell pointed out that many of the property owners especially the elderly will be unable to handle any further increases in the tax rate.

Blood Supply 'Very Low', Red Cross Seeks Donors

Mrs. Mildred Ambrosia, Volunteer Blood Donor Chairman for the Greater Quincy Red Cross Chapter is appealing to residents of the Quincy area to donate a pint of blood as supplies "are very low at this time".

Eligible to donate are those in good health between the ages of 18 and 66. With parental consent those 17 years old can donate blood.

The Bloodmobile will be at Temple Beth El, 1001 Hancock St., on Friday, July 19, between the hours of 1 and 5 p.m. Prospective donors should call 472-2700 for an appointment.

New Students Must Enroll

Historical Society Tea At Adams Birthplaces July 14

The Quincy Historical Society will hold its Annual Tea and Open House at the Adams Birthplaces Sunday, July 14 from 3 to 5 p.m.

This traditional event has been held for many years on the Sunday nearest the birthday of John Quincy Adams which falls on July 11.

In recognition of the joint operation of the historic red farmhouses on Franklin St. by the Historical Society and the City of Quincy, City officials and their wives are specially invited to this event. Invitations have also been sent to the presidents of neighboring historical societies. This year the Weymouth Historical Society will be participating with the Quincy Historical Society.

Miss Vera Call is in charge of arrangements for the tea, assisted, as is customary, by the lady members of the Society's Board of Curators and the wives of the men on the Board.

The Birthplaces have been open to the public as historic shrines since 1897. They have been owned by the City of Quincy since 1940 when they were deeded to the City by the Adams family. Quincy Historical Society owns the contents of the houses, and has operated the John Quincy Adams Birthplace since 1897 and the John Adams Birthplace since 1950.

The event will be held regardless of the weather.

Magazine a good gift

By RIV TOBIN

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

My grandson is 12 years old and is returning to the United States after having lived in South America where his parents are missionaries. I'd like to give him a "welcome home" gift, but have no idea what to buy. I have never seen him and always sent money to his mother to buy him suitable gifts there. Please give me an idea for something that would please him.

Donna McM.

Dear Donna:

How about a subscription to Boys' Life. It's published monthly by the Boy Scouts of America.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Our 30-year-old daughter was recently divorced and has come home to live with us. When we are invited to a party should we tell our hostess we have a "house guest"?

Mr. and Mrs. Folks

Dear Folks:

No. Your friends will soon learn about the addition to your household and if they want to include your daughter they will. She should be making friends in her own age group and not toddling along with her parents.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

"We are not Jewish but friends have invited us to their daughter's Bas Mitzvah. We're not exactly sure what a Bas Mitzvah is or what will be expected of us.

The Johnsons

Dear Johnsons:

A Bas Mitzvah is a ceremony held for a Jewish girl when she is 12 or 13 years old and assumes religious responsibilities. A Bas Mitzvah is given for a boy. It is a beautiful service and nothing will be expected of you in the way of participation. The Bas Mitzvah girl is usually given a gift of money, jewelry or the ever popular fountain pen. (She probably will receive three!) I expect you have been invited to the reception afterward. Congratulate the young lady and thank her parents for inviting you.

Today's Women

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Daughter told of a visitor

By ANN RUDY

Because we have announced our daughter's engagement, I thought it only fitting that I take the girl aside and tell her a few facts of life.

I'll admit I've been remiss in this respect, but you know how mothers are. I mean, it's only natural to want to shield a young girl from as much as possible.

Besides, the facts I had to tell her she'd have no use for anyway unless she was married. So we sat down together in the living room over a pot of tea and I told her to make herself as comfortable as she could because what I had to tell her might cause her to swoon.

"Go ahead, mother," she

'It may come as a great shock. . .'

instructed, so I launched right in.

"It may come as a great shock to you," I said, "but after you have been married nine months or so you may have a visitor."

She rolled her eyes heavenward and said, "Mother, come on!"

I edged closer to her on the sofa and clutched her knee.

"You must listen to me," I implored. "Nine months is just about how long it takes for a garbage disposer to break down from all the corn husks you'll probably stuff into it and then you will have to call a plumber. And his visit will cost you more than the honeymoon."

Strangely enough, she seemed to relax. Even after I told her about steam irons that suddenly spray rusty water instead of steam.

Even after I warned her about what the underside of her cook top will look like when she lifts it to clean after three months of things boiling over.

"Dried oatmeal and old egg whites," I told her, "are so hard to remove that when you find them you'd be better off to either move or paint them and pretend they are part of the appliance."

By this time I was trembling. It isn't easy for a mother to talk about such things—especially when I haven't looked under my own cook top for six months.

But she was wonderful about it.

"Mom," she said, putting her arm around my shoulders, "Thanks. I think I'm gonna make it."

Brides drop $1,000 on bedroom fixtures

Newlyweds are spending more money these days on their bedroom furniture.

According to a Tendex study, 1.7 million newlyweds spent an average of $994 apiece for their bedrooms in 1973. That works out to a total of $1.7 billion. — CNS

Health High-Lights

FIND A FLOAT

Suppose you see someone fall into the water and begin shouting for help. You're not a good swimmer. What can you do? There's no ring, life buoy or other aid in sight - or is there?

Usually there is. How about a vacuum jug, or an ice chest with a clamp-on lid? A canoe paddle? A fallen branch from a tree? And don't forget that spare tire in the trunk of your car.

These and dozens of other commonplace objects have one important, lifesaving characteristic - they float, and a floating object can save a drowning person.

Many of the 5,000 victims who drown annually in water-related accidents could be saved by the use of improvised flotation aids. Just keep in mind that lots of things float - and not every lifesaver has to look like one.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Blocks and delays lift now and you can operate with greater ease. Concentrate attention on details of money matters. Stick to your budget — curb extravagance. Issues involving residence being re-solved now.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — You can solve your problems now with surprising ease. Your popularity is high so enlist the support from others you need this week. Think over past ideas as they could apply to a new project begun now.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Your energy appears somewhat low now, but you will have to "produce." Others make demands which must be met. An important decision must be made and some sort of deadline met. Concentrate carefully.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Pull your attention away from the past — what is ended. Look optimistically toward new beginnings. If separations occur, know that you are released for new experience. Be realistic and face the facts. Cooperate.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Busy, busy, busy characterizes this week. Old projects and new plans, all cry for attention. Matters at a distance appear important now. Popularity is high and social life expands. Settle a matter with compromise.

VIRGO: (August 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Associating with a partner in a business venture appears possible. You impress those in high positions very positively. You're sharp now regarding finances. Some confusion surrounds a romantic attraction.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — With so many "irons in the fire" it is possible that errors will occur. Keep the new, powerful "you" under control and be careful not to "use" others. Use finesse and charm in dealing with difficult superior.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant)

— A time to begin new projects in personal life and work areas. You'll work best on the sidelines rather than at the center of activity. Bring harmony in domestic life by gently leading instead of commanding.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Work at your top form now to meet and conquer competition. Be self-confident and maintain a positive attitude. A financial deal involving property makes you tense but should turn out well.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Financial or tax matters can be solved and agreements reached now. A major success in business can be achieved through cooperative efforts. Some conflict between professional life and domestic life defies compromise.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Be meticulously truthful now and refrain from gossip or idle comments. Be patient, observe, and don't jump to conclusions without all the facts. Be creative — invest in your personal ability and talents.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Now is the time to get your idea packaged and merchandised. Financing should be available if needed. Opportunities for increased income are around you. Make contacts — take action. Romance is highlighted.

HOLLYWOOD HOTLINE

Kamel attracts night fans too

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Though Stanley Kamel plays (in his words) "a compassionate young writer" in the soap "Days of Our Lives," he's played so many meanies in guest roles on other shows that he reports, "My nieces and nephews keep saying, 'They got Uncle Stanley again,' as I'm led off into the sunset in handcuffs. I'd like to play something more sympathetic for a change."

Meanwhile, though, he's developed such a following through his daytime television career that, when Actors and Others for Animals held its annual money-raiser at the Burbank Studio, fans raced right by night-time stars to pounce on Stanley.

Kamel joyously admits that daytime viewers are numerous and ardent as he discovered once when performing a guest role in a "Manix" episode.

"We were out on location somewhere," he cheerily relates, "and the very policemen posted on duty to keep the public away grabbed me to ask, 'You didn't really rape that girl, did you, Eric?'"

"They ignored Mike Connors and other big stars there, because, they said, their wives watch 'Days of Our Lives.'"

(Incidentally, the police weren't asking about rape in pursuance of crime. They were seeking reassurance about a soap opera favorite.)

While Stanley's private life may not be so interesting as "Days of Our Lives," his love life is interesting enough, because he's madly in love with an Israeli combat veteran.

A woman, of course. "I'm 31 and she's 43," Stanley says, "so I probably should be going with someone her daughter's age."

"But, compared with her, young girls just aren't interesting."

"She's fought with the Israeli army. She speaks five languages. She's a gourmet cook."

"Young girls are all right, but this woman is marvelous!"

Yet, despite such enthusiasm, Kamel doesn't plan marriage. Not for the moment, at least.

George Riley Installed Lions Club President

He succeeds Everett Tatreau of Quincy.

During the evening Joseph N. Ricciardi of Scituate was named Lion of the Year. He is district manager of Quincy's office at the John Hancock Insurance Company. Ricciardi was also installed as the club's secretary.

Other officers installed were

Roger Perfetti, Braintree, first vice-president; William O'Connell, Duxbury, second vice-president; John Swanson, Weymouth, third vice-president;

Alexander Smith, Plymouth, treasurer; William Shea, Squantum, tall twister; and Columbo Cherubini, lion tamer.

Installed as directors were Matthew McDonnell, Quincy; Joseph Kopovsky, Milton; Arthur Gillis, Weymouth; Edward Deenen, Quincy; Leroy Rounseville, Quincy and Norman Jacoby of Brookline.

Abundant Early Summer Crops May Bring Lower Prices

The bounty of early summer is evident now, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA), with ample supplies of just about all of the vegetables grown in the Bay State.

There may even be some price reductions at farm stands and produce counters.

Zucchini squash, native green cabbage, chicory and escarole, beets, Boston, romaine and salad bowl lettuce, radishes and green-house tomatoes are to be found in good quantities, all harvested from nearby farms.

Greenhouse-grown, vine-ripened tomatoes are especially noteworthy this week, having been quite scarce in the market until now. This delicious Massachusetts specialty - plump, bright red, and identified by the bright green stem left intact - appears to be dropping in price, and well worth looking for.

Native Savoy and Chinese cabbage are in good supply. The Savoy has a curly leaf, is considerably more tender than the green cabbage, and is excellent for cooking. Chinese cabbage is straight and white, with stalks like celery, and makes a fine salad.

Native green beans are starting to come to market, but prices at the moment will be on the high side.

Locally-grown sweet corn should show up before the end of the month, and the crop should be a very good one. Corn on the market right now is from Florida, Delaware, North Carolina and New Jersey. Some of it is of excellent quality...but nothing can compare to the flavor and quality of native corn, fresh-picked and cooked while only a few hours old.

Only extreme weather - hot or cold - will delay the local corn crop.

Though we have had some peculiar weather hereabouts, with June going into the records as well below normal in temperature, our native crops are doing well, and are reasonably "on schedule", says the MDA...and our native abundance should make eating a bit easier on the wallet, as well as happier on the taste buds.

COOL TIPS FOR HOT WEATHER

Heat and humidity affect some people more than others. But when the T-H-I (temperature humidity index) climbs into the seventies almost all of us begin to suffer. Here, then, are some reminders of time-tested tips to help take the sizzle out of summer.

- Keep shades and blinds drawn when windows are in direct sunlight.
- Turn off any un-needed lights. Burning bulbs add to the heat in a room.
- Avoid tight fitting, high-necked clothing. Light, loosely fitted clothes allow air to circulate.
- Drink plenty of liquids to replace the fluid lost through perspiration.
- Remember that iced tea is one of nature's best hot weather beverages because it is non-sweet, non-carbonated and won't build up another thirst soon after drinking.
- Cut down on the use of heat-producing appliances. Barbecue outdoors instead of using the kitchen range.

- Take tepid showers rather than icy-cold ones. And pat yourself dry instead of rubbing vigorously.

- Stay away from heat producing foods such as fats. Eat plenty of summer's fruits and vegetables.

- Wear a floppy brimmed hat to keep the sun's rays off your face and neck. Or borrow great-grandmama's idea and carry a parasol.

Parade Winners Listed Congressman Burke Presents Flag To Adams Shore Association

The Adams Shore Community Association's July 4th celebration was highlighted by a visit by Congressman James A. Burke.

Burke was the featured speaker at a morning flag raising ceremony at O'Hara Circle and presented committee chairman, Paul Harold, with a flag for the association. The flag had been flown over the U.S. Capitol in Washington in the name of the Adams Shore Community Association.

Mayor Walter Hannon, Senator Arthur Tobin, Rep. Thomas Brownell and Councillors Leo Kelly and Clifford Marshall were also present. Deputy Sheriff John Brownell of the Bryan VFW Post was color guard, assisted by Boy Scout Mark Foley. Rev. Kenneth Miner of the Adams Shore Community Church gave the prayer.

Assisting at the flag ceremony were Blue Birds, Christine Cefail, Linda Cefail, Kelley MacNeil, Carol Lynch, Natalie Nigro, Christine Donovan, Michelle Holbrook and Ann Marie Shea; Brownie Sharon Solomon and Cub Scouts Brian Donovan, Bobby Cardillo and Brian Foley.

Later in the morning citations introduced by Sen. Arthur Tobin and Councillor Leo Kelly were presented to R. Cady Loud, one of the oldest residents of Adams Shore and long-time active in the community association.

Various parade contest winners were:

Doll carriage parade - first prizes, Maryann Dennis, Jimmy Dennis, and Suzanne Shea; second prize, Deanna Nigro, third prizes to Maureen Donovan and Jana Nordstrom.

Costume parade, ages 1-7 - first prize Maureen Shea; second prizes, Tracy O'Donnell and Jody O'Donnell; third prize, Amy Donahue.

Costume parade ages 7 and up - first prizes, Patty Murray, Marianne Murray and Donna Picot, second prize, Gary MacNeil; third prize, Donna

Marin, Janet McLaughlin and Jackie McLaughlin.

Adult division winners were Harry Graham and Debbie Nigro.

Parade judges were Mrs. John O'Hara, Mrs. William Duane and Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew O'Leary.

HORRIBLES PARADE brought out a variety of costumed clad contestants at the Adams Shore Community Association's sponsored event.

Massachusetts Electric people want to answer all your questions about electric bills.

It's only natural. Because, after all, our 2700 employees are just as concerned about rising electric bills as our 635,000 customers. They pay the same electric rate and fuel adjustment charge you do.

That's why we've compiled a list of the 10 questions they are asked most frequently, together with brief answers to give you a better idea of where things stand.

If you have a question of your own that is not answered here, ask a Massachusetts Electric employee for an answer. Call the office nearest you or, if you prefer, simply mail us the attached coupon.

Q. Why has my electric bill gone up in recent months?

A. The average residential electric bill for a customer using 500 kilowatt hours a month went from $17.92 in May 1973 to $23.73 in May 1974. Approximately $1.02 of this increase reflects basic rate increases reviewed and approved by the Department of Public Utilities. The remaining $4.79 of the increase in the average residential bill is the result of higher fuel adjustment charges during the same period. This is due to the astronomical rise in the cost of residual fuel oil used to generate nearly 70% of our electricity.

Q. Why doesn't the electric company pay for these fuel cost increases instead of passing them along to their customers?

A. Since September 1973, residual fuel oil costs have gone up from $3.44 to over $11.00 a barrel or a total of more than $220,000,000 annually for our System.

This is more than 6 times our annual earnings and, without the fuel adjustment charge, your electric company would be unable to pay its bills and remain in business more than 60 days.

Q. Who gets the fuel adjustment charge on my electric bill?

A. 100% of the fuel adjustment charge is paid directly to our fuel suppliers and your electric company doesn't make a penny's worth of profit on it.

Q. If fuel costs go down, will my electric bill go down, too?

A. Yes. The fuel adjustment charge protects both you and your electric company against rapid fuel cost changes. When fuel costs go down, your fuel adjustment charge will automatically go down, too.

Q. Are fuel costs higher here in New England than in other parts of the country?

A. Yes. Fuel costs in New England have risen 139% since the energy crisis began; this is about 3 times the national average. These energy costs are for oil, coal, and gas used to generate electricity and not other energy costs. Legislation is needed to equalize New England's energy costs. We have asked our Congressmen for help in putting us on an equal footing with other areas.

Q. What else is the electric company doing to reduce fuel costs?

A. All that we can. By next Fall, three-quarters of our System's fossil-fuel generating facilities will be modified to enable us to burn coal as well as oil.

Given the go-ahead, we can begin to burn the lowest price coal and oil available and still meet primary air quality standards. Amendments to the Clean Air Act will enable us to use coal on a reasonable basis. They will also clear the way for long term variances which will permit us to buy coal at more favorable prices.

Q. What can I do to help lower my electric bill?

A. Your support of legislation which will enable us to achieve a reasonable balance between air quality improvements, economic impact, and a reliable supply of energy is essential in bringing fuel costs down. Given approval to burn coal for 5 years and to arrange five-year coal contracts, our system can save customers about $50 million per year. And, at current prices, we could save about $4 million a month through the reasonable use of higher sulfur fuel oil.

Q. Would nuclear energy reduce the high cost of electricity?

A. Yes. Though nuclear energy is now used to generate only about 20% of our electricity, this capacity saved New England customers between $40 and $70 million during December, January and February alone. Electricity generated by nuclear plants is not included in the fuel adjustment charge. However, it now takes up to 12 years to get a nuclear plant built and licensed for operation and legislation is required to help streamline the licensing process.

Joan Frank, Clerk

Q. Why doesn't the electric company use the money they spend on advertising to reduce my bill?

A. The total annual cost of all newspaper, radio, television and other advertising amounts to about 60¢ per customer or about 5¢ a month. We believe it essential to keep our customers informed of the latest developments in the energy crisis and to bring you up to date on our continuing efforts to provide reliable service. Since May of 1972 none of our advertising has been used to promote the increased usage of electricity.

Q. Have electric company profits gone up as a result of the energy crisis?

A. No. To the contrary, our System earnings for the twelve months through April, 1974 came to $1.94 per share compared with $2.59 per share a year ago. Our first four months earnings for 1974 were 67¢ per share compared with $1.08 per share a year ago.

Merrymount Association Lists July 4th Contest Winners

Winners of the various Fourth of July celebration contests sponsored by the Merrymount Association are announced by the committee.

Among them were William Connolly, who won the road race and Carole Loughlin, 15, who was selected Miss Merrymount.

Connolly who lives on Furnace Brook Parkway and is a teacher in the Boston school system, was the overall winner of the Merrymount Association's first annual road race.

Out of 56 starters, he finished the 2.4-mile race with an official time of 16:06 to take first place in the 14-30 age group. Second in the 14-30 group was Dave Previte [18:01], third was Michael Boyle.

Paul Hussey, president of the Merrymount Association, finished second overall, and first in the men over-30 group with an official time of 16:58. Second was Dave Rafferty [18:35] and third, Tom Collins [20:57].

Tom Connolly finished first in the boys 9-13 group with an official time of 18:09. Second was Bruce Tobin [18:36], third, Dan Gorman [18:36:01].

Cristine O'Brien finished first in the girls 9-13 group with an official time of 19:57. Second was Susie Seamans [20:00]; third, Jennifer Seamans [20:44].

Dottie Irvine was first in the girls 14-30 with 19:56. Second was Kelly Tobin [21:00]. First in the women's division was Gail Goodwin [23:59].

Carole Loughlin, 15, selected as Miss Merrymount, lives at 68 Narragansett Rd. and is the youngest of five children. She will be a sophomore at Quincy High in the fall. Her future plans include a career in architecture with further studies at either Northeastern University or the University of Massachusetts.

First runner up was Donna Madden 16, of Assabet Rd., second runner up was Susan Tolson, 14, of Narragansett Rd.

Robbie Mitchell, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell of Quincy Shore Drive, was chosen Master Merrymount. Pamela Norton, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Norton of Sea St., was chosen Little Miss Merrymount.

● Along The Campaign Trail Hedges Makes It Official, He's Candidate For Re-election

Norfolk County Sheriff Charles W. Hedges, who has held that office for nearly 14 years, has made it official. He is a candidate for re-election.

A former state senator from Quincy he has been sheriff since Dec. 27, 1960 when he defeated Democrat Peter McCormack of Brookline to fill the unexpired term of Sheriff Samuel Wragg, a Republican, who died in office.

McCormack had been named by the then Gov. Foster Furcolo to fill the position until the election. Hedges praised "the men and women from every community for their aid and active support of him and his staff in establishing a well balanced program of education."

These programs included drug, alcoholic, work-release, group therapy, religion, psychology, remedial reading, television and radio repair, cooking, baking, silk screening, journalism, resource and referral, earned furlough, musical, counselling, recreational, and classification programs.

In addition generous donations of clothing, shoes, motion picture projectors, boxing ring and gloves, weight lifting equipment, ping-pong tables, books, newspapers, magazines, television and radio sets, and pianos have "been of high value", he said.

Hedges pointed out that active personal and community participation has not only resulted in effective rehabilitation but has saved the taxpayers many thousands of dollars through the years.

He recalled that his final decision to remain as Sheriff of Norfolk County was made not only by his desire to complete modern progressive penal programs but also to "compliment his loyal, experienced, and devoted staff of associates."

Sheriff Hedges recalled that the policies and programs undertaken at his direction have been repeatedly praised by judges, attorneys, jurors, law enforcement officials, and penal authorities.

He pledged that every effort will be made to constantly improve and effect the techniques he has initiated.

Dukakis Urges More Housing For Elderly In Quincy Stop

Michael Dukakis, Democratic candidate for Governor, told a group of senior citizens in Quincy Monday that "Massachusetts should be expanding its commitment to elderly housing, rather than cutting it back."

"No new bonding authorization for elderly housing has been requested for 1975," Dukakis said, "and the Department of Community Affairs has been told not to apply for any further authorization in future budget requests."

Dukakis made the statement in a speech to members of the 1000 Southern Artery Senior Citizens Center in Quincy.

"Between 1970 and 1980," Dukakis continued, "the elderly population in Massachusetts will increase by almost 43,000. Yet the Department of Community Affairs, in its housing needs study, reports that its 1976 request for new construction, rental and mortgage assistance for the elderly will be less than half of the 1975 totals. That request," emphasized Dukakis, "will remain at that level for the rest of the decade."

"We already have a higher percentage of elderly citizens than most other states," Dukakis said. "That high percentage will remain constant through the end of the decade. So now is certainly not the time to cut back our commitment to decent housing for the elderly."

"With housing costs and interest rates going out of sight in this state," Dukakis said, "Massachusetts must be prepared to increase its commitment to elderly housing. The elderly, who often live on fixed incomes, are the first to suffer in a housing squeeze."

Dukakis, who was the original legislative sponsor of the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, concluded that "subsidized housing in general is in trouble in this state, as we look for new ways to provide homes for our low and moderate income citizens."

"But elderly housing has worked," Dukakis stated. "We know how to build it and how to maintain it. So there can be no realistic excuse for backing off from our commitment to provide a decent home for every elderly citizen in the Commonwealth."

Police To Sponsor Field Day For South Shore Retarded

The Quincy Police Betterment Association will sponsor a field day for South Shore retarded Saturday at Pageant Park, Merrymount.

The event will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., will include a cookout, games, rides, clowns and dancing to the rock music of the all girl band "Mandala".

This is the fourth time the police association has sponsored such an event. Notes Patrolman David Doherty, president of the association, "The kids have a great time and so do all the officers who donate their time on this yearly party for the retarded."

Attending the field day will be residents of the Paul A. Dever State School, Wrentham State School, Fernald State School, members Quincy Park Department, Milton Park Department, Weymouth Park Department and the retarded youth from the South Shore area.

Coordinating the event - Patrolman William Donnelly and Arnold Rinkofsky, South Shore Association for Retarded Citizens.

A Tiny Jar Of Flowers, And Richard Stratton

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The late Mrs. Dorothy Rae, long-time popular traffic supervisor at the Atherton Hough School was honored last month when a plaque was dedicated in her memory.

A large crowd turned out for the ceremonies as the stone-based plaque in front of the Houghs Neck fire station was unveiled.

And for the past week or so, someone has quietly returned each day to place a small jar of fresh cut flowers on top of the memorial. A touching tribute. From a child?

THIS WEEK'S TV special on former POW Richard Stratton was a moving experience for viewers.

The former Quincy resident who spent six years as a prisoner of the North Vietnamese apparently has been able to pick up his life back home without much difficulty. The scenes of the family at church—especially his tribute to his wife, Alice, and then their renewal of marriage vows left quite an impression on the viewer.

Stratton in a visit to Quincy last year also left a lasting impression on Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly. Stratton took part in the Merrymount Association July 4th celebration and parade.

And as he finished the parade route and took his position waiting for the others, two men started talking as the American flag passed by.

Stratton leaned over, thumped one of them in the back and said: "The flag is going by. Acknowledge the flag." [They did].

Kelly, who was standing beside Stratton says: "I'll never forget that!"

A NEW LAW firm will materialize in the fall. Joining together as partners: Rep. William Delahunt, Rep. Thomas Brownell, Assistant City Solicitor Robert Fleming and Robert Langlois, federal funds coordinator for Norfolk County. The four will locate their office in the Dimmock Building sometime in September. Come to think of it, this may be Quincy's only law firm.

TOOTING OWN HORN DEPT: Item here June 6: "Insiders report that City Purchasing Agent Richard Newcomb definitely will be named to a top post at Quincy City Hospital.

"Newcomb, they say, will become assistant director of the hospital in July in charge of non-health departments such as maintenance, finance, housekeeping, etc. This was predicted here April 4. The job will reportedly pay about $17,000."

Headline in another local newspaper July 2: "City Purchaser To Get New Post At Hospital".

Toot! Toot!

HISTORIC EXCHANGE: After speaking at a flag raising ceremony at O'Hara Circle in Adams Shore July 4, Congressman James Burke was honored at a reception at the home of Paul Harold. Burke presented the Adams Shore Community Association with a flag which was flown over the Capitol. At the reception, Burke in turn was presented with a gift from John Whyte: a piece of the USS Constitution.

SPEAKING OF Congressman Burke, Ronald P. Iacobucci, an internist in his Washington, D.C. office. The other day young Iacobucci was visited by the four women in his life: his grandmother, Mrs. Regina Montini; Mrs. Eleanor Iacobucci, his mother; Miss Rita Montini, his aunt; and Miss Helen Johnson, a friend.

Quincy tourists who also stopped by the office included Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bertrand of 30 Harrington Ave., and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Leone of 4 Trafford St.

It was someone else in the photo—Ambrose Milford, president of the Willard School PTA—that caught Neal's eye. He thinks Milford is a look-alike to President Nixon.

AMONG THOSE GIVING Benny Goodman deserving standing ovations at the South Shore Music Circus Sunday night were three well known South Shore figures and their ladies: Probate Judge Robert Ford, Ralph Tedeschi and Jack Conway.

And in case you've forgotten or are merely wondering, Benny Goodman was crowned the "King of Swing" Aug. 21, 1935 at the Palomar in Los Angeles. That was the night the dancers stopped dancing and gathered around the bandstand to listen and applaud. He was then 26.

Downtown Improvements vs. Helping Feed Elderly

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The Quincy Sun issue July 3, page 1, in its lead story reads, "$60,000 start for mini-parks in Quincy downtown area improvement."

On the same page we read that the hot lunch for Quincy senior citizens will increase from 50 cents to 60 cents effective July 15.

The great city of Presidents cannot afford $10. per day, at the most [if 100 elderly attend] to help feed the old folks but it has $60,000 "so that people can sit on the benches and read in the evening."

Will someone please tell "the powers that be" in Quincy that many of its citizens are having a hard time existing and they do not need this "move to allow people on foot to exist with cars on Hancock Street". Why not just tell the people that this $60,000, left over from the garage must be spent? Incidentally, this eliminated many benches and trees when the garage was built.

A way to allow people to co-exist with traffic would be to close Hancock Street from Granite to School Streets and spend this $60,000 [if they must] on a mall. Then Quincy might become a shopping center with plenty of parking already provided in the rear of the stores. Hancock Street would no longer be a thoroughway in these boundaries and people could move around.

In any event, deduct $10. a day from the $60,000, and help feed the elderly. Probably the architect and the contractors would be willing to contribute!

A 'Thank You' From Executive Hockey League

Editor, Quincy Sun:

On behalf of the Quincy Executive Hockey League, I want to thank you for your excellent coverage of our hockey games.

Thank you also for having your representative, Paul Harold, present the Executive League Playoff Trophy at our banquet Thursday evening at Valle's Steak House.

Your paper is truly a paper for the people of Quincy, and we sincerely appreciate your assistance in getting our league off to a fine start.

$93,244 In Federal Grants For QJC

Four federal grants totaling $93,244 have been allocated to Quincy Junior College for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1974.

The sum is the largest federal grant awarded to the college.

The largest single award is the sum of $76,710 in direct student aid under the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program - a program providing funds for students beginning their education after April 1, 1973.

Other grants include $11,258 for the College Work Study Program; $1,141 for the National Student Loan Program and $4,235 for the College Library Resources Program.

Chamber Clambake Set For July 17

A full day's program ranging from horseshoes to volleyball, topped off by a lobster bake will highlight the annual outing of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce July 17 at Peter's Grove, Kingston.

Host will be George Reardon of President Chevrolet, Chamber president George Fay is chairman. Emcees will be Herb Fontaine of WJDA and Lou Cassani of President Chevrolet.

Many companies in the South Shore also use the chamber's outing as their own and invite their employees to participate.

Included among the invited guests are the South Shore's elected officials on the Congressional, State and local levels who represent the communities of Braintree, Canton, Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Quincy, Randolph, Rockland, Scituate and Weymouth.

The lobster bake and all food arrangements are being handled by Leighton Caterers of Weymouth who have catered the outing for many years.

Reservations can be made by contacting Brian Aloisi, South Shore Chamber of Commerce at 479-1111. Tickets are $13.50 a person and include all activities of the day.

Brett Seeks More MDC Police Coverage On QSD

Rep. Joseph Brett has written a second letter to MDC Police Deputy Supt. Edward Fahey, asking for expanded police coverage along Quincy Shore Drive.

In his letter Brett said, "I am still being deluged with calls from North Quincy and Wollaston citizens who are concerned over the inadequacy of police patrolling along Quincy Shore Drive."

He cited several problems near the beach front area: cars speeding, people crossing the highway without using the pedestrian signal lights, and gangs congregating along the sea wall "until the wee hours of the morning."

Brett said he had been told that police coverage would expand during the summer months. However, he said, "the expansion, if any, is still far from adequate."

Brett urged Fahey to help "restore order and safety to all," thus bringing "a share of peace and comfort" to the residents near Quincy Shore Drive.

Lt. Joseph Burke

Marine School Graduate

Marine Second Lt. Joseph E. Burke Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Burke Sr. of 145 Willow St., Wollaston, has graduated from The Basic School at the Marine Corps Development and Education Command, Quantico, Va.

The 26-week course includes instruction in leadership principles, map reading, marksmanship, tactics, military law, personnel administration, Marine Corps history and traditions, communications and physical conditioning techniques.

It is designed to prepare newly commissioned officers for duty in the Fleet Marine Force, with emphasis on the duties and responsibilities of a rifle platoon commander.

1,000 Attend Wollaston Assn.'s First 4th Of July Celebration

Approximately 1,000 residents took part in the first annual July Fourth celebration held at Pageant Field, Merrymount.

Sponsored by the newly organized Wollaston Community Association it is planned to make the holiday celebration an annual event. Cooperating in the venture was the Wollaston Woman's Club.

Ice cream, cold drinks, and balloons were distributed to all in attendance. Prizes were awarded to the following:

Doll Carriage Parade, Danielle Spring, Jimmy Phelan, Julia Marsters, and Beth Roberts; Bicycle Parade, Marie Manchester, Sina Fee, and Ricky Derosiers; Horribles Parade, Cheryl, Michelle and Steven White, Dwayne Wilcoxon, and Christen, Dennis and John Keohane.

The foul shooting contest was won by Joseph Flynn, Pat Wilkinson, Linda Widdison, and Maurine Sullivan.

An old-fashioned pie eating contest was won by Dan Lyons.

The committee on arrangements included Mrs. Kathy Roberts and Mrs. Pam Spring, co-chairmen; Bob and Diane Ulchak, Joyce Baker, Dorothy Blyth, Cindy Hurley, Joan Keohane, Kay Borak, Tom Mullaney, Margaret Richardson, Vicki Smith, Ed Spring, Audrey Wilcoxon, and Bill Connolly. Residents of Fenno House served as judges of the various events.

Petitions Ask 'Danceograph' Course At High Schools

Over 300 Quincy parents, students and other residents have signed petitions endorsing the implementation of a new course in Quincy's high schools. The course is called "Danceograph, the Language of Motion". It is a system of reading and writing the dance and of developing physical and mental health.

The Committee for Educational Recreation met with School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, Carl Leone, co-ordinator of athletics, Kenneth Rickson, co-ordinator of physical education and health, and Walter Lunsman, director of arts and humanities, to urge that the course be offered and to present the petitions.

School officials gave initial approval to move the course through the channels necessary for acceptance into the curricula.

Leone, Rickson and John Mahoney, social health co-ordinator will work towards acceptance of Danceograph into the curricula.

4 From Quincy On Heart Assn. Boards

Four Quincy residents have been elected to committees of the American Heart Association, Southeast Massachusetts Chapter.

Alyce Souden, RN, will serve on the Executive Committee and on the Board of Directors.

Richard Koch, Dorothy Juit, RD, and Arnold Levine were all newly elected to the Board of Directors.

Council Continues Battle With Mayor Over Trash-Garbage

phrase "landfill facility," he said.

Powers said the amended Section 37 "expresses the current feeling of voters of Quincy as to what they want as an ordinance."

Also on the agenda was the planned filing of legislation co-sponsored by Rep. William Delahunt and Tobin. This bill was rejected by Hannon.

Powers admitted that a literal interpretation of the present 1965 Acts and Resolves could allow the dumping of garbage in the Quincy facility. But he emphasized that the intent of the authors of the act was merely to create the needed landfill facility, not to permit a mixed collection of garbage and rubbish.

Powers said that he has spoken to three men who were councilors at the time of the drafting of the act: George B. McDonald, now a Norfolk County Commissioner; George G. Burke, now district attorney; and John J. Quinn, present

"Dean" of the City Council. Powers said all three agreed that the 1965 act was intended to create a landfill facility, not to permit the mixed deposit of garbage and rubbish.

Powers commented: "One has to look at the historical sequence of events. From 1965 to 1974 there was a separate collection of garbage and rubbish. If the intent of the 1965 act were to allow for mixed collection of garbage and rubbish, the City would not have waited nearly a decade to implement the law."

Powers also said that the original 1965 act was "drafted too broadly," allowing for the possible implementation of an incineration program to deal with the garbage. He said that the amended act would "attempt to overcome a conclusion that could be formed," to combine the dumping of garbage and rubbish. Powers feels that only one conclusion is possible; garbage and rubbish should be collected separately.

"This is an equitable situation," he said. "One must go behind what was written and look at the totality of the situation."

Garbage-Trash Pickup Patrols To End

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has commended Quincy residents for their "spirit of co-operation" in complying with the combined garbage-rubbish pick-up.

"The spirit of co-operation of the citizens in Quincy has made this policy work," he said. "I'd like to thank the residents for their help."

The Mayor said that the transition to a combined collection was "smooth and successful." Commenting that the extra volume of waste at the dump site did not create any significant problems.

According to the Mayor, the transition has been so successful that the previously announced 30-day patrol of the pick-up route will stop at the end of this week. He emphasized, however, that patrol teams will be available to inspect specific areas along the collection route if needed.

The Mayor also praised residents for restraining their dogs during pick-up hours.

Ricciuti Clarifies City Dump Hours

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti has clarified a misunderstanding regarding Saturday dumping hours.

He noted that the dump is closed to commercial contractors at 12 noon and is open to residents until 4 p.m.

According to Ricciuti, residents driving an automobile or beach wagon must show their registration at the control point at the dump.

However, residents driving a pick-up truck or other type of truck, must obtain a seven-day permit from the Department of Public Works.

There is no charge for the permit provided the truckload is household rubbish. If the truckload is not household rubbish, the person will be charged according to the registered weight of the vehicle.

Renegades Host CYO Contest

The Quincy Renegades will be the hosts Friday evening at 6:30 p.m. for a CYO Music Circuit contest at Quincy Stadium.

Senior Drum and Bugle Corps, Senior Drill Teams, Prep Division Drum and Bugle Corps, Junior Drum and Bugle Corps and Junior Drill Teams will be in action.

Entries in the Senior Drum and Bugle Corps class are competing for a berth in the National CYO Invitational contest to be held Tuesday, Aug. 13 at Boston College Alumni Stadium.

Holy Family, Rockland, and the Jeanettes of Lynn are tied for first place in the Senior Drum Corps race with seven points each.

The Quincy Renegades themselves occupy first place in the Junior Division Drum and Bugle Corps race. They have garnered eight points with two straight victories. St. Francis, Weymouth, is tied for second with the Annunciators of Somerville. They have five points each.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon urges city employees to participate in the Quincy City Employees Blood Bank.

The bank is part of a newly-established Blood Procurement Program at Quincy City Hospital.

Under the program, every donor is offered protection not only for himself but also for his immediate family at a ratio of two pints for each donation during a one-year period. The Mayor said, "By keeping a continuous supply of blood on hand for transfusions, you and your family will always be protected."

"The community must be made aware that the need for blood is the sole responsibility of the community itself. As your Mayor, I urge you to participate in this most worthy project."

Donors may call the Hospital at extensions 438 and 439 for an appointment. Anyone between the ages of 18 and 65 may donate blood. A 17 year-old may donate with a parent's approval and 66 year-olds with a doctor's approval. Donating hours are Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., and from 7 to 9:30 p.m.; Friday, from 12 to 2 p.m.; and Saturday from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

Emma Hassan, volunteer supervisor at the Hospital, reminds the public that they, too, can donate blood during the hours listed above.

"Everyone is willing to donate blood during a tragedy," she said. "But why wait until a tragedy or an emergency strikes to donate? The blood is needed on the shelves now."

Miss Hassan noted that new donors might be apprehensive about giving blood. But she said that the staff taking blood from volunteers is congenial and if necessary, comforting to donors. The entire blood-donating process takes a mere 15 minutes - from filling out a questionnaire, to donating the blood, to resting and snacking on orange juice and cookies.

23 Pints Of Blood Donated At Point Congregational

Mrs. Mildred Ambrosia, Volunteer Blood Donor Chairman for the Greater Quincy Red Cross Chapter announces that 23 pints of blood were donated during a recent bloodmobile visit at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Those donating were: Rev. Ronald J. Cebik, C. Ruth Cebik, James Chaney, Arthur

Cormack, Robert A. Curtis, David Demaggio, Colin A. Donaldson, Edna Goranson, Jeffrey J. Isaacson, Joyce E. King, Taimi Korpeila, Louise Mulloy, Glen T. Munn, Harold D. Parker, Robert P. Pitts, Woodrow Sawyer, Henry E. Smith, Patricia Sweeney, Warren Sweeney, Wilfred Trotman, Audrey J. Welch, Owen R. White, and Gary Wintermyer. Woodrow Sawyer, Blood

Chairman for the Quincy Point Congregational Church was in charge of recruiting donors. He was assisted by Jon Wintermyer, Mrs. John Milne, Ralph Cross, Douglas Tatreau, James Chaney, Herman Crooker, Arthur Curtis, Mrs. Donald Gohl, Paul Peterson, Ella Harris and Mrs. Pearson. Mrs. Ronald Cebik and Mrs. Woodrow Sawyer prepared and served the evening meal.

Attendance Up At St. John's Despite National Downward Trend

Attendance is reported falling off drastically at churches around the country, but not so in at least one Quincy parish.

St. John's Catholic Church, Quincy Center, reports 3,025 people are attending services there each weekend in 1974. Compare that to the 2,800 per week in 1970 and 2,700 reported in 1971 and you've got a trend to gladden a pastor's heart.

Now it could be that shortages and prices have gotten so far out of hand that some people just can't afford to go anywhere else but to church.

Or maybe movies like "The Exorcist" are making people stop and think

Rev. John J. Tierney, pastor at St. John's, is at a loss to explain it. "There hasn't been any noticeable increase in the parish population," he said.

"Perhaps some of those who have fallen away are coming back," Fr. Tierney suggests. "We'd like to think that."

Counselling Help Available At Alcoholism Clinic

Persons with alcohol or alcohol-related problems can receive counseling help through a new outreach program on the South Shore.

The program called the "South Shore Alcoholism Clinic Without Walls" provides counseling and referral services to persons in nine South Shore communities - Weymouth, Quincy, Milton, Randolph, Braintree, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset and Scituate. Clinics are located in Quincy, Weymouth, Cohasset, Milton and Braintree.

The basic concept of the program is to make help more accessible, to involve communities in the treatment process and assist people to find needed services. Experienced alcoholism counselor staff the clinics and are available on a part-time basis in the evenings and some on Saturday mornings.

The clinics offer individual, group and family counseling and make sure that clients seek and receive appropriate health and welfare services. Individual counseling gives supportive guidance, direction and emotional sustenance to the point where the person can grapple with the problem of his/her alcoholism. At the present time, reservations are being taken for a couple's group to be started in the near future.

This will be for married couples who recognize their alcohol-related problems.

The clinic works closely with the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, Alcoholics Anonymous, The Quincy Detoxification Center and other Alcoholism Units. The program is funded by the State Division on Alcoholism and is also supported by counseling fees which are based on the ability to pay.

Anyone with an alcohol or alcohol-related problem may call the Adult Unit at South Shore Mental Health Center (471-0350) between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. to make an appointment or obtain more information.

St. John's Cadets Win 2 'Bombardments'

St. John's CYO Cadet Baseball Team [Team A] defeated St. Gregory's of Dorchester 11-0 in Quincy-Boston CYO Deaneys competition.

In an exhibition game against the Koch All Stars of Quincy, St. John's took a 14-run lead but managed to survive a 12-run Koch comeback in a bombardment Saturday at O'Rourke playground.

David DiGiusto was the winning pitcher in both games.

St. John's closes out its season this week-end with a game Friday against the 73 CYO

Cadet championship St. Peter's team at Kincaide Park. On Saturday St. John's A and B teams meet in a final showdown in Quincy Deaneys competition at a field yet to be named. St. John's A team plays its final game against St. Gregory's Monday night at Dorchester Park.

The game against St. Peter's of Dorchester, last year's champions and this year's front-runners will be a big test for the Quincy team which has been undefeated this season so far.

Mixed Action For Quincy Track Club

The Quincy Track Club, with 195 members signed up, will hold its second in a series of summer meets tonight [Thursday] at 6 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium with several special features planned.

In order to add fun to the meets, today's events will include girl sprinters running against weightmen, a four-girl relay team running against two boys and a race between mixed relay teams comprising two boys and two girls.

"Although we have 195 members now, most are in the younger age brackets and we are looking for girls in their 20's and older and also older men," said Club Secretary Lou Tozzi, North Quincy coach who conducts the meets with Quincy Coach Tom Hall, also the club treasurer. "We would like to run masters events with men 40 and older and are also seeking men in their twenties and thirties".

Members of the club continue to compete in weekly meets in Braintree and other places with good success.

Junior Ski Club Offering Summer Sports Program

The Massachusetts Junior Ski Club based in Needham is this summer for the first time offering a summer sports program for all teenagers in the suburban Route 128 area.

The standings:

Quincy's entry in the South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League, Data Services, had a bad week, losing three games in a row.

Sunday Quincy had one of its worst days as it bowed to Hingham, 12-4, Hingham scoring all its runs in the first three innings. Quincy committed six errors and many errors of omission, as it suffered its fourth straight loss.

Gerry Bugden and Dave Power had hits each for Quincy, Bugden having a triple and Power a double.

In its previous game Quincy dropped a 2-1 squeaker to Hanover as a bad hop single gave Hanover the win in the first extra inning. Bugden had 12 strikeouts in another fine pitching performance and also had a ground rule double. Quincy left 11 runners on base. Power and Skip Cooney had two hits each.

Earlier Quincy was edged by South Boston Two, 3-2. Power made a great bid in the last inning when his towering fly was caught against the fence at Adams Field to end the game with the tying run on second.

Paul Messina had two singles and turned in several fine defensive plays at third base. Bugden had a triple. Quincy again failed in the clutch as it left eight men on base.

Power leads the Quincy batters with a 4.21 average and a .685 slugging average. Messina has a .393 average and .500 slugging percentage. Bugden is the leading pitcher with a 3-1 record and a 1.40 earned run average.

●Legion Baseball Morrisette Meets Hingham, Wollaston, Quincy In Action

Morrisette Legion's baseball team, with its Zone 6 hopes buoyed by two straight losses last week for Weymouth's defending champions, will play at Hingham Friday at 6. The club will host league-leading Braintree in a big game Monday at 8 at Adams Field and will play at Milton next Wednesday at 6.

Other Zone 6 games will find Wollaston hosting. Canton tonight [Thursday] at 8 at Adams, Quincy entertaining Weymouth Friday at 8 at Adams, Quincy playing at Hingham and Wollaston at Milton Monday at 6, Quincy facing Canton Tuesday at 8 at Adams and Quincy hosting Wollaston next Wednesday at 8 at Adams.

Morrisette raised its record to 6-3 Monday night with a 6-3 win over Quincy under the lights at Adams Field.

Quincy took a 1-0 lead in the top of the second on a walk to Steve Mele, a fielders choice and a single by Mike Devine.

Morrisette tied it in its half on a single by John Lawlor, a sacrifice by Dennis McGuire and a single by Frank Miceli.

Morrisette scored twice in the fourth on singles by Mike McKenzie and Dave Perdios, a walk and a fielders choice.

Quincy battled back to tie it with two in the fifth on four walks by Tim Clifford and a fielders choice.

Morrisette scored the winning run in the fifth when Mike DePaolo reached on a fielders choice, Lee Watkins ran for him and stole second, continuing to third when the catcher threw into center field and scored on McGuire's single. Morrisette added two insurance runs in the sixth when Clifford reached on an error, Jack Rabel doubled to left, Watkins beat out a hit to shortstop scoring Clifford and Rabel scored on a bad throw by the shortstop.

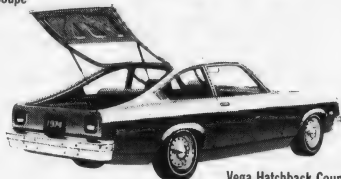

Clifford pitched a four-hitter, struck out seven and walked six. Mele was touched up for 10 hits, struck out three and walked five.

Quincy last week blanked Milton, 2-0, on a two-hitter by Bob Sten.

The Quincy Recreation Department's summer program got underway last week on an "up" note.

According to Recreation Director William F. Ryan, registration for all recreation programs was up from last year.

Nature specialists Paula Weidmann and Michael Parros opened their program with some new activities. At O'Rourke, terrariums were made. Some of the participants were Diane Depolo, Susan Morrison and Steven Heliotas. At Stoney Brae, children made coal gardens. Some of the most interesting were done by Michelle Cleary, Liza Mulgren, Linda Powers and Theresa Bigana. Other popular nature activities held during the week were bug hunting and hiking.

Golf specialist Don Smith welcomed all returning veterans and some newcomers to his golf program this past week. Some of the vets returning were LaBrecque's Mark Aboud, Tom Bussey and David Rhode, Paula Morrison, Donna O'Neil and Pat McPhillips of Snug Harbor and Wollaston's Steve Plate, Paul Lavas and Bruce Brennan. Dan Molloy and Paul McConville were two newcomers who showed promise.

As in past years the arts and crafts program has always been a big favorite of the children. Specialists Gina Kelley and Darlene D'Olympio report that this years program is no different. This week, concentration was on the making of popsicle stick jewelry boxes. A few of the more creative children in the parks were Ann Marie Cicerone, Michel Breen and Claudia Battistone of Pond St. and Elm St.'s Steve Pricella and Gary McDonald.

Archery specialist Tim Flynn reports that there has been a great turnout around the city thus far for the archery program. Special congratulations go to Jimmy Anderson of Myles Standish for the first bullseye of the season. Other fine marksmen were Mike Alcott and Josh Aberti of Squantum, Faxon Park's Kathy O'Toole and Michele Martin, Mike Lupo of Snug Harbor and Jimmy Princiota of Pond Street.

Tennis has been an increasingly popular sport of late. The Recreation Department's tennis program substantiates this fact. Tennis specialists Kevin McGinley and Betty Vittner report there has been an overwhelming number of tennis enthusiasts on the playgrounds. Future Chris Everts and Jon Newcombes in our midst are Mike Ayles and John Flate of Forbes Hill, Faxon Field's Rich Finnegan, Chris Cully and John Todd, Ray Mallory and Joe Phelan of Merrymount and Dana Mastrocola and Robin Lindberg of Welcome Young.

Leading the city's youth in melodious song this season is music specialist Karen Walsh, who says she is "quite pleased" with the large turnout of music appreciators around the city. Some of the leading songsters are Chrissy O'Brien and Nancy Tolson of Perkins, Faxon Field's Sue Finnegan, Terry Mahoney and Maureen Cully and Kincaide's James Anderson and Cindy Bureau.

On the playgrounds this past week, in between visits from the specialists, there were many interesting and innovative activities being held. At Welcome Young many ecology-minded children participated in a massive cleanup of the playground. Debbie Peterson, Susie Nee and Dana Mastrocola were among the cleanup gang. Elm St. held a puppet show. Stars of the show were Donna Franceschini, Patty Barry and Karen Dinardo. At Baker a girls-boys softball game was held with the male chauvinists prevailing 29-11. Standouts for the victors were Kevin Park, Scott Mathews and Jimmy Megnia while Trisha Craig and Kathy Megnia starred for the defeated.

At Harborview an insect safari was the big hit of the week. Tracy Sontag put her imagination to good use and built an apartment for a termite, complete with a crab shell easy chair, the latest rock marble dining table and a refrigerator stocked with delectable rotten wood for lunch time. Up at Snug Harbor a butterfly hunt took place. Those leading the field on the hunt were Kevin Williams, Harry Williams and Kevin Smith. And, speaking of hunting, the biggest catch of the year has to go to Mike Petrillo of Quarterdeck playground for his snagging of a five foot bull snake.

There were no games scheduled in any of the playground sports leagues during the first week of the summer program. Teams around the city, though, practiced diligently all week in preparation for their openers. Some of the teams to watch this season are Wollaston, Faxon Field, Forbes Hill and Mass Fields in girls softball. Shea Rink and Wollaston should vie for the championship in girls basketball. In boys baseball in the midget division, Merrymount and Welcome Young look like the favorites. In junior baseball O'Rourke, pollard and Bayside are going to be tough to beat. In senior baseball Montclair is the pre-season pick, while in junior basketball Atlantic may take it all and finally in senior basketball Perkins and Merrymount should fight for the crown.

Up at Happy Acres Day Camp, Camp Director Earl Vermillion and his fine staff are once again doing another marvellous job. They have put together a wealth of interesting activities and events for the campers. Last week some of the activities held were frisbee golf, bocce, a trip to the Coca Cola factory, birdhouse building, archery and trampoline jumping. Some of the participants were Tim Jones, Ellen Birchmore, Paul Starke, John Disalvo, Al Cook, Ruthie Clark, Mary O'Brien, Susie Rosenberg, David McMahon, James Conely, Audrey Burgess and Regina Faillace.

Next week we'll take a look at some of the sports action around the city and how the boating and sailing program is going.

●Around The Buoys Kluger SYC Winner, QYC To Try Again

By JAMES COLLINS

Norm Kluger's "Betty Ann" was the first of seven yachts to cross the finish line in the 12-mile windward-leeward course off the Squantum Yacht Club on Saturday.

She defeated Jim Beaton's "Dream Awhile" by 2 min. 05 seconds.

The summary: Flying Scot Class, Betty Ann, Norm Kluger, 2-35-00; Dream Awhile, Jim Beaton, 2-37-05; Brandy, Gabe

Perez, 2-45-00. Other finishers were No. 1611, John Brown; No. Nuffin's, Art Sweeney; No. 2422, Bob Montgomery, and 2454, Earl Sutherland.

Turnabout Class, No. 1558, Margaret Durkin, 1-32-00; No. 1665, Tom Gwynn, 1-33-42; and No. 1433, Nick Renzulli, 1-45-00.

The fleet left the starting line off the Quincy Yacht Club at 10:40 A.M. for the race to the Boston Lightship, a distance of 18 nautical miles.

Past Commodore C. Willis Garey and his committee plan to reschedule the race possibly later in the season when the wind is stronger.

The prizes for the first boat to finish, the Commodore Bernard McCourt trophy and the first boat from the Quincy Yacht Club to finish, the Amos L. Merritt trophy in the shape of a silver bowl and a silver plate have been placed in the vault of the Quincy Yacht Club.

Boating, Sailing Opens Friday

The Quincy Recreation Department's Boating and Sailing program opens Friday.

Registration is now being held daily from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. at Black's Creek Boathouse located just off the Southern Artery in Merrymount Park.

According to Recreation Director, William F. Ryan, instructional classes will be offered from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m., Mondays through Fridays for youths who have passed a qualifying swim test and are between the ages of 8 and 16.

Classes on rowing and sailing from beginner to advanced levels will continue for an eight week period during July and August. Ryan added that interested applicants may take the qualifying swim test at any of the 13 swim stations located throughout the city.

The program emphasis continues to be on the importance of safe boating and the need of people of all ages to acquire and refine basic skills in this increasingly popular pastime. The Red Cross approved course deals with boat nomenclature, knot tying, rowing, launching and docking. Upon successful mastery of basic seamanship skills, participants progress to sail boats and receive Red Cross certificates after successfully completing each course.

Adults may take advantage of their leisure time and sail from 4 p.m. until 8 p.m. each weekday or take the entire family sailing. Adult and family sailing is offered Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and on Sundays from noon to 6 p.m.

Those desiring instruction may make individual appointments by contacting Barry Welch, Director of the Boating and Sailing program at the Black's Creek Boathouse.

Wow's 'Em At Cohasset

Benny Goodman's Crown Still Intact

By HENRY BOSWORTH

He was proclaimed the "King of Swing" in the 1930's and in the 40-odd years since, his crown has remained firmly intact.

Benny Goodman at 65, still plays a clarinet like it was invented especially for him. Or, he for it.

The king got a royal reception from a capacity audience at the South Shore Music Circus Sunday night: a standing ovation as he stepped on stage and another one an hour and a half later as the crowd reluctantly let him leave.

In between, it was foot-tapping, finger-snapping and head-bobbing time for the appreciative audience as Goodman and seven other highly talented musicians swung their stuff-together and solo.

At an early point, Goodman—because of the humidity—asked if the audience minded if he and the boys took their jackets off. The crowd cheered them on.

And at that early point, he had the audience so neatly wrapped in the palm of his hand that if he had asked if they minded if he held up the box office, someone would have politely got up and got him a gun.

But there was an interesting holdup, you might say, when Goodman discarded his suit jacket and bared the fact he holds his trousers up with red suspenders.

The suspenders, and the boys working in shirt sleeves turned the Cohasset circus tent into an informal jam session-like setting with the crowd loving every minute of it.

The audience actually got a bonus. Goodman and his group were advertised as a sextet. But an octet showed up. And quite an octet: Buck Pizzarello on guitar; Ronny Bedford, drums; Slam Stewart, bass; John Bunch, piano; Zoot Sims, sax; George Masso, trombone and Chris Griffen, trumpet. The latter, Goodman noted, had appeared with him at Carnegie Hall.

They had the crowd applauding as they played together and as each got to do a solo or two.

A heavy downpour beating on the tent roof [and a little dripping in] failed to dampen the enthusiasm. "That's what you call the big rhythm section in the sky," mused Goodman as the rains came down.

Sims did a pretty "Up The Lazy River" and Stewart had his bass almost singing "Do Nothing Until You Hear From Me". Griffen really got started with "I Can't Get Started". Masso's "The One I Love Belongs To Someone Else" was a nice contribution.

And Pizzarello made you think of a guitar as a pretty musical instrument again and not a rock 'n roll bulldozer. His "The Rest of My Life" was sweet stuff.

The crowd—mostly in their late 40's and over with a few exceptions—couldn't get enough of Goodman himself, however. He played some of his real swinging fast stuff, but the old standards like "Stompin' At The Savoy", "Avalon", "By My Bistu Schoen", "Poor Butterfly", "Honeysuckle Rose", really sent 'em.

If there was any disappointment it was in the fact that Goodman didn't play more of his classics like "Don't Be That Way", "One O'Clock Jump", "Let's Dance", "You Turned The Tables On Me", "Sing, Sing", "And The Angels Sing", etc.

In fact, there were calls from the audience for some of them.

And as you listened to this talented octet you couldn't help but long to see Benny Goodman fronting a big band again and swinging out those oldies but goodies.

They say that when Goodman was nine, and living in Chicago, he went to the local synagogue where instruments were being lent out to children. And, as the story goes, they gave him a clarinet because he was too small for a tuba.

That was a lucky day for all of us. But you can't help wondering what this man might have done with a tuba.

Joey Heatherton, Nipsey Russell At Cohasset Tent July 15-30

Joey Heatherton, show business veteran since she was a teenager and Nipsey Russell, television's resident funny man, will be sharing the bill at the South Shore Music Circus, July 15-30.

Shows will be from Monday through Friday at 8:30 p.m. and on Saturday at 5:30 and 9 p.m. Miss Heatherton sings, dances, and acts. Just having finished in Las Vegas she is now at the Colonic Coliseum in New York.

Her career began at the age of 13 when she was commissioned to do a telethon with Richard Rogers. She appeared in "The Sound of Music" with Mary Martin. She also appeared on Broadway in "There was a little girl" for Josh Logan "Harold" with Tony Perkins; and "Step on a Crack" with Gary Merrill.

She also appeared on many television shows. In the spring of 1972 she played opposite Richard Burton as his child bride in "Bluebeard".

Russell who has many specialties has been dancing since he was three years old in his home town of Atlanta, Ga.

With an M.A. from the University of Cincinnati Nipsey spends most of what spare time he has reading and writing poetry. Since June 6 he has been hosting Dean Martin's "Comedy World"; flying between the West Coast and New York taping next season's television spectaculars.

These include "To Tell The Truth", "Password", "Pyramid", and a premiere in the Game World, "Masquerade Party".

27th Koch Club Family Picnic Sunday

The 27th annual Koch Club Family Picnic will be held Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Pageant Field, Merrymount Park.

All Koch Club members, families, and friends are welcome to attend and participate in the events. Each family may bring their own lunch or may attend after lunch or dinner at home.

Informal ball games and activities will be conducted between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Races will be held at 1:30 p.m., home run hitting contests for boys and girls at 2 p.m., mother and daughter and father and son baseball games and softball games at 2:30 p.m. The highlight of the afternoon will be an egg throwing contest at 3:30 p.m. between fathers and mothers.

Ice cream will be served to children during the afternoon. Prizes will be awarded to winners of races and contests by Richard J. Koch, executive director, and his staff.

This year the Koch Club with a membership of 3,500 members and supporters is celebrating its 26th anniversary with a series of community events.

Paul Clasby Elected President Of MAHC

The Massachusetts Association for Handicapped Children [M.A.H.C.] has elected a Quincy man president for the coming year.

Paul F. Clasby of Quincy was elected president. Elected board members were Thomas Brownell, Edward Graham, John Irvine, James Mulcahy and Richard Ward.

Any individual wishing to contribute time or money to the association, is asked to call Clasby at 773-7098. All donations made individually or by firms are tax-deductible. The M.A.H.C. consists of only voluntary help, so all contributions made to the association will be used solely to forward the aims of the organization, it was noted.

John (Iovanna) Balbo Lions International President

John Balbo, 61, the world light heavyweight wrestling champion in 1949 who is better known to Quincy residents as Johnny Iovanna, star fullback for Quincy High School and the Quincy Manets some years back has become the international president of the million member Lions Club.

He was installed in his new position at the Lions 57th annual convention in San Francisco. Now a resident of Oak Brook, Ill., he moved from Quincy to the Midwest where he continued his wrestling career. He became the world's light heavyweight champion in Des Moines, Iowa, in 1949.

Balbo plans to travel world-wide in promoting Lionism from the ranks of blue collar workers and young men.

A Lion since 1952 Balbo was elected in 1965 to a two year term as director of Lions International which has affiliated clubs in 146 nations.

RENTALS REAL ESTATE SALES

OPEN HOUSE Young seek rural areas

By JAMES M. WOODARD

Changing trends in land development concepts were clearly indicated at the super-active Land Exchange Center, one of the most popular exhibits at the recent Builder-Developer Conference and Exposition, held in Chicago.

Thirty real estate firms from points throughout the country participated in the center's program. Owners, builders and developers had a chance to get their heads together in private consultation booths to discuss and exchange plans and ideas for future projects.

A changing scene in real estate developments of the future was a general consensus of all the long and sometimes heated dialogue — after the verbiage and smoke cleared away from the talk cubicles.

One noted trend applied primarily to young married couples and families. In a revitalized pioneer spirit, they are increasingly seeking out a residence in older rural communities and in compact new developments which retain a "village" or "small town" charm. Like our country's early settlers, many young families in 1974 are striving for simple, natural pleasures in their home and community.

This increasing desire to enjoy a life-style reflecting a basic "back to earth" philosophy is affecting new and planned residential developments — apartments, condominiums and single family homes. It is producing a growing demand for land in rural and small-town areas where modern conveniences can be offered. Builders are moving into rural-style "planned unit developments" where residents can live and work in a congenial setting away from the hustle and hassle of city life.

This trend is giving a great boost to the economic health of many small towns, it was pointed out by one knowledgeable observer, Durand A. Holladay, managing trustee of Continental Mortgage Investors of Boston, the nation's largest independent real estate investment trust in real estate.

3 Brokers Join Jack Conway Staff

Three South Shore brokers have recently joined the staff of Jack Conway and Company, New England's largest residential real estate brokers, announces John Reardon, vice president of sales.

Mrs. Carole L. Duguay of North Weymouth will be a member of the staff of the Quincy office. She is a member of the School Committee.

Mrs. Marlene F. Calogiro of North Weymouth has also been assigned to the Quincy office. A graduate of Boston University and Massachusetts General Hospital School of Nursing, Mrs. Calogiro was a nursing instructor before joining Jack Conway and Company. She is a past president of the Mass. General Hospital Nurses Alumnae Association.

David M. Boyce of Weymouth will work out of the Whitman office. A native of Virginia, gaging lending. "New families in small towns swell tax revenues. The communities, in turn, can offer higher quality schools, services and maintenance. It's a welcome bonus, in today's scene of rapidly rising costs," he said.

Also, more people would be employed in nonmanufacturing jobs and local bank deposits would grow by $2.45 million. As Holladay noted, community growth translates into more jobs, more revenues and general vitality. That's a frequent scene as modern-day pioneers set out on their quest for a new way of life.

Boyce received a BBA degree from the University of Georgia. Hobbies include sailing and model railroading. He was previously employed within Logan International Airport.

Master Builders Seek Voice In Construction Survey

The Quincy Master Builders Association has asked Congressman James A. Burke to help steer a portion of $33,000 in federal funds toward small businessmen.

The money is to be spent on a survey that will study the cost and benefit of new apartments in the city and determine their effect on the "quality of life in the community."

Said QMBA President Roger B. Lyons in a letter to Burke:

"The Quincy Master Builders Association would be very happy to have a full survey of Quincy's growth, but it should not be restricted to large apartments, but to all new buildings.

"Our organization, consisting of small business men investing with private capital, have been greatly restricted since the new zoning ordinance was adopted on March 22, 1971.

"City officials have received our suggestions at different times over the years, but have taken no positive action.

"The Planning Department, responsible for creating the new zoning ordinance, should not now arbitrate their mistakes by being judge and jury.

"The Quincy Master Builders Association would like to contribute to an orderly growth of the City of Quincy, and believe it should have representation on this special study committee."

Wire Inspector William H. Pitts reports that 117 permits were issued during the month of June for wiring costing an estimated $369,050.

Fees collected during the month amounted to $1,522.25.

Twelve defects were noted in 175 inspections. There were 10 re-inspections.

The major wiring projects for the month were a new 164-unit apartment building at 91 Clay St., Wollaston, and a new 20-unit apartment building at 80 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

3 Days Of Fun, Buys

Downtown All Set For Sidewalk Bazaar

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

It's that time again - time for that three-day extravaganza known as Quincy's Sidewalk Bazaar.

This year marks the city's fifth festival, with Thursday as opening day. In keeping with tradition, the fun-filled days will culminate with the crowning of a new Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Friday evening.

Most downtown stores will participate in the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association sponsored bazaar, displaying merchandise on bargain-wild tables, shelves and booths. Store owners will wear trimmed and banded straw hats and kids will sport Indian headbands, adding to the gaiety of the three-day carnival.

Hancock St. will become a pedestrian mall for the three-day festive period. The street will be blocked off from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday from Granite St. to School St.

Police Lt. Jack Flaherty noted that traffic could by-pass Hancock St. by using Chestnut St. on the easterly side and the Ross Parking Way on the

Hannon Proclaims July 18-19-20 Sidewalk Bazaar Days In Quincy

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has proclaimed today [Thursday], Friday and Saturday, "Sidewalk Bazaar Days" in Quincy and urged residents and public organizations to participate in and support the promotion.

Following is the text of the proclamation:

WHEREAS, The American standard of living is recognized as the highest in the world and is due, in great part, to the abundance and high quality of the products of our competitive enterprise system and their forthright identification by trademarks submitted for the free choice of the consuming public; and

WHEREAS, American tradition of independent enterprise is as old as our society itself and from humble beginnings small business has grown into one of the principal economic forces in this, the world's greatest industrial nation; and

WHEREAS, If downtown Quincy retailers are to realize their full potential in the years ahead, they need and deserve wholehearted support from the citizens in the business community as a whole as well as the strong encouragement it already receives from national organizations and the local government; and

WHEREAS, Quincy Square retailers are joining this week with various civic and business groups in providing the citizens of Quincy and The South Shore unsurpassed retailing opportunities.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Walter J. Hannon, Mayor of the City of Quincy, do hereby proclaim July 18, 19, and 20, 1974, as and encourage all citizens and public organizations to join with me during this week in paying tribute to the accomplishments of small business in helping it toward continued strength and success.

Walter J. Hannon, Mayor

Over 5,000 Headbands

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association is giving away over 5,000 colorful Indian headbands on Thursday, Friday and Saturday during the Sidewalk Bazaar.

Anniversary bash? not for a widow

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I'm the spokesman for my four brothers and two sisters. Our father died two years ago, a week after he and mother celebrated their 48th wedding anniversary. Last year both dates slipped by, apparently unnoticed by her. Now this year, as the anniversary date approaches, our mother wants a real hoopla on her golden anniversary. She wants a tiered cake and my oldest brother is supposed to help her cut the first slice. To top it all off, she wants to wear her wedding dress. (It fits!) She gave me a list of some 70 people she wants her children to invite to the party. Is this the proper type of party for a widow to give on her anniversary? Will people think she is getting senile?

Eldest Sister

Dear Eldest Sister:

A widow does not celebrate her anniversary date with a bash. A small family gathering would be more proper. If you go the route your mother proposes, people will think you are all senile.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I have a large and expensive ring that I wear nearly all the time. It is impossible to get gloves over the high setting. Would it be permissible to wear the ring over the glove?

Dear Jenny:

No. While it is proper to wear a bracelet over a glove, a ring looks extremely odd. If say, you are attending a luncheon where you will be removing your gloves, slip the ring in your purse and put it on your finger later.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

What term of address should my once-a-week cleaning woman use when she calls me? Right now she calls me "Lady" or "Mrs." I don't think either is correct.

Ella Watson

Dear Ella:

She should call you Mrs. Watson or Ma'am. Although "Miss," standing alone is correct, "Mrs." is not. "Lady" is used when strangers don't know each other's names as, "Lady! You forgot your glasses." In the situation you pose, your cleaning woman knows your name. "You're wanted on the phone, Mrs. Watson (or Ma'am)" is the form she should use. Be sure you call her by her name. "The shower doors need special attention this week, Martha," sounds better than a direct order.

A problem? Send your question to Mrs. Riv Tobin, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Jenny B.

'Psycho' solutions? try a little hug

By ANN RUDY

In a fascinating new book, "Psychofraud" (Whitmore) John David Garcia gives us all a neat little rule of thumb by which to evaluate all we have read and heard about almost all forms of psychotherapy: forget it.

This may not seem like any big news to you older readers who raised your children on love and common sense. You always knew, didn't you, that a hug around the shoulders or a nap usually cured most cases of "cranky kid."

You weren't about to turn your child loose to tap dance on the coffee table or write on the walls with your lipstick to help him "cope." And by the time you knew you'd done everything right, it was too late to change it.

But consider the case of a girl like I who married, and begat children, at the dawn of the age of Aquarius and armchair psychology. These were, and are, confusing times.

I mean, when I first heard of Sigmund Freud I thought he was a Wagnerian baritone. But the girl next door — whose five "well-adjusted" children were always over at my house working out their aggressions — enlightened me and I tried to make up for what I thought was lost time.

First, I read everything I could about psychology, hung around lecture halls and bought every new paperback on the latest "approach." Then I attempted to assimilate this mass of often conflicting information.

Meanwhile, I was watching my kids for signs of irregularity. To my mother, irregularity meant get out the box of dried prunes, but to me it meant a kid who didn't sass me.

"If you want to say you hate me, go ahead," I'd encourage. But it was no use; they respected me. And by the time they were in adolescence I was frantic.

"Where have we gone wrong?" I asked my husband. "It was bad enough when they didn't bedwet, stutter or nose pick, but they are almost grown now and showing no signs of rebellion or antisocial behavior. I know they are suppressing something, but what do you think it is?"

"Judging from the boy's belches," replied my husband, "he is suppressing very little."

And now along comes "Psychofraud" and John David Garcia's refreshing and simple theory. I hope it's not too late, but I think I'll relax.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO DROWN

Every year thousands of persons drown needlessly because they ignore rules that make swimming safe as well as pleasurable. Knowing how to swim well and receiving some accident prevention training are the most important safety measures of all.

The primary rule when you are in the water is never to swim alone. Children, whether or not they can swim, should never play in or around water without adult supervision.

It is important that you not exceed your abilities by venturing out too far or trying to swim for too long a period. If trouble should occur, try to conserve your strength. If you are caught in a fast-moving current, swim diagonally across it. When someone else is in trouble, do not attempt a swimming rescue unless you are trained in lifesaving techniques. Instead, look for a buoyant object to throw to him or extend a pole for him to grab hold of.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Concentrate on career, reputation, profession now. Take care of duty with a happy heart although the job may be distasteful. Be true to your values of consideration of others; resist dictatorial attitudes or dishonesty.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Make important contacts now while charisma is high.

See important people and present your pet projects. Advice on personal matters from a trusted friend could be helpful. Give attention to your appearance.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Keep up the good work on diet and physical fitness. Associations with those of similar interests are highly favored now. Be sure it isn't impulse leading you to the altar — true love stands the test of time.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — The many changes you are encountering with bosses, jobs, etc. is just about over. The tug between profession and personal life can be resolved too. Looks like the worst is over. Concentrate on the future.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Health appears good, but don't overindulge in food. Good time for a vacation or at least a trip of some kind. Pay attention to your dreams and "hunches." Much valuable information is contained therein.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Accept invitations that are offered. Romance blossoms. Guard against extravagance and "playing hooky" from duties or responsibilities. Continue working on projects — develop them for later presentation.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS 'G' loop shows restlessness

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

I have a problem throwing a fit whenever my husband comes home. He works a full-time day job, part-time bartends and goes to school one night a week. We have two toddlers and I stay home all the time. Can you help me?

J. R.

Dear J. R.:

Seems you're "barking up the wrong tree." If there's anything your husband doesn't need now is a fit-throwing wife.

You want a little "center of the stage" treatment, seen in the upswing at the end of words, and you intend to get it, revealed in the small beginning hooks. A couple of "three-footers" hardly fill the bill. With your husband's thoughts turned toward making a living, you feel left out in the cold. So, to warm things up a bit, you throw a fit.

You are restless and you don't like to be confined, seen in the long lower loop on the g. You want some variety. You want to get away from the four walls. So, why don't you join a civic or church group and take your toddlers with you. Your two "little people" at a "big people's" meeting could bring you so much attention you wouldn't be able to budge.

Appreciate your husband and his efforts, and contain yourself. Your fits, as such, are emotional storms and they last only long enough to bring YOU into focus, seen in your light-pressured writing. Nevertheless, any storm on the sea of matrimony can toss your marriage ship off-course and will even weaken the rudder.

D. J.

Air conditioners more efficient today

About 20 years ago, a 7,500-BTU room air conditioner used 1,290 watts of power every hour, filled most of the window and extended out into the room.

Today's householder gets better performance from a 7,600-BTU unit that uses just 860 watts per hour and takes much less space. — CNS

Super Summer Salads Ala Granny Smith

How lucky we are that New Zealand has seasons opposite ours! Because that's the reason those beautiful Granny Smith apples are with us right now. These tangy, juicy, crisp apples are just what we need to spark summer salads.

Of course, New Zealand Granny Smith apples are without compare when it comes to being a complete all-purpose apple. They're great to eat, but absolutely superb to cook with. Their flavor is so appley and fresh that you don't even need to add sugar when making apple sauce. And what they do for pies, tarts and all the good apple dishes!

They're only on the market for about 3 months, so do enjoy them while they're here.

Here are a couple of real favorite Granny Smith salads.

Granny Smith Apple-Beet Salad

- 1 16 oz. French style beets, drained
- 1 cup unsweetened apple juice
- 3 cups coarsely grated Granny Smith apples (about 3 apples)
- 1 cup whipping cream, whipped
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice dash of salt

Drain beets thoroughly. Add apple juice and let stand an hour or longer. Drain again and

New Zealand Granny Smith apples bring two exciting salads to your summer menus. Completely different and both tantalizing.

add apples. Fold in whipped cream and cinnamon, salt and lemon juice. Serve on a lettuce lined platter or bowl.

Summer Salad Marinade

- 2 large tomatoes, sliced in wedges
- 2 cored and sliced but not peeled New Zealand Granny Smith apples
- 1/3 to 1/2 cup fresh Bermuda onion rings
- 1 cup wine vinegar
- 1/3 cup oil
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 1/2 teaspoon MSG
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper

- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon minced garlic

Arrange tomatoes, apples and onions in layers in a bowl. Combine remaining ingredients in a blender and blend well. Pour over the tomato apple mixture and let stand for at least 30 to 40 minutes in the refrigerator. To serve, drain off excess dressing but don't throw it away! Store in the refrigerator and use for dressing a green salad. Arrange the marinated apples and vegetables in a glass bowl for maximum enjoyment of the colors.

Your Tomato Plants Help Cause

It may be hard to believe, but the handful of tomato plants in your back yard is helping to keep food prices down throughout the country, suggest the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture (MDA).

It's not just that your own produce will save you a few dollars over the growing season, though that's certainly a benefit.

It's the reduced demand for commercial produce by several million home gardeners that takes the pressure off the market, and by that much leaves more produce to go around, says the MDA. When supply is short and demand is long, prices climb. That's what inflation is all about.

SOUTH SHORE NATIONAL VS. THE SAVINGS BANKS

A savings account at a savings bank will pay you about 1/4 % more than a savings account at South Shore National Bank.

For most people, who average somewhere under $1000 in savings, that comes to around $3 a year.

So we say, put your savings into South Shore National, in a Multistatement account.

We'll give you free checking.

And 10% refunds on the interest you pay on your loans.

And you'll come out way ahead with us. (We're beating the savings banks at their own game.)

THE MULTISTATEMENT PACKAGE:

FREE CHECKING, 10% REFUND OF THE PAID FINANCE CHARGES ON ANY INSTALLMENT LOAN OF $1500 OR MORE WHICH IS PUT ON MULTISTATEMENT WITHIN 90 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF THE LOAN. MAXIMUM INTEREST ALLOWABLE BY LAW ON ALL SAVINGS. REQUIREMENTS: (1) MULTISTATEMENT CUSTOMER MUST HAVE CHECKING ACCOUNT AND AT

LEAST ONE SAVINGS OR N.O.W. ACCOUNT WITH SOUTH SHORE NATIONAL BANK. (2) MINIMUM TOTAL MONTHLY BALANCE SPREAD AMONG ALL ACCOUNTS: $200. ALSO AVAILABLE: CLUB ACCOUNTS, AUTOMATIC SAVINGS PLAN, AUTOMATIC LOAN PAYMENT PLAN, CHECK CREDIT. THE STATUS OF ALL ACCOUNTS IS REPORTED MONTHLY ON ONE SIMPLE STATEMENT.

Chimneys At Adams Birthplaces Being Pointed

Work has started on the pointing of the chimneys of the birthplaces of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams on Franklin St., South Quincy.

The chimneys have been in need of repair for sometime. Quincy Heritage, the city's bicentennial and 350th Anniversary agency, called in David Hart, an expert in restoration and preservation, and a staff member of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, to make an evaluation of the project.

Because the bricks in the chimneys were made before 1800, a special formula for the mortar must be used. The bricks themselves are quite soft, requiring a mortar with high lime content. This provides for expansion and contraction due to weather changes.

Hart will continue to serve as a consultant to Quincy Heritage, reports Executive Director John R. Graham.

"Hart developed the X-ray method for photographing the internal structure of historic buildings," said Rev. Graham. "He will be doing an evaluation of the birthplaces so that we can make certain these magnificent farm houses can be cared for properly over the years."

Hart will also make recommendations concerning the nation's first blast furnace on Crescent St.

The chimney repair will take about three days.

Tobin Hopes To Overturn Adverse Report On 'Garbage' Bill

Senator-Council President Arthur Tobin, will attempt to overturn an adverse report on a bill that would give local communities the right to decide on combined garbage-trash collection.

Tobin told The Quincy Sun he will lobby his colleagues in an effort to overturn the adverse verdict, from the Local Affairs Committee, noting, "I've overturned a few in my life."

"I have a good reputation with my colleagues. Perhaps I can persuade them to go along with the bill."

The Tobin-Delahunt bill was automatically squashed by Joint Rule 10, which dictates an adverse decision when a bill has been in committee over 10 days.

On Monday, the Local Affairs Committee heard arguments favoring a separate collection of trash and garbage from Tobin, Delahunt and four colleagues: Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, Rep. Clifford H. Marshall, Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly, and Ronald Kaufman, representing Councillor James A. Sheets.

No opposing arguments were voiced at the hearing.

According to Senator Arthur H. Lewis, chairman of the Local Affairs Committee, committee members believe that the trash-garbage dispute is a local one between Mayor Hannon and Quincy's City Council.

But members believe, too, Lewis added, that the bill usurps the power of mayors - in all cities - not merely in Quincy.

Brownell, Delahunt Support Tax Rebates

Reps. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] and William D. Delahunt [D-Quincy] have joined 52 other legislators to file legislation that would give property tax rebates to homeowners and tenants through a state income tax credit.

The proposal would allow up to $500 relief from property taxes based on the principle that people with incomes under $10,000 should not pay more than 8 per cent of their income on property taxes.

Said Brownell: "It gives large families and retired people a much-needed break in their taxes, while maintaining the right of cities and towns to collect local property taxes and pay for essential municipal services."

Hearings on the bill were held Tuesday [April 16] in the State House's Gardner Auditorium.

QCA Recommends 'Master Plan For Quincy'

In an open letter to Geoffrey A. Davidson, director of the City Department of Planning and Community Development a number of recommendations calling for an in-depth study are advanced by Pasquale S. DiStefano, president of the Quincy Citizens' Association.

On Feb. 25 a public hearing was held by the City Council on petition of the association to request a 10-story building limitation within the city.

Among the recommendations made by the association was that the city make an in-depth study to ascertain the total number of apartment units constructed in the city in the past five years including a comparative analysis of tax revenues realized from the construction as compared to the cost of necessary city services rendered each development.

DiStefano said the recommendations were not acknowledged but praised "the initiative of the city in obtaining federal funds to implement the study."

In addition the Quincy Citizens' Association notes what DiStefano says are practical suggestions:

- The primary focus of the study is correct but must include the entire study of "Density" which must be scrutinized and re-examined due to the levels of density allowed by the planners.
- Individuals from the community should serve on the study team to off-set city employees and members of the Planning Team.
- Completion of the study a "Master Plan for Quincy" and its future should be developed by the planners. This is necessary for a safe and intelligent growth pattern not solely for the business sector as so many previous studies have concentrated on.
- In view of these considerations the Quincy Citizens' Association requests that it authorize the appointment of a member of the Association to join with the city's study team at evening meetings with full voting rights.

Purchasing Agent Post Up For Grabs

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Four or five reportedly are in the running for the $13,100 city purchasing agent's job soon to be open.

Richard Newcomb, present purchasing agent, will be moving to Quincy City Hospital as an assistant director and a $4,000 salary boost.

Insiders report Quincy Point businessman Beau Page, well known in political circles, could have had the purchasing agent's job. But, they say, he's riding the wrong horse in the Norfolk County sheriff's race.

Mayor Walter Hannon is backing Rep.-Councillor Clifford Marshall. Page is one of the keymen in Norfolk County Commissioner George McDonald's bid for the sheriff's badge.

Just one of those sticky political things, they say.

GOVERNOR SARGENT has an appointment to fill on the Quincy Housing Authority but doesn't seem to be in much of a rush to do it.

The five-year term of Frank McCauley, Quincy school committeeman and bank president, expired some weeks ago. McCauley, who has done a good job on the board, has been left to sort of dangle ever since.

The word around is that the Department of Community Affairs is trying to get Sargent's ear to convince him to name a woman to the post. A woman who is either a former tenant or present tenant of one of the Quincy public housing facilities.

SPEAKING OF WOMEN, friends are convinced that Mrs. Grace Saphir will toss her hat back into the mayoralty ring next year.

Mrs. Saphir, a political novice, surprised the so-called experts last year when she pulled 10,416 votes to Mayor Hannon's 15,492.

Incidentally, friends report she's planning [or already is] to write a book on election procedures.

HERE'S ONE: Howard Gunnison of the Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home purchased two acres of woodland in Sidney, Me., just outside of Augusta a year ago. He has a well on the land and there's some good pulpwood there. He just received his first real estate tax bill. Would you believe: 76 cents!

Howard, who is quite familiar with Quincy's tax rate, couldn't believe it. He called the Sidney tax department.

Ahyer, they said. It's 76 cents alright.

"It probably jumped two or three cents from a year ago," he muses.

WELL, give a little credit to Mary Jane Fandel of Grand View Ave., Wollaston for the settlement of the General Dynamics shipyard strike.

She works in the office of Wollaston's John J. Sullivan, and several other federal mediators. And spent two long nights typing the agreement reached by management and Local 5.

Without her, they wouldn't have had anything to sign.

QUINCY'S Walter Martinson is back from the Kiwanis Convention in Denver where he was a delegate. One interesting item on the agenda was whether women should be admitted as members. The boys turned it down by a wide margin.

S.S. Chamber Wins Award

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has been recognized for outstanding work in its publications by the Communications Council of the American Chamber of Commerce Executives.

A First Place Award for the South Shore Chamber's Program of Work and Annual Report publications has been voted.

Paul J. Greely Jr., Manager of Communications Council operations said: "Close to 200 Chambers of Commerce submitted 400 different entries in this years Communications Evaluation Program, the evaluation felt it important to single out entries deserving of special recognition. Congratulations on your outstanding communications effort!"

In accepting the award, Eric M. Swider, Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber said, "keeping Chamber members well informed leads to involvement and involvement is the key to a Chamber's success."

Food Stamp Meetings Next Week

The use of U.S. Department of Agriculture Food Stamps will be explained by Nutrition Education Program Assistants in two Quincy locations next week.

On Wednesday, July 24 at 2 p.m. there will be answers given to questions at the Lincoln-Hancock School from 12:30 until 2 p.m. On Thursday, July 25 another session will be held at St. Boniface Church, in Germantown at the same time.

Information to be discussed will be who is eligible; where to apply; how to use food stamps; and where they can be used. Those who are eligible are low wage earners; part time workers; and those who have high medical, dental, or necessary household expenses.

Applications, information, and assistance may be obtained at either the Germantown Service Center, 9 Bicknell St. [Telephone 471-1189] or at the South-West Community Center, 372 Granite St. [Telephone 471-0796].

Commission Favors Restoration

The Quincy Conservation Commission has voted in favor of the acquisition, upgrading and preservation of the Bunker Hill Quarry and the First Railroad Site in West Quincy as a historic landmark for the City of Quincy.

The site of the old railway built to haul Quincy granite for construction of the Bunker Hill Monument in 1825; has been in ruins for many years.

Poet's Corner

Undeserving

Dear father in Heaven above,
We, your children that we know you love,

Send up our Praise to you,
Although the words we have are few.

Imagine how you loved us so,
You let your very own son go.
I know you gave your Son for me.

When he was nailed to that tree.
In Calvary his precious blood flows,

And washes our sins and saves our souls.
Now he lives - this we know,
For God's words tell us so.

If we open our hearts and let God inside
We will live on, long after we die.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Is Everybody Unhappy?'

As I was eating in a Chinese restaurant after late hours in counseling, a friend came in. He's the kind of friend who's interested in people and asks probing questions.

"You know" ... Don said ... "Seems that everybody I know is either having an affair ... or is getting divorced ... or is terribly unhappy. What's happening, Bill?"

In my daily counseling naturally it seems that way to me, too. But of course ... counselors are seeing the people who are trying to improve their situation." And there are many.

"Why are people so unhappy with their mates?" Don pressed me.

I can see several reasons for the unrest. For one thing ... people are learning to love themselves more ... to be one's own best friend ... to have more respect for one's self. That means that a woman married to a man who has a drunk problem for example, is not interested any more in "learning how to live with it" ... or feeling "this is the bed I made ... I must lie in it." She wants relief from this "ball and chain". In these times when money and jobs are more available to women, with a little guidance ... and support ... she seeks a better life ... and often she finds it.

Men, on the other hand, are out there in the world of action, away from the home problems of children ... bill collectors ... neighbor conflicts ... meeting men and women working together, exchanging pleasantries, who give and receive respect. If when they arrive home they are hit with a barrage of demands ... criticisms ... and unnecessary disorder ... they are likely to be seeking a better life without all this foolish hassle.

Probably ... the script that a man or woman follows hasn't really changed that much. You are just becoming more aware ... less starry-eyed about his big car (a liability now), her beautiful face and figure which have a way of fading. At last you see each other as you really are ... often you don't like what you see. These disappointed husband and wives ... often turn to someone else ... or to the divorce court.

The phenomenon of a grown woman still looking for the daddy she didn't have as she was growing up ... and still acting out the little girl saying "take care of me" ... is not as attractive to a husband as to the teen age lover boy.

That phenomenon of a grown man still acting like a little boy ... irresponsible ... unsharing ... uncommunicative, wanting his wife to mother him ... get him up in the morning ... pick up his clothes after him ... just one of the four children becomes a drag for the capable wife.

The amazing thing is that some have stayed so long in these self-defeating relationships. But PEOPLE CAN CHANGE. I see it happening daily in the stream of people passing through our offices. These husbands and wives want something better in life ... and many have concluded that it's now or never.

"Unfortunately, Dan" ... I told my friend ... "for too many the love has eroded ... the incentive to try has gone ... the easier course is divorce. Some still have love ... and hope sends them to the counselor."

He sipped another cup of Chinese tea. I wondered if Dan was speaking about all those other unhappy friends of his or was his probing question really about Dan.

Letter Box

Makes 3 Points On Garbage-Trash Collection

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Quincy citizens should be aware of three principles for a recap of the garbage-rubbish brouhaha.

Point 1 - Garbage should be considered a valuable resource. Since it is organic, it can feed pigs. It also can be used to originate gaseous fuel. When decomposed, it provides precious humus, capable of enriching soil to retain water and supply plant nutrients.

Point 2 - Quincy quarry holes should also be considered a valuable local resource for receiving solid, compact rubbish from within its boundaries.

But, our present dump is not valued for its uniqueness. It is being obliterated as rapidly as possible. Many trucks, from out of town, are filling the quarry hole after regular hours. Thus, new real estate for private condominium development is being created.

Quincy's locale cannot be compared to other communities', which either incinerate or have adequate LEVEL land for proper dry sanitary landfill. Wet spoil, dredged from Black's Creek, negates the sun's heat and drying action. Remember, pestilence cannot be confined to a quarry hole, nor to one section of our city!

The crux of the issue [Point 3] is that of local government in America. Do the citizens, through their elected council, have a voice in running their city, or, is it "taxation without representation"?

Richard Nord, Russell Borman Receive Eagle Scout Awards

Two Quincy youths were awarded Eagle Scout rank at court of honor ceremonies in St. John's School Hall.

They are Richard Nord, a senior at North Quincy High School, and Russell Leo Borman, a sophomore at Quincy High School.

They also received presentations from Mayor Walter J. Hannon and from Sen. Arthur H. Tobin, plus letters of commendation from Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Edward R. Brooke and Rep. James A. Burke.

Nord, who is junior assistant scoutmaster of Troop 42 at St. John's, supervised a Christmas tree recycling program at the Blue Hills area as his Eagle project.

He is a member of the North Quincy High Chess Club. He did volunteer work with the YMCA junior life-saving group. His hobbies are hiking and sailing and his career interest is marine biology.

Borman worked with Putnam Borden, director of the Council on Aging, in scheduling scout visits to Quincy nursing homes to entertain or run errands for patients.

He holds the Ad Altare Dei Medal, one of catholic scouting's highest awards, and is an instructor with Troop 42. At Quincy High, he is a member of the chess club, debating team, junior achievement program, band and band council.

Beth Israel Synagogue To Dedicate 'Morris Silverman Social Hall'

Beth Israel Synagogue will dedicate the social hall and chapel in honor of Morris Silverman, a former president of the Synagogue.

The memorial will be called "Morris Silverman Social Hall". Silverman held office at the Synagogue for 22 years. He was a life-long resident of Quincy.

Rabbi Jacob Mann will conduct the dedication service on Sunday, Aug. 11 at 8:30 a.m. in the Synagogue on Grafton St., Quincy Point. Hosting a post-service breakfast are the Brotherhood and Woman's Council

'Life' Lesson-Sermon Topic At Christian Science

"Life" is the subject of Sunday's Christian Science Lesson-Sermon at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy Center.

It is based on Moses' Ten Commandments [Exodus 20]; and includes this passage from John 17:3

"And this is life eternal, that they might know Thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent."

Over $3,000 In Prizes

29 To Compete For 'Miss Quincy Bay Race Week'

Twenty-nine attractive South Shore girls will compete for the title of Miss Quincy Bay Race Week and more than $3,000 in prizes Friday night as the highlight of the three-day Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar.

It is the largest number of contestants and the most prizes ever awarded in the pageant's history.

The winner and four runners-up will share proportionately in the prizes. In addition, every contestant will receive a gift.

The winner will also have the honor of reigning over Quincy Bay Race Week which opens July 31.

The selection will be made at a 9:30 p.m. pageant on a portable boardwalk on Hancock St. in front of the Hancock Bank.

Henry Bosworth of The Quincy Sun is pageant chairman. Kenneth P. Fallon Jr., of WJDA is co-chairman and will be the emcee.

The new Miss Quincy Bay Race Week will be crowned by last year's winner, Patricia Kelley of Quincy.

Music for the pageant will be provided by Baron Hugo and his orchestra. They will also play following the pageant.

The 29 contestants will be judged in evening gown and swimsuit competition and for beauty and poise. This year there will be 10 instead of five finalists and they will also be judged for their response to a question.

The contestants will be escorted on stage by commodores of the seven QBRW associated yacht clubs.

The 29 contestants are:

- Kim Affsa, 18, 75 Lisle St., Braintree.
- Mary Anderson, 16, 58 Royal St., Wollaston.
- Robin Burns, 16, of 21 Chapman St., Wollaston.

For Patty Kelley

A Year To Remember

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Patty Kelley, the striking, svelte, blond-haired Miss Quincy Bay Race Week of 1973 will soon end her year's reign.

On Saturday night, Patty, the model-slim, long-haired beauty, will relinquish her crown to the 1974 winner of the pageant.

The memories of her year as Miss Quincy Bay Race Week evoke a smile from Patty.

"I met a lot of nice people," she said, "and I had a lot of nice experiences I never would have had if I hadn't won, I'm sure."

During race week, Patty attended dinners and dances at Quincy's yacht clubs. She must have enjoyed herself thoroughly, for her eyes glistened as she grinned, "When I have enough money, I'm going to buy a yacht."

The 19-year-old also addressed Quincy's Rotary Club, and participated in the Marine parade as part of her queenly duties.

Patty graduated from Quincy High School in 1973. She then signed a year's contract with a modeling agency, participating in fashion shows throughout New England. She also worked with MGM, helping the studio promote the film "West World", starring Yul Brynner.

The 19-year-old's list of experiences does not end there. She attended Academy Moderne, a modeling school in Boston, early in 1973. She also appeared on the Boston-filmed TV show Banacek that fall.

Patty, now employed at the Quincy Neighborhood Youth Corps, decided to enter the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant for at least two reasons.

"I had been to modeling school," she said, "and I used to watch TV pageants when I was a little girl and always wanted to enter."

Patty's list of prizes won is indeed long: a modeling scholarship, a gold trophy, a bouquet of roses, $225 in bonds, a watch, a tennis suit, luggage, and gift certificates.

In the fall, Patty will enter Quincy Junior College as a pre-nursing student. Speaking of her yet-unknown successor, she said:

"I wish her the best of luck and hope she enjoys her reign as much as I enjoyed mine."

Here Are The Pageant Prizes

The more than $3,000 in prizes to be shared by this year's Miss Quincy Bay Race Week and four runners-up include:

- A $595 Major Modeling Program Scholarship from Barbizon School of Modeling, Boston.
- Two $345 Beauty and Personal Development Program Scholarships from Barbizon School of Modeling.
- A set of diamond earrings from Rogers Jewelry.
- A dress ensemble from Sears Roebuck.
- Five gift certificates from Child World.
- Three gift certificates from Remick's of Quincy.

• Two $25 savings bonds from Hancock Bank.

• A ladie's tote bag from Jason's Luggage and Music Shop.

• A swimsuit from Colman's.

• A gift certificate from South Shore Television and Appliance.

• A gift certificate from Cumming's.

• A gift certificate from Lerner's.

• Two tickets to the South Shore Music Circus; Cohasset from The Quincy Sun.

• "The New World Encyclopedia Of Cooking" from The Patriot Ledger.

• A birthday ice cream cake from Baskin-Robbins.

The top winner will also receive a beautiful bouquet of red roses from Clifford's Flower Shop.

She will wear a crown donated by Bottom's Up. The crown, a rotating prize, is to be worn also by future winners. It is now on display at Bottom's Up.

The winner will get to keep a handsome trophy being presented by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Milton, Banjo Bands To Feature Music Of Today And Yesterday

Two area bands will entertain audiences at this year's Sidewalk Bazaar with music from today and from days gone by.

Tonight [Thursday] a banjo band, under the direction of Buddy Burke of Weymouth, will perform three concerts featuring tunes from the Roaring Twenties and the Gay Nineties.

The first performance starts at 6 p.m. at the South Shore National Bank. The five-piece band will then board a fire engine which will whisk them to Grossman's for the 7:30 start of the second show. The final show is at 8:30 p.m. on the platform near Colman's.

The band has three banjo players - Burke, Joseph Fahey and Edward O'Brien. Mike Tulysewski plays the trombone and Joe Ryan the clarinet. The group has been together for 20-odd years.

On Friday the tunes will turn to current, popular hits played by the Milton Band. The 25-member band, under the direction of Ken Lodge, has been in existence for 48 years. Lodge has been director for five of those years.

The Band will march from St. John's to the South Shore National Bank and perform there at 7 p.m. They will then march to Colman's for an 8 p.m. concert, march back to St. John's and disband.

The two performances will include such favorites as "I Left My Heart in San Francisco", "The Hully Gully", and selections from "The Music Man", "Finnegan's Rainbow", and "Camelot".

REMO

Attack Dog, Rescue Demonstrations By Police, Fire Depts.

Quincy's Police and Fire Departments will conduct three demonstrations as a part of the fifth annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

Police officers Robert Forde and James Buchanan will be at South Shore National Bank on Friday at 8 p.m., demonstrating the almost-magical, on-command training of two attack dogs.

Today [Thursday] and Saturday, attendants will show and explain the equipment aboard the police ambulance. Spectators will be able to walk through the ambulance and observe pressure packs, oxygen valves, maternity equipment and the direct line from the ambulance to Quincy City Hospital.

Today's half-hour demonstration begins at 2:45 and Saturday's starts at 2:30 p.m.

Also on Saturday, Rescue 1 Company of the Fire Department will demonstrate the use of rescue equipment on an automobile and will simulate the rescue of a passenger trapped in the car. The crew will then answer any questions from the audience.

The demonstration begins at 1 p.m. in Colman's parking area.

Alligator, Boa Constrictor, Monkey, Skunk Zoomobile Stars

A skunk, monkey, alligator and five-foot boa constrictor will be the stars of the Children's Zoo during the fifth annual Quincy Sidewalk Bazaar.

Two 45-minute demonstrations will take place today [Thursday] and Friday, starting at 2 p.m. and at 3:15 p.m.

The show is an educational one on wheels and will be presented by the Boston Zoological Society. Experienced staff members will take each animal from its cage, allowing children to pet and to touch many of them.

After explaining the life and habits of the animals, staff members will field questions from the audience.

The Children's Zoo will be located on the platform near South Shore National Bank on Hancock St., Thursday and near Colman's on Friday.

Fire Engine Rides For Youngsters

Fire engine rides will be available for youngsters during Quincy's Sidewalk Bazaar.

An engine has been donated by George Moody, and any donations received during the bazaar will be given to the Old Colony Demolay. They in turn will give the money to the Cerebral Palsy Clinic in Quincy.

Renegades To Give 3 Performances

The Renegades, Quincy's Drum and Bugle Corps, will conduct three performances tonight [Thursday] in conjunction with the fifth annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

The 112-member corps is directed by Edward J. Gebauer of Braintree. He has led the group since it began one and one-half years ago.

The Renegades boast 43 buglers, 19 drummers and 51 female color guards. Their first performance will begin at 6:30 p.m. in front of St. John's Church from where they will march to the platform at Colman's. Their next performance will start at 7:30 p.m. at South Shore National Bank. Their final act begins at 8:30 at Grossman's Parking area on Granite St.

According to Gebauer, The Renegades will play a medley from "Jesus Christ Superstar" - including "I Don't Know How To Love Him", "The Queen's March", and "This Is My Country". They will also present a rifle and flag exhibition.

Famed Clydesdales Here Friday

The world famous Budweiser Clydesdales will tour the Quincy area on Friday as one of the fifth annual Sidewalk Bazaar attractions.

The team of eight horses draws a wagon driven by two uniformed men. They will assemble in front of City Hall at 10:30 a.m. and tour the following route, making 15-minute stops at each juncture:

* Right onto Granite St. to

Snakes, Turtles, Lizards

Snakes, turtles, frogs and lizards will be the stars of the Massachusetts Herpetological Society's demonstration during the fifth annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

Five to 10 members of the society will be on hand at South

Grossman's parking lot.

* Back down Granite St., right onto Hancock St. to Remick's.

* Right onto Cliveden St. to W. T. Grant and Gilchrist's, up through Parkway, down School St. to Colman's, down Revere Rd to Hancock parking area, to South Shore National Bank to Bargain Center in Quincy Center to McIntyre Mall near City Hall.

The entire tour will take approximately five hours.

Shore National Bank from 1:30 p.m. on Saturday. They will display 11-foot snakes and answer questions on a one-to-one basis with members of the audience.

People will be able to touch the reptiles and amphibians under supervision.

Meet The Committee

George White of The Patriot Ledger is the coordinator for this year's Sidewalk Bazaar.

Assisting him are John Murray, executive director and Mark Bertman of Rogers Jewelry, president of the sponsoring Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, and Phil Chase of Cummings, promotions chairman.

The committee includes: Henry Bosworth, The Quincy Sun; Summer Cohen, Kincaide's; Burt Cook, Tag's Sleep and Lounge Shop; Jack Cosseboom, Milton's; Sandra Colman, QCBPA office; Remo DeNicola, South Shore Television and Appliance; Kenneth P. Fallon, Jr., WIDA; Jason Feldman, Jason's Luggage and Music Shop; Jack Kerrigan, Baskin-Robbins; David Leitch, Burgin, Platner Insurance; John Sperger, Sears Roebuck; Jerry Morreale, Child World; Lt. Jack Flaherty, Quincy Police Dept.

In addition, the committee is being aided by Richard Koch, executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Board; Forestry Supt. John Koegler; Civil Defense Director Thomas Lyons, Public Works Director James Ricciuti, George Page of the Park Department and Edward Lynch of the Police Department sign division.

'Sidewalk Mayor's Office' During Bazaar

The Quincy Center Bazaar Days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, have created the opportunity for a new and different way for Mayor Walter J. Hannon to meet with the citizens of the city.

Hannon will have a "Sidewalk Mayor's office" during the three-day event on Hancock St. in front of the Hancock Bank. During the afternoons, he will be available to talk with people and to answer their questions. Members of his staff will be in the Mayor's "portable office" all day and during evening hours.

The feature of this unique effort will be to "Help the Mayor Improve Our City". Citizens can write out their recommendations and suggestions for helping to make Quincy an even more liveable city. Hannon will personally review all the suggestions. Those who make suggestions which can be most beneficial to the city will receive special recognition from the Mayor.

"We are always looking for ideas from the people of Quincy to improve the city," said Hannon. "It's the suggestions from citizens in every area of Quincy which I want to know about. Citizen participation is the key to a successful city."

Although this will be the first time a Quincy Mayor has utilized a "sidewalk mayor's office", Hannon said that he will take his new office to other parts of the city in the coming months.

Gordon Carr Reelected To Girl Scout Board

Gordon D. Carr of Quincy, a partner in the Erikson Monumental Works, was elected to his second term on the Board of Directors of the Blue Hill Girl Scout Council, at the council's recent annual meeting.

Carr was recently appointed chairman of the council finance committee. He is a former Boy Scout, Scoutmaster, District Chairman and Executive Board member of the Quincy Boy Scouts, and is active in many religious, civic and fraternal activities, including the Quincy Historical Society. He has been a member of the Board and Chairman of the South Area Planning Division of United Community Services of Greater Boston.

Blue Hill Council celebrated its 10th anniversary at the annual meeting, which was attended by over 250 girls, past officers, voting delegates, guests, and friends of Scouting.

The meeting included the election of officers and members of the council Board of Directors, a review of the council's history, a ceremony welcoming graduating Senior Scouts into adult Scouting, awards for out-standing adult volunteers, and recognition of girls who have been selected to attend national and international Girl Scout events this year.

Baron Hugo To Play At Miss Quincy Race Week Pageant

Long-time favorite Baron Hugo will once again provide the music for Friday night's Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant.

"Let Me Call You Sweetheart", "A Pretty Girl", "Four Leaf Clover", and "Ain't She Sweet" are among the old-time melodies to be played during the pageant. Hugo will also field requests from the audience after the pageant and perform other all-time favorites.

A native of Quincy and now a resident of Milton, Hugo grew up near Brewer's Corner, West Quincy. He got his start in 1923 when he played at Malmati Hall in South Quincy. He also played at the old Wisteria Bungalow - now the Hancock parking area - at Electra Hall - now Quincy Savings Bank - and at Taylor's Ballroom - now a roller skating rink.

BARON HUGO

And in the heyday of the big band sound, Hugo's orchestra was the house band at the Totem Pole Ballroom at Norembea Park.

"My orchestra was the biggest house band in the country," Hugo recalls. "Musicians from across the country came to play in my band."

Hugo shared the Totem Pole stage with Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey. Vahey Tackvorian of Dorsey's band and Russell Stanger, now conductor of Norfolk Virginia Symphony Orchestra, played in Hugo's band.

Later in his career, Hugo performed at RKO Keith Theatre in Boston and at the Boston Belle boat between Boston and Provincetown.

The Beauty Pageant begins at 9:30 p.m. Friday and so does the sound of Baron Hugo and his orchestra.

Lighting Twice As Bright For Pageant

Thanks to Director Thomas Lyons and members of his Civil Defense unit, Hancock St. will be well lighted for the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant Friday night.

There will be 6,500 watts of lighting hooked up to three CD generators.

The lighting will be almost three times as bright as during last year's pageant.

Included will be a 2,000-watt spotlight, a 1,500 watt spotlight and six flood lights with 3,000 watts.

Assisting Lyons on the scene will be Jordan Cohen, rescue chief; Ben Yuscivitch, James Ziniti, Thomas Joyce, Lee Walden, Joseph Zdanowski and Robert Peters.

Two Contestants In Last Year's Pageant

If at first you don't succeed, try again.

And so Maria Peterson, 17, of Weymouth and Debbi King, 19, of Braintree are making their second appearance this year in the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week

Pageant.

The two competed in last year's pageant.

Quincy Ballet School To Perform Saturday

Quincy School of Ballet will perform two shows on Saturday during the Sidewalk Bazaar.

The 10 a.m. show will be held at South Shore National Bank and the second 11 a.m. performance, in Colman's parking area.

Mrs. Leslie Vincent is the director of the 50-member, all-female organization. Dancers range in age from 4 to 27 and hail from Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth.

Listed on the dancing schedule are two jazz routines, a tap-dance number and a performance to the strains of "Sleeping Beauty".

Lydon Seeks Speed Crackdown In Wollaston, Montclair

To reduce traffic speed and highway hazards in the Wollaston and Montclair areas of Quincy Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. has written Edward Pettoruto, chief supervisor of the Special Services for Selective Enforcement of the Registry of Motor Vehicles making several suggestions.

He is asking for selected enforcement in setting up speed traps to reduce the speeding. In part his letter states:

"To make you aware of this problem this area of the city has become a cross-through area to Boston and the State Street South complex from the [Southeast] Expressway.

"The two streets which I would particularly ask you to concentrate on are West Squantum and Beale Sts., as these are two of the major thoroughfares in the city. These two streets have noticed an increase in truck traffic, particularly commercial, and these streets are also used as the route to the dump for refuse collection.

"Trucks have been reported on numerous occasions to speed in the area with no respect to the community. We have also noted during the summertime an increase in motorcycle traffic using the Beale Street area as an access route to Wollaston Beach in coming from Boston.

"The traffic that these two parallel carry is forcing some of the traffic to take side streets and is causing a severe hazard to the neighborhood and to the children.

"I would ask for your recommendations in an effort to reduce the traffic flow and traffic speed in this area. In conjunction with your efforts I am requesting that both Beale St. and West Squantum St. be posted as 30-miles an hour."

Fenno St. Recreation Area Attracts Many Residents

The Fenno Street Recreational Area which is lighted at night attracts many residents with its two tennis, two outdoor basketball, and one shuffleboard courts.

The overhead lighting installation was completed in 1963 at a cost of $7,000. The price was absorbed by the Merrymount Park Rental Fund charged to the federal government for a portion of the park used as a Nike site.

The 11-year total cost for electricity was $3,303. The area is used day and night from the first of May to the first of October. The Recreation Department assigns a supervisor from 6 to 10 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

The Park Department was responsible for installing the lighting facilities, purchasing and erecting the fence, replacement of broken lamps, and maintenance of the grounds.

'No Such Thing As Unwanted Child' Delahunt Tells 'Pro-Life' Group

"There is no such thing as an unwanted child," Representative William D. Delahunt told the Quincy chapter of the Massachusetts Citizens for Life, at a recent meeting at the home of Mrs. Robert Connolly, Mayflower Rd., Squantum.

Delahunt stressed the declining population and the fact that the demand for adoptive infants has equalled the supply and told the group that he and Judge Francis Fox have sponsored legislation which would provide an incentive for adoption of older children.

John Holland, chairman of the Quincy chapter, introduced the speaker to members and described him as the leading proponent of "Pro-Life" legislation and a member of the special committee on Human Experimentation. Holland said Delahunt has also been a prime mover behind the current bills on fetal experimentation recently passed and Maternal Health [H-5933].

According to Delahunt, opposition to these bills comes primarily from Women's Rights organizations which do not want any type of legislation. Today, any woman can have an abortion for any reason, up until birth. Delahunt has structured his bills to conform to the Supreme Court decision of 1973, in an effort to avoid any questions of constitutionality, and to increase the possibility of passage and signing by the Governor.

He also stressed the need for the group to find out why women seek abortions and to find ways of eliminating the social problems which are often perceived as reasons.

The Massachusetts Citizens for Life is a politically oriented group, working toward a human life amendment to the national constitution. The Quincy Chapter, organized last March, is one of approximately 74 in the Commonwealth. It is non-sectarian and is affiliated with the National Right to Life Organization, and is largely responsible for the support of current legislation by medical and religious leaders.

Other officers of the group are: Mrs. Anne Smyth, vice chairman; Mrs. Joan Boland, treasurer; and Miss Mary Steinkraus, secretary. Anyone interested in the objectives of the group is welcome to become a member.

Brennan Children Hold Muscular Dystrophy Carnival

Paul and Donna Brennan, children of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brennan, held a carnival in their yard at 62 Hillside Ave., Wollaston.

It was not an ordinary carnival with rides, cotton candy and balloons. It was a fund-raising carnival for muscular dystrophy.

Paul, a third-grader at Wollaston School, and Donna, a sixth-grader there, raised $25. They were assisted by their cousin Joanne, a third-grader at Mass. Fields School.

The day's activities included games-playing with prizes and a cake and rummage sale. The youngsters had been collecting items for the rummage sale door-to-door since the winter.

Paul and Donna planned the carnival entirely on their own and had quite a successful day entirely devoted to the cause of muscular dystrophy.

Mary Collins Cites Campaign Issues At Wollaston Meeting

Mrs. Mary P. Collins of 116 Lansdowne St., Squantum, has announced her candidacy for the Democratic nomination for State Representative in the Third Norfolk District.

The new legislative district is composed of three precincts in Wollaston and one precinct in Montclair. Mrs. Collins made her announcement at a meeting of a group of supporters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Spring, 107 Waterston Ave., Wollaston.

Mrs. Collins, 31, is a graduate of Msgr. Ryan Memorial High School in Boston and the Boston School of Business Education. She is an active member of the Wollaston Women's Club Juniors; vice president of the Squantum School Parent Teacher organization; chairman of the Parents Advisory Council to the School Food Service; treasurer of the Social Service Committee of the Quincy City Hospital; a member of the League of Women Voters, FISH; the Quincy Citizens' Association; and is on the Steering Committee of the recently formed Squantum Community Association.

She has been involved in 4-H work in the city and has taken part in fund raising for the Kidney Foundation and the American Cancer Society.

Citing some of the issues of her campaign Mrs. Collins proposed stricter controls for the Prison Furlough program and on campaign spending; economy in government; and solutions to juvenile and drug programs.

She said she would be a representative who would listen to her constituents and represent the interests of all neighborhoods in the district.

Married to Thomas L. Collins Jr., an employee of the New England Telephone Company, she is the mother of four, Christine, Caroline, Deidre and Timothy.

Papile Opposes MBTA Station

A coffee party in honor of James P. Papile, candidate for state representative from the First Norfolk District, was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pat DiStefano of 38 Payne St., South Quincy.

Papile spoke on an issue he said was one of the foremost facing residents of the area and residents of the entire city—the proposed new MBTA station.

Papile said the rapid transit terminal in Braintree would cost far less than the site in South Quincy "where landtakings, tax revenue losses to the city of Quincy from business establishments forced to relocate, the building of on and off ramps to the major abutting highways, and probable destruction of wetlands were all necessary for its construction in South Quincy."

"It is inconceivable that an issue such as this which has been thoroughly, and intelligently decided by both Braintree and South Quincy residents could be allowed to smoulder and not brought to an end for the people," Papile said. "A common sense end excluding private big business interests, a common sense end without the use of another citizen's petition circulating through the district once again."

Papile also stressed the need for a representative without political ties or political obligations to speak out and take action on issues such as the MBTA station.

Papile also explained his position will be that of a full-time representative. He said he notified his employer months ago that if elected he will leave their employment.

Elect Qualified Candidates, Williams Urges

A coffee hour was held recently at the house of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnson of 161 Sumner St., Quincy Point for Thomas F. Williams, candidate for state representative from the First Norfolk District.

Williams told the 25 in attendance "now is the time for concerned citizens to speak out and get involved in local and state politics."

He stressed the importance of electing qualified, independent people who are not afraid to speak out and stand alone on political issues.

Williams also discussed the following issues; the sea shore; the Fore River Bridge; the Fore River Shipyard; and the Edison Plant. He stressed the need for a balancing of economic improvement as well as environmental control.

He pledged that if elected he would use his background in law, finance, real estate, and civic involvement to the best interest of the district.

Bike Rodeo Friday At 6 Locations

A Bike Rodeo will be held Friday at six locations in the city for contestants between the ages of 8 and 12 years old announces Recreation Director William F. Ryan.

The rodeo will be held at Montclair School, 9:45 a.m., Snug Harbor, Pollard, and Shearink, 1:30 p.m., Wollaston and Merrymount, 2 p.m.

The rodeo will consist of five events to test bike riding skill including Balance Test; Riding the Straight Line Test; Maneuver and Change Balance Test; Short Radius Turn Test; and Quick Direction Change Test. Prizes will be awarded the winners.

Bellotti Files Over 30,000 Names

Former Lt. Gov. Francis X. Bellotti of Quincy, Democratic candidate for Attorney General filed more than 30,000 certified signatures to place his name on the Sept. 10 Democratic primary ballot.

Bellotti, a trial lawyer filed the signatures in the elections division of the Secretary of State's Office, Boston, Massachusetts.

State law requires 10,000 certified signatures. Bellotti exceeded that amount by over 20,000 signatures, making his total more than twice the number filed by other candidates for Attorney General.

Lydon Asks Montclair Park Improvements

In a letter to Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park and Recreation Board Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., has asked for a survey of Montclair Park with a view to upgrade the facilities.

Lydon points out that Montclair Park is the only major recreation facility serving approximately 10,000 people in the northern end of the city. He cites the fact that the park is in need of a face lifting and refurbishing.

He recommends an additional tennis court as many times the present courts are crowded with residents waiting up to an hour to get court time. He notes that the cost can be decreased as lighting can be provided through cooperation with the Massachusetts Electric Company in projecting lighting from the street lamps to light the tennis court.

Lydon recommends that to put in the additional tennis court it will be necessary to reverse the basketball court badly in need of resurfacing and repainting of the backboards.

Other recommendations include destruction of the small concrete bleachers which have become a bottle smashing target and replacing them with new bleachers; refurbish the perimeter fence of the park; and provide additional sand for the tot lot and increase the scheduled cleanup of the park area through the summer months.

Squantum Community Assn. Elects Officers, Accepts By-Laws

The newly-formed Squantum Community Association [SCA] pledges to "establish a forum for free and open discussion" of problems unique to the community.

The by-laws of the association also promise to promote "unity...respect for the law...and respect for individuals' rights to peace and privacy."

The 84 persons attending the meeting elected Robert Murray of Landsdown St. as president. Daniel Coughlin of East Squantum St. is vice-president, Hugo Mujica of Landsdown St., treasurer and Martha Regan of Dorchester St., secretary.

Nine committees were established at this meeting of the association: environmental, finance, legislative, membership, nominating, planning and research, publicity, social, and youth activities.

The SCA invites all members of the community to attend the next meeting on Monday, Aug. 12 at the First Church, +64 Bellvue Rd at 8 p.m.

Hannon Seeks 200-Units In W. Quincy For Seniors

Mayor Walter J. Hannon, in conjunction with the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Commissioners and Chairman Lawrence S. Butler, have applied to the Department of Community Affairs for 200 units of low-rent housing for senior citizens in Quincy.

The Department of Community Affairs has recently received authorization from the Massachusetts Legislature sufficient to finance an additional 4,000 units of housing for the elderly and has invited municipalities to submit pre-application forms.

Mayor Hannon said he hopes to gain DCA approval for construction of the 200 units and would like to see them built in West Quincy.

"Units constructed in this area would balance the senior citizen population within the city," he said. "In talking with our elderly citizens, I have learned that the majority do not want to leave the area in which they have lived for a number of years."

The Quincy Housing Authority is presently completing pre-application procedures which are required by the DCA to ensure that new state-aided housing developments involving new construction are related to overall community plans.

They are working with Hannon and are enlisting the participation and review of local boards and agencies interested in housing and development within the city.

John Concannon Member New Criminal Justice Training Council

John P. Concannon, Norfolk County Clerk of the Courts, Norfolk County, was among those sworn into office as a member of the new Criminal Justice Training Council.

The oath was administered by Governor Sargent in ceremonies at the State House.

The new council will be responsible for providing increased training for law enforcement personnel and will have at its disposal $2 to $4 million dollars annually for this purpose.

The new funds are being raised through a 25 per cent increase in the fines which convicted criminals pay. Governor Sargent pointed out that "more criminals are getting away with more crime" because the state has failed to provide the best possible training for its law enforcement officers.

Physicians receive 11,000 hours of training, lawyers 9,000 hours of training, hair dressers 400 hours of training and "yet we settle for only 320 hours of training for the officer on the beat," Sargent said. He maintained that the council's task is to reverse the percent situation with the new funds available.

Angie's costar is Earl Holliman

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Earl Holliman will be Angie Dickinson's costar in "Police Woman," Columbia Pictures Television's new series for NBC-TV to premier in the fall. He'll play an undercover officer in the criminal conspiracy division of a big city police department. ... John Davidson will host "The Hollywood Paladium," a Cossette-Pasetta television special, to air Sept. 6 over NBC-TV. The hour-long show will be a pilot for a weekly series. Let the network know how you like it. ... An international team of disaster experts followed a visit to the site of the 1971 Sylmar, Calif., quake with a visit to Universal Studios to see scenes from "Earthquake," a scary feature film to be released in November. The specialists in natural disaster response techniques represented 23 countries, so the movie sound track must have been a mystery to some of them. Or is Universal dubbing in 23 languages? The group was accompanied by Karl Mahler, chief of the Division of Foreign Disaster Preparedness of the U.S. Department of State. For a study of real disasters, they should have seen clips from a few other disasters I could name: "Gatsby," for instance. ... Bill Bixby and wife Brenda Benet expect their first child by Thanksgiving.

Barbara Seagull says she gives interviews but doesn't read them, because she's gotten so little understanding from the press.

Frankly, I don't approve of Barbara's life-style, since she and David Carradine live together in unmarried bliss and are parents of a charming, 22-month-old child named Free. But I don't quarrel with it, since, up to a point, what Barbara does is Barbara's business.

However, I did quarrel with her the other day about the fact that she doesn't take Free to a pediatrician for checkups nor has she had him immunized against various dread diseases.

"You can see he's healthy," Barbara said, which did seem to be the case. Free still nurses and will continue to do so until he more or less weans himself, his mother said, while the rest of his diet has been developed through natural selection.

"I've added things to his diet as he's wanted them," Barbara said. "Experiments have shown that, if you put various kinds of foods on a table and let children choose whatever they want, they'll select what's best for them."

Free made his movie debut in the prenatal state in a soon-to-be-released Dutch film called "Love Comes Quietly," which starred his mother when she was 6 months pregnant.

"I'd been in correspondence with Nikolai Van Der Heyde, the director, when I became pregnant," Barbara relates, "because I just couldn't stand to wait any longer to have a baby. So I wrote him that I was pregnant and wouldn't blame him if he replaced me with another actress."

"But he wrote back that he still wanted me in the picture. About my pregnancy, he said, 'It's a gift from God.'"

The film was made in Friesland during its coldest summer in 125 years.

Barbara shivers when she remembers, "We had to walk under fire hoses."

Commendations are due Roy Clark for presenting a show at the Frontier in Las Vegas which is not only entertaining but suitable for family trade.

Instead of following a typical Vegas comic with a store of dirty jokes in the manner of most show-room headliners, Roy is the only comedian on the bill and, while some of his jokes have double meaning, they are neither bright blue nor offensive. Best of all, they go over the heads of the kids.

●Babe Ruth League Police Clinch Title

In the Babe Ruth League the Quincy Police nine clinched the Division championship Sunday with a record of 17 wins and 4 losses. They have four games left on the busy schedule.

The Police easily defeated Bersani Brothers, 10-4. Winning pitcher was Louie Fishman who also banged out three hits to help his own cause. Rich Boyle had 2 hits. Ed Laracy, Mike Murphy and Chuck LoPresti each contributed singles.

The Police rolled 17-2 over the Quincy Firemen's team with LoPresti pitching. Brian Connolly had two hits including a grand slam homer; Ronny Donovan had two hits including a triple; LoPresti got two hits including a double; and Fishman also had two hits.

The Granite City nine won 7-5 over Gino's with Bob Stack pitching. Stack only allowed six scattered hits and had two hits. Dave Raftery hit a single and a double and Dave Cramond hit a double.

Granite City won 6-1 over Bersani Brothers with Dave Cramond hurling a one-hitter. For the winners Dave Raftery had two hits, a single and a triple. Both Steve Doyle and Bob Stack got two hits apiece.

In the game with the Sons of Italy nine Granite City was the winner, 5-1. Dave Raftery pitched a 4-hitter striking out 7 batters and contributing a double. Carl Bergstrom and Bob Stack hit for 2 bases.

Bryan Post defeated Quincy Elks, 6-2, with Mike Litif pitching. Frank Sayers hit a homer. Harry Donahue aided the victory by playing fine defensive ball.

Bersani Brothers defeated the Bryan Post 4-3 with Lenny Pecot pitching. Dave Peters got two hits. In the game with Houghs Neck Bersani Brothers won 3-1. Mark Buchanan pitched. Steve Janick came through with the game winning triple. For Houghs Neck Steve Bell led with two hits.

TENNIS TROPHIES - Mrs. Carmine G. D'Olimpio of Quincy [left] presents some momentos of her late father, international tennis star Willard F. Crocker, to the Quincy Historical Society. Crocker, a 1915 graduate of Quincy High School who moved to Montreal to win 12 Canadian tennis titles in the 1920's, was recently elected to the Canadian Tennis Hall of Fame. Accepting the trophies is H. Hobard Holly, president of the Quincy Historical Society, while Mrs. William A. White Jr., president of the Quincy Tennis Club, looks on.

Over 200 Take Part In Quincy Track Club Meet

Some of the girls on the Quincy Track Club may be playing Junior League baseball in another year.

During a QTC practice last week at Veterans Memorial Stadium, a man with a baseball and glove was watching the workout.

When asked if he had a son or daughter on the club, he answered, "No, I am a Junior League manager scouting some of your girls. The way they can run and hurdle, they should be very good chasing fly balls."

Lou Tozzi, North Quincy Track coach and QTC secretary, who directs the club's weekly meets at the stadium, said, "They would get there as quick if not quicker than a lot of boys, if you can lure them away from track."

The Track Club is seeking the help of more fathers and are also looking for girls 15 and older and men 30 and older. The club is still hoping to hold a masters mile for men 40 and older. "The club is open to all Quincy residents aged nine to 90," Tozzi said.

More than 200 took part in last week's second weekly meet and at least as many are expected to participate on tonight's [Thursday] meet at 6 o'clock at the stadium.

Among the top performers last week were Lee Watkins, who won the men's open 100-yard dash in 10.1 seconds; Andy Levitsky, who won the 9-11 boys long jump with a leap of 11-7½, and Janice Kelly, winner of the 12-15 girls' 220-yard dash in 28.4 seconds.

Other winners: High jump, Dan McGillicuddy, boys' 9-11; Steve Doherty, boys' 12-15; Laurie Smith, girls' 12-15, and Dave DiBona, men's open.

Long jump, Laurie Petkun, girls' 9-11.

Shot put, Dan Colby, boys 12-15; Paul Doherty, men's open.

100-yard dash, Nancy McCarthy, girls 12-15; Billy McKeon, boys 9-11.

Half-mile, Marty Levenson, boys' 12-15; Dotty Irvine, girls 12-15.

220-yard dash, Phil Strungis, boys 12-15.

440-yard run, Chuck Rose, boys 9-11; Joe DiRico, men's open.

Low hurdles, Dean Zoia, boys 9-11; Gail Clougherful, girls 9-11; Dan McIntyre, boys 12-15; Paula Church, girls 12-15.

High hurdles, Geoff Hennessey, men's open.

Relays, Bruce Brennan, Bob Biagini, Mark Robinson and Dan McIntyre, boys 12-15; Lee Watkins, Paul Doherty, Paul O'Donnell and Phil Robinson, men's open; Dave Church, Jack Brown, Mike Gardiner and Andy Levitsky, boys 9-11; Paula Church, Dotty Irvine, Laurie Smith and Janice Kelly, girls 12-15.

An added feature which provided much fun and action was a relay race between four girls and two weightmen. The girls ran 100 yards each and the boys 200 yards each. The first two girls took a good lead over weightman Karl Knudsen but Paul Doherty, a fine sprinter as well as a weightman, picked up much ground on the third girl and just barely missed overtaking the girls' anchorman, Janice Kelly, who won by inches. The other girls were Laurie Smith, Ann Sullivan and Dotty Irvine. Tonight there will be several relay races with two boys and two girls on each team, which should provide more action.

Sabina's Wins Pair In Bid For Playoff Spot

Sabina's won two games during the past week to strengthen its bid for a playoff spot in the Quincy Softball League's National League West.

Currently one game out of first place, Sabina's defeated McInnis Corp., 5-3, with Paul Bregoli having three runs batted in. Scott Healy had two hits and made a diving stop of an overthrow at first base to save two runs. Tim Flynn also sparked at shortstop and Ted Stevenson pitched a steady game.

Sabina's also topped Beau's, 9-6, scoring four runs in the final inning. Don Smith had three hits and two RBIs and Healy, the team's leading batter, again had a 1-1 tie as Paul Egan scored for the Blues and Steve Baylis for the Reds. Dick Mahoney and Mike Riley had assists for the Blues and Chris Gorman and Kevin White for the Reds.

The Whites defeated the Orange team, 4-1, with Bobby Ready scoring twice and Paul McCabe and Brian Mock once each. Mock, Bill Bradley, Rich Milano, Ready and Mike O'Hara had assists. Mark Tenney scored for the Orange team.

Celtics Clinic At ENC Friday

The Boston Celtics are staging a three-week program of free basketball clinics and among them will be one at Eastern Nazarene College Friday at 6:30 p.m.

The program will run from 6:30 to 8:30 and will feature lectures and demonstrations by Celtic players and coaches as well as autograph-signing sessions plus an extra session of contests, all-star games and films.

Among the Celtics players who are participating are Don Nelson, Paul Silas, Hank Finkel and Steve Kuberski. Coaches Tom Heinshon and John Kililea, former Quincy High standout, and former Celtics Tom Sanders, Bob Brannum, Jim Loscutoff and Clarence Glover will also take part.

The clinic stresses fundamentals and will endeavor to involve as many youngsters as possible in first hand instruction from the players and coaches.

"We started this program last year with morning sessions," said Celtics General Manager Red Auerbach. "We found that, while they were very successful, we were unable to have teenagers and adults attend. We feel that the later starting time should give the program wider exposure. Our aim is to teach good basketball and, in some measure, aid the summer basketball programs in the 15 towns and cities we will visit."

The Quincy clinic is being run in conjunction with the Quincy Recreation Department.

● Senior Babe Ruth Quincy Places 4 On All-Stars

Quincy will have four players for the first time when the Senior Babe Ruth League all-star competition gets underway this weekend.

The South Shore League's two entries will meet the Central Mass. entries with the Quincy all-stars playing at Adams Field Saturday at 2 p.m. The second game will be Sunday at 2, also at Adams Field.

The state playoff games are single elimination with double elimination beginning at the regional level. The Senior Babe Ruth League World Series will be played at Mattoon, Illinois.

Quincy's representatives are Dave Power, hard-hitting first baseman who is batting .421;

Gerry Bugden, who is regarded by most as one of the top 18-year old pitchers in the area with a 3-1 record, 34 strikeouts in 32 innings and a fine 1.40 earned run average; Mark Jaehnig, outstanding infielder with a .304 batting average and an on-base average of .528, and Paul Messina, aggressive, speedy 16-year old infielder with a .393 batting average and 16 stolen bases.

Other teams in the league have also contributed some outstanding players and an exciting end to this year's play is expected.

Quincy's entry in the South Shore League, Data Services, broke a four-game losing streak last week with a 7-5 win over Weymouth Painters. This brought Quincy's record to 8-6-1.

Nick Anastas came off the bench in the final inning to pitch with the bases loaded and one out and two pitches later got the save and preserve Bugden's win on a line drive double play to shortstop Jaehnig, who made the play unassisted. Weymouth scored three runs in the inning. Prior to that inning Bugden had allowed only three hits for two runs in the second inning.

Messina and Spike Cooney led the Quincy attack with two hits each as the team exploded for six runs in the third inning.

Jim Beaton Flying Scot Winner At Squantum

Jim Beaton's "Dream Awhile" breezed home a winner in the Flying Scot Class at the Squantum Yacht Club on Saturday over a 12-mile course in light air. Finishing second and third were Bob Montgomery's No. 2422, Dave Gwynn's No.

O'Brien Club Wins Y Senior Loop Title

The O'Brien Club of Quincy, which last winter was one of the outstanding semi-pro basketball teams in New England and co-champion of the Cranberry League, last week won the championship of the 16-team Quincy YMCA Senior Summer

Basketball League, which played its games on the outdoor courts at the Y.

The O'Brien Club routed Curran's Cafe, 80-56, in the playoff finals, to win the title and finish with a 16-0 record. The team was the Division I winner.

Ed Miller scored 24 points for the O'Briens, Gene Walcott had 12 and Alan Dalton 11. Also playing were Bob McNamara, Ron Bradley, Leo Papile, Gary Bowen, Rico Cabral and John Douglas.

Curran's was the Division II champ. In the playoff semifinals O'Brien walloped the Caulfield Club, 89-62, and Curran's topped the Goodless A.C., 71-61.

The O'Brien Club is also playing in the open division of the Boston Neighborhood League [BNBL] and is undefeated in four games. Many pros and former pros from the NBA and ABA are playing in this league.

The O'Briens also have a B team in the Boston league and among the players are three former North Quincy High standouts, Steve Miller, Tom Carnes and Brian Donahue.

The Quincy Recreation Department's summer program is now in full swing and the enthusiasm and interest shown by the youth of Quincy towards the program is really something to see.

Tennis instructor's Betty Vittner and Kevin McGinley concentrated this past week on teaching the children the forehand stroke. A few of those who showed particular promise were Carolyn Mercier, Kim Graham, and Robert McAuliffe of Squantum, Heron Road's Ann Marie Nigro, Joe Lynch and Janet Dennis, and Cindy Bureau and John Joland of Whitwell.

Music Specialist Karen Walsh continues to scout around the city playgrounds for children interested in singing in the Quincy Recreation Rythm Band, which will be performing again this year on Field Day. She has come up with some melodious songsters including Chris Kelley, Nancy Tolson and Mary Beth McCarthy of Perkins, and Squantum's Kim Graham, Laurie Graham and Scott Sluhocki. She reminds all children interested in the music program to save all coffee cans, pepsi cans and pie tins for the making of musical instruments.

Interest in the golf program continues to rise reports golf specialist Don Smith. Some of the heavy hitters this past week were LaBrecque's Leo Bottary, and Bobby Henrickson, Susan Ayles and Donna Brennan of Forbes Hill and Snug Harbor's Kevin Williams and Billy Bart.

There are many jeweled beauties walking around Quincy this week and the fancy adornments they are wearing no doubt are the product of the arts and crafts program.

Specialists Gina Kelley and Darlene D'Olympio last week instructed the children on how to make such priceless treasures as earrings, rings and bracelets. Princesses walking around are Perkin's Claire Lynch, Terry Hack and Janice McAuliffe, Caroline Park, Sue Megnia and Tricia Craig of Baker and Faxon Park's Tricia O'Toole, Nancy Martin and Joanne Marcel.

The Dolphins are big favorites of the youth of Quincy. They're "Sparky", "Sprite" and "Lucky", the three dolphins at the Nantasket Aquarium. Last week nature specialists Paula Weidmann and Michael Parros took a busload of youngsters to see the dolphin show. Some of the enthusiastic members of the audience were Danny Marsters, Craig Dibona and Debbie Mallory of Merrymount and Beechwood Knoll's Joe Phelen, Lisa Nolan and Steven Canty.

Archery specialist Tim Flynn reports his bowmen around the city are perfecting their skill. Timmy cites the improvement of LaBrecque's John Connolly, Tom O'Connor and Peter Chernicki, Squantum's Tom Pound and Joe Toomey and Myles Standish's family the Anderson's with Jimmy, Johnny, Timmy and Rhonda.

What's the fastest sport around? Is it hockey? No it's water skiing and if you don't think so go down and watch some of the city's youth fly swiftly through the wave. Some of the daredevils taking part in the Quincy Recreation Water Ski Program are Kate Donelin, Bud Palmer, Mike Dee, Tony Antonetti and Mary Ilacqua.

On the playgrounds this week the children participated in many interesting activities. At Forbes Hill some young Rembrandt's displayed their talents by creating designs on rocks. Some of the artists were Allison Fuller, Pat Welch and Nancy Tollard. There were also some artistically inclined children at Wollaston, where some marvelous black and white silhouettes of George Washington were made. Some of the most creative were by Pat Feeney, Marcia Galluzzo and Kevin Jay.

Barbie dolls are the favorites of little girls everywhere. At Myles Standish this is especially true. The children one afternoon made some beautiful clothes for their dolls including everything from dressing gowns to dungarees. Rhonda Anderson, Marcia Parker and Linda Airi were the leading stylists. At Fore River "Invisible Wonderball" is the in-thing. In the words of Fore River leader Joe Marani, "You have to see it to believe it."

Finally, situated at the edge of Blue Hills is the Recreation outpost of Shea Rink. The other day some of the pioneers there tried their luck at fishing in St. Moritz pond. They went to their task with high hopes, but left disappointed and disgruntled. A few nibbles were the extent of the fishing for the day. Some of the fishermen were Billy Coose, Tom Cannoli, Kevin Riggs and Brenda Bersani.

In the Recreation Sports Leagues there were some interesting games. In junior baseball in District 6 the two teams expected to vie for the championship Bradford and O'Rourke, both opened their season with victories, Bradford mauled outmanned Columbia 16 to 0. Fireballer Ed Tinney mystified the Columbia batters striking out 11.

Bradford's offensive punch was supplied by Chris Chevalier and Mike Fantasia. Chevalier socked a towering home run, while Fantasia punched out a pair of doubles. Meanwhile O'Rourke draped Kincaide 5-1 with Greg Oriola hurling a 3-hitter. The big stick for O'Rourke was Andy Carrera who had 3 hits including a long triple, Mike Avitable, who banged out two hits, was the only bright spot for Kincaide.

In senior baseball Forbes Hill's Kevin McLaughlin hurled a brilliant no-hitter over Faxon Field. The score was 2-0. McLaughlin, overpowering to say the least, simply mowed down the Faxon Field batters. The Hilltoppers two runs came on a triple by Peter Donovan followed by a sacrifice fly by Kevin Worley. The insurance run came when pitcher McLaughlin helped his own cause by singling to left. He then proceeded to steal second and third and scored on Jay Nelson's single up the middle.

Each year Wollaston playground always has at least one championship team. It's a tradition in the recreation sports scene. Well, this year Wollaston's junior basketball team most likely will be the squad to bring home the gold, if last weeks action was any indication of their talent. Wollaston put two wins under their belt with one sided victories over Forbes Hill 33-17 and Stoney brae 45-3.

VFW Moves Into Top Spot Behind O'Toole's Pitches

VFW has moved into first place in the Quincy Junior Baseball League's National League and playing a prominent role in the team's rise has been the pitching of Paul O'Toole.

O'Toole, who struck out 10 in hurling the VFW to a 8-2 win over Houghs Neck, has a 7-0 record, has pitched two no-hit, no-run games and has 75 strikeouts.

In the win over Houghs Neck, Brian Tobin, Joe Crifo and Gordon Spencer led the attack, while Greg Madden, Jeff Giordani and Tom McFarlane led the HN offense. Jeff Giordani pitched for HN and was relieved by McFarlane. Giordani struck out eight.

The VFW also walloped Burgin Platner, 12-3, as winning pitcher Spencer fanned eight. O'Toole had a home run and double, Spencer a homer, Crifo two singles and Danny Boyle and Tom Joe Connolly a single each.

The VFW, which had its most fruitful week of the year, topped Foley Chrysler, 9-6, as O'Toole was again the winning pitcher. Spencer had a double, Brian Tobin two singles and Boyle, O'Toole and Gus Gonzales a single each. Jim Sullivan was outstanding behind the plate until he suffered a fractured elbow when hit by a foul tip. Tom Joe Connolly replaced him and did a fine job.

Completing a great week, the VFW romped over Remick's, 12-4, with Danny Boyle the winning pitcher. O'Toole had a home run and double, Tom Roche a double, Bruce Tobin two singles, Crifo two singles and Brian Tobin and Connolly a single each.

Rotary added two wins during the week, defeating Remick's, 7-1, and Boston Gear, 8-4.

John Costigan pitched outstanding ball against Remick's and he was hooked up in a great duel with Chris Segalla until the seventh when Rotary exploded for six runs. Costigan, who led off with a single, scored the winning run on Rich Finnegan's single. Tony Camillo at first base and catcher Billy Burt stood out defensively for Rotary. Mike Ford and Finnegan had doubles and Burt, Brian Donovan, Buddy Cappola, Finnegan and Costigan singles. Paul Anastas had a double and single for Remick's, while Mike Bythrow, Chris Segalla, Mark Veasey, Bob Todd and John Sullivan had other hits.

In the win over Boston Gear, Donovan was the starting pitcher. The game went into extra innings. The game was tied in the bottom of the fifth when Gary NiNardo of Rotary came on in relief and did not allow a runner past second in the sixth and seventh innings.

Eleven-year old Ronnie Pettinelli made two brilliant catches to save the game and send it into overtime. Ford and Cappola sparked on defense and Donovan drove in the winning run. Rotary went on to score three more runs.

Over the six innings he pitched, Bob Hayes of Gear did well but had to be replaced by Paul Dwyer in the seventh. Hayes had two doubles, Bob DuBois a double and Dwyer a single for Gear. For Rotary the 11-year old DiNardo, in addition to his relief pitching, had a double and two singles. Burt and Donovan each had two singles and Pettinelli, Costigan and Camillo a single each.

Houghs Neck walloped Colonial Federal, 13-5, with Mike Abboud the winning pitcher. Jeff Giordani had a home run, triple and double for HN, 10-year old Tom O'Connor and McFarlane doubles and Madden, Greg Oriola, Abboud, Steve Notorangelo, McFarlane and nine-year old Marty McLaughlin a single each. Oriola started a fast double play.

Quincy Babe Ruth All-Stars Defeat Milton, Hingham

The Quincy National Babe Ruth All-Stars met Braintree Tuesday for the District 11 championship.

The winner will play the District 12 champ for the sectional title and a crack at the state crown.

Quincy defeated Milton, 3-1, on the Fourth of July with Lou Fishman pitching a four-hitter and striking out five. Quincy scored a run in the second inning on a walk to John Ferris, who stole second and scored on Jim McGinley's single. The winning runs scored in the fifth when Bob Stack singled for one of his two hits, Fishman walked, both runners advanced on a wild pitch and scored on Chuck LoPresti's single.

Saturday Quincy moved into the district finals by edging Hingham 2-1.

LoPresti pitched a six-hitter and struck out three. Hingham took the lead with a run in the second but Quincy tied it in the sixth on a walk to Stack, who went to second on a wild pitch, moved up on LoPresti's infield hit and scored on Ferris' single. Quincy won it in the seventh when Frank Cangemi walked as did Stack and with two outs Fishman singled in Kelly, who had run for Cangemi.

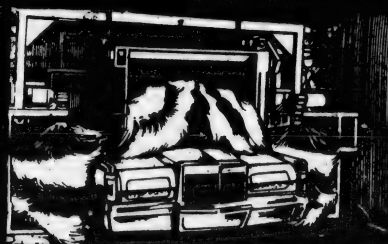

Comdr. Thomas McDonough Attending Officers' Course

Navy Comdr. Thomas W. McDonough, of 188 Samoset Ave., Merrymount, is attending a two-week senior reserve officers' course at the U.S. Naval War College, Newport, R.I.

He will be familiarized with the school's regular training program, and course of instruction, so that he can communicate a better understanding of the college's mission. McDonough was selected to assume a temporary active duty status, and to attend the course, by the commandant of his reserve district.

Hancock Bank Introduces Thief-Proof Government Check Plan

An automatic and thief-proof Government Check Deposit Plan has been introduced by the Hancock Bank at all of its offices throughout Norfolk County.

According to President William E. Kelley, the bank's plan in addition to eliminating check thefts is a time saving, fuel-saving effortless way to safeguard government allotments or pay.

The Government Check Deposit Plan provides for government benefit checks to be sent directly from the government to a checking or savings account in Hancock Bank.

The amount of the benefit check or Federal pay is credited electronically to a customer's Money Tree account on the same day he would normally receive his check the old way.

Kelley said that Hancock Bank guarantees the amount of the benefit or pay check will be credited to the customer's account each payday even if the payment from the government is delayed in the mail or for some other reason.

He said customers may draw on any and all of their benefits that same day, if needed. All accounts are insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Quincy Cooperative Bank In $200,000 Expansion Program

The Quincy Cooperative Bank which is observing its 85th anniversary is in the midst of a $200,000 program of expansion and remodeling.

Changes in the home office at 1259 Hancock St., in Quincy Sq. is but one sign of the bank's growth.

Soon a new branch will be opening in Cohasset at Tedeschi's Shopping Center on Route 3-A. The main office and the Hanover Branch are now featuring extended office hours and banking services including the popular NOW account.

Changes in the interior of the bank includes an expansion of facilities to provide more services for more customers. The bank will occupy the entire end of the Munroe Building and will add another customer entrance facing the McIntyre Mall.

John A. Vivian, an experienced bank administrator and new president of the Quincy Cooperative Bank, has presented Mayor Walter J. Hannon with the first coloring book based on window cartoons.

In making the presentation Vivian said, "Not only are we concerned about our customers, we're expressing our great confidence in downtown Quincy. We're enthusiastic about the work that the city government headed by Mayor Hannon continues to do in revitalizing the downtown area. As a growing business we're happy to be a part of these developments."

Vivian outlined the new changes which include a change of name which must first be approved by the directors, shareholders, and the State banking commissioner; new directors rooms in the basement which the bank will make available for community use during non-banking hours; and a new entrance on the McIntyre Mall side of the building.

Other changes include a completely remodeled main lobby; and free parking for bank customers at the end of the building. The bank will distribute coloring books and crayons to youngsters coming in. The books will feature cartoon workmen by Artist Dick Noyes of Newburyport.

Vivian said he expects the renovations, begun two months ago, will be completed next month. In the meantime to make light of the fact "that the bank is coming down around our heads the bank windows have been decorated with cartoon figures of workmen depicting in a "tongue in cheek manner" what is going on inside."

Due Back To Work Today

Shipyard Workers Get $1.48 Hour Hike, Other Benefits

By JAMES COLLINS

Some 1,700 production workers were scheduled to return to their jobs at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard today [Thursday] ending a 123-day strike.

A new three-year contract calling for a $1.48 an hour across-the-board pay hike over three years, other increases and benefits, was expected to be ratified by members of Local 5 at a meeting Wednesday at North Quincy High School.

Acceptance was recommended by the executive board of Local 5 [AFL-CIO].

"If we didn't think it was a good contract we would not recommend its ratification," said an apparently pleased Arthur Batson, president of Local 5.

The strike, one of the longest in the yard's history, cost the Quincy-South Shore area economy millions of lost dollars, federal mediators estimate.

The new three-year agreement became effective today.

The first year calls for:

- An 88 cent per hour across-the-board pay hike.
- A 60 cent per hour increase for semi-skilled second class, third class and beginners.

- A three-week vacation for 10 years of service. [Retroactive for all 10-year employees]

- Pension benefit increased from $4 to $7 for past and future service.

- Pension credits for the period of the work stoppage will be restored on the basis of two months credits for each month worked following return to work.

- Early retirement age 60-65 with 10 years of service [no early retirements for first 30 days following return to work].

- Disability retirement - $7 per year of service [10 years required.] [No reductions for Social Security Disability.]

- Holidays - [1] The company must pay holiday pay to employees laid off in the work week prior to and during the work-week in which a holiday occurs. [2] Holidays will include shift bonus for second and third shift employees if employee was assigned to night shift immediately preceding the holiday.

- Additional funeral days and relatives.

- Thirty months additional recall rights.

- $10 increase accident and sickness schedule.

- $200 per family major medical deductible.

- 365 day semi-private hospital coverage.

- Coordination of benefits [Basic Plan with other group insurance].

- Insurance coverage immediately upon ratification.

- Two additional years on sick leave of absence.

- Elimination of unskilled rates.

Second year effective July 20, 1975:

- Thirty cent per hour increase across the board.

- $5. increase accident and sickness schedule.

- Two 1/2 holidays day before Christmas and New Year.

- Increase life insurance from $6,500 to $8,500. 2 years plus 30 days; from $5,500 to $7,000, 1 year plus 30 days; from $4,000 to $5,000, 30 days.

Third year effective July 18, 1976:

- Thirty cent per hour increase across the board.

- $5 increase accident and sickness schedule.

- Increase life insurance from

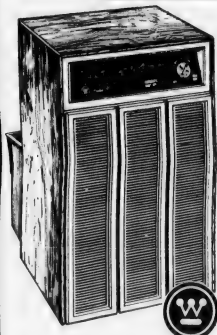

"THANK GOD", is the message outlined by the paper cups on the fence of the Quincy Shipyard of General Dynamics near Fore River Bridge. Strike had ended for 1,700 production workers at the shipyard which has a backlog of shipbuilding orders which will ensure work for the next few years.

$8,500 to $10,000, 2 years plus 30 days; from $7,000 to $8,000, 1 year plus 30 days; from $5,000 to $5,500, 30 days.

- Effective Jan. 31, 1977: Mandatory retirement at age 65 - no service requirement for pension.

Lydon Seeks To Break Up Gangs On Whitwell St.

Ward 3 Councillor John J. Lydon is asking cooperation from the Police and Park Departments in "breaking up gangs of youths" "drinking and disturbing the peace" on Whitwell St.

Lydon said the youths are gathering in the wooded area which surrounds the Whitwell St. playground.

He asked the Police Department to make more frequent checks of the area.

And, he asked Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Board to "thin out" the heavy brush "so that when the police are patrolling the area, they will be able to see more readily if any gangs are gathering."

Merchants Eye Next Year

Sidewalk Bazaar Business Estimated Up 35 Per Cent

Business during Quincy's fifth annual Sidewalk Bazaar generally was up an estimated 35 per cent over last year.

The estimate is from Mark Bertman, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and owner of Rogers Jewelry who noted:

"That's a safe figure. It was a super Thursday, a good Friday, and a good Saturday for some merchants. I did hear a few complaints about Saturday's business."

William Woskie, manager of Sears Roebuck, said his bazaar business increased 20 to 25 per cent over last year's sales.

"We did very well," he said. "I was most impressed every time I walked onto the street."

Woskie added, "The bazaar was more well-organized than last year's and there were more activities this year."

Mrs. Rose Salhaney, owner of Big J Lunch, described her business as "unbelievable...fabulous."

"The smartest thing they ever did was to close down Hancock St.," she commented. "My business was twice as good as last year's. People were able to walk around more freely. They took their time."

Ted Johnson of Granite City Hardware called his business "great."

"It was the best year so far," he said. "The crowds were bigger than previous years and there were more activities near the store. I'll be happy to have it again next year."

Burt Cook of Tag's Sleep and Lounge Shop called his sales "as good as last year, if not better." He praised the bazaar as "a very successful, well-run job."

Cook added that there were more people on the streets this year. "Saturday was the key," he noted. "We held people in the store until late in the afternoon. Usually things slow down around 3 o'clock."

Bertman said that business at Rogers Jewelry more than doubled over last year.

"The first two days were extremely strong with Saturday a little slower. But more people seemed to be interested in what was going on at the bazaar this year."

Bertman said that Thursday's sales at Rogers exceeded their total business during last year's three-day festival.

Remo DeNicola of South Shore Television and Appliance mused, "We're still trying to put the store back in order from the bazaar."

"It was the best one so far. Action usually slows down at 3 o'clock on Saturday, but it couldn't close until after 5:30."

There were customers still in the store."

Jerry Morreale of Child World also reported very good business even though his merchandise totaled only half the volume of last year's.

"My own figures weren't tremendous," he said, "but considering the amount of merchandise I had and considering what I sold, the crowds just had to be there."

Morreale also commented on crowd personality: "The enthusiasm was fantastic. More people were not only buying but enjoying the festivities as well. That's a good sign."

Both Donald Duck and Mickey Mouse tricycled up and down in front of Child World. Morreale said, "It worked out well and added a lot for the kids. People even came back with cameras the second and third days to take pictures of their kids with Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck. This was good because it brought a lot of people back to Quincy Sq."

Business was "not bad" at Donaher's Men Store. Hank Donaher said, "We did a little better than last year, moving a lot of shirts and small items."

Jack Kerrigan of Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream reported very good business. "With the luck of the weather and with good streaks of consistent business, we did very well," he said.

"There was community involvement this year - The Quincy High School Band, the Mothers Club of Houghs Neck, St. Boniface Church. People are sure there will be a crowd and they are willing to make a serious investment of time and money."

Jason Feldman of Jason's Luggage and Music Shop is already looking forward to next year's bazaar.

"Sales were up about 20 per cent from last year," he said. "And the crowds were larger and stayed longer in the streets because the road was blocked off. People could walk around leisurely. I'm looking forward to next year."

Booths and concession stands rented by various organizations and groups did a brisk business, too.

The Quincy Youth Association, for example, sold an estimated 4,000 hot dogs. And the Quincy Kiwanis Club sold over 150 pounds of peanuts, and ran out.

Abp. Williams Planning 25th Anniversary

Parents, faculty, alumni and students of Archbishop Williams High School are now beginning to plan activities to celebrate the 25th anniversary of the founding of the school.

Plans include activities throughout the entire school year, but the big celebration will take place during the Thanksgiving week-end. That weekend was selected because Alumni away at college would be at home during this holiday break, and others married and moved away would possibly be back in the area for family reunions at that time.

Beginning on Thanksgiving morning, a pancake breakfast will be served in the school cafeteria, sponsored by the Men's Association. Following the breakfast, the final football game of the season will be played at the Archbishop Williams Memorial Field. Opponents will be Xavierian of Westwood.

A parade from the school to the stadium will precede the game, and after the game is over everyone is free to go home for their turkey dinners and rest up for the dinner dance to be held the following evening, Friday, Nov. 29, tentatively scheduled at Lantana in Randolph.

Committee members are Nick Pepe, chairman of the Advisory Board; Robert Quinn of Holbrook; Frank Celino of Marshfield; Mrs. Edward Percy of Weymouth; Mrs. Joseph Garrity of Quincy; Mrs. Paul Kelly of Quincy and Mrs. Herbert Phillips of Braintree. Representing the students at a recent planning meeting were Joe Pemental and Kerri Phillips of Braintree. Sister Catherine Looby, principal, and Sister Maria Jude, director of public relations, represented the faculty.

Alumni and friends who are interested in joining to help make the anniversary observance a memorable one are urged to contact any of the above members.

5 Quincy Artists To Exhibit At Scituate Festival

Five Quincy residents will display their work at the 7th Annual Scituate Arts Festival sponsored by the Scituate Arts Association July 24-28.

Paul Fortin of 134 School St., Quincy, placed second in recent Juried Photography competition. The freelance photographer submitted a black and white untitled print of the dunes in Provincetown. His prize was $25.

Doris Ferrara of 9 Aberdeen Rd., Squantum received an honorable mention for a mixed medium painting.

Richard Seron of 15 Ferriter St., West Quincy will display a color photograph entitled "The Brink of Eternity". The print pictures tombstones on a hillside cemetery silhouetted against a pale green ocean.

Leslie E. Levine of 1374 Quincy Shore Drive will display two photographs: one black and white, the other color. "Daybreak", the color print, captures a winter sunrise over Jenne Farm in Vermont. The sun's first rays filter over the horizon, shedding a red glow over the land.

Her second photograph, "Starlings at Dusk", is a high contrast, black and white shot of a flock of starlings perched on a tree near Fore River Bridge.

Dennis M. Grant of 11 Glenview Rd., Quincy Point, will display a black and white print entitled "Woods No. 1". It pictures pine trees lining a forked dirt road and an eerie light filters down through the trees.

The Scituate Arts Festival is located at Central School, Branch St., Scituate and is open to the public from July 24-28. Browsing hours are from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. On July 28, the festival will end at 6 p.m.

The festival will also feature performing artists competition. Best dramatic performer, most entertaining performer and best non-adult performer will each receive $50.

The competition, open to performing arts organizations, individuals or groups, will take place on July 27 at 3 p.m. for those under 18. Adult auditions will be held at a time and place to be announced.

Poolside Party For St. John's Junior League

It will be "Everybody into the pool!" Saturday, July 27, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bersani, 35 O'Connell Ave., West Quincy, as St. John's Junior League opens its social season with a gala poolside party.

Cocktails will be served at 7:30 p.m. followed by a charcoal steak dinner prepared by Mr. Bersani, Fred Walsh and Joseph Abbott. Guests may then enjoy dancing under the stars on the flower bedecked patio, or a dip in the spacious, heated pool. Proceeds from the party will go to the League's scholarship fund.

In addition to the host and hostess, members of the committee include co-hostess Mrs. James Triglia, Mrs. Frederick Walsh, Mrs. John Morrison, Mrs. John Jolley, Mrs. Lawrence Forte, Mrs. Joseph Abbott, Mrs. Ferdinand DeNicola, Mrs. Frank Lomano, Mrs. Richard Storella, and Mrs. Anthony Aimola.

Mrs. Frederick Walsh, President, said the league is planning a busy and productive season, including a silver anniversary celebration, several candy sales, a progressive dinner, fashion show, "Girl's Night Out", and Communion breakfast.

Sons Of Italy To Host 250 CP

The Quincy Sons of Italy, Lodge 1295, Quincy, is sponsoring its second annual full course catered Italian dinner for 250 Cerebral Palsy adults and their companions Sunday, Aug. 25 at 1 p.m. at the lodge social hall, 120 Quarry St.

John A. Bersani, chairman of the dinner committee, said there will also be entertainment.

The Quincy Sons of Italy Lodge was established 50 years ago as a non-profit organization and has been sponsoring dinners and social events for the mentally retarded, the underprivileged and the cerebral palsied. The lodge also provides scholarships, camperships and other charitable endeavors as part of its community service.

Every C.P. adult in the South Shore Area is invited to attend and those who require assistance may bring one or two companions to help in feeding and transportation. Further information may be obtained by contacting CP Headquarters, 105 Adams St., Quincy [479-7443].

Should she wear bra?

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Dear Pat and Marilyn:
 My mother refuses to wear a bra. It wouldn't be so bad if Mom had a nice thin figure, but she is 5 feet 2 and weighs 150 pounds.
 I've talked with her and all she says is, "I'm comfortable and at my age that's what counts." What can I do?
 'Sue

Dear Sue:
 Not much. Maybe some of our readers will have a suggestion.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
 As for the letter about the boy who doesn't want to attend his father's alma mater — you said he should be allowed to choose the school he wishes to attend. You're a big help. Parents pay so why shouldn't they have the say about where? Remember it is the mothers and fathers who are filling your nose bag. Why don't you help us?
 Ashamed of You

Dear Ashamed:
 This boy wants to attend a local college because his father's choice is 3,000 miles from home. The boy felt that he is not able to cope with being so far away plus the competition of a large campus.
 In my answer, I said: Perhaps your father would be happier if he thought you would consider his school after two years at the junior college. At that time, many students are better prepared to attend a large university.

 It's better than a checking account because it pays interest from day of deposit to day of withdrawal—at 5% annually, compounded monthly.

You can pay your bills with a N.O.W. Account by writing negotiable orders of withdrawal, making them payable to anyone—just like checks.

Each draft you write costs only 15 cents, and when they're cashed at Colonial Federal, they're free.

I appreciate your opinion but still feel my answer is correct. If a student is homesick, fearful, or under too much stress, his academic progress will suffer accordingly.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
 I am 16 years old, a junior in high school, and doing well. My parents belong to several philanthropic organizations and devote 99 per cent of their free time to them. If I need to talk something over, I would have to make an appointment. They are never home. If they are, they are too busy creating some fund-raising affair to talk with me.

As an only child, I have always been close to them but lately we are drifting apart. How can I get through to them? I need them now.
 Orphan

Dear Orphan:
 Show them the above letter. You said it all.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
 Yesterday my dog was poisoned. How could any sane person do such a thing? The dog didn't bark or run free. She was always in the back yard. Now the kids are crying and so am I. We walked into the patio and found our dog dead. Our veterinarian confirmed what we feared. Someone had given her a piece of poisoned meat. If dropping meat into a back yard is the procedure this nut uses, some child could be poisoned.
 What can we do?

Sad Family
Dear Family:
 Contact your local SPCA and the police department in your city. I doubt that your dog is the only pet who has been poisoned in this cruel and inhumane manner. Keep an eye open for strangers strolling up and down the block. By all means, warn your children about picking up food—no matter what it is.
 I can't think of printable words to describe such a person.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Women confess their love — of eating

By ANN RUDY
 Copley News Service

The diet confession story is taking the place of the love confession story.

Pick up any women's magazine and you'll find a lengthy article about how Jane, just an ordinary woman, managed to overcome her magnificent obsession with chocolate cake or anything else she could lay her hands on.

"When my husband left for work in the morning," a typical passage will read, "I tried not to think about the bowl of left over spaghetti in the refrigerator, but it was no use. I waited until the kids were outside playing and then I ate the whole thing. No one knew, because I broke the bowl and carefully wiped my mouth. But that afternoon I went back to the refrigerator and killed a leg of lamb I'd been saving for company. That's when I knew I needed help. It was raw."

Then the reader goes with Jane through the agony and anguish of clandestine gluttony. Stolen pizzas, furtive fritos and tremendous lunches in small, out-of-the-way cafes.

In the end, of course, Jane realizes that her real happiness lies not in a bed of lettuce smothered in Roquefort dressing, but in the arms of Fred, her adoring husband. Fred forgives her for the two hundred pounds she put on, and she bravely shoves aside the extra eight meals a day she's been eating — a sadder but wiser girl.

Together, they resolve to live happily ever after and never mention the wooden spoon she bit in half during those mad and capricious two years of gourmet gallivanting.

That's what comes of giving up our Victorian mores. Sex has come out of the shadows and is now as wholesome as mom's apple pie. Mom's apple pie, however, has become a no-no. Which only goes to prove, I suppose, that guilt is here to stay — any way you slice it.

Happy Homemaking

By BARBARA BAKER

Washing or dry-cleaning will remove the lanolin from a Navajo rug and leave it lifeless. The best way to clean this type of rug is to lay it on a clean floor and vacuum thoroughly on both sides. Make a thick suds of warm water and mild soap and use a brush to take up the suds, brushing across the weave a narrow band at a time. Wipe off the suds and dirt with a clean rag wrung out in clear water. Do not soak the rug. When the rug is clean, let it dry — preferably spread out in the sun.

If you have a hard time removing old putty from around windows, soften the putty with a hot soldering iron. The putty should come off easily — a small strip at a time.

The best way to avoid wrinkling your nylon curtains is to add starch to their rinse water. When the curtains are left to dry on the line, they should be wrinkle free.

If your power coffee pot has corroded inside, fill it with warm water and add a tablespoon of baking soda. Let stand until the pot is clean.

Some things are cheaper nowadays

Not everything is more expensive than in the good old days.

The average price of a room air conditioner in 1960, for example, was $275, according to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers. In 1972 it was $219. — CNS

10 to Midnight	Ninth sign following
Midnight to 2 a.m.	Tenth sign following
2 to 4 a.m.	Eleventh sign following

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Energy is high and you shine in the role of a director of activities. Projects go well — things fall into place. Your judgment is good if you remain objective. An honor or award for past performance is possible.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Your intuition is heightened now. Improve your health by exercise and participation in sports. Be discreet in romantic matters. A secret, or behind-the-scenes attraction could become public and harm reputation.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Changes you considered some months ago could now happen. Make decisions and unify all your efforts. Be understanding and less critical about domestic conditions. Take precautions against accidents in the home.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Follow your hunches. Financial gain from offering a service or product that is accepted by one in authority.

Advertising is favored now, as are trips for business reasons. Use care while driving — concentrate.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Lots of excitement and action in entertainment areas this week. Seek cooperative effort on your projects instead of going it alone. Use diplomacy and a sense of humor to gain harmony with family members.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Situations in your life appear to be beyond your control. Accept others and their actions without emotionalism. Stick to routine and start nothing new. Finances may be a problem but don't borrow or lend now.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — A friend can inspire you to some important understandings about yourself. Search your inner self for intuitive answers. Your past performance on the job could bring favorable notice now. Opportunities abound.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Catch up on things you have let slide at work. Resist procrastination. Go over accounts and financial matters. Look for more efficient methods. Supervise personally all repair work on the home.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Activity in the art and cultural world is emphasized. Good time to learn an art form yourself — take classes. Changes in home — a new life style, or a residential move is a distinct possibility.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Problems with partner or mate may bring on depressive attitudes. Problems have been a way of life for you for a while, but it is all about to lift. Good time to take a vacation or second honeymoon.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Honors and recognition could come now. Don't neglect the needs of another. Analyze for their loyalty new people you meet just now. Opposition from an associate is best handled by ignoring the situation.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Concentrate your actions on long-range goals. Career may get a boost now. Use your artistic abilities and follow your hunches. An offer relating to your profession should be accepted. It appears lucky.

Your emotional, mental and physical cycles can be predicted so you know which are your opportunity days, and which are your critical days. Biorhythm cycles are figured on the basis of your birth date. For information, write: Your Horoscope Guide, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

CELEBRITY SCRIPTS

Frank Sinatra is hot or cold

By JOANNE B. ROMINE
Copley News Service

FRANK SINATRA ... the controversial man!

People love him or they hate him, but seldom are they indifferent. There are those who say he is abusive, and yet you will also hear reports from those who extol his kindness and generosity.

What is he really like?

Let's take a look at his writing and see what it reveals about this superstar.

He writes with heavy pressure and a rightward slant which reveals he is an intensely deep feeling man. He loves (or hates) with long-lasting emotion. He feels strongly about all things that touch his life or his areas of interest.

He knows no middle road when it comes to his feelings. He is "hot" or "cold," but never lukewarm.

Because of his intense emotional nature he was forced to learn early in life that people in general did not understand him, and that he was most vulnerable. His feelings are easily hurt, and when he has been hurt, he wants to strike back. His weapon will be sharp, cutting, caustic words. Time and maturity have helped him to develop control of his quick temper. He consciously works at it. As a result, he is learning to forgive those who have hurt or wronged him in the past, but he will never forget.

This deeply emotional, highly responsive man has the capacity to experience life fully — the heights and the depths, the joys and the sorrows, and with each experience he becomes totally involved.

He is loyal to friends and will fight for what he believes. He is sincerely interested in and concerned for others. However, he is also a very private person, one who will be very selective of those he allows to know him on a close intimate basis. This will, of course, narrow his area of concern. His writing also reveals courage and the ability to "hang in there" when the going gets rough.

Mentally he is sharp and analytical. He has a keen, inquiring mind and when something has aroused his interest it is difficult for him to set the matter aside. In his enthusiastic pursuit of a subject or project, he can lose all sense of time. It is his enthusiasm and determination that drive him to the point of exhaustion.

When his mood is light, he is a charming, diplomatic, interesting person to be with. Blessed with a quick, witty sense of humor, he can hold his own in most any conversation. When his mood is low, the whole world looks black to him. He will become restless, irritable and depressed.

In spite of his fame and public exposure, he is not a vain or pompous man. Rather, he tends to be a bit self-conscious and will experience mild feelings of insecurity when meeting new people or when in unfamiliar surroundings. He is warm, sincere, and impatient with delay.

In looking at the total man, you will find much to admire and respect. In short, when he is good, he is very, very good, and when he is bad, he is fierce.

*All the Best,
Frank Sinatra*

Americans use a lot of water

Each person in an American home uses from 20 to 80 gallons of water each day.

Much of this is used in taking baths (30 to 40 gallons) or showers (20 to 30 gallons), but four to six gallons is literally dumped down the drain every time a toilet is flushed. — CNS

MOTORCYCLE SYNDROME

During the past decade, motorcycle registration has zoomed from 500,000 to over two and a half million. Along with this increase has been a commensurate increase in highway fatalities involving motorcycles.

The death rate in automobile accidents is 5.5 per 100 million miles. For motorcycles it's a shocking 23 deaths per 100 million miles — about 4 times higher.

The major danger to cyclists lies in lack of protection. Eighty to 90 per cent of all motorcycle accidents result in death or injury for the cyclist. The most serious injury being that involving the head.

Protective apparel, especially headgear should be worn for safety. Studies have shown beyond any doubt that crash helmets greatly reduce motorcycle injuries and fatalities. Cyclists should cooperate in accepting the responsibility for their own safety.

Native Sweet Corn Season Arrives

The native sweet corn season has arrived, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA], and it is sweeter than ever before.

On farm stands and produce counters this week is the first of what is expected to be a heavy supply of a new bi-colored variety named "Sprite" that will delight corn-lovers as never before, says the MDA. The harvest will continue through September.

The yellow-and-white-kernel corn replaces the older and highly popular variety known as "butter-and-sugar", which established an almost insatiable demand.

The white kernels contain more sugar than the yellow, thus sweetening the entire corn. Although growers could produce an all-white corn, consumer preference is for yellow, but with the flavor of white. Under development for some time, the new hybrid has been adopted by growers almost to the exclusion of all other varieties.

Prices, according to the MDA, are not expected to drop much over the season. Average retail for Florida corn throughout the winter - several days old by the time the shopper picks it up - has been about 12 cents - five for 59 cents, as a rule. Native prices are expected to be about the same, though some higher allowance should be made for the earliest pick.

But it will still be a bargain and a joy to eat.

Leftover sweet corn can be used in many ways. Let it cool, and store in the refrigerator. Cut the kernels from the cob to make any number of delicious recipes,

CORN CREOLE

2 Tbsp. butter or margarine; 1 medium onion, chopped; 1 stalk celery or 1 pepper, chopped; 1 1/4 cups canned tomatoes; 3/4 tsp. salt; dash pepper; 2 cups fresh corn kernels. Melt the butter, add onions & celery or pepper, saute about 5 minutes until tender; add tomatoes, salt, pepper and corn. Cook about 10 minutes. Serves four.

BEST BUYS FROM MASS FARMS

In heavy supply this week, and reasonably priced, are native green beans, bunch beets, cabbage, chicory, escarole, Romaine and Boston lettuce, peas, yellow and zucchini squash.

Pick Your Own Blueberries

Do-it-yourself has come to the blueberry farms of the Bay State, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA], as the plump blue fruit reaches harvest time, to continue into early September.

Following the lead of the apple and strawberry growers, some of the blueberry farmers will sell you berries by the quart or pound, passing their labor savings on to you if you pick them yourself.

A list of some 14 such farms is available from MDA. You can get the entire list with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to MDA Division of Markets, 100 Cambridge St., Boston 02202. If you want only a couple of nearby locations, you may call [617] 727-3018 for the information.

The blueberry patch closest to Quincy is located on Green St. in Kingston and is operated by Angelo Ricci of Braintree.

The berries are cultivated, "high bush" ones, growing waist-high for easy picking. The cultivated kind is not quite as sweet as the wild, but they are juicier and bigger than the wild ones, ranging in size up to the diameter of a half-dollar.

Picking hours at the Kingston patch are flexible, but 7:30 p.m., when the mosquitoes start biting, is the usual stopping time.

The blueberries are sold by the quart and keep fresh for two or three days at room temperature, 10 to 12 days in the refrigerator and indefinitely in the freezer.

One should always check with the individual growers in advance for picking hours, crop availability, and possible restrictions. Some farms have a no-small-children policy.

Anyone wishing to donate items can call the Viking Club at 843-9813.

Film Festival, Costume Party To Aid Muscular Dystrophy

A film festival and costume party will be held Wednesday, Aug. 21, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club, 252 Washington St., Quincy.

All proceeds will go toward the purchase of wheel chairs, braces, and patient care services for children stricken by Muscular Dystrophy.

Films will be shown with games and refreshments following. Children are encouraged to come in costume. There will be a prize awarded to the child wearing the best original costume. The party will be supervised for children of all ages.

A donation of $1.50 plus 50 cents for lunch is requested. For tickets and more information contact Mrs. Leon Belanger, 73 Waterston Ave., Quincy.

20 Named To Youth Commission Advisory Council

A 20-member advisory council, including five high school students, has been appointed by Mayor Walter J. Hannon to advise the Quincy Youth Commission on matters concerning the city's young people.

The council was set up to include five members of high school age, five others under the age of 35 and 10 more to represent existing agencies and fields involved in the affairs of youth.

The five high school members are Deborah Zimmerman, William Driscoll, Sissie Boyd and Marianne DeGrecio, all of Quincy High; and Nancy Laing, of North Quincy High.

The under-35 members are Jeff Isaacson, advisor to the South West Teen Council; Frank Brillo of the Park and Recreation Department; Barbara DiNatale of the Police Department's Juvenile Division; John J. Kelly Jr. of the Neighborhood Youth Corps; and David Hamilton.

Other members are Charlie

Diamond of Survival, Inc.; Raymond Cattaneo of the Park and Recreation Department; Edward Hannon, director of continuing adult education for the School Department; Dr. Luleen Anderson of the South Shore Mental Health Association.

William Trifone, director of the Neighborhood Youth Corps; former Lt. Gov. Francis X. Bellotti; City Councillor Clifford H. Marshall; Sister Rita McCarthy, Robert Palmer and Donald Pound.

The Advisory Council is required to meet at least six times a year and get together with the Youth Commission at least twice a year to present its recommendations.

Will Mayor Hannon Seek A Third Term?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

It's generally assumed in political circles that Mayor Walter J. Hannon will automatically seek a third term next year.

But, apparently it's not that certain.

Insiders say that Hannon isn't deciding this far ahead and indicate he might possibly settle for two terms and return to his tire company.

There is also speculation that Hannon will get a high appointment in private business or industry or perhaps a political post.

City Hall sources say that the mayor's office gives the indication Hannon will go for No. 3, but that in reality they aren't that sure.

And that Hannon isn't either.

MEANWHILE, former Mayor James McIntyre reportedly is still considering a return to the political arena as a candidate. He is still a behind-the-scenes power in the city but friends think he really misses being "out front" as an active elective office holder.

It's doubtful he would run for mayor again but city council at-large or school committee may yet lure him back.

Anyway, he's been asking friends "What do you think?" about him returning to the wars. The reaction has been quite tremendous in favor.

They say he got quite a lot of encouragement and offers to work for his election following an item here some weeks ago that he might stage a "comeback".

AND, SPEAKING OF next year's city election, Sabina Stenberg, the Wollaston beauty salon owner, is telling everyone she's tossing her bonnet into the ring: for city council-at-large.

She's quite an active gal and if she puts as much work into campaigning as she does in the many civic-charitable projects she is involved in, she'd be a formidable candidate.

No woman has come close to being elected to the City Council since Edna Austin, the only female ever to serve there, voluntarily retired in 1959.

MORE TRIBUTE FOR former City Council President Laurence Curtin, who was recently honored by the Quincy Citizens Association who presented him with its first "Citizen of The Year Award."

A feature story on him by Paul Harold which appeared in the June 20 issue of The Quincy Sun has been placed in the Congressional Record by Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton].

Curtin, who has served Quincy as a public-spirited citizen for more than 50 years also got this personal tribute from Burke:

"I would like to congratulate Mr. Curtin in being the first recipient of this award and for setting such a high example for citizen participation in public affairs."

TO WHOM IT may concern: To the anonymous person who sent us the character assassinating poem about a city councillor and the cemetery probe and the note: "Would you dare to print this in your paper next week?" we'd like to say: Would you dare to print your name and address with it?

WELL, Rep. Joseph Breit will run another no-signs campaign for re-election. Says he will "again refrain this year from posting political signs on poles, lawns, fences, buildings and other locations where they would tend to detract from the appearance of the community."

And, like in other years, he says he hopes other candidates "will likewise refrain from littering the city with political posters in a joint effort to keep Quincy as an attractive and desirable city in which to live."

Of course a relatively unknown challenger might debate that.

A LONG-TIME City Hall favorite, Vi Pace, was honored by colleagues and friends Tuesday night at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. She recently retired after serving the city for 43 years.

During that time, she was Gal Friday to City Manager William Deegan, Mayor Thomas Burgin, Mayor David McIntosh and Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa. From 1961 to her retirement last month, she was secretary in the City Solicitor's office.

SAY, isn't that City Planning Director Geoffrey Davidson planning-a beard?

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "A good supervisor, someone once said, is a guy who can step on your toes without messing up your shine."

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist, jogger, author, etc., recalls when he was a kid, no one had to move to a better neighborhood. The landlord just raised the rent.

Summer Scene Open House July '30

The staff and children of Summer Scene '74 at Broad Meadows Junior High School are planning an open house from 9 a.m. to noon Tuesday, July 30.

The program will begin at 9 with the presentation of the musical "My Fair Lady". This will be followed by a gymnastics demonstration put on by the boys and girls of Summer Scene.

After the gymnastics demonstration, coffee and refreshments prepared by the children will be served.

Following the refreshments, the parents will have the opportunity to observe their children in the various areas and on-going activities they participate in during the week.

$363,135 In New Plumbing During June

Inspector of Plumbing and Gas Fitting James A. Erwin Jr., reports 71 plumbing applications for an estimated $363,135 in plumbing were filed during the month of June.

A total of $1,312 was received for permits. Ninety-nine plumbing inspections were made.

Major projects for the month were apartment complexes at 77 Adams St., Quincy - costing $300,000 - and at 80 Newbury Ave., Atlantic - costing $20,000.

Erwin also reported the filing of 45 gas applications, costing an estimated $14,055.

Sixty-one inspections were made and $89 was received for permits.

Rosemary Wahlberg Appointed

First Woman QHA Member Would Like Low Cost Housing For Young

Mrs. Rosemary Wahlberg of 264 Southern Artery, Quincy, is the first woman to be appointed to serve on the Quincy Housing Authority.

She described herself as "very excited and honored" to be named to the five-member board by Gov. Francis Sargent.

She succeeds Francis X. McCauley who had served five years.

McCauley was a candidate for re-appointment to the Housing Authority board and said he was "disappointed" that he did not receive the nomination. But he continued:

"I have enjoyed serving on the board for five years, one year as chairman. We made substantial increases in housing for the elderly and I enjoyed being part of it. I wish Mrs. Wahlberg every success during her term on the board."

A native of Boston, Mrs. Wahlberg moved to Quincy 16 years ago, becoming a tenant at Snug Harbor. There she raised her eight children. She moved to her present home last year.

A graduate of Dorchester School for Girls and a two-year student at Boston State College, Mrs. Wahlberg holds two jobs. She is the director of Germantown Multi Service Center and is a part-time nutrition assistant for Norfolk County, working on nutrition education programs in Southwest Quincy and in Germantown.

Although the 43-year-old Democrat said that she had "no miracle cures" for Quincy's housing problems, she did point to "an unmet need" to provide young families with low-cost housing. She said:

"The Quincy Housing Authority has done a fantastic job in the area of housing for the elderly. Now there must be a concern for young families who need low-cost housing."

Mrs. Wahlberg explained that she is the first nominee to be selected to the board through a process involving tenant participation. She said that all candidates for the board position spoke before the tenants who in turn submitted their nominee preferences to Louis Crampton, commissioner of the Community Department of Affairs.

She also praised Quincy tenants as sophisticated in their knowledge about public housing.

"Quincy should be proud of their tenants," she said. "Board meetings are well-attended and the tenants are interested in having an input into the decisions affecting their lives."

Sheets Asks Unauthorized Trucks Kept Off Parkway

MDC police have indicated they will increase surveillance to keep unauthorized trucks off Furnace Brook Parkway.

Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets said he received that indication after informing the MDC Blue Hills Division that there has been "a substantial increase" in the number of commercial vehicles using the parkway.

Sheets noted that the MDC had waived the commercial restriction on trucks carrying dredged materials from Black's Creek.

But, he said, drivers of other trucks have assumed the right to also use the parkway.

Sun Survey Shows

Shoppers Would Like Hancock St. A Permanent Mall

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

It's a shopper's dream - Hancock St. as a beautified, trafficless Mall.

The vote was unanimous in a random survey conducted by The Quincy Sun Friday afternoon during Quincy's Sidewalk Bazaar, when Hancock St. was blocked off from traffic. Twenty-one persons were asked:

"What do you think of turning Hancock St. into a permanent mall?"

Most people responded immediately, calling the idea "great", "good", and "terrific". Others hesitated pensively before replying, yet still gave their approval to the idea.

Ten out of 21 mentioned the longed-for, "dream-like" disappearance of traffic which would result from the construction of the fantasized mall.

The reactions:

Anne Clark of 202 Weir St. Extension, Hingham, who works at Bottoms Up on Hancock St.:

"It would be a good idea. The traffic is awful here during the day. You can't get across the street. The street would be better blocked off. People could walk back and forth easily."

Mrs. Adele Olsson of 30 Hunter Terrace, South Weymouth and a former 12-year resident of Quincy agreed:

"It's a great idea," she said. "There'd be a more shopping-center atmosphere. And there'd be no worry about the traffic."

Six people cited the aggravation of parking meters as happily vanishing with the building of a mall.

Mrs. Lewis Rossignol of 22 Audrey St., South Quincy, commented:

"I think it would stimulate people to shop. There'd be no parking problems. And it would be better if there were free parking, especially for mothers with small children. Now mothers have to keep running back and forth to feed the meters."

Mrs. Doris O'Brien of 15 Debra Lane also expressed aggravation over the parking situation on Hancock St.

"I'm not apt to shop here," she said, "because of the parking situation. And it's unfair to charge a parking fee. Our taxes pay for that. A person could be downtown for five minutes or five hours. If he's over, he's fined. But if he's under, there's no refund. It irritates me."

Many people agree. One young woman, Mary Anne Chambers of 45 Adams St., Holbrook described parking conditions as "brutal" in downtown Quincy. She said that she would come to the area more often if there were more convenient parking facilities.

One woman, Mrs. Wayne Clark of 80 Sea Ave., Houghs Neck, expressed a unique opinion. She said:

"You know, a few years ago, when all the malls started to pop up, people said Quincy would fold. But it's not so. Quincy has thrived beautifully."

"It's my feeling," she continued, "to give our city our business and it will stay alive. That's why I don't go into Boston."

Mrs. Joseph Dooner of 42 Lintric Drive, South Weymouth, and a 30-year resident of Quincy, said:

"A mall with free parking would be a boon to Quincy's business."

Ruth Brown of Chard St., East Weymouth agreed. "Something has to be done," she said. "We don't come in that often."

"It would be great for business," said Robert Babalos of 21 Botolph St., North Quincy. "Quincy is a little barren of trees. A mall would add to the pleasure of the whole community."

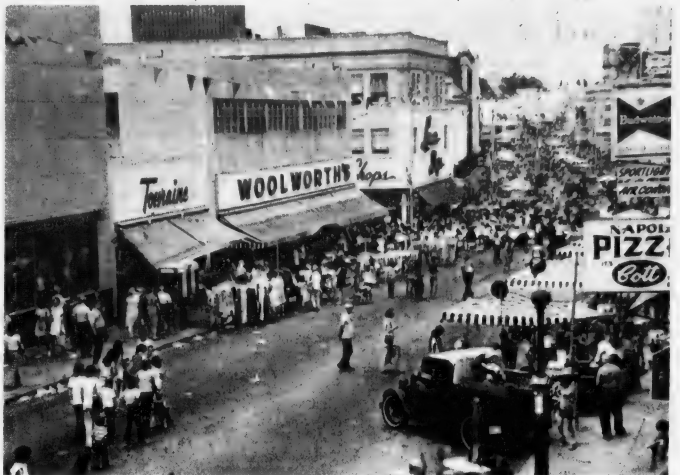

Mrs. Dorothy Guarniere of 119 Darrow St., Houghs Neck, also said that Quincy would be prettier, more attractive, with the addition of a mall. She said, too, that the free parking at shopping plazas has "hurt business" in Quincy.

Mrs. Walter Adams of Hawthorne Ave., Braintree remarked, "It's a good idea. It would get shoppers back downtown... People really don't like to travel to shop."

Five of the 21 mentioned convenience as a plus of a mall. "It would be more enjoyable to shop," said Wayne Harrington of Weymouth, a sales clerk in Milton's. "And you wouldn't get wet in the rain."

And if Steven Sacchetti of 19 Carruth St., Wollaston is representative of the 10-year-olds in Quincy, they, too, would favor the building of a mall. Steven said:

"It would be pretty nice. It's fun to watch the people and to buy things. You can walk in the street and not worry about the cars. And I could bring my little brothers with me. We could look at the toys."

SHOPPERS jam Hancock St. for bargain buys during fifth annual Sidewalk Bazaar sponsored by Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. Thousands turned out for the three days and nights of activities.

John Calarese Wins Navy Superior Civilian Award

John B. Calarese of 115 Hollis Ave., North Quincy was recently presented the Navy Superior Civilian Award for outstanding contributions and service to the Navy Department as Director of Management Engineering at Boston Naval Shipyard, during the period of its closure from April 17, 1973 to July 1, 1974.

Rear Admiral R. G. Gooding, Commander, Naval Ship Systems, in presenting the award noted Calarese's exceptional dedication and professional expertise which reflected in his performance during the period of the Shipyard's dis-establishment.

"He directed the closure plan in a smooth, orderly and economical way. His devotion to his task were far above the level normally expected and were of great value to the Navy," said Admiral Gooding.

Captain R. L. Arthur, the Shipyard Commander, also presented him a Quality Step Increase in recognition for sustained high quality job performance which benefited the Shipyard and the Navy.

Ena Fredette Retiring From Snug Harbor School

Miss M. Ena Fredette of 20 Windsor Rd., North Quincy is retiring from Snug Harbor School after a 37-year career in teaching and guidance.

Miss Fredette has been a full-time guidance counselor at Snug Harbor for the past eight years. In 1950 she was named head counselor at Central Junior High. Two years later she became a member of the Adjustment Service, the initial guidance program covering all elementary schools in the city.

A product of Quincy Public Schools, Miss Fredette graduated from Bridgewater State College in 1932. For two years she taught at Walter Fernald School for the mentally retarded.

In 1934, Miss Fredette joined John Hancock School as a fourth and fifth grade teacher where she taught for nine years.

Then, in 1943, she entered Midshipman School at Smith College, earning her commission as ensign. Miss Fredette next traveled to Hollywood Beach, Calif., where she received her navigation wings. Then she worked for two years as a naval instructor at the ground school at Cabaniss Field, Corpus Christi, Texas, where she earned the rank of lieutenant. During the last six months of 1945, she served as station navigator at Squantum Naval Air Station.

Miss Fredette resumed her teaching career in 1948 at Central Junior High School. There, she not only taught classes in seventh grade English and History but also acted as a guidance counselor.

At the same time, Miss Fredette resumed her formal education. In 1948 she received an A.B. in Geography from Boston University Graduate School of Liberal Arts. Four years later she earned her master's degree from the same university.

Miss Fredette was a member of Quincy Education Association, Massachusetts Teachers Association, Massachusetts School Counsellors Association and Quincy American Field Service Committee. She serves on the Finance Committee of Atlantic Memorial Church and is a member of Delta Cappa Gamma, NU.

Nearly 500 Take Part In Project LINC

Nearly 500 students from the junior and senior high schools of Quincy took part in the activities of Quincy's Title III project LINC, Learning in Community, this past school year.

After special study, and under the direction of 23 teachers trained by the project, small groups of from 5 to 10 students visited such community sites as the Quincy and Dorchester District Courts, Pneumatic Scale, and the Consumer Safety Division of the Attorney Generals Office. A total of 21 community sites were visited several times during the year, with individual visits lasting from one day to three weeks, depending on what could be learned on the site.

Longest of the trips, North Quincy High seniors to Ft. Independence on Castle Island, in conjunction with the MDC's effort to restore the Fort for the Bicentennial. Students under the supervision of Bernard LaCouture of North, unearthed the remains of several buildings and artifacts within the walls of the Fort.

Next year the program will continue with nearly double the number of students and trained teachers. The project will include a pilot program with sixth graders. New sites developed for next year will include several of Quincy's historical places, these visits being made in preparation for the city's 350th anniversary.

Radar, Too

MDC Beefs Up Police Beach Patrol

MDC Police Supt. Edward F. Fahey has announced a step-up in patrol along the area of Quincy Shore Drive and Wollaston Beach.

The announcement came in response to a request by Rep. Joseph E. Brett, asking for increased surveillance in that area, especially during the summer months.

Fahey reported that as of July 1, the entire Detective Bureau and five recruits from the Academy were assigned to Old Colony Station to patrol the Wollaston Beach area.

"We are aware of the large crowds that populate this excellent beach during the bathing season and have 'beefed up' our patrols accordingly," he said.

Fahey also noted that radar equipment is being used on Quincy Shore Drive.

Savits Receives National Engineers Merit Award

Jacob [Jack] Savits, engineering consultant for the Quincy Public Schools and the City of Quincy, has received a National Award of Merit from the Society of Manufacturing Engineers.

Presentation of a plaque was made at the Hillcrest Function Room in Waltham by the Society's Boston Chapter, of which Savits is co-founder.

A worldwide organization with 39,000 members in 40 countries and headquarters in Dearborn, Mich., the SME is devoted to the advancement and publication of scientific knowledge in the field of manufacturing engineering. Every year the Society confers awards in recognition of outstanding contributions to the organization's professional activities and to its prestige in the world of industry. This year citations went to 13 SME members from localities as far-flung as Japan and New Jersey, Canada and Arizona.

Savits has won international acknowledgement for his pioneer work in metallurgy: nitriding 4140 steels, the development of ductile irons, the passivation of stainless steels as well as for work with neoprenes and plastics. The American Society for Metals granted him a Gold Medal in association with Nuclear Metals for processes in the development of double-inserted stainless steel tubing. Much of this recognition came while Mr. Savits was employed at the Pneumatic Scale Corporation of North Quincy, where he served in various capacities for nearly fifty years and for which company he now functions on a consultative basis.

Currently Savits is an engineering trouble-shooter for the Superintendent and Mayor. Routinely checking construction costs, material quality, and building specifications, he is responsible for saving the School and City many thousands of dollars each year.

Ellis Swartz Retires After 28 Years School Service

Ellis J. Swartz, coordinator of Foreign Languages in the Quincy Public Schools, retired last week after 28 years service to the school system.

Swartz, since September 1946, has served as a German and Social Studies teacher, chairman of the Foreign Language Department at Quincy High School and for the past four years as coordinator of Foreign Languages for the entire school system. He has also served as director of English As A Second Language program in Grades K through 12.

In April 1963 Swartz organized a special course in the study of World Leaders for 20 Advanced Problems of Democracy students at Quincy High and culminated the course with a special trip for the students to Italy, Yugoslavia, England, Germany and France where the students conferred with the educational, political, economic leaders of these countries. The trip was aided by President Kennedy and Senator Edward Kennedy.

Swartz introduced the Amity Aide program to Quincy and has directed the program for the past four years with young university graduates from Europe and Latin America helping Quincy's students learn and understand the languages and cultures of their countries and peoples.

Swartz introduced the annual April International Festival to the Quincy Schools and has directed this for the past three years.

In 1972 Swartz was selected by the Leaders of American Secondary Education as Leader of American Secondary Education for 1972. His biography and record of accomplishments appeared in the 1972 edition of Leaders of American Secondary Education and "his contributions to the advancement of secondary education and service to the community" were recognized. Swartz has had many articles on education published and is the author of the novel "All Her Paths Are Peace" published in 1969.

Swartz holds an A.B. from Williams College, an A.M. in Modern Languages from Harvard University and has done graduate work at Boston College, Boston University, University of Texas.

4 From Quincy Complete Alcohol Studies

Four Quincy professionals recently completed a course of study at the fifth annual New England School of Alcohol Studies held at Assumption College in Worcester.

Paula Flaherty, secretary-counselor at South Shore Council on Alcoholism, Kathryn Hogan, counselor at Alcohol Clinic Without Walls, c/o South Shore Mental Health Center, Eleanor Tormey, R.N., staff nurse at Quincy Detoxification Center, and Charles McCourt, Counselor at Quincy Detoxification Center numbered among 69 Bay Staters to participate in the five-day alcohol studies program.

Leading authorities in the field of alcohol problems presented a series of short, intensive courses relating to the issues of alcohol and alcoholism.

Participants in the program represented governmental agencies and businesses from the six New England states and from North Carolina, Iowa and New Jersey.

Next year's school will be held at the University of Vermont in Burlington.

Spahn Studio Of Music Opens In Wollaston Monday

Daniel M. Spahn of Wollaston, announces the opening of the Spahn Studio of Music at 658 Hancock St., Wollaston.

The studio offers music instruction in all styles and levels of piano, organ, guitar, and electric bass. Small classes will also be offered in contemporary music theory, arranging, and composition.

Spahn, a 1971 graduate of Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, received his Bachelor of Music Education degree and came to Boston to study arranging and composition at the Berklee College of Music. Spahn also studied with George Shearing and worked with Dave Brubeck in the recording of "A Light in the Wilderness".

Named assistant to the Director of Music Education for the Wurlitzer Co., Spahn left Berklee to begin his teaching career.

Shipbuilders Shareholders Vote New Name Presidential Cooperative

The shareholders at Shipbuilders Co-operative Bank have unanimously voted to change the bank's name to Presidential Co-operative Bank. Frank McCauley, president of the bank, said, "The name 'Presidential' is in character with the city of Quincy: the birthplace of presidents."

He explained that the name "Shipbuilders Co-operative" had been a restrictive one for the bank.

"We are not affiliated with the shipyard. People used to think they had to be a shipyard worker to do business here. And with new people coming into the city, we felt that the name would be keeping away potential customers."

The official effective date of the name-change is Monday, Sept. 16. Prior to that date, McCauley said that a notice will be sent to the Commissioner of Banks and to the Secretary of State to attain routine confirmation of the change.

Hancock Bank Reports Net Income Up

Hancock Bank reports net income for the second quarter up 32 percent over that realized for the first quarter of this year.

Second quarter net income was $256,923 compared to $193,949 earned for the first quarter of 1974, up $62,974, according to William E. Kelley, president.

Kelley said also that Hancock Bank assets on June 30 reached $84,818,000 up nearly $2.5 million over June 30, 1973 when they stood at $82,443,000.

Cash dividends paid so far the first six months this year totalled 80 cents per share compared to 70 cents per share for the same period last year, Kelley said.

Hancock Bank, based in Quincy, has 14 offices throughout Norfolk County.

'Odyssey Of Jeremy Jack' At Lincoln-Hancock School Aug. 21

A meeting was held at the home of state representative candidate, Joyce Baker of 162 Warren Ave., Wollaston, to formulate plans for an Aug. 21, 10:30 a.m. presentation of "The Odyssey of Jeremy Jack" by the South Shore Music Circus Players at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

The play, about a turtle who does not like his shell, is suitable for children from three to nine years of age.

Admission is free for West Quincy and Wollaston children and a tour of the school for mothers is included. Balloons and lollipops will be distributed. Complimentary tickets are available by calling any of the following: Anne Greene

Janice Lamparelli Miss Quincy Bay Race Week

Pageant Winner Advises Youth To Do What Is Right

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

She could easily be the girl from Ipanema. She's tall, she's tan, she's young, and she's lovely.

She's Janice Lamparelli, the brown-eyed brunette who was crowned Miss Quincy Bay Race Week of 1974 before a crowd estimated at more than 4,000 at a pageant in downtown Quincy.

"It was like being in a dream," said the willowy, eighteen-year-old winner. "The response of the crowd made me so excited. Inside I was saying, 'Thank-you, people.'"

Janice who was selected from a field of 28 contestants is the second oldest in a family of five children. She says that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lamparelli of 20 Robertson St., West Quincy, and her three brothers and one sister, are "a very close family."

Yet Janice is still eager to enter Gordon College this fall where she will study to be an elementary school teacher.

Janice vied for the title of Miss Quincy Bay Race Week dressed in a scooped-necked, lace-collared gown of purple, pink, and white flowers. During the bathing suit competition, she wore a one-piece white suit.

All ten finalists were asked different questions which played an important part in the final judging. Janice was asked, "What advice do you have for today's youth?" She answered:

"They should be happy and do what they want as long as it's right and as long as their morals are right."

The 5-5 winner entered the pageant just for fun. She said:

"I thought it would be a lot of fun and excitement...And it was."

Now that she has been crowned queen Janice said, "I am really looking forward to representing Quincy during Bay Race Week."

During the summer, Janice is working part-time at Angelo's Super Market as a cashier.

The pageant held Friday night in front of the Hancock Bank highlighted the three-day Sidewalk Bazaar sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

For winning the pageant, Janice received approximately $1,000 of the more than $3,000 in prizes awarded to the winner and four runners-up.

Runnersup were [1] Janet McConarty, 16, of 28 Barbour Terrace, Merrymount; [2] Rossana DiCenso, 18, of 29 Viden Rd, South Quincy; [3] Pamela Mills, 17, of 29 Shaw Ave., Braintree and [4] Judith Owens, 21, of 409 Auburn St., Whitman.

Five other finalists were Kim Affsa, 18, of 75 Lisle St., Braintree; Joanne Cirino, 16, of 95 Assabet Rd, Merrymount; Barbara Ann Holder, 19, of 19 Utica St., Adams Shore; Debbi King, 19, of 100 Geraldine Lane, Braintree and Laura Sorgi, 17, of 18 Waldron Rd, Braintree.

The field of contestants was narrowed from 29 to 28 when Lauri Meyers, 20, of C St., Hull dropped out.

Judges for the pageant were: Judy Jacksina, public relations director of the South Shore Music Circus, Cohasset; Arthur Keough, professor of English and head of the Drama Department at Quincy Junior

Emcee Ken Fallon Gets Not-In-Script Surprise

Emcee Kenneth P. Fallon, Jr. of WJDA got a not-in-the-script surprise during the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant.

Fallon had the program going along according to the planned schedule when Pageant Chairman Henry Bosworth of The Quincy Sun walked on stage and took the microphone from him.

Fallon, somewhat surprised, surrendered the mike and soon heard a special tribute.

"I would like to single Ken out for a lion's share of the credit for the success of the pageant the past three years,"

Bosworth said. "He has added a big touch of class."

Bosworth then disclosed that it was Fallon's birthday and on behalf of the pageant committee presented him a gift.

"This is really for your lovely and understanding wife, Dorothy," Bosworth said. "We know she is lovely and she must be understanding for letting you be up here the past three years surrounded by pretty girls."

Then, through a pre-arranged signal, Baron Hugo's orchestra broke into "Happy Birthday To You" and the crowd joined in.

How To Prolong That Summer Vacation

For graduating high school seniors who would like to prolong their summer vacations, the Army has some good news.

The Army has extended its Delayed Entry Program [DEP] from 180 days to 270 days.

Local Army representative Sgt. Robert Nyland said in order to qualify for the program an applicant must be a high school graduate or a senior scheduled to graduate who is enlisting for a specialty which requires a formal course of instruction.

"DEP is a pretty good deal," he added. "It allows an applicant to sign up today and take up to nine months before reporting for duty."

QCA Board Election Set For July 30-31

Elections will be held at the South West Community Center, 372 Granite St., for representatives to the Quincy Community Action Board of Directors.

Both voters and elected representatives must reside within the boundary lines of South West Quincy. This area is bounded on the north by Quarry St., continuing on Granite St. to the railroad line; on the east, by the railroad line and south to the Braintree line; from the railroad line west to the northbound lane of the Southeast Expressway, to Cross St. and north to Quarry St.

Elections will be held on Tuesday, July 30 from 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. and on Wednesday, July 31 from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Fire Dept. Receives $500 Check, Commendation From Grossman's

The Quincy Fire Dept. has received a commendation and $500 check from Grossman's for its quick action in quelling the April fire at the Braintree warehouse.

Everett Grossman said the check was donated to the fire department's relief fund "to contribute to the well-being of firefighters and their families."

He said that through the efforts of the firefighters, only minimal damage was sustained to other buildings. Calling the firefighters men of "high calibre", Grossman said, "We are protected by the finest fire department to be found anywhere."

Confirmation was made at a meeting of the Executive Council following submission of the nomination by Governor Sargent. The term will expire in seven years.

SUMMER WORKSHOP - Approximately 130 Quincy school teachers, program co-ordinators and administrators are participating in a three-week voluntary workshop to develop the curriculum of Student Centered Learning System [SCLS]. Here, teachers listen to the opening address, kicking off a work-filled three weeks at the Quincy High School Method Center.

120 Teachers In Summer Workshop To Refine Curriculum

It's school in summer for three weeks this month for a volunteer corps of Quincy educators meeting in QHS's Quincy Method Center to develop and refine a system-wide curriculum.

The taskforce is composed of 120 teachers from kindergarten through 12th grade, 10 discipline co-ordinators and several administrators, including School Supt. Lawrence P. Creedon, and his three assistant superintendents Maurice J. Daly, John A. Osterman, and William L. Phinney.

Co-ordinating the whole three-week workshop are Phinney, who is in charge of instruction in the school system, and Miss Patricia L. Gorman, a math teacher working as a research assistant specializing in the Student-Centered Learning System [the SCLS] for the past year.

Object of the workshop is to hammer out a detailed program of learning that is accurate, scholarly, and forward-looking.

The groundwork for this year's efforts at curriculum development was laid last summer, when a group of 50 teachers elaborated tentative statements of rationale for the various branches of learning, such as language arts, social studies, foreign language, and mathematics, as well as spelled out hundreds of specific performance objectives [SPO's].

Their productions were circulated and discussed among the other 800 educators throughout the system during the school year.

A month before the 1974 Workshop was convened, eight nationally recognized scholars visited the Quincy Public Schools to share their evaluations of the literature produced by the first Workshop and to give a closer look at the entire SCLS, the overall design for education in the System.

Each of these experts, who came from campuses as distant as Berkeley in California [Dr. James Moffet, language arts specialist] and as near as MIT in Cambridge [Charles P. Friedman, professor of physics] spent one or two days with the co-ordinators and faculty of their respective disciplines. Their criticisms, by and large constructive, according to Phinney, will spur and guide the efforts of the current Workshop.

On the first two days of the session, all the Workshop participants, veteran and new, engaged in an in-service course, conducted by Richard K. Chrystal, Director of Staff Development, to review the principles of the SCLS and to practice composing SPO's, the smallest building blocks of a curriculum program.

The remainder of the week was devoted to articulating the rationale, the comprehensive concepts, and the general objectives of each particular discipline.

The math teachers, for example, had as their task the job of justifying mathematics, identifying measurement as a comprehensive concept, and pinpointing the ability to measure and compare in standard units, as a general objective of their discipline.

The next two weeks of the Workshop are set aside for establishing, composing, and coding thousands of specific performance objectives. According to the instruction manuals circulated at the start of the Workshop, these objectives must be simultaneously observable, clearly qualified, and measurable, if they are to facilitate individualized learning and foolproof pedagogy.

Every morning at 8 a.m. sharp, the large task-force arrives at the re-modeled auditorium at Quincy High School—a carpeted and air-conditioned learning space that lends itself to a variety of group arrangements. After drawing their cups of coffee, they settle in to their respective clusters—Early Childhood in the pit area, Phys-Ed along the right balcony—where they spend most of the workday, which ends promptly at 1 p.m., reading, discussing, writing, or just ruminating.

There may be occasional excursions called for to attend a clinic [for clarification and debate] in the right rear of the hall, or the whole group might reassemble to hearken to general communications from Mr. Phinney or Dr. Creedon as well as to view a slide presentation on the Goals of the Quincy Public Schools.

The following is a breakdown of the several disciplines and specializations represented at the Workshop together with the name of the co-ordinator of that respective group, which may number as few as three or as many as 50.

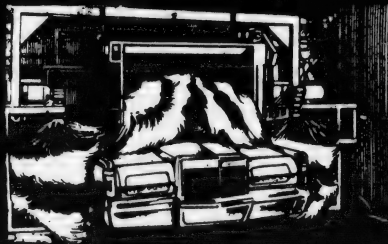

Language Arts and Social Studies, headed by Carl Deyoso; Early Childhood, headed by Wilfred Nolan; Arts and Humanities, headed by Walter Lunsman; Career Education, headed by Maurice Daly; Special Education, headed by Freida Dirks; Mathematics, headed by Thomas White; Science, headed by James Bready; Music, headed by Anthony Ferrante; Physical Education, headed by Kenneth Rickson, and Library Services, headed by Arthur Gillis and to whom belongs the job of codifying the SPO's.

During the Workshop several secretaries, working in the enclosed cubicles along the left balcony of the Quincy Method Center, type out tidy copy of the day's proceedings, and manifold stencils of the newly coined specific performance objectives.

The final record of the 1974 Summer Workshop on Curriculum Development will eventually be bound in booklets and distributed throughout the School System in the fall. Next summer will see further revision, refinement, and enrichment of the monumental work now in progress.

Biggest Project Of Its Kind

$1 Million In Traffic Improvements In Spring

Traffic improvements for Quincy under the TOPICS Program are expected to begin early next spring according to Geoffrey A. Davidson, Director of the Department of Planning and Community Development.

The traffic safety program, which will result in approximately $1 million in improvements in Quincy, is probably the largest project of this nature ever for Quincy, he said.

The scope of the project includes Sea St., from Quincy Shore Drive to Southern Artery, Southern Artery from Sea St. to Washington St., and Washington St. from Southern Artery to the Fore River Circle.

Now that conflicts regarding Southern Artery have been resolved, state officials and consultants are preparing construction documents for the full project.

"Both Mayor Walter Hannon and the City Council, especially the Public Works Committee and its Chairman, Councillor Leo J. Kelly, are to be commended for guiding the resolution of this program which will be the largest single traffic safety project in Quincy's history," Davidson said.

New traffic signals, fully funded with federal assistance, will be constructed at Sea St. and the Department of Public Works exit, Southern Artery at Field St. and Brackett St., Southern Artery and Pond St., Southern Artery and Edison Park, Southern Artery and River St., Washington St. at St. Joseph's Church and Washington St. and South St.

Both the corner at Washington St. and Baxter St. and Southern Artery and Sea St. at the Quincy Police Station will be widened to permit smoother traffic movement.

In addition, signals at Sea St. and Quincy Shore Drive, Sea St. and Coddington St., Southern Artery and McGrath Highway, Southern Artery and Washington St., and Washington St. and Chubbuck St. will be completely reconstructed.

This work alone, costing close to $500,000, will result in safer, smoother and better controlled traffic flow, especially through those sections of Ward 1 and Ward 2, Davidson said.

In addition, because of restrictions placed on traffic flow by the City Council, maximum speeds attained would be 30-35 miles per hour all along the travel corridor. Also, major road work would be accomplished with federal funds. Sea St. from Quincy Shore Drive to Southern Artery will be completely resurfaced and Southern Artery from Sea St. to Washington St. will be completely resurfaced.

Also, the intersection of Quincy Shore Drive and Sea St. will be reconstructed to improve pedestrian and traffic safety as will Sea St. at Coddington St., and Southern Artery at Coddington St.

"In all, the go-ahead given to this program by the Mayor and City Council represents a significant attempt to improve traffic-pedestrian safety in Quincy," Davidson said. "We are hopeful that the project will be under construction as early as next spring."

THE RENEGADES, Quincy's crack drum and bugle corps, perform off Granite St. during fifth annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

No Pollution In Water Samples At Houghs Neck

Dr. Alfred Mahoney, Quincy's health commissioner, reports that alleged contaminated water in Houghs Neck "does not show pollution."

The water borders Edgewater Drive and Rock Island Road.

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell received several complaints from residents, that young children in this area had become sick. He wrote a letter July 19 to George J. Coogan, director of the Bureau of Water Supply and Water Safety, requesting "an immediate evaluation of the area."

Gerald McCall, assistant to Coogan, said that the water "meets minimum standards for safe bathing." He also said that a study has never been made to coordinate water quality and the incidence of disease.

Dr. Mahoney twice sampled the water in the culvert near Edgewater Drive and Rock Island Rd. According to Dr. Mahoney, both coliform counts - tests to determine the amount of pollution, if any, in the water - were below the 1000-mark considered safe: one count was 420, the other 250.

Dr. Mahoney noted that the water was stagnant in the culvert area. He said, however, that the problem could be remedied by opening the channel into Edgewater Drive.

Brownell had not received a reply to his letter on Tuesday. He said, "I want quick action on this matter because kids are using that area every day. The problem is to locate the source of the pollution."

McCall added that the shellfish section in the area was closed last year. "During heavy rainfalls there was a high total of coliform in combined sewerage overflows," he said.

He noted, however, that there was "no direct discharge of sewage" in the bathing area.

Railroad Bridge Removed

Sheets Asks Floatable Debris To Stop Quarry Swimming

In a letter to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets has asked that the city-owned Granite Railway and the Swingles Quarries in the West Quincy area be filled with floatable demolition material as soon as possible to reduce the number of accidents.

In his letter to Mayor Hannon Councillor Sheets points out that as long as the abandoned quarry holes remain a swimming attraction for young people there will be accidents with Quincy firefighters and rescue workers sharing the dangers while responding to rescue calls.

Sheets said: "Fencing would not accomplish our purpose and there is already a substantial amount of floating demolition material in the Granite Railway Quarry which limits swimming to one area."

A teen-aged Dorchester girl rescued from atop a ledge of Swingle's Quarry, West Quincy, was reported to be in good condition at the Quincy City Hospital from which she is to be released shortly. Miss Lena E. Syliboy, 15, of 34 High St., Dorchester, was rescued from the ledge by the Quincy Fire Department rescue team Saturday. Being treated for head injuries she is listed in satisfactory condition.

At Sheets' request the old railroad bridge between the Granite Railway Quarry and Swingles Quarry has been removed to protect the public.

However he cited the fact that the old railroad bridge and the grout pile which still remains at the Granite Railway Quarry are two of the most hazardous perils for the young people in the quarry area.

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti has been negotiating with the J. F. White Contracting Company of Newton with the hope that they might be able to use the Quarry tailings [grout] in return for removing them at no cost to the city.

However company officials pointed out that it would be a difficult and dangerous job if the city were to contract the job. A projected cost of between $50,000 and $75,000 was estimated. Plans are underway to work with the Appalachian Mountain Club to erect vandal proof signs of the danger of rock slides citing the fact that five lives have been lost in this area.

Rosie The Whiz Here Friday

The fabulous Eddie Feigner and his four-man softball team, The King and his Court, have appeared in Quincy several times in the past, but Friday night at 8 p.m. at the Quincy YMCA's Rotary Field, Quincy and South Shore fans will get a look at the female counterpart of this spectacular attraction.

The unbelievable Rosie Black and her California-based Queen and her Maids, will pit their four-girl softball team against the WBZ Bombers in a benefit game sponsored by Quincy Y.

Rosie, a 22-year-old blonde, in the last nine years has won 1,011 games while losing only 44, pitching 10 games a week, struck out 18,462 batters, 2,494 while pitching from second base, 3,165 while donning a blindfold, and 1,244 while pitching from a kneeling position. She has pitched 182 no-hitters, recorded 71 perfect games, and has 234 shutouts.

All this was accomplished with only a catcher, first baseman and shortstop.

Rosie's 19-year-old sister, Eileen Beaird, catches, Debbie Bevers, a statuesque 22-year older, plays first base and Lotta Chatter, the comic of the troupe, plays shortstop with the best while keeping the audience laughing and at the same time astounds them with unusual ball handling feats of skill.

The squad has traveled all over the world and appeared in the syndicated "Believe it or Not" column. It has just returned from an extensive tour of Venezuela and other South and Central American countries. Many of the victories have been over outstanding men's teams and Rosie has struck out such major league notables as three of four Amazing Mets the year they won the World Series. She once faced Willie Mays and retired him on a pop fly. He later said she was one of the best pitchers he had faced.

Her fast ball has been clocked at a speed of more than 90 miles per hour.

2 Quincy Babe Ruth All Star Teams To Play In Canada

Two teams of Quincy Babe Ruth League all-stars will play games in Canada on Aug. 3, 4 and 5.

The American League will play Peabody, Ontario, and the National League will meet a team from Toronto in their first games. Games will be in Kingston, Ontario.

The two teams leave Quincy Friday midnight, Aug. 2 by bus from Morrisette Post parking lot.

The American League all-stars will comprise Ed Daley, Bob Pettinelli, Jim Maze, Mike Kennedy, Mark Buchanan, Gary Oriola, John Wilkinson, Mike Boyle, Sal Coscia, Ray Coscia, Len Picot, Peter Nioso, Kurt O'Sullivan, John Govoni and Dan Sandomato.

On the National League stars will be Bobby Glavin, Dave McLaughlin, Brian Kelly, Bob Stack, Brian Djerf, Paul Barry, John Fitzgerald, Brian Ready, Steve Cook, John Sylvia, Bob Ceruvels, John Ferris, Don Perdios, Mike Murphy and Rick Boyle.

Quincy will have the only American teams in the tourney which will include four entries from Quebec and eight from Ontario.

Sal Salvatore, who is paying the entry fee for both teams, will manage the National League stars, while Joe Wilkinson will manage the American League. A party of 70 will make the trip to Canada by car and bus.

S.S. Babe Ruth Seniors In State Tournament

The South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League All-Stars, with four Quincy players in the lineup, will play in the double elimination state championships Saturday and Sunday in Dennis Port after breezing to the regional title last weekend with two straight wins over the Central Mass. stars.

back-to-back three-hit pitching performances, with Quincy's Gerry Bugden striking out 15 in the opening game and Scott Tait of Hanover fanning 12 in the second game.

South Shore won the opener, 6-1, and the second game, 4-0, with excellent hitting and fielding by Bugden, Tom Magiero of South Boston and Bruce Kirkland of Randolph.

● Senior League Clovers In 4-4 Tie With Top Budmen

The Quincy Clovers, turning in one of their better performances of the season, held the unbeaten Boston Budmen to a 4-4 tie last week in the Summer Senior Hockey League at the Quincy Youth Arena, putting the first blemish on the Boston team's otherwise perfect record.

Frankie Guest put Quincy ahead at 1:55 of the game with an unassisted goal but Boston's Jim Doyle tied it at 9:34 with an unassisted goal.

The Budmen took a 3-1 lead with two second period goals but Dennis O'Connell scored for Quincy early in the third period. Doyle scored again for Boston but Guest scored at 5:04 with P. J. Flaherty and John Cunniff assisting, and Cunniff tied it at 16:41 with Flaherty having an assist.

The second place Newman Club defeated Whitman Cats, 7-4, and third place Atlantic Flames bombed the Walpole Chiefs, 14-4.

Next Wednesday Boston will play Newman Club at 6:30, Whitman will meet Walpole at 8:15 and Quincy will face Atlantic at 10 p.m.

● Executive League Blues, Reds In Wins

In the Summer Executive Hockey League at Quincy Youth Arena, the Blue team defeated the Golds, 7-4, as Jack Powers, who the previous week had five goals, this time came up with five assists.

The Golds took a 3-0 lead on goals by Ed Dwyer, Ed Holt and Gene Irwin and assists for Pete LaBerge, Jack Hudley and Joe Ryan. The Blues came back to make it 3-2 after a period as Kevin White scored with assists for Gary DeCoste, Powers and Marty Tolson and DeCoste scored with Powers and Tolson assisting.

After a scoreless second period the Blues exploded for five goals in the final period. Tolson tied it at 3-3 with Powers and DeCoste assisting and Tolson put the Blues ahead with assists for Powers and Wayne Cooper. The Golds scored their final goal to tie it when Charlie Duffy scored and LaBerge assisted.

The Blues then won it on goals by White [Powers and Tolson assisting], DeCoste unassisted and Tolson with White assisting.

The Reds defeated the Greens, 5-1, scoring all their goals in the second period.

Bucky Zanardelli scored the first goal with Jim Daley and Joe Chase assisting. Fran Moriarty had the second with an assist for Dick Reinhardt, Moriarty scored again with Wally McLean assisting, Chase made it 4-0 with assists for Daley and Zanardelli and Daley scored the finale with Zanardelli and McLean having assists.

Tom Boussey scored the lone Green goal in the final period with Frank Furey having the assist.

● Squirt House Whites Tie Greens To Stay Top

In the Squirt House League the White team stayed in first place by tying the runnerup Greens, 7-7, in a free-scoring game.

Sears Defeats VFW, 2-0 In Extra Inning Thriller

The Quincy Junior Baseball League closed out its regular season last Saturday with the most exciting game of the entire year.

Sears Roebuck, American League champs with a 16-5 record, met head-on with VFW, National League co-champs, with a 15-6 record, and Sears pulled out a 2-0 extra inning win on back-to-back home runs in the seventh inning.

Bill Deitsch, starting pitcher for Sears, pitched one-hit ball, struck out 13 and walked only one, while Paul O'Toole of VFW pitched a no-hitter, struck out six and walked one during the regulation six innings. O'Toole also had the only hit during that time.

By Little League rules, both pitchers had to come out after those stirring six innings and in the top of the seventh Deitsch greeted Danny Boyle with a home run over the fence in left center and the next batter belted one over the center field fence. Fred Palmer also singled but was erased on a fine play.

In the bottom of the seventh good defensive plays by Bobby Flynn, Deitsch and catcher Dean Zoia saved the game for Sears and relief pitcher Steve Picot. O'Toole, incidentally, also doubled for VFW in the seventh.

Deitsch finished up the season with an 8-0 pitching record, pitched six no-hit games, had 125 strikeouts and only 13 walks and gave up just six hits.

Kiwanis edged Boston Gear, 7-6, in extra innings with Billy O'Connell the winning pitcher. John Coleman had three hits, Billy O'Connell two hits, Jamie Walsh a triple and Billy Cooke drove in the winning run. For Gear John Ferullo and Bob Hayes each had two hits and Bob Dubois a homer and single.

Kiwanis also walloped Colonial Federal, 15-3, with Chris Petrillo pitching excellent ball in relief of Sean Morton. O'Connell drove in four runs and Petrillo had two doubles.

Houghs Neck blanked Rotary, 6-0, with Greg Oriola the winning pitcher. Bob Cronin and Steve Notorangelo each having a double, and Greg Madden, Mike Aboud and Jeff Giordani having singles.

Houghs Neck also blasted Kiwanis, 10-1, with Aboud the winning pitcher. Oriola, Giordani and Notorangelo had the key hits. 10-year old Frankie McPartland pulled off a brilliant unassisted double play. For Kiwanis Scott Lowell drove in the only run.

Rotary collected 17 hits to walloped Burgin Platner, 13-0, as all Rotary players played at least Ten-year old Steve Pecevich had a triple and single, Gary DiNardo and Finnigan two doubles and a single each, Sean Murphy two doubles, Burt three singles and Costigan, Ronnie Pettinelli, Brian Donovan and Steve Sacchetti a single each.

Velma O'Connor of South Shore and Florence Eramio tied for seventh net of 65.

Priscilla O'Neill of Furnace Brook came closest to the pin on the 15th hole and Velma O'Connor of South Shore had the longest drive on the 11th hole.

Jeanne Doherty defeated Ellie Mulroy for Class A honors and Claire Walsh defeated Helene McPeck for the Class B crown in the Directors' Cup play.

Chairman for the guest day was Priscilla O'Neill, while Barbara Spinello was in charge of luncheon and prizes.

● Midget House

Orange Team Moves Into Tie With Whites

In the Midget House League the Orange team moved into a top tie with the Whites by edging the Greens, 5-4. Jim Constat had two goals, Jeff Harrison, Rick Bowe and Kevin Doyle one each for the Orange team with Constat and Harrison each having two assists and Bill Morrison one. For the Greens Mark Kelly had two goals, Brian Nevins and Bob Carmody one each. Joe Carty had two assists and Rich Troy one.

The Whites and Reds tied, 5-5, dropping the Reds into third place. Ed McDonald had two goals and Rick Boyle, Mike Sullivan and John Picard one each for the Reds. Dave Peters had two assists. For the Whites Mike McCauley had two goals, Bud Romano, Scott Mitchell and Mark Paolucci one each, Mike Boyle had two assists, Romano, Billy Monahan and Dennis Bertoni one apiece.

● Pee Wee House

League Leader Blues Tag Yellows, 6-3

The first place Blue team defeated the Yellows, 6-3, for its fifth win in six games in the Pee Wee House League.

Rich McCarthy and Mark Veasey each had two goals for the winners, Freddie Palmer and John Lyons one each. Mark Boussy had three assists, Bob Larsen two and Tommy Mullen one. For the Yellows Chris Chevalier scored twice and Jamie Rooney once with two assists for Jim Paolucci and one each for Mike Doherty and Tommy Heffernan.

The Orange team nipped the Reds, 5-4, with Sean Dennis and John Baylis each having two goals and Todd Leslie one. John Coleman, Robbie Zanardelli, Ed Doherty and Karl Nord scored for the Reds with assists for Zanardelli, Nord, Robbie Craig, Gene Kornas and Mike Ferreira.

The Whites topped the Greens, 9-5, sparked by Mark Messina's three goals. Ed Powers, Paul Melia and Greg Freeman each had two goals. Ed McDermott and Messina had two assists apiece, Bill Mathews, Powers, Billy Doran, Melia and Freeman one each. For the Greens Chuckie Marshall exploded for four goals and Paul McGrath had the other. McGrath had three assists and Paul McConville two.

Hurley Scores 5 To Send Reds Into Mite Lead

The Reds moved into first place in the Mite House League with an easy 8-1 win over the previous leader, the Orange team.

Chris Hurley erupted for five Red goals, Dave Edgren had two and Billy Hughes one. Edgren and Jim Crossman each had two assists and Hughes one. Danny Kelly scored for the Orange team and Jeff Murphy assisted.

The Greens walloped the Whites, 8-1, with Bobby McCabe scoring four goals, Mark McManus two, Bob Foreman and Gary Caruso one each. Mark Walsh had two assists, John O'Connor and McCabe one each. Brian Chase scored for the Whites with an assist for Mark Chambers.

The Blues edged the Yellows, 4-3, with Scott Messina having the hat trick and John DiPietro one goal for the winners. Brendan Walsh, John Krantz and Tom Ryan had assists. Paul Marshall had all three Yellow goals with Kevin Golden and Bob Kane assisting.

3 Squantum Boats Lead Wollaston Interclub Race

By JAMES COLLINS

The Wollaston Yacht Club hosted a record interclub turnout of 106 yachts as a prelude to the annual Quincy Bay Race Week which opens July 31.

Three Squantum boats led the marine parade on the homeward stretch with top honors going to Jim Beaton's "Dream A-While" in the Flying Scot Class.

Other winners included Dick Marcel's "Whirling Dervish" in the Tornado Class and Henry Welsh's "Bewitched" from the host club. Although the wind was light at the start of the race it strengthened from the easterly quadrant in the late afternoon.

Data Drops Pair In Senior Babe Ruth Loop

Data Services, Quincy's entry in the South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League, continued its late season slump by dropping two more decisions during the past week.

Quincy was walloped by Weymouth Bankers, 15-8, despite home runs by Mark Jaehng, Gerry Bugden and Dave Power. Quincy's defense fell apart and handed Weymouth nine runs in the fourth inning.

Quincy also was edged by Weymouth Eagles, 7-6, as Weymouth, winner of only one previous game in 11, scored three runs in the sixth inning.

A misjudged fly to center field started the sixth inning troubles.

Power had two triples and Jaehng, Paul Messina and Brian Stack a double each for Quincy. John Papile pitched well in relief but suffered the loss.

Track Club Meet Tonight

The Quincy Track Club, in its first year, continues to grow and grow with more than 250 boys, girls, men and women registered, and the weekly meets at Quincy Veterans Stadium are providing more competition and better performances every week.

Another in the series of weekly meets takes place tonight [Thursday] at 6 p.m. at the stadium. Practices, incidentally, are held each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Last week's meet provided two triple winners in Carl Nord and Jane Righini and other outstanding performances by Dotty Irvine, Laurie Smith, Pat King and Jack Reynolds.

The latest innovation was a mixed relay with two girls and two boys on each team. There was also another special relay pitting four girls against two 210-pound shot-putters in which the boys, Harry Knudson and Bill Popsie, won.

The winners:
Shot-put - Boys 12-15, Paul Ahern; 16 and up, Paul Doherty.
Discus - Boys 16 and up, Phil Robinson.

100-yard dash - Boys 9-11, Carl Nord; boys 12-15, John Ladd; boys 16 and up, Lee Watkins; girls 9-11, Jane Righini; girls 12 and up, Janice Kelly.

22-yard dash - Boys 9-11, Carl Nord; boys 12-15, John Ladd; boys 16 and up, Lee Watkins; girls 9-11, Jane Righini; girls 12 and up, Laurie Smith.

440-yard run - Boys 9-11, Pat King; boys 12-15, Jack Maheras; girls 12 and up, Dotty Irvine.

880-yard run - Boys 9-11, Carl Nord; boys 12-15, Bob Levenson; boys 16 and up, Bart Petracca; girls 12 and up, Suzanne Yee.

Mile-run - Boys 12-15, Marty Levenson; girls 12 and up, Dotty Irvine.

Relays - Mixed, Laurie Smith, Geoff Hennessey, Debbie Biagini and Paul Doherty; girls 9-11, Susan Gallery, Gail Clougherty, Jane Righini and Terry Zerega; boys 9-11, Dean Zoia, Mark McGill, Brian Burns and Steve Burns; boys 12-15, Marty Levenson, Jack Maheras, Paul Cody and John Ladd; girls 12-15, Laurie Smith, Dotty Irvine, Janice Kelly and Debbie Biagini.

● Babe Ruth League Police, Bersani, Granite City Win

The Police Club, National League champions in the Quincy Babe Ruth League, continued to roll merrily and last week added two more easy wins.

Police romped over Hancock Bank, 13-2, with winning pitcher Lou Fishman striking out six. Fishman also had a triple and single, Chuck LoPresti had a double and single and Brian Connelly two hits and Tom Brennan, Richie Boyle and Mike McCormack a hit each. Ron Donovan played an outstanding game at shortstop.

Police also walloped the Elks, 10-3, with LoPresti striking out 14 and having three hits himself including a home run. Mike Murphy had a double and two singles, Donovan a double and single, Fishman and Ed Laracy two hits each, John Derris and Connelly one apiece.

Bersani Brothers defeated Morrisette Post, 6-3, with Mark Buchanan starring both at bat and on the mound. Matt Nee had two hits in a losing cause for Morrisette.

Bersani also defeated Gino's, 8-5, with Lenny Picot the winning pitcher. Dave Peters drove in three runs for the winners. The game was in doubt until the final two innings.

Granite City Electric walloped VFW, 15-7, with Dave Cramond giving up five hits before being relieved by Steve Doyle. Cramond also had four singles and a walk. Carl Bergstrom and Bob Stack each had a triple.

Recreation Roundup

By JOE MOSESSO

In this, the fourth week of the Quincy Recreation Department's summer program, there continues to be an overwhelming amount of interest shown by the youth of Quincy towards all of the Recreation Department's various programs.

Probably the hardest thing to learn in tennis is the backhand stroke. The only way to adequately develop this stroke is through hard work and practice. It is this philosophy that tennis specialists Kevin McGinley and Betty Vittner are trying to impress on the city's youth. Some of the most avid learners thus far have been Cindy Bureau and Bob Ciardi of Kincaide. O'Rourke's Lois Malvesti and Anne Bertrand, Joe Kerwin and Tommy Smith of Atlantic and Mike Sullivan and Danny Masters of Merrymount.

The Atlantic Aquarium has been the main attraction of the nature program lately. Nature specialists Michael Parros and Paula Weidman have taken busloads of children to visit this sea extravaganza. Some of the most enthusiastic spectators have been Scott Buchanan, Paula Rue and Paul Kenney of Bradford and Debbie, Kim, and Steven Alusy of Kincaide.

There is no doubt that it takes a lot of persuasion to get a group of boys to sing. Well, music specialist Karen Walsh has accomplished the impossible. She reports she has found a male chorus at Montclair playground. Some of the Mario Lanza's that make up the group are Chris Baker, Glen Collins, Rick Reardon and Willie Dudley.

The enthusiasm of the girls continues to shine towards the music program too. Those showing particular interest are Laurie Duffett, Pat Hunter, Kathy McBride and Andy Griffin of Fore River and Paula Murphy, Sheila Connolly and Beverly Brown of Montclair.

Archery specialist Tim Flynn reports his merry men around the city are improving every week in preparation for the archery tournament in the last week of the summer program. Some of the best marksmen so far have been Brian and Chris McGilvray of Squantum, Forbes Hill's Brian O'Hanely, Dave Spring and Susan Brennan and Kincaide's Jim Maze, Al Dubois and Paula Bowlen.

The golf program got into full swing this past week with a full slate of action at Furnace Brook golf course. Golf specialist Don Smith sends special congratulations to 13 year old Nancy Smith of Beechwood Knoll, who shot an amazing "52" for nine holes. Other outstanding players were Steve Blazer and Kevin Donelin of O'Rourke, Perkins' Kevin Garrity and Lou Rizzo and John, Paul and Mike Griffin of Myles Standish.

The arts and crafts program continues to be the overwhelming favorite of the city's youth. This past week the making of puppets was the main activity. Some of the most innovative were created by Matt Popowitz of Kincaide, Columbia's Mark DiBona and Tabatha McLand and Shea Rink's Mark Reghinie, Joanne Kelley and Jimmy Daly.

Miss Andrea Quinn has been running a superb ceramics program at the Quincy School. Thus far the program has drawn a great many enthusiastic participants. Last week the children put their imaginations to work and created an international array of plaques such as Irish clovers and American eagles. Some of the more artistic creations were done by Evelyn Chell, Billy Doran, Donna Ellis, John Anderson, Pat Maloney and Lisa Valenti.

Meanwhile, the children at Perkins took a nature walk to Wollaston Beach. Janice McAuliffe no doubt enjoyed the trip the most as she returned to the playground with a big bag full of rocks, sea shells, sea glass and other assorted things. At Stoney Brae a chess tournament was held with Bruce Brennan emerging victorious. Bruce's only comment after the victory was, "Bring on Fisher".

There were a lot of belly aches at Wollaston playground the other day after a watermelon eating contest. It was a close race with Joanne Ruane, Kevin Green and Jeannie Keone mouth and mouth all the way. Finally Jeannie Keone pulled out the win with one big gulp.

The mighty Merrymount midgets continue to overpower all district opponents. Last week they were victorious twice, handling Mass. Fields 13-4 and simply mauling Heron Road 36-10. In the first game Danny Marsters hurled a brilliant four hitter. The offensive punch was supplied by Brian Reale, who lashed three hits and speedy John Phelen, who legged out two singles. In the second game the Merrymount bats went wild with a hitting display put on by Brian Reale, Mike Sullivan and Danny Marsters. No doubt Merrymount is a team to be reckoned with in the upcoming playoffs.

In junior baseball in District 1, Snug Harbor is the team to beat. The Harborites are undefeated thus far in district play with a 2-0 record. Mainly responsible for the team's success is pitcher Gordon Spencer. In 10 innings of pitching Spencer has fanned 18 men and has given up only two hits. That's some kind of pitching in any league. Gordon also contributes at the plate where he's batting a sweet .600. Snug Harbor is not a one man team, however. Spencer gets plenty of help from Steve Nater, Jim Austin and Jimmy and Bill Bert.

The Beechwood Knoll senior girls softball team won a big game last week defeating archrival Merrymount 13-7. Gerry Foy went the distance for Beechwood, always bearing down in the key situations to kill off possible Merrymount rallies. The hit parade was led by Ann Sullivan and Patti Miceli, who both banged out two hits. Shining in defeat were Trish Sullivan and Pat Vena.

● Quincy Softball Sabina's Takes Over Top Spot, Sully's Racks Up 4 Wins

Sabina's continued to roll in the Quincy Softball League and took over first place in the National League West with two more wins during the past week.

Sabina's edged Pagies, 7-6, with Ted Stevenson coming in to pitch with two outs in the final inning and Pagies threatening, and got the last batter on a routine fly to night to get the save.

Sabina's also toppled Hofbrau, 6-0, with two home runs each by Fred Azar and Paul Jay. "The entire infield was dynamite" winning manager Mike Parros said after the game.

Sully's had an up and down week as it won four games and lost two. It started with a 4-3 win over Walsh's with Dave Tarbox scoring the winning run in the eighth inning on Mike Connell's double.

Sully's then dropped an 8-6 decision to the Alumni Cafe with Alumni's John Casey hitting a three-run homer. George Berard had three hits for Sully's.

Sully's snapped a long hitting slump by belting Bill's Texaco, 23-4, then lost to County Line, 9-5. Paul Matta had three hits for the Line.

Sully's bounced back on a last inning single by Jerry Pratt to nip Dee Dee's, 10-9. Paul Erler homered for Dee Dee's.

Sully's finished the week with a 13-4 romp over Wells Grille, with Harry Daniels and Charlie Viola having two hits each.

Walsh's breezed over McInnis Corp., 12-3, for its fifth win of the year. Walsh's then dropped a 13-1 slugfest to A & T Movers as A & T came up with an eight-run inning.

Marcel Corp. defeated Wells, 13-7, with home runs by Bill

Jennings, Ron Arria and Mike Arria. Chuck Goselin hit a mammoth homer to center field for Wells.

Mayor's 'Sidewalk Office' Receives 130 Suggestions

During the three-day Sidewalk Bazaar, Mayor Walter J. Hannon's "Sidewalk Mayor's Office" received some 130 suggestions from Quincy citizens.

The booth was so successful, said Hannon, that he plans to tote his "Portable office" to other parts of the city during the coming months. "We want to encourage people to make more suggestions for the improvements of our city," he said.

One idea submitted to the mayor's sidewalk office suggested the addition of park benches and trees to Hancock St. Some 24 other suggestions also dealt with downtown development of the city.

Several people suggested free parking to encourage added shoppers in downtown Quincy. The Mayor replied that although the idea was "appealing" the removal of parking meters would transform Quincy into "a gigantic parking lot for people using the MBTA." He added, "Parking meters actually make it possible for more shoppers to come to the city."

The Mayor also received 11 complaints on the combined pick-up of garbage and trash-complaints dealing largely with the question of sanitation.

Other citizens mentioned a laxity in drivers' observance of traffic lights and signs. The Mayor said that he will ask the police department to monitor more closely the observance of these signs.

Hannon noted that every suggestion will receive a personal reply from his office or from an appropriate city department head.

Thomas McManus To Seek Re-election

Norfolk County Commissioner Thomas K. McManus [D-Norwood] announces his candidacy for re-election.

McManus, an attorney and former Norwood selectman, who has served as a commissioner the past seven years noted that Norfolk County has the lowest per capita tax of all counties in the state.

A graduate of Boston College High School, Boston College and Suffolk Law School, he has also attended Michigan State and the University of Nebraska.

McManus is a Trustee of Norfolk County Hospital and Norfolk County Agricultural High School. He is a director of the Norfolk Mental Health Association and past director of the Norwood Red Cross. He is also a member of the Massachusetts, Boston, Norfolk County and Norwood Red Association.

A veteran of World War II, he is a member of the American Legion and Disabled American Veterans. A former Norwood Selectman.

He is married to the former Mary T. Lyons and is the father of three children.

McManus said "It is my intention to continue administering the government of Norfolk County in a manner which reflects progress at the lowest possible cost to the taxpayer."

Desmond Attends School Of Alcohol Studies

John Desmond of Quincy was one of 16 faculty members at the recently held fifth annual New England School of Alcohol Studies at Assumption College, Worcester.

Nearly 75 participants representing governmental agencies and businesses from throughout the six New England states successfully completed the five-day program. Others in attendance came from North Carolina, Iowa and New Jersey.

Sandler And Young Wow 'Em At South Shore Music Circus

By RICHARD MATTULINA

Take one multilingual Belgian with a Continental flair and one semi-literate New Yorker with an infectious ear-to-ear grin.

Mix in a little soft shoe, some snappy one-liners, a few dozen stirring songs and a yodel or two.

Squeeze that into an hour or so on stage and you've got an act pretty well guaranteed to pack 'em in and leave 'em laughing.

What you've got is Sandler and Young, wowing crowds nightly at the South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset through July 27.

Tony Sandler and Ralph Young set records at the tent with a finely polished act designed for fast-paced, non-stop entertainment with a capital E. The smiling starts with your first glimpse of Ralph Young's idiot grin and "aw-shucks" style and just doesn't stop.

"Happy To Know You", they sing for their opener and you believe they really are.

Much of the little Sandler plays the bemused straight man to Young's buffoon in light numbers including an en-Francais version of the rock and roll flop "Mr. Bassman".

And the duo swing gracefully into ballads, such as the haunting "And I Love Her So" with close harmony and never a sour note.

The program is strictly G-rated with lots of gospel, patriotic and inspirational music jammed into medleys, medleys, medleys.

About the only things missing are the national anthem and "The Lord's Prayer".

Young's booming baritone delivers "I Believe" as Sandler weaves in "Ave Maria".

Sandler sings "Dominique" in French as Young spins off a string of spirituals underneath.

There's "I Believe" and "If" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" to stir your soul.

There's an "Old Time Religion" medley, a Las Vegas medley and a "Johnny Comes Marching Home" medley.

And there's a big band medley highlighted by "Moonlight Serenade" and conductor Leo D. Lion whistling "Heartache" a la Ted Weems.

Its all calculated to give you just enough. With eight bars of "Release Me" and 12 of "Mack the Knife". A touch of "Dixie" and a taste of "Let It Be".

These guys are pros who earn every bit of thunderous applause they get.

They are journeymen with polish and vitality. And, believe me, brother, when you leave a Sandler and Young show, you know you've gotten your money's worth.

Now how many things can you say that about these days?

Shirley Jones, Jack Cassidy Signed

Ron Rawson, producer at the South Shore Music Circus, has signed Shirley Jones and husband, Jack Cassidy, to fill the slot left blank by previously announced John Davidson, who has bowed out.

The couple premiered in Las Vegas, and have put together the show which is now touring various summer theatre locations across the country.

The two are backed by a chorus, orchestra and Ronnie Schell whose low-keyed laments about insecurity, the Hollywood crowd, sexy movies, and TV commercials not only provide food for thought but also many laughs.

Shirley Jones and Jack Cassidy will be at the South Shore Music Circus Aug. 26 - 31. Show times are Mon. - Fri. at 8:30; Sat. at 5:30 and 9; Wed at 2:30.

Williams Backs Pedestrian Light On Quincy Ave.

Atty. Thomas Williams, candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, urges support for a bill to install pedestrian traffic lights on Quincy Ave. at the Presidential Plaza.

Williams has sent a letter to the State Department of Public Works, Traffic Engineering Division urging its support and action. Quincy Ave. is under its jurisdiction.

The bill was filed by Rep. Clifford Marshall.

Williams said the lights were "much needed to reduce high traffic speeds which endanger pedestrians and have caused a number of accidents on that part of the road."

He stressed the need to protect pedestrians and to make the shopping center more accessible to local residents, especially those from the Martensen St. senior citizens complex.

A Record Breaking Year

Quincy Tops District Nazarene Membership

The New England Nazarene District broke previous records for membership, church school enrollment and finance of world and home missions in 1973-74, according to the first report of Rev. Donald Irwin of Quincy, district superintendent.

Rev. Mr. Irwin, who was elected to a four-year term in the office at the recent annual assembly in Wollaston, reported that membership of the five-state district [all but Maine] topped the 5,000 mark for the first time; church school enrollment is over 12,000, and total giving reached $1,574 million.

Nazarene in the five states gave $66,633 for support of Eastern Nazarene College, Wollaston, where the sessions were held, and $33,452 for home missions work. Some $145,690 given for foreign missions represents 10.2 per cent of the total income. All three Quincy churches and the Duxbury congregation gave 10 per cent of their income for missions.

Rev. Mr. Irwin said his first priority for his new term is to strengthen local congregations, whose attendance falls below the national average Sunday morning attendance of 75 people.

He plans to inaugurate continuing education in church growth, for lay persons and ministers, and seminars for pastors and people of the smaller churches.

He quoted a church leader as suggesting "there are few problems in the local church that the addition of 25 new members could not help solve."

The establishment of new congregations will be the second priority.

The Wollaston congregation was on the top ten list in the district for church school enrollment and attendance, and was number one for the total amount raised for all purposes, $109,038, and for church membership, with 366.

The city of Quincy has the largest Nazarene membership in the district with over 500 in congregations in Wollaston, Bethel Beach and Granite Church, South Quincy. New Bedford is next highest, with 439 members in the multi-racial Portuguese Church, First Church and Faith Church, a Portuguese language congregation.

Five of the other congregations in the top 10 in membership are in greater Boston, Malden, Melrose, Cambridge, Brockton and Beverly. Others are Manchester, Conn., and Lowell, Mass.

The District recorded $311 in annual per capita giving, with Duxbury listed at $522 per capita; Quincy Granite at $327; Walpole, $321; Bethel Beach, $320; and Wollaston, $297.

'Truth' Lesson-Sermon Topic At Christian Science Church

The Lesson-Sermon Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., is on the subject of "Truth".

The Golden Text is from the Old Testament "Ascribe ye greatness unto our God. He is the Rock, His work is perfect: for all His ways are judgement: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is He." Deuteronomy 32: 3, 4.

Church service and Sunday School are at 10 a.m. during July and August.

Dr. Maher Girgis Named To St. Margaret's Staff

Dr. Maher Girgis of Copeland St., West Quincy has been appointed to the active staff in obstetrics and gynecology at St. Margaret's Hospital, Dorchester.

He is a native of Cairo, Egypt and a graduate of Cairo University Medical School. He completed his internship at Cairo University Hospital in 1964.

Dr. Girgis has completed one-year residencies in general surgery at Quincy City Hospital and in anesthesia at New England Medical Center, Boston. He also served residencies in obstetrics and gynecology at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Brighton and Tufts University.

Dr. Girgis is a junior fellow in the American College of Gynecology and maintains a private office.

Hearings On Zoning

The Quincy Planning Board will hold two public hearings Wednesday, Aug. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber, City Hall to discuss two proposed zoning changes.

The first proposed change is from Planned Unit Development to Open Space on the city-owned land on the northeasterly side of Upland Rd.

This land is bounded on the west by Upland Rd., on the north by Adams St., on the east by the MBTA right of way, and on the south by Dimmock St.

The second proposed change, to be discussed at 7:45 p.m., deals with a zoning shift from Residence "B" to Residence "A" on the following described property:

"That block of land shown on Assessor's Plan 5072-A as Residence "B"; bounded by Wollaston Ave., Waterston Ave., Greene St., and Fenno St.

Resources Commissioner, Heritage Assistant Posts On Council Agenda

The City Council was to meet in a special session Wednesday night to discuss the addition of $5,009 to the public service account, augmenting the salary of the new position of commissioner of natural resources.

The newly-created post is being offered to Richard Koch, present Park and Recreation director, who earns a salary of $15,582. The additional funds would boost his salary to $20,591.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon named Koch to the new post in order to consolidate administration of the park and recreation, forestry, conservation and cemetery departments. Before accepting the job, Koch is requesting a leave of absence from his present position, thus guarding against a possible change in city administration.

The Council was also to confirm the appointment of Bruce W. McLain of 28 Vine Ave., Quincy Point, as assistant director of Quincy Heritage - the agency coordinating Quincy's celebration of its 350th anniversary and the country's 200th.

John R. Graham, director of Quincy Heritage, recommended the appointment of McLain to Hannon. McLain, who would receive $12,000 for the assistantship, was a former Patriot Ledger reporter and former public relations director for the Quincy School System. Hannon said of Graham's recommendation:

"I heartily concur with the appointment. His past experience and performance indicate to me that he will do an outstanding job for the city of Quincy."

The council was also to approve a lease signed by Hannon, giving Quincy Heritage the free use of office space in the Quincy Center MBTA station.

Also slated for discussion was a resolve introduced by Rep. Clifford H. Marshall to install a pedestrian light at the corner of Lurton St. and Independence Ave., South Quincy.

Quincy Hospital Needs Donors

To Keep Blood Supply At Safe Level

The Quincy City Hospital Blood Bank needs volunteer donors to keep its blood supply at a safe level.

The blood is also needed for anticipated increased incidents of accidents during the summer vacation season.

And by donating, you can also help yourself.

The Quincy City Employees' Blood Bank was recently established through the cooperation of Mayor Walter Hannon and Hospital Director Harlan Paine.

For each donation, a volunteer will be assured of two pints of blood for himself or his immediate family for one year.

Donors may volunteer every eight weeks but not more than five times per year.

Donor hours at the hospital are Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Monday through Thursday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. by appointment.

Richard Buckley Named City Purchasing Agent

Richard F. Buckley of 73 Wesson Ave., West Quincy has been appointed city purchasing agent, effective Aug. 12, announces Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

Buckley will succeed Richard Newcomb who has accepted a position as assistant director at Quincy City Hospital. The purchasing job pays $13,100.

Buckley, 55, brings to the city Purchasing Department 27 years of civilian service in various departments of the Navy. Hannon said:

"We are indeed fortunate to retain someone with the background and experience necessary to continue the standard of excellent purchasing practices carried on in the City of Quincy for a number of years."

Educated in Somerville and Boston public schools, Buckley graduated from Fisher Business School and holds a degree in Accounting and Business Management from Boston University, College of Business

COPE Committee To Meet To Endorse Candidate

The Norfolk County Labor Council's COPE Committee will meet Sunday at 4 p.m. in Shipbuilders Hall, 480 Quincy Ave., Quincy to decide on candidates it will endorse in the coming elections.

All candidates seeking labor's endorsement are invited to attend the meeting and be interviewed on their position on labor legislation.

Lydon, Brownell Oppose High Rise Development On Granite St.

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. and Rep. Thomas Brownell are opposing a plan for high rise development on Granite St.

They contend that such development would abolish Scotch Pond Place, an area used for many years as a thruway to Quincy Sq.

In a letter to Geoffrey Davidson, director of the Department of Planning and Community Development, Lydon expressed a main objection to the plan. He said:

"Area residents have easement rights to Scotch Pond Place and these rights should be defined before the plan is approved."

Prior to that meeting, the committee will meet at 2 p.m. in the same hall with Congressman James A. Burke. All incumbents and office seekers of the Democratic party are invited to attend.

Congressman Gerry Studts and Joseph A. Sullivan, president of the Massachusetts State Labor Council, are expected to attend.

An easement right is right that one may have over another's land, such as a right of way.

Lydon also called the 1971 zoning change in the area - a change from Zone A Residential to Business C - "a mistake and an unfair encroachment into the neighborhood." He objected that the signing of the plan would give the City Council "no recourse for a three year period...to correct the zoning."

Lydon noted, too, that he, Brownell, and other city officials are examining the possibility of co-sponsoring legislation which will "not circumvent the people in land development cases."

QHA To Get $115,552 To Modernize Housing

The Quincy Housing Authority will receive $115,552 from the state's Department of Community Affairs [DCA] to modernize state-subsidized housing.

Quincy's share of the total $3.8 million appropriation ranks seventh largest among 62 other Massachusetts communities. Of Quincy's total, $75,592 goes to elderly housing and the remaining $39,960 to family housing.

According to DCA Commissioner Lewis S. W. Crampton, the $3.8 million is part of a $5 million appropriation approved by the Legislature and signed into law by Gov. Francis Sargent. The money will help to improve livability in existing state-subsidized housing, said Crampton.

Funds are earmarked for improvements to heating systems, roofs, security locks, storm windows, and other items essential for an adequate living environment in subsidized housing.

Requests for modernization funds were prepared by local housing authorities in cooperation with tenant organizations. Crampton commented, "We were pleased to have witnessed such close cooperation between local housing authorities and tenant groups."

Funds for each community will be held by the state until local housing authorities have contracted with private firms for the necessary work. The local housing authorities and the tenant groups will then jointly decide how the funds will be spent.

New Applications For Veterans' Headstones, Markers

City Councillor John Lydon, chairman of the Veterans Services Committee, reports that a new application form is now available for headstones or memorial markers for deceased veterans.

Formerly administered by the Department of the Army, the memorial program was transferred to the VA with the establishment of the National Cemetery System last fall.

The older application form will continue to be accepted until supplies are exhausted.

Persons using this old form are cautioned to forward it to the following VA address instead of that provided on the form:

Director, National Cemetery System [42], Veterans Administration Central Office, 810 Vermont Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20420

Applications can also be processed by the city's Veteran's Services Department.

A headstone or grave marker is available for any deceased veteran who received an other than dishonorable discharge. The benefit is not available to members of the veteran's family buried in private cemeteries.

Memorial markers may be obtained to commemorate any member of the armed forces who died in service and whose remains were not recovered and identified, or who was buried at sea. These memorials may be erected in private cemeteries in plots provided by the applicant or in memorial sections of national cemeteries.

Old men need love too

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

At 65 I am past being a dirty old man, but I'm not dead yet. My wife passed away three years ago and lately I've been keeping company with a lady who has been a friend for years. Her husband died several years ago. Would she think that getting married at our age is out of the question? I own my own business, my home, and drive a new car. We could have several good years. Am I too far over the hill?

Grandpa

Dear Grandpa:

No! The lady will most probably consider you a great catch. Dirty old men need love too!

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My sister is 9 years old. My boyfriend does not want to come over anymore because my little sister spends the evening with us, giggling the entire time. My efforts to get rid of her haven't helped a bit. She continues to pester us. I have spoken with my parents, and they think she is cute. My mom feels that my sister has the right to look at TV with us. Don't I have any rights? My time should count too.

Wants to be Alone

Dear Alone:

You should be allowed some time alone with your friend, but not the entire evening. Why not suggest to your parents that little sister be allowed to look at her favorite television for a certain time and then leave? Or, you and your boyfriend can sit in another room and little sister can watch TV all by herself.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

How can I learn to control my temper? At times I feel as if I am really going to explode. The man I married is wonderful. He works hard, is a good father and loving husband. However, I will get so exasperated over a minor incident that I lose control. Then I scream and once I even threw a plate of spaghetti.

Am I sick or do other bored housewives act like this? I have noticed that I blow a fuse if I am especially fed up with the kids and have not been out of the house for a long time. Sometimes I feel as if someone has stuffed me in a bottle and I can't get out.

Temper

Dear Temper:

Like many young women, you have seemingly found that housework and child care is leaving a gap. When anyone, man or woman, feels unfulfilled and bored something is going to give. My advice is for you to find something that interests you. Perhaps you have always wanted to paint, play golf or tennis, or maybe write a novel. Take an afternoon a week, hire a sitter, and get out. It is cheaper than psychotherapy so don't delay. You will come home a better wife and mother. This is a do-it-yourself job so DO it now.

Egg Stain Needn't Be Egg On Your Face

Before oil paints were invented, portrait painters made their own colors out of powdered pigments and egg yolks. They used egg yolks because egg yolks get hard and stick to most surfaces tenaciously.

If you've ever tried to get egg stains out of a tablecloth, you know how well eggs stick. But treated promptly, says Virginia White, laundry expert for The Miracle White Company, egg stains can be successfully removed.

As soon as possible, immerse the stain in cold water for five minutes, rubbing the fabric between your fingers to loosen the stain. Launder in hot water with ¼ cup Super Cleaner and ¼ cup Miracle White Detergent.

It's a crime to grow weeds?

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

Joseph Sobocinski of Williamsport, Pa., is a man whose front yard is full of weeds.

A lot of you may be shocked by this, but for those of you who aren't, let me tell you what a weed is. A weed, according to the court that fined Joseph $475, is "any plant which grows where not wanted."

How's that for heinous crimes? Look around you, folks, do you have a criminal on your block?

When I read about what happened to poor Joseph, I ran out on my front lawn and began snatching up as much crabgrass as I could with two hands. When I filled a big paper box full I hurried into the garage with it but, as Edgar Allen Poe pointed out in "The Tell Tale Heart," guilt is not easily stored.

Finally, I wrapped it as a wedding gift and put it on a top shelf above the half-empty paint cans. But every time a patrol car passes my house, I imagine I hear that crabgrass scratching, scratching ever louder, to get out.

After Joseph paid his fine, he must have got to thinking about it, or the weeds came up again — as weeds will do — so he took it to a higher court, but that court upheld the lower court. I'm not sure on what grounds, but they must have been weed-free.

Well, so it goes, Joseph. You will simply have to be ever vigilant from now on to stay ahead of nature and pluck the first sprout of anything you

New fathers get paternity leaves

The U.S. Department of Labor has become the first federal agency to grant paternity leaves to new fathers.

Under a new collective bargaining agreement, Labor Department male employees are allowed up to 30 days' leave when their child is born. Time off can be charged to annual leave or taken without pay. — CNS see "growing where not wanted." If you were worried about a hobby or what to do with your retirement time, this could be your solution.

So look at it that way and try to forget the trip to Acapulco you could have taken with the $475. Acapulco is full of lush, tropical growth anyway, and I'm not sure all of it is growing where wanted. It might have reminded you of home and your court hassles.

Just keep pulling weeds, Joseph, and remember to tip your hat to the lady on your corner who has plastic geraniums in her window boxes. Now there's a gal who knows how to stay out of trouble.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Tensions ease at home and you can shift to low gear and still accomplish all you want to. Children and leisure-time activities are favored. Your charm and charisma are high. An honor may come to you.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — You are influential in your sphere now and popular. Some inner conflict regarding responsibility at home and your professional ambitions is indicated. Relax and try to reduce nervous energy and self-doubt.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Take a practical approach to finances and work projects that are long-range. Written communication is favored — put creative, informative thoughts in writing. Work cooperatively with family for domestic joy.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Good news should highlight this week. Be practical and down to earth in job affairs.

Resist wishful thinking and falling for "pie in the sky" deals. Guard diet and eat only fresh, clean foods. Think big about finances.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Social activities are highlighted. Good time to review all security factors — savings accounts, insurance, safety of valuables. If convenient, this is a good time for a vacation. Get advice from travel agents.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Problems in marriage may be caused by unwillingness to compromise. Domestic difficulties can reflect on your attitude at work. Be more outgoing with associates and neighbors. Good time for home decorating.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Pressures at work begin to lift and you can divert some of your attention to more personal concerns. Get plenty of rest, watch diet and guard your health. Take stories you hear now with a grain of salt.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov.

21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Contact with people of importance can be rewarding now. Changes on the job require that you be cooperative and fit in with the new setup. Curb your temper in dealings with mate or partner.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Spirits soar and it is a happy time. New friendships can be very rewarding. Good time to shop for furniture and appliances. Home redecorating is favored. Not the time for financial risk-taking.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — More energy is indicated now and the possibility of travel. Conflict situations with mate and partners change now to more cooperative attitudes. Literary inspiration is high — finish creative projects begun earlier.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — A hard-working week when much can be accomplished. "Do it yourself" now instead of delegating authority. Emotions are energized and you may be somewhat touchy. Delay important romantic decisions.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Review a romantic opportunity previously turned down. Domestic happiness is highlighted. Writing efforts are favored and your creativity and intuition are high. Apply yourself to work for positive benefit.

Now it's Sonny without Cher

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Ironically, it seems now, the first record cut by the team of Sonny and Cher was called "Baby, Don't Go." This goes back to 1965, when Salvatore (Sonny) Bono and Cherilyn Sarkisian, who had met on a blind date and were subsequently married, borrowed $168 and set out to make their first record.

In time, Sonny and Cher would become famous as a result of their musical-comedy series on CBS, which began in the summer of '71 and became a regular feature the following December. They were, in a sense, a latter-day Louis and Keely — Louis Prima and Keely Smith — with their version of married-insult humor. And they were enormously successful.

Before the end of this season, their marriage was on the shoals. Their separation was at first personal and then professional. The show was canceled by CBS. Whereupon, Sonny Bono found a warm reception at ABC and this fall will bring the Sonny Bono Comedy Revue. In other words, Sonny without Cher.

Meanwhile, in the Ladies Home Journal, Cher was quoted as saying that she decided to divorce her husband not because she didn't love him but because he was a "male chauvinist" who, in Cher's words, "couldn't bring himself ... to give me a moment's freedom."

According to Cher, Sonny contends that when a woman comes home, "she must be first a woman, and the moment she becomes a woman, she must do what a man says. Walk three steps behind." He added about Sonny: "He's cute, though, because he's such a stereotype. ... I am sad that it's over but I could not be a person under that regime. Under El Primo, as he calls himself — the El Primo regime. I could be a great extension of him but I could never be me."

Also from Cher: "I wouldn't like to think that he couldn't make it alone, and I wouldn't like to think that I couldn't make it alone, because we're really two good people. I like both of us."

Now they are going their separate ways and it is Sonny who has the television show. But it is obvious, as he talks, that he wishes it were different. And you reflect, on meeting him, that he may be on the small side but not as short as all the Sonny and Cher put-down jokes would have led you to believe. He stands 5 feet 7; Cher is 5 feet 6.

"To sum it up, I could keep doing the show with Cher but she couldn't do the show with me," Sonny is saying. "I had the feeling that our TV series was, in a way, like a hit Broadway show. If one star leaves, they don't shut down the show. CBS didn't feel this way, though. Fortunately, ABC went along with my ideas. And if the show fails without her — well, I've thought about that and if it happens I'll just reach into my bag of tricks and try to pull out another rabbit."

Sonny points out that even after he and Cher announced their legal separation, the show's ratings didn't suffer. "Today America is used to such things," he surmises. "It was nothing that shocked people, the idea of divorce. People can relate to divorce nowadays."

Mini-skirts not the fashion in China

Six girls and eight boys from Glasgow, Scotland, ranging in age from 15 to 20, are spending 14 days visiting Peking, Canton and the Great Wall as part of an international youth exchange program.

The youngsters were advised that the Chinese were against the party carrying big cameras and had reservations about mini-skirts. They were issued copies of "The Thoughts of Chairman Mao." — CNS

HIGH-RISK OLD AND YOUNG DRIVERS

Young drivers are involved in more major accidents than any other age group. Last year, 108 of every 100,000 drivers aged 16-24 were implicated in fatal auto accidents. At the other end of the spectrum are the old-timers who hold the dubious distinction of being the second most dangerous group on the road. Last year, 84 of every 100,000 drivers over the age of 75 were involved in fatal accidents.

With the older drivers, it's a matter of slower reaction time, failing eyesight or super-caution, such as driving at a snail's pace on a high-speed highway which can create havoc on the highway.

With the youngsters, it's most often a case of over-aggressive driving such as "drag racing", burning rubber on the go, weaving in an out of traffic or racing through yellow lights. Give both the aged and the young drivers plenty of room if they exhibit any of these tendencies.

Can Or Freeze Garden Vegetables

We are in the middle of one of the best growing seasons in years, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA], and nature's bounty will be plentiful.

The President's economic advisors blame the weather for inflation, but any day now home gardeners will suffer from inflation of another kind: what to do with all the vegetables that ripened overnight.

But the realization that a dozen once-tiny tomato plants have given you a hundred tomatoes all at once, or that little packet of seeds has turned into a mountain of beans need cause neither panic nor gluttony.

You can preserve most of what you grow and enjoy the bounty throughout the year, says the MDA - and that goes for what you buy when crops are good and prices are lower.

Canning fresh fruits and vegetables is by no means a lost art, and freezing adds another dimension to what our grandmothers could do so well. Mason jars appear in good supply this year, and the advent of plastic pouches, readily sealable and easy to use, makes the task even easier.

But you have to do it right to avoid spoilage, warns the MDA. Reliable, specific instructions as well as recipes are available from many sources. With food costs what they are, and the time and effort involved, you should know exactly what to do, and follow the rules to the letter. There are no short cuts.

The following booklets are free upon request from The Office of Communications, U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250; "Home Freezing of Fruits and Vegetables" [G-106]; "Home Freezing of Poultry" [G-70]; "Freezing Meat and Fish in the Home" [G-93]; "Freezing Combination Main Dishes" [G-40].

The August issue of Family Circle carries an excellent article, complete with instructions and many recipes, on preserving summer's bounty, as well as further information available from the makers of canning jars and plastic food pouches. You may not have to look any further.

From Massachusetts farms this week, you'll find green and wax beans in good supply, as well as carrots and beets. Fresh sweet corn is being picked daily, and carried home as fast as it comes from the field. Blueberries, yellow and zucchini squash, vine-ripened tomatoes and the salad crops are also reasonably plentiful.

Susan Connelly In Economic Education Experiment

An Atherton Hough School teacher is one of 175 teachers throughout the country who will take part in an experimental fellowship program in economic education this summer.

Miss Susan A. Connelly of 153 Hinckley Rd., Milton, a fifth grade teacher at Atherton Hough, will attend a two-week summer institute in economics and career education at the University of New Hampshire from July 29 to Aug. 9.

This is one of 34 educational workshops to be offered in various states this summer under the sponsorship of the Sears-Roebuck Foundation in cooperation with the Joint Council on Economic Education.

The institute at UNH is designed for teachers of grades one through eight. It will cover economic concepts, teaching methods, classroom activities and instructional materials. There will also be field trips, guest speakers from local businesses and industries, and demonstration classes involving students from a local school.

Blueberry Patch Not Open To Public

Although the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture lists Angelo Ricci's blueberry farm as a do-it-yourself patch, it will not be open to the public.

One should telephone individual growers in advance to verify whether or not they are do-it-yourself patches.

Home Garden Pest Control

About this time of the season, the home gardener begins to be bothered by plant problems caused by insects or plant diseases. There are so many different problems and remedies that MDA is unable to publish a rundown. If you're not satisfied with the job your present remedies are doing, you're welcome to call MDA Division of Plant Pest Control at [617] 727-3031 and ask for advice.

Margret Murphy Attends Media Institute

Margaret Murphy, a special education teacher at Snug Harbor School, attended a 10-day summer Media Institute at Boston College.

She was one of 41 teachers and administrators preparing for the integration of special-needs children into the everyday classroom this fall.

The program emphasized the use of media as a learning device, giving particular attention to the needs of children with learning disabilities, such as hyper-activity, dyslexia, and hearing, vision and mobility problems.

Youngsters Perform In 'Circus Ring' At A.S. Library

The exhibition hall in the Adams Shore Library was recently turned into a circus ring for two performances.

One was held for the area children and repeated for parents and relatives of the performers.

The program opened with 15 story hour clowns and 15 junior clowns, plus three senior clowns marching to circus music and doing cartwheels, somersaults. The story hour clowns followed, with recitation of a poem titled: Circus Day.

The junior clowns performed in 16 various acts with costume changes.

Senior clowns Bob Fanning, Dennis Hines and George Davies performed in-between acts. Bill Bloomer was the ringmaster.

A book parade brought the program to a close. All the children carried the many different books the library has with a costume to match.

Make-up artists were high school students, Nancy Gott and Carolyn Doane.

The program was under the direction of Blanche Eckert, children's librarian, assisted by staff members Ann Aronson and Anne Keating.

Children who performed were: Story hour clowns Kevin Dempsey, Maureen Donovan, Amy Donahue, MaryFrances Kelly, Laurie Kohut, Jay LesPasio, Michael McCarthy, Eileen McCloskey, Christine Menz, Kerri Magee, Matthew O'Brien, Guy Page, Deanna Roache, Linda Flaherty and Patricia Thornton.

Junior clowns: Deborah, Kathy and Lisa Mullaney, Terri and Paul Roache, Marty Griffin, Michael McGunagle, Bobby Roach, Danny Stewart, AnnMarie McCarthy, Brigitte Hunt, Sandra Walsh, Lynn Manton, Roberta Hennessey, Andrea Salaris and Tina Curley.

Kenneth Fallon Receives Special Recognition From UCT

Kenneth P. Fallon Jr., of Quincy, past supreme counselor [international president] of the Order of United Commercial Travelers of America [UCT], received special recognition at the recent UCT convention in Ontario.

Fallon was awarded a citation "in recognition of his outstanding leadership and faithful, meritorious and distinguished service."

Although born in Philadelphia, Fallon has lived most of his life in Quincy, receiving his education in Quincy schools and at Northeastern University.

At the age of 18, he became a member of Wollaston Council 594 of UCT. He was elected senior counselor in 1947 and became a past counselor two years later. Elected grand sentinel in 1949, he became a past grand counselor in 1955.

Fallon was elected supreme counselor in 1970, serving through 1971. He then served one year as chairman of UCT's international board of governors.

Also attending the convention was Donald M. Deware, of Quincy, grand conductor of the grand councilor.

The UCT is a fraternal benefit service society, founded in Columbus, Ohio in 1888.

Fallon is vice-president and commercial manager of the South Shore Broadcasting Co., which operates Radio Station WJDA in Quincy.

He is active in civic and community work, having served on the Park and Recreation Board for 20 years. He is a member of the Elks, Wollaston Business and Professional Association, Quincy Bay Race Week Association, a vice-president and director of the Shipbuilders Co-operative

SOUTH SHORE NATIONAL VS. THE SAVINGS BANKS

A savings account at a savings bank will pay you about 1/4 % more than a savings account at South Shore National Bank.

For most people, who average somewhere under $1000 in savings, that comes to around $3 a year.

So we say, put your savings into South Shore National, in a Multistatement account.

We'll give you free checking.

And 10% refunds on the interest you pay on your loans.

And you'll come out way ahead with us. (We're beating the savings banks at their own game.)

THE MULTISTATEMENT PACKAGE:

FREE CHECKING, 10% REFUND OF THE PAID FINANCE CHARGES ON ANY INSTALLMENT LOAN OF $1500 OR MORE WHICH IS PUT ON MULTISTATEMENT WITHIN 90 DAYS FROM THE DATE OF THE LOAN. MAXIMUM INTEREST ALLOWABLE BY LAW ON ALL SAVINGS. REQUIREMENTS: (1) MULTISTATEMENT CUSTOMER MUST HAVE CHECKING ACCOUNT AND AT

LEAST ONE SAVINGS OR NOW ACCOUNT WITH SOUTH SHORE NATIONAL BANK; (2) MINIMUM TOTAL MONTHLY BALANCE SPREAD AMONG ALL ACCOUNTS: $200. ALSO AVAILABLE: CLUB ACCOUNTS, AUTOMATIC SAVINGS PLAN, AUTOMATIC LOAN PAYMENT PLAN, CHECK CREDIT. THE STATUS OF ALL ACCOUNTS IS REPORTED MONTHLY ON ONE SIMPLE STATEMENT.

Ray Cattaneo To Get Park-Recreation Board Post?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Richard Koch hasn't made up his mind yet whether to accept the new $20,591 Commissioner of Natural Resources post, for which he is being tapped by Mayor Walter Hannon.

There are a few personal matters he wants to work out first but the feeling around City Hall is that he will then take the job.

As commissioner he would head up the so-called "earth departments": park, recreation, cemetery, conservation, forestry. The heads of those departments would be accountable to him.

And when he says "Yes" and takes the job, who will succeed him as executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Board?

Insiders are betting that the job will go to his present right arm, Ray Cattaneo.

MAKES YOU WONDER Dept. Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly recently spoke out in opposition to conditions at a drinking spot. The Licensing Board suspended the license for 30 days.

Word got around that there would be retaliation—not from the owner of the drinking spot—but from one, two or more who frequented the place.

And crash! Bricks were tossed through his place of business.

A sad commentary when a public official cannot speak out on an issue without some childish wreck or weirdos acting up like the Dead End Kids out of a 1940 movie.

THAT MUST HAVE been some political pow-wow Monday morning at a Quincy Center eating spot. Seen leaving a backroom [not necessarily in this order]: Senator Arthur Tobin, former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, Rep. Thomas Brownell, Councillor John Lydon, Councillor Warren Powers, Richard Koch, executive secretary Park-Recreation Board, Quincy Court Clerk Dennis Ryan and former Councillor Edward Graham. Well, they weren't playing Beano.

COUNTY COMMISSIONER George McDonald seeking the Democratic nomination for sheriff, has been endorsed by Local 941, Brotherhood of Firemen & Oilers. Because "you have always been a friend of labor and the working man."

McDonald, incidentally, will be honored at a fund-raising cocktail party at Boraschi's, Rte 1, Dedham, Monday, Aug. 5, from 7 to 9 p.m.

BARON HUGO, playing at the Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Pageant, brought back a lot of fond memories for local big band fans who remember him, Glenn Miller, Harry James, etc. at the old Totem Pole.

The Quincy YMCA's Norma Finnegan confessed to Baron: "I cried when the Totem Pole burned down."

And Baron, himself recalled another fire and this story:

He had an engagement coming up and needed an accordionist. He called a certain one on the telephone and the fellow said "No, I can't make it." Baron called him several more times.

The fellow said "No, I'm going out that night with some friends. We've got something special on."

But Baron refused to give up, called him again, and finally the guy said, "All right. I'll do it just to get you off my back."

So they played the engagement. The following morning Baron's phone rang and the accordionist was on the end of the line in tears. "You saved my life," he cried.

"What do you mean, I saved your life?" Baron asked bewildered.

The accordionist then explained that the special night out he had planned until Baron talked him out of it was at the Coconut Grove. It was the night it burned down.

IT WILL BE "Fred Bergfors, Sr. Day" at the Quincy Rotary Club Aug. 6. Bergfors has been a Rotarian for 50 years and—has a perfect attendance record!

FAMILY AFFAIR: Carmine D'Olimpio, the trades union head and wife, Amy, just got in the habit when they started picking out names for their five children. Each one has the same initials: "D.D." They're: Darlene, 22, David, 21, Debbie, 18, Diane, 15 and Doug, 8. So, as you can see, none of them was nicknamed "DD".

NICE GESTURE DEPT: Vi Pace honored recently by City Hall colleagues at a retirement party after serving the city 43 years in the Mayor's and City Solicitor's office, received a specially decorated three-tier cake from Ernie Montillio. Vi later brought it to the children at the Paul Dever State School in Taunton.

HAIR, HAIR! Latest members of the Quincy Beard Club: Joseph Shea, Mayor Hannon's executive secretary; Basil Caloia, School Department purchasing agent, and Daniel Driscoll, assistant planning director.

SMILE DEPT: Atty. Richard Barry says he must be getting stronger. Just a few years ago a $10 bag of groceries seemed heavy.

Heritage Slide Program Available

After five months of preparation, a slide and sound show called "Quincy's Pride: Patriots, Presidents and Possibilities" is now ready for presentation to groups and organizations in the city of Quincy.

Featuring the programs of Quincy Heritage for the Bicentennial of the nation's birth and the 350th anniversary of the founding of Mount Wollaston, some 140 slides depict what will be happening during the next two and one-half years.

The script for the program was written by Executive Director John R. Graham. Narration for the program was done by Winslow Bettinson of WJDA.

In announcing the program, Graham said,

"We're delighted to have this 15 minute show for the citizens of the city. We will be glad to present it for all types of groups, both large and small because it makes clear that the City of Quincy is well prepared for the coming years of celebration."

In addition, to presentations to groups, the show will be available for "counter top" showings in banks, stores and local businesses. Utilizing special equipment the program can be viewed automatically on a television type screen.

The program may be booked through the Quincy Heritage office in City Hall.

LINC Summer Workshop To Begin Aug. 5

Project LINC's Summer Workshop for 27 teachers and administrators of the Quincy Public Schools will emphasize the use of community projects as learning resources.

It will start Aug. 5 in the Quincy Method Center of Quincy High School and is planned to train teachers in the use of community activities as a learning resource. These will include the Quincy District Court and local banking institutions.

Teachers will carry back to the Learning Center ways in which the community facets could be best used by students. Teachers will be asked to outline tests which will be given to students before and after going to these centers.

William Sullivan, teacher training director of Quincy High School will be assisted by Dr. Anton Lahnsen of Boston University and Mrs. Maureen Oates, Projects Evaluation consultant.

Boardwalk To Be Checked For Repairs

Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti, said a foreman will "inspect, make an appraisal and effect proper repairs" of the boardwalk from Sea St. to the dike.

His announcement came in response to a letter written by Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly who had received several citizen complaints about "the deplorable condition" of the boardwalk. Kelly said:

"This boardwalk is used as an access to Rock Island Cove and in its present condition is potentially dangerous to the public."

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Please Love Me'

Maggie was a beautiful young wife. She was desperately trying to save her marriage. She was telling me her philosophy of marriage and her attitude toward men. "I want to be an adult woman to an adult man" ... she said. "I don't feel that I want to be taken care of ... nor do I want my husband to feel responsible for me. I want to be able to talk with him ... say what I feel ... expect him to say what he feels. I want us to plan together ... work together ... party together ... make love together. I don't think I'm asking too much. I keep myself trim and healthy and sexy."

Maggie went on to say that when she was a little girl her mother taught her to put on perfume each evening after her bath before going to bed. One night she said ... "but mommy, why? There's no one in bed with me." Her mother's answer ... "I know, dear, but some day there will be." That mother was preparing Maggie to be an adult woman ... an adult wife.

Yet ... with all her early life preparation ... with all that she was doing now to show consideration to her man ... always ready for fun times ... to entertain ... to talk ... able to make rational adjustments in the relationship ... she didn't feel loved. When she told Sigmund her husband that she felt unloved, his response was ... "I'm still here ... still married to you." Maggie was perplexed ... should she terminate the marriage? There were three children and 14 years of emotional investment ... each year she had lived on hopes that it would get better. It didn't. Sig had come on strong as a lover boy in the courtship ... fast car

... money from his part time job ... lots of parties. Within five years after the marriage all Sig wanted to do was to stay at home ... look at television ... drink beer ... prejudiced ... bullheaded ... rigid. He had a big belly now ... (he averaged a dozen cans of beer per night) ... lay there on the divan in his underwear. He was the very image of his own father. It was to this man that Maggie was pleading ... "Please love me."

Sig didn't know how. His whole life was at a standstill at age 41 ... passed over by his company for promotions ... sour in disposition ... indolent. Sig didn't know what he wanted in life ... didn't know how to love himself or anyone else. Maggie did. The marriage was not saved. But it had a happy ending for Maggie ... because she was very eligible ... knew how to relate to a strong man ... met him and remarried within two years.

Nothing will kill marriage love any quicker than bull headedness and dullness ... and persons who do not love themselves ... who depreciate themselves ... and each other. One or both is not growing as a person ... one or both has a poor image of himself/herself.

You can't love me if you don't love yourself. It's the biggest problem in marriage ... so all the other problems rear their ugly heads.

Contestant Has Thoughts On QBRW Pageant

Editor, Quincy Sun:

This is to request that you print the following:

As a participant in the Beauty Pageant on Friday night I feel behooved to express some thoughts.

I thoroughly enjoyed the opportunity to participate in the contest and I believe the Beauty Pageant, in itself, was well organized and handled smoothly.

As one of the finalists I was asked the question "What do you think could be done to improve Miss Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant?" - or words to that effect. I would like to add to that question the words "for the SAFETY and COMFORT of the thousands of viewers."

The following expresses my sentiment.

Seating is provided for a relative handful of people while thousands stand pressing against the crowds and stretching to gain a quick glance of relative or friend on the platform. Hundreds of young people climb on top of buildings to see what is going on [some had even climbed on the billboard on top of buildings]. I had a frightening thought as I watched all those teenagers sitting precipitously "over the edge" 50 feet in the air and wondered about the result of a slight overbalance or a gentle push from the crowd - in one word "BIZARRE".

My sister was one of those on top of a building - very poor judgement on her part for which she paid dearly. In the darkness she tripped and fell against concrete and broke all her front teeth - in one word SAD.

My sister suffered a great loss but before someone suffers a greater one, either cancel the event or change its location to provide SAFETY and COMFORT for all those wonderful people who show up to support the occasion.

Two consecutive days of ocean racing sponsored by the Quincy Bay Race Week Association to stimulate continued interest in the cruising type of sailboat are set for this week-end.

The Frank E. Remick ocean race will be held Saturday in two fleets so popular has this attraction become. Fleet 1 consists of boats from 26 feet overall length to 45 feet overall and Fleet 2 for boats from 17 feet waterline length to under 26 feet overall length.

In 1959 the trophy was presented to the Quincy Bay Race Week Association by Frank E. Remick for competition between ocean racing sailboats. Because of the large number of boats competing it was decided to divide the race into two fleets. Remick again presented the Association with a second trophy for the winner of Fleet 2.

Last year George Prout won the Fleet 1 honors and Dick Haley the Fleet 2 race for the second year in a row.

The silver punch bowl has been in the custody of the Quincy Club for better than half a century. It was presented to the City of Boston in 1905 for a Boston to Bermuda race which was never held. In 1911 the city again placed the cup in competition to become the permanent possession of the winner. That race was won by Hollis Burgess in his sloop, Marie L.

Burgess made the Quincy Y.C.

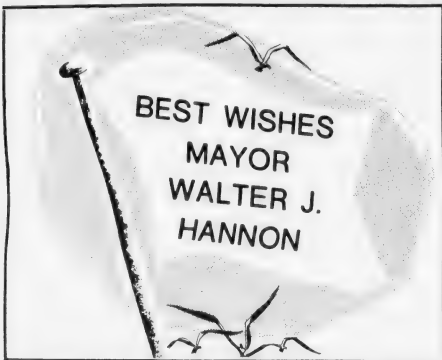

the trustee of the silver bowl to be placed in annual competition. In 1968 the Quincy Y.C. presented the trophy to the Quincy Bay Race Week Association for Race Week competition. Dick Haley won this trophy in 1972.

The Harry Warner Memorial trophy race will be held on Sunday, Aug. 4, after the start of the Boston to Bermuda Cup race. Taking part in this contest will be cruising type trimarans.

In last year's Bermuda Cup Race the winner was N. Marcus' "Silkie" of the Metropolitan Yacht Club. Runner-up in the ocean race was Dick Haley of the South Shore Yacht Club who sailed his "Checkmate". Following them were J. Gilbert's "Irish Mist", Corinthian Yacht Club and G. Prout's "Mt. Lion Eater" flying the colors of the Boston Yacht Club.

The cup, a silver punch bowl, was originally established as a trophy for the Boston to Bermuda race. The race was never held with the Quincy Yacht Club coming into possession of the silver bowl in 1911 when Hollis Burgess won it for a Labor Day ocean race.

In all of the races the trophies will be held by the winners until Race Week of the following year when they will be returned to the Association. An engraved keeper trophy will be awarded each winner for his permanent possession.

37th Annual Event

Quincy Race Week Gets Bigger, Better

By JAMES COLLINS

Quincy Bay Race Week now underway for its 37th year has become a popular water sports showcase and spectacular.

Quincy Yacht Club, celebrating its 100th anniversary this year as the granddaddy of South Shore clubs, is host.

A year ago more than 400 boats and some 1,500 sailors competed in the daily events and social activities. This year's Race Week Association President William Munroe, a past commodore of the Wessagussett Yacht Club estimates a bigger and better event.

Racing is being held each day from one of the participating yacht clubs. Racing got underway Wednesday at Quincy.

Today [Thursday] the Town River Club will be host, using the facilities at Wessagussett. Friday the Braintree Yacht Club will have the honors at the same facilities. Saturday Wollaston will play host; and Sunday the Metropolitan Yacht Club will use the facilities at Squantum.

Friday night, the gala night will be held at the Quincy Yacht Club and Rendezvous Night will be held on Saturday, Aug. 3, at the Town River Yacht Club.

The colorful Marine Parade will be held Sunday, starting at noontime with the boats leaving Town River and proceeding from Wessagussett to Quincy along Manet Beach [Houghs Neck] off Nut Island and Wollaston Beach to the Squantum Yacht Club.

QUINCY BAY RACE WEEK officers are David Maloney, treasurer, Kenneth Lavers, vice president, William Munroe, president and Edward Dimpson, secretary.

Braintree Donates 2 Trophies

The Braintree Yacht Club has donated two additional trophies for ocean racing competition.

On Saturday, Aug. 21, a race from Quincy Bay to Marblehead will be conducted for the Kenneth Whorf Memorial Trophy. Whorf, a former member of the club was a skipper in many of the ocean races conducted in past years.

The following day the fleet will compete for the Tony Barcellas trophy. The race will start at Marblehead and will finish in Quincy Bay. The race honors Barcellas who has been a member of the club for 20 years.

Yachtsmen Have Tradition Of Excellence To Live Up To

Yachtsmen taking part in the 37th annual Quincy Bay Race Week which opened Wednesday for five days have a tradition of excellence to live up to.

Established in 1938 by the Quincy, Wollaston, and Squantum clubs who formed the association Quincy Bay Race Week has been an outstanding success ever since. In the years that followed Town River Y.C. and Wessagussett joined up to make the event an area success.

Edward P. Shaw of the Wollaston Club was the first president. Other officers included Roy McPherson of the Quincy Club as the first vice president; George Hey of Squantum, treasurer and Arthur Leavitt first secretary.

Former Mayor and Senator Thomas S. Burgin was named honorary chairman and presided over the year's first activities. He provided a trophy for the Adams Class and his successor as honorary chairman, former Boston Mayor Maunce J. Tobin set up another in 1939. He became Governor and was chief of the judges for the Marine Parade in 1946 which had the largest number of entries.

In the following years the Merrymount club dissolved and was succeeded in membership by the Wessagussett club. Last year the Braintree and Metropolitan clubs were added to the Association.

Among the prizes added to the competition are the Remick Trophies and awards in memory of James B. Findlay, Howard Gannett, John Reynolds and Fred Hunt.

Colorful Marine Parade Sunday

One of the most colorful marine spectacles and unique in yachting events will be the Marine Parade which will pass near enough to the shoreline to be viewed by many South Shore residents.

It will start Sunday, Aug. 4, at noontime from the Town River Yacht Club overlooking Town River. Leading the flotilla of boats will be the Quincy Police Boat, Guardian, under the command of Captain Joseph Lind.

The parade will proceed past the Quincy Yacht Club and Nut Island going through the West Gut; along Manet Beach, Post Island, Wollaston Beach, to the Squantum Yacht Club.

Al Shaughnessy is chief marshal and Charles Romano is marine parade chairman. As in the past, trophies and prizes will be awarded and presented at a later date to the most attractively decorated power boats. Invitations have been extended to all 68 yacht clubs in Massachusetts to participate.

Sailors Of All Ages Compete For Handsome Trophies

Sailors of all ages will be competing for a number of handsome and coveted trophies during Quincy Bay Race Week.

The Capt. James Berwick Finlay Memorial Trophy presented to the Quincy Yacht Club in 1948 by Alfred W. Finlay in memory of his son.

He did much during his lifetime to advance the sport of yachting on Mass. Bay and the trophy is awarded annually to the yachtsman considered to have made the most outstanding record or to have performed some signal act of sportsmanship during Race Week.

Last year's winner was Robert Marks. It is annually engraved and remains in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club. An engraved replica will become the permanent possession of the winner.

The Howard Gannett Memorial Trophy has been presented annually since 1954 in memory of Howard Gannett who served for more than 50 years as secretary of the Race Committee and was a member of the Race Committee from 1938 until his death in 1953. It is presented annually to the race week winner in a class to be selected by the committee.

The Fred Hunt Memorial trophy is a perpetual award presented annually since 1966 by The Patriot Ledger in memory of the late yachting editor who served for more than three decades. The trophy is presented annually to the skipper who has proven his ability in the Race Week series; has demonstrated a high degree of sportsmanship; and the willingness to help others in the advancement of yacht racing. It is held one year by the home club of the recipient who receives a replica for his permanent possession.

The Reynolds Memorial Trophy was presented to the Quincy Bay Race Week Association in 1966 by the family of John Reynolds, an ardent supporter of and a skipper in the Day Sailor Class until his death in 1965.

The trophy is awarded annually and is held by the winner for a year until race week of the following year when it is returned to the Association. A suitable engraved keeper trophy is being awarded annually to the winner of the previous year for his permanent possession. The 1973 winner was George C. Shey.

Two handsome trophies have been presented by Frank E. Remick to the Quincy Bay Race Week Committee to stimulate interest in cruising type sailboats. The Remick ocean race is divided into two fleets, Fleet 1 for boats 17 feet to 26 feet overall won last year by George Prout of the Boston Yacht Club; and Fleet 2 for boats, 26 to 45 feet overall. Winners last year were Richard Haley of the South Shore Yacht club and Michael Conley.

The City of Boston Bermuda Cup which has been in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club for over 50 years was presented by the City of Boston for a yacht race from Boston to Bermuda.

While that race was never held the city in 1911 put up the cup for an ocean race to become the permanent possession of the winner. The winner was Hollis Burgess, a Quincy Yacht Club member, in his sloop, Marie L. Burgess made the Quincy Yacht Club the trustee of the cup which was to be placed in annual competition as a perpetual trophy.

In 1968 the Quincy Yacht Club donated the cup to the Quincy Bay Race Week Association for race week competition. The winner is presented a Keeper trophy which is to be suitably engraved for his permanent possession. The 1973 winner was Peter Marcus of the Boston Yacht Club.

The 1300 Trophy has been presented each year since 1960 to the Quincy Bay Race Week Association by Radio Station WJDA to demonstrate its great interest in Quincy Bay Race Week and to stimulate racing interest among the junior class. This beautiful trophy is awarded annually and becomes the permanent possession of the winning skipper in the popular Turnabout Class, the 1973 winner was John Dolbec of the Wollaston Club.

The Commodore Isadore

SQUANTUM YACHT CLUB officers are Vice Commodore Gerald Neal, Commodore Joseph Bergano and Rear Commodore John White.

Bromfield Trophy will be presented for the first time by the Commonwealth National Bank of Boston. It will be presented annually to a Race Week winner. He will be presented a suitably engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

The Harry Warner Memorial Trophy was presented to the Quincy Bay Race Week Association and the Town River Yacht Club in 1968 by the Warner Family as a perpetual trophy to be raced for by cruising type tramarans. It is annually engraved and is held by the winner until Race Week the following year when it is returned to the Association. A suitable keeper trophy is to be awarded to the winner for his permanent possession.

Gala, Rendezvous Nights Social Highlights Of QBRW

Two outstanding social events are among the traditional highlights of Quincy Bay Race Week.

Gala Night will be held at the Quincy Yacht Club, senior yacht racing unit in Boston Bay, Friday night featuring a surprise program. President William Munroe of the Quincy Bay Race Week Association and Commodore Bernard McCourt will extend a cordial welcome to all members of the club and visiting yachtsmen and their guests. A special menu has been planned to be followed by entertainment and dancing.

Race Week officers in addition to Munroe, include, Kenneth Lavers, vice president; Edward Simpson, secretary; and David Maloney, treasurer. Aides to Commodore McCourt will be Rear Commodore Robert Larsen and Vice Commodore Richard Patten.

The second event will be "Rendezvous Night" Saturday at the Town River Yacht Club with dancing for skippers and crews. President William Munroe and his staff of officers of the Quincy Bay Race Week Committee will be assisted by Commodore Sal Gallinaro and his staff in welcoming the guests. Memories of previous Race Week will be recalled as plans for another successful season next year are discussed.

Reds, Blues Win In Squirt House League

●Around The Buoys Grogan Brothers QYC Triple Interclub Winners

By JAMES COLLINS

The Grogan Brothers of the Quincy Yacht Club, Kevin and Edward, were triple winners in week-end yachting victories.

In addition to capturing the Thunderbird trophy they also came home with two other top prizes.

They were awarded the Commodore Bernard E. McCourt Trophy for winning the Quincy to the Boston Lightship Race and the Amos L. Merritt Championship, a handsome silver trophy, for being the first boat from the Quincy Yacht Club Fleet to cross the finish line. Both young men have been members of the Quincy Yacht Club for two years.

The Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs joined forces last Saturday in the annual Quincy Bay Races. Henry Welsh led the fleet home in the Hustler Class. Patrick Morrissey eked out a scant 8-second victory in the Laser Class over Robert Dolbec. The Flying Scots from the Squantum Club made a good showing with Margaret Durkin's No. 1558 coming home first in 1 min. 30 sec. Ann Conroy's No. 1213 finished second. The fleet was small as most of the boats were at Marblehead Race Week.

The results:

Flags Stolen Again At Youth Arena

Who's got the flags?

For the third time in nine months, that same question must be asked.

Jack Powers, manager of Quincy Youth Arena, reported that three flags were stolen from the rink last week: the Canadian flag, the State Flag and the Quincy Youth Hockey Association flag.

These three flags and the American flag were stolen from the rink last October. They were recovered, Powers said, two weeks later.

In March the four flags were again stolen. That time they were never returned. Replacement cost totaled an estimated $89. Powers said:

"If anyone has the flags, we'd like him to return them, so as not to keep incurring replacement expenses."

He appealed to the residents of Quincy "to check with their kids," assuming if youngsters took them they would display the flags in a cellar, in a bedroom, or somewhere.

●Senior League

Whitman Cats Claw Clovers, 10-5

The Whitman Cats exploded for seven goals in the final period to top the Quincy Clovers, 10-5, in the Quincy Senior Summer Hockey League at the Youth Arena.

Whitman took a 3-1 lead into the wild third period, Tim Morrill having scored Quincy's goal in the opening session. The third period saw 11 goals being scored.

Quincy scored two quick one to tie the score as P. J. Flaherty scored after only 19 seconds with an assist for John Cuniff and Cuniff scored 11 seconds later with Frank Guest and Bob Fowkes assisting. Whitman then scored four goals for a 7-3 lead and the best Quincy could do was add a goal by Flaherty at 8:05 with assists for Cuniff and Guest and another by Larry Fitzgerald at 14:09 with Morrill assisting.

The Atlantic Flames handed the Boston Budmen their first loss of the season, 9-5, scoring five goals in the final period.

The Walpole Chiefs, in last place, shocked the Newman Club, 8-1.

Next Wednesday Atlantic will play Whitman at 6:30, Quincy will meet Newman Club at 8:15 and Walpole will face Boston at 10 p.m.

●Executive League

Greens Edge Golds, Blues, Reds Tie

The Greens edged the Golds, 2-0, in the Summer Executive Hockey League at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Fran Whalen scored both goals with Bob Hayes and Bernie Toland assisting on the first and Bibby Lewis and Hayes on the second.

The Blues and Reds played to a 3-3 tie with the Reds rallying from a 3-1 first period deficit. Jack Powers scored the first goal for the Blues with Marty Tolson

●Midget House

White Team Takes Top Spot

The White team took over sole possession of first place in the Midget House League with a 6-5 win over the Greens, while the Orange team, which had been tied for the lead, dropped a 5-4 decision to the Reds.

Mark Paolucci and Bamberg had two assists each, Dan Maurano and Connors one apiece. For the Greens Joe Carty had the hat trick, Ed Laracy and Bob Carmody one goal each. John O'Donnell, Hugh McDermott, John Cavanaugh and Brian Nevins had assists.

Dennis Bertoni paced the Red win with two goals and Rich DiPietro, Bill Monahan and Ed McDonald had one each. Bertoni also had two assists, Pete Higgins and DiPietro one each. For the Orange team Bill Morrison, Jeff Harrison, Jim Constan and Kevin Doyle had the goals and Paul Flanders had three assists, Jeff Harrison, Morrison and Doyle one each.

●Bantam House

Reds Upset Greens, Yellows, Blues Win

The Red team handed the Greens their first loss in the Bantam House League, 5-4, but the Reds held on to their league lead.

Mike Soldano had two goals, Mike Walsh, Ken Kustka and Pat Bamberg one each for the Reds, while Kustka had two assists.

For the Greens Dave Lewis had two goals, Steve White and Tom Pistorino one each with Mark O'Brien and Mike Bondarich having assists.

The Yellows defeated the White team, 6-2, with Billy Deitsch having two goals, Bobby Hayes, Ron Mariano, Mike Walsh and Danny Higgins one each. Tommy Brennan had two assists, Hayes, Bryan McGilvray, Deitsch, Billy Allen and Kevin O'Leary one each. For the Whites Danny Sullivan, Brian Duane had the goals and John Kelly, Mike Bennett and Jackie Quigg assists.

The Blues defeated the Orange team, 4-1, with Ken Kustka having two goals, Lou Mathews and Kevin Welch one each. John Kelly had two assists, Welch, Mathews, John Norton and Mike Van Tassel one each. Paul Palmer scored for the Orange.

●Pee Wee House

Blues Hold Lead, Yellows, Reds Win

The Blue team kept its two-game lead in the Pee Wee House League with a 6-3 win over the Orange team.

The win was the sixth in seven games for the Blues. Bob Currier had the hat trick for the winners, Freddie Palmer had two goals and Mark Veasey the other. Mark Boussy and Bob Larson had two assists each, Tommy Mullen and John Lyons one apiece. For the Orange team Scott Richardson had two goals and Ed Campbell one with assists for Charles McManus and Joey Lamparelli.

The Yellows bombed the Whites, 11-4, as Bobby Beniers erupted for six goals. Tony Chiochio had two, Steve Walsh, Tommy Heffernan and Bob Welch one each. Walsh had three assists, Mike Doherty four, Heffernan and Jim Paolucci two each, Mike Nevins, Chiochio and Kevin Coymann one each. Mark Messina had two goals for the Whites, Mike Quigg and Dick Ryan one each with two assists for Billy Mathews, and one each for Tom McHugh, Paul Melia, Billy Doran and Quigg.

The Reds edged the Greens, 7-6, due partly to the outstanding goal tending of P. T.

Kelley for the Reds who, despite six goals, made some brilliant saves.

Robbie Zanardelli had the hat trick for the Reds, Robbie Craig, Eddie O'Gara, Eddie Doherty and Karl Nord one goal apiece. Nord had four assists, Craig three, Zanardelli two, Johnny Toland, John Keeley, Billy O'Neil, O'Gara and Dick Wright one each. For the Greens Kevin McCormick had two goals, Paul Dunphy, Timmy Joy, Joe Carroll and Paul McGrath one apiece. John Martin had three assists, Chuckie Marshall, McGrath, Carroll and McCormick one each.

●Mite House

Orange Team Holds Lead

The Orange team held the lead in the Mite House League as it tied the Blues, 6-6.

Ricky Cicchese had the hat trick for Orange and Danny Kelly, Mark Loughman and Jeff Murphy had the other goals. Kelly had three assists, Dan Roden and Chicchese one apiece.

Scott Messina exploded for five goals for the Blues and Bob Drury had the other. Messina had the only assist.

The Greens walloped the Reds, 10-2, as Bobby Forman had four goals, Bobby McCabe and Steve White two each, Mark McManus and Dennis Shannon one each. White had three assists and John O'Connor two. For the Reds Chris Hurley had both goals and Mathew Norton and Tom Houlihan had assists.

The Yellows topped the Whites, 6-4.

● Junior Baseball HN Edges VFW, Bombs Sears

In the semi-finals of the Junior Baseball League Houghs Neck swept two straight edging VFW, 4-3, and walloping Sears, 14-3.

In the first game, an extra inning affair, Greg Oriola and Jeff Giordani shared the pitching for Houghs Neck. Bob Cronin and Tom McFarland had doubles for Houghs Neck and other hits were collected by Greg Maddan, McFarland, Matt Kenny and Giordani. Paul O'Toole had two triples and other VFW hits were collected by Gordon Spencer and Bruce Tobin.

In the romp over Sears, winning pitcher Mike Abboud had 10 strikeouts and walked only one. Abboud and Giordani had doubles and Madden, Giordani, Steve Notorangelo, McFarland and Kevin McKinnon had other hits. Steve Picot had a home run and Mark Messina and Bob Flynn other hits for Sears.

Sears bombed Kiwanis, 19-1, with Messina having three for four and Picot and Bill Deitsch two hits apiece. Chris Baker and Brian Deitsch combined for a spectacular play in the sixth. Deitsch was the winning pitcher, giving up just one hit, striking out 12 and walking three. Mike Martin and Kiwanis' hit while Billy O'Connell and Bill O'Malley played well on defense.

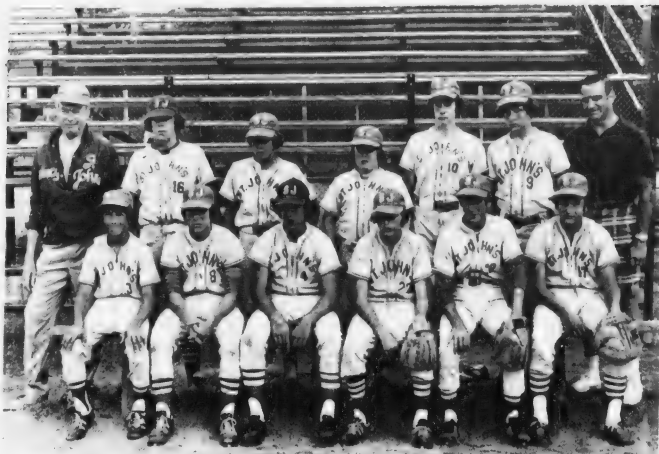

Gino's Wallops Elks In Babe Ruth Loop

In the Quincy Babe Ruth League Gino's walloped Elks, 16-3.

Joe Dean and Bill Ross had three hits apiece and every other member of the team had one hit. Bersani's nipped Elks, 8-7, on Jim McConville's squeeze bunt in the 10th inning. Paul Marini hit a home run for Elks.

St. John's Cadets In CYO State Championships Next Week

St. John's Cadet baseball team will compete in the CYO state championship playoffs Monday Aug. 5 at Merrymount Field, Quincy, beginning at 6 p.m.

St. John's, winners of the Quincy-South Shore Deanery Cadet Division, will play the winner of a game to be played Sunday, Aug. 4 at Merrymount between St. Peter's of Dorchester and St. Anthony's of Revere at 4 p.m.

St. John's lost but one game in regular season play and has played exhibition games with several Quincy Babe Ruth League teams. In a recent game with the Quincy Police team, winners of the Division championship, St. John's lost a hard fought contest 9 to 4. Mike Murphy was the winning pitcher for the Police team. Joe Lavezzo pitched the entire game for St. John's. Don Heath, Lavezzo, Brian Jolley and Rick Ryan were the big hitters for St. John's.

Starsiak, Condon Lead CYO

Dick Starsiak of Quincy, the Ponkapoag Golf Club champion, and blond Steve Condon of Newton, the New England CYO champion, led a field of 100 with two over par rounds of 74 each in the 35th annual CYO Senior Division open gold championship at Ponkapoag Golf Course in Canton.

In the big boy's division Condon had a steady day with nine straight pars on the front nine before making a bogey on the 15th and 16th coming home. Steve is 21, in graduate school at Florida State. He won the senior medal last year and was runner-up before going on to win the New England tournament.

Starsiak won the club championship two years over stiff opposition. In going out he was 3 under par but steadied on the return trip to win one under par.

Senior Babe Ruth

South Shore All-Stars Seek N.E. Title At Stamford

The South Shore Senior Babe Ruth League All-Stars, including four members of Quincy's Data Services team, will seek the New England championship this weekend at Stamford, Conn., after winning the state title last weekend in Dennis.

The team leaves today [Thursday] for the N.E. tournament.

South Shore breezed through the state tourney unbeaten, winning three games in a row in the double elimination event.

In the opener Quincy's Gerry Bugden hurled South Shore to a 2-1 win over the host Dennis team in extra innings as it took advantage of loose play by Dennis.

In the second game against the tourney favorite, defending champion Hopedale, South Shore romped, 7-2, with an offense and strong pitching by Hanover's Scott Tait. Quincy's Dave Power led the attack with three for four including a home run.

South Shore faced a tired Dennis team again in the third game and the hosts, forced to play four games to stay in contention, could not contain the South Shore attack and Bill Barry pitched the deciding win.

Hanover's John Hopkins, South Shore's catcher, was named the tournament's most valuable player for his outstanding handling of three pitchers and his overall hustle behind the plate.

Quincy's four players are Bugden, first baseman Power and infielders Scott Messina and Mark Jaehnig. Mike O'Connor, manager of Quincy's Data Services team, is one of the coaches.

The other team competing in the state tourney was Somerville. Six teams will be playing in the New England championship event.

S.S. Slushettes Plan Banquet Oct. 11

The South Shore Slushettes [formerly Slush League Women's Division] will hold a banquet for tennis and softball members Friday, Oct. 11, at the Sons of Italy Hall, 161 Kinghill Rd., Braintree.

A social hour will be held from 6 to 7 p.m., a roast beef dinner will be served from 7 to 8 followed by award presentations and dancing to "The Sixpence." Tickets are limited and are now on sale. They are available until Aug. 31 from President Nancy Marquis, Treasurer Connie Delano, softball and tennis directors, banquet chairwomen Bonnie Schlager and her committee of Joan Lavoie and Marie Taylor.

Quincy Track Club Generates Interest

Anyone who doubts that the recently-formed Quincy Track Club has hiked interest in track in the city has only to stop in at Veterans Memorial Stadium any Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday evening after 6 o'clock to see the proof.

On these evenings anywhere from 50 to 100 boys and girls, mostly the younger ones, work out diligently under the watchful eyes of Lou Tozzi, North Quincy High coach, QTC secretary and director of the weekly meets held each Thursday at 6 p.m. at the stadium.

Tozzi is assisted by some of the older boys on the club including Paul Doherty, Bill Popsie and Lee Watkins, who put the youngsters through a program of calisthenics and supervise them in various events.

"We are delighted with the interest being shown, especially among the younger boys and girls," Tozzi said. "The nine, 10 and 11-year olds are learning just what track is all about and they are very interested and are improving all the time."

"However, I would still like to see more people over the age of 30, both men and women, join the club and compete in the weekly meets."

Saturday the club will bus about 60 boys and girls 9 to 15 to Brockton for a New England AAU-sanctioned meet at Brockton High, which gets underway at noon.

Last week's meet saw five double winners, Joe Irvine, Nancy McCarthy, Chris Kennedy, Janice Kelly and Paul Cody. Actually, Janice Kelly was a triple winner as she anchored a winning relay team.

Last week's winners: Shot put - Boys 9-11, George Martelli; boys 12-15, Chris Green; open age men, Paul Doherty.

Long jump - Girls 12-15, Janice Kelly; boys 12-15, Paul Cody.

100-yard dash - Boys 9-11, Joe Irvine; boys 12-15, John Ladd; open age men, Lee Watkins; girls 9-11, Nancy McCarthy; girls 12 and older, Janice Kelly.

220-yard dash - Open age men, Chris Kennedy.

440-yard run - Boys 9-11, Joe Irvine; boys 12-15, Jack Macheras; open age men, Chris Kennedy; girls 9-11, Nancy McCarthy.

Low hurdles - Boys 9-11, Dean Zoia; boys 12-15, Paul Cody; girls 9-11, Theresa Biagini; girls 12 and older, Paula Church.

880-yard run - Boys 12-15, Marty Levenson; open age men, Bart Petracca; girls 12 and older, Dotty Irvine.

Beniquez, Cooper, Burleson Big Plus In Sox Flag Drive

By TOM SULLIVAN
[Quincy Sun Writer]

There were a lot of snickers when Darrell Johnson, upon being named Red Sox manager this year, said three of his former Louisville and Pawtucket players were ready to play major league ball and would be with the Sox.

These snickers, however, are no more as the three, Juan Beniquez, Cecil Cooper and Rick Burleson have more than lived up to Johnson's expectations and are playing major roles in putting the Red Sox in the driver's seat in the American League's Eastern Division.

Many were skeptical, in particular, about Cooper, who came up to the Sox near the end of the season each of the past three years and failed to impress.

"This kid is definitely ready for the majors and he will be with us this year and will see plenty of action at first base," Johnson said.

Cooper, 24, batting .275 at this writing, has done a good job both at first base and when used as a designated hitter.

Beniquez, 24-year old Puerto Rican, has developed into one of Boston's most exciting players in years.

Juan has been on the disabled list but is almost ready to return to action. During his absence, Rick Miller, one of the better defensive outfielders in the league, has been filling in nicely.

Burleson, only 23, is one of the most pleasant surprises of the season. Sent down to Pawtucket after spring training, he was recalled and has done an excellent job filling in at second and shortstop. He is outstanding on double plays, both starting them and being the pivot man. Hitting .317, he has helped put a lot of spark into the Red Sox.

When the Sox were finding the going rough and languishing in last place early in the season, there were shouts of "Bring Back Kasko".

But the fans are singing a different tune now and Johnson appears to be the man the Sox need to make them a solid contender. Right now they are in a great spot to win the Eastern Division flag. Their chances, however, were dimmed considerably when Carlton Fisk suffered torn knee ligaments.

Juan, who played 16 games for the Sox in 1971 and 33 games in 1972, showed he could hit from the start but was erratic at shortstop.

He was converted into a centerfielder and has provided Sox fans with a lot of action. He is getting to be a fine outfielder with an adequate arm, was batting .272 at this writing and has shown dazzling speed on the bases.

One of the main reasons Boston is out in front of the pack is the "miracle man", Luis Tiant, and Johnson gets the credit here for the 33-year old pitching star being with the Sox.

In 1971, after Luis was dumped by the Minnesota Twins, Johnson, then Louisville manager, suggested to Red Sox brass that they give him a chance.

He was 2-2 with Louisville, was called up by the Sox but had only a 1-7 record and his acquisition didn't seem to be a smart move.

However, the former Cleveland standout the following year was 15-6 with the league's best earned run average (1.91), last year was 20-13 and this year was 13-7 at this writing after a slow start and pitching some of the best ball in the majors. He appears to get better with age

The Quincy Recreation Department's summer program is now half over, and the enthusiasm of the youth of Quincy towards the program has grown steadily each week.

Notes music specialist Karen Walch, "The playgrounds are alive with the sound of music." A borrowed phrase but a true statement, for the playgrounds have been filled with the tuneful ringing of children's voices. A few of the merry songsters have been Sue Estrabrooks, Lisa Martinelli, Nancy Pasquariello, Kathy McClosky and Jean King of Atlantic and Pollard's Denise Belliveau, Deb Crocker, Liz Sullivan and Terry Mele.

Working with macrame was the main activity of the popular arts and crafts program this past week. Specialist Gina Kelly reports that some of the best creations were done by Brian Morris, Tony Quintiliani and George Maxwell of Whitwell and Labrecque's Mike Monahan, Jane Cotter and Sue Boudreau.

Tennis aspirants around the city are perfecting their games for the upcoming playground tournament, reports tennis specialist Betty Vittner. Some of the most improved players have been, Rich Forrest, Pat Ennis and Kim Kowlack of Quantum, Welcome Young's Billy and Tommy Nee and Diane and Patty Cordillo of Heron Road.

Out on the links were many inspired young golfers, led by specialist Don Smith. A lot of time was spent specifically on developing the putting game. Those who putted especially well were Steve Blazer and Kevin Donelin of O'Rourke, Shea Rink's Dave and Mike Rossini and Atlantic's James Conboy, Billy O'Connell and Bobby Flynn.

Recreation Robin Hood Tim Flynn reports that his archers are improving their marksmanship week by week in preparation for the final city shootout. A few of the merry men are Labrecque's John Connolly, Janice Sines and Mike Byork, Hazel Conroy and Roger of Snug Harbor and Jean Villa and Sheila Connolly of Montclair.

Beautiful stained plaques were the creations of the children in the ceramics program this past week. Some of the most innovative ones done were by Debbie Cavanaugh, Paul Marphy, Tracy Nelson, Joanne Sarreco, Danny Baker and Joan Chimo.

It was a busy week for nature specialists Paula Weidmann and Michael Parros, as it was nature week. Each day hundreds of children were bussed up to frolicking Faxon Park, where Paula and Mike conducted a variety of events such as nature hikes, treasure hunts and scavenger hunts to name just a few. Some of the enthusiastic participants were Mike Sullivan, John Phelen and Steve Bouttier of Merrymount, Whitwell's Tommy Hennessy, Paul Banerrey and Mike Monahan and Pond Streets Sal Lorranzo, John Dipolos and Terry Roberts.

Slashing through the waves last week were many enthusiastic members of the Recreation Water Ski program. Slalom skiing was the big hit of the week, as many of the more advanced skiers learned to ski on only one ski. Some of the pros were Mark Gazzola, Robert Sullivan, Al McGinnis, Bill McDonald and Brian Toomey.

There was also a lot of aquatic action down on the Recreation Departments' 13 swim stations, as more and more children passed swimming tests and moved into more advanced classes. Some future swimming stars are Maura Webb and Ruth Shiones of Orchard Beach, Rock Island's Chris Fowle and Chris Murphy and Fennos's Steve Craig and Paula Shaw.

On the playgrounds this past week, Parents Nights were held across the city. On Parents Night there is always a large variety of games, races and other events held, but the big favorite of the night is of course the food. There was plenty of assorted delicacies put on picnic tables around the city last week, and I'm not just talking about hot dogs and hamburgers. There was pasta, spare ribs and steamed clams too. My mouth is watering just thinking about it.

The number one Parents Night of the week was held at Pond St., where a spaghetti dinner was put on through the efforts of two outstanding Italian playground leaders - Cathy Ilacqua and Steve Paolucci. A record crowd of 75 people attended the feast. The crowd devoured 18 pounds of pasta and 140 meatballs, mama mia. Special thanks goes to Mr. and Mrs. Paolucci and Mr. and Mrs. Ilacqua for helping cook the meal. Recreation Director William F. Ryan would also like to thank all playground leaders for a job well done in making this year's Parents Night program one of the best ever.

In sports this week there were plenty of exciting hard fought battles and some great individual performances. In what was a real barn-burner Bradford hung on to beat a super O'Rourke squad 34-26 in junior basketball. The lead swung back and forth until late in the final period when Bradford's Ed Tinney and Chris Chevaly got a couple quick hoops to put the game on ice. Bradford's offense was led by Joe Shea, Ed Tinney and Chris Chevaly, who each scored 10 points, while O'Rourke's charge was led by Greg Oriola and Andy Carrara who had 10 and 8 points respectively. The rematch should be a real donnybrook.

In another close contest, Quantum lost a heartbreaker to Montclair in midget baseball, 6-5. With the score 5-4 in Quantum's favor with two out in the final inning and Timmy McEachen on first, Jay Collins stepped up to the plate and belted a towering home run to win the ball game. It was an electrifying victory for the Montclairites. Will Dudely picked up the win, while Dave Preskins absorbed a tough defeat. Collins besides his game winning homer also had two singles. Standouts for the disappointed Quantum squad were John Lewis and Bob Zabbi who both knocked in 2 runs apiece.

In girls sports in junior basketball Elm Street won a 22-14 thriller over Pollard. The game was a hard fought battle, as neither team could break the game open until the final minutes, when Elm St's Donna Franceschini got a couple of clutch hoops and put the game away. Franceschini was high scorer for the Elm Streeters with 10 points. She got help from Allison Fay [six points] and Jane Barron and Carol Sandonato who played outstanding defense.

Local Representatives Attend Christian Science Youth Meeting

Three Quincy men and a Milton woman numbered among some 500 Mass. Christian Scientists attending a recent International Youth Meeting at the Christian Science Center in Boston.

William Ellington, first reader, First Church of Christ, Scientist,

Alex Larkin, organist, Peter Larrington of Quincy and June B. Wilson of Milton explored the conference theme, "Lord, what wilt thou have me do?" together with 7,000 other Christian Scientists from foreign lands.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston has 78 branches and societies, not including 22 Christian Science college organizations.

At the conference, individual commitment to genuine spiritual activity was emphasized by speakers from Africa, Asia, Australia and South America, as well as Europe and North America.

4,000 Expected To Attend Sept. 15 Boston Religious Education Congress

Approximately 4,000 clergy, religious, coordinators and religious educators including some 500 Mass. Christian Scientists attending a recent International Youth Meeting at the Christian Science Center in Boston.

This one-day Congress will be a quick brush-up on new trends in religious education. The exhibit area will feature over 100 booths with all the latest textbooks, audio-visual equipment and services available from all over the country.

Outstanding speakers invited to the Congress are:

Dr. Christiane Brusselmanns, Belgian theologian and a visiting professor at Harvard Divinity School and Boston College, who will speak on "Sacraments - The Center of Family Life".

Rev. Joseph Champlin, author and lecturer with a syndicated column in over 90 diocesan newspapers, who will discuss "Making the Parish a Christian Family."

Rev. Alfred McBride of Catholic University who will discuss "Adult Education".

Dr. Rebecca Carroll of Baltimore who will speak on "Marriage and Family".

Rev. Regis Duffy, OFM, of Catholic University, whose address is entitled "The People in the Water".

Pre-registration forms may be sent to 1 Lake St., Brighton before Sept. 15. Refreshments may be purchased at the Congress.

'Love' Lesson- Sermon At Christian Science Church

The Lesson-Sermon Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., is on the subject of "Love".

The responsive reading includes a passage from the Book of John: "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love." [1 John 4]

No Problem Of Excessive Profits For Savings And Loans!

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursday

In these days when reports of excessive profits are irritating the cost-weary consumer, it may be timely to give him a picture of income and outgo in the nation's savings and loans.

Ten-year figures from 1964 to 1973 show an average yield on mortgages ranging upward from 5.78 per cent in 1964 to 7.01 per cent in 1973. [These figures represent the average return on the total portfolio of the nation's home mortgage loans; those who express incredulity because of higher loan rates prevalent today must realize that a considerable portion of the total portfolio is represented by loans that are many years old, paying lower rates of interest.]

Meanwhile, the average cost of savings over these same years [representing the average per cent of return paid on all invested savings], rose gradually from 4.19 per cent in 1964 to 5.55 per cent in 1973.

The spread between these two sets of figures fluctuated throughout the decade, year by year, as follows: 1.59%, 1.58%, 1.44%, 1.22%, 1.33%, 1.41%, 1.33%, 1.30%, 1.43%, and 1.46%. Old-time managers liked to talk about a 2 per cent spread as norm!

This was the margin left to S&L managements to pay employees' salaries, meet building and equipment expenses, provide for promotional costs, pay Federal and State income taxes, add to employees' profit-sharing and pension plans, and supply reserves to fulfill required benchmarks.

Projections for the first and second quarters of 1974 indicated national spreads of 1.35% and 1.27%, respectively, between the average yield on mortgages and the average outgo for savings. If validated and projected for the entire year, they would produce a 1.31% spread - better than records for 1967 and 1971 but well below the ten-year average of 1.41%.

So don't think of S&Ls when you are worrying about excessive profits. Whether you are a borrower obtaining the loan to finance your dream home or a saver looking for a secure and convenient place for your expendable funds, you are getting a bargain.

Wollaston Lutheran Nursery School Accepting Applications

Army Women Seek Unusual Jobs

Women in the Army are making greater use of the wide selection of job skills available to them.

According to local Army representative Sgt. Robert Nyland many more women are selecting job training in non-clerical areas such as military police, helicopter pilots, draftsmen and mechanics.

"The Army has over 400 specialties open to women," he added. "The only areas prohibited to them are those related to combat."

CHECK FOR COUNTY - Commissioner Arthur W. Brownell of the Department of Natural Resources presented Norfolk County Commissioners with an $850,000 check reimbursing the County for property purchase and renovation. Left to right, County Commissioner Thomas K. McManus [D-Norwood], County Commission Chairman James J. Collins [D-Milton], Brownell, and County Commissioner George B. McDonald [D-Quincy].

County To Receive $1.7 Million For Wollaston Golf Club Reimbursement

Norfolk County will receive a total of $1,750,000 from the Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation [BOR], reimbursing the county's expenses in purchasing and renovating the Wollaston Golf Course property.

Commissioner Arthur Brownell of the Department of Natural Resources presented Norfolk County Commissioners Thomas K. McManus, George B. McDonald and County Commissioner Chairman James J. Collins with an $850,000 check representing the first payment from BOR.

According to Brownell, the county is eligible for an additional $900,000 over the duration of the project. The three commissioners noted that they expect to apply for and receive the full amount for which they are eligible.

The commissioners also noted that through the help of the federal money, they expect to be able to provide the people of the county with the finest recreational area in Eastern Massachusetts.

City, Aggie School In Beautification

Trustees of Norfolk County Agricultural School have approved a cooperative educational, beautification and public relations program between its Plant Science Department and the city of Quincy.

Plant science students from the school in Walpole will design and plant flowers in two areas of the city - Fore River Circle and the small traffic island in Quincy Center.

The school will supply the flowering plants and student assistance while the city will be billed for the plants used and its Park Department will be responsible for maintenance.

Students at Central Junior High School, who attended Norfolk for two weeks last May in a career development program, may be employed on the project to obtain practical experience in their home city.

St. Jude's Hospital Chapter Moves To Quincy

Danny Thomas, founder of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, announces that the Greater Boston Chapter of this institute moved its office to Quincy.

The chapter office had been located in downtown Boston. The function of the Quincy-based office will be to conduct fund raising activities throughout the Greater Boston area and to assist the other chapters throughout the country in raising the necessary funds to continue the research into catastrophic diseases which strike children. At St. Jude Hospital scientists are conducting research into diseases such as acute lymphocytic leukemia, solid tumor, Hodgkin's disease, malnutrition, infection, and many more.

Said Thomas: "Ten years ago, leukemia was considered to be incurable; no hope was given as no cures were known. This is no longer true. St. Jude Children's Research Hospital is presently experiencing a 52 per cent cure rate with acute lymphocytic leukemia. All indications point to an even greater cure rate in the very near future."

The office in Quincy is located in the Faxon Building, 1245 Hancock St., Suite 39. The telephone number is 472-4377. Quincy-South Shore residents are invited to visit the office.

The executive director of the Greater Boston Chapter is James R. Griffin of South Weymouth.

● Bicentennial Feature

Life Of John Adams To Be Part Of Television Series

Quincy Heritage will furnish material on the life of John Adams, second President of the United States, as part of a 28-week film series to be shown on commercial and educational television stations during the nation's Bicentennial in 1976.

The television series is to be produced by the Bauman Bible Telecasts, Inc., of Arlington, Va. and will be titled "God of our Fathers".

The series will examine the religious philosophies of the framers of the U.S. Constitution to see what effect they had on the principles that govern the nation today.

Such questions as, What did these men believe about God and his purpose for human life when they were framing the United States Constitution? and What would they say about prayer in the public schools and other unresolved issues of religion and morality which we are facing today? will be answered in the films.

In the first 14-segment part of Survival Receives

State

Survival Inc., the multi-faceted drug and youth program serving the South Shore, has received a grant for $22,000 from the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health, Division of Drug Rehabilitation.

Announcement was made by Robert Hassey, Executive Director of the Quincy based agency.

The grant, will help cover certain salary and rental expenses of the program. In addition to its out-patient clinic at 44 Faxon Avenue, in-patient Whiteman House at 1230 Hancock Street, and crisis clinic on Broad St., the agency will soon be moving its administrative offices to 725 Southern Artery as well as sponsoring the Southwest Quincy Teen Council in the opening of a drop-in center in the southwest section of the city.

"To be able to expand services to this level has taken a lot of effort on the part of many people," Hassey said. "It is quite satisfying to find governmental agencies recognizing the need for alternative programs such as Survival and are helping to fund our varied services for troubled area young persons and their families."

Hassey said there is a need for many items of furniture which will hopefully be donated by the South Shore community to help furnish the new administrative office. Anyone who can help is asked to call 773-6618.

the films, the lives of 10 founding fathers will be examined to see how their religious beliefs influenced their contributions to history.

In the second segment of the series many of the key beliefs of the founding fathers will be examined in depth asking such questions as, for example,

What did they believe about the nature of God? Why did they value religious freedom so highly, and What were their views on private and public morality?

The series is planned for initial broadcast over WMAL-TV in Washington, D.C., and later will be shown over some 30 commercial and educational stations throughout the country, and the Armed Forces Radio and Television Network. Film prints will also be distributed to the Naval Chaplains Corps and the Air Force Chaplains Corps on bases around the world.

Quincy Heritage will assist in the project as the city's 350th anniversary and Bicentennial organization.

John J. Quinn, Jr. Expected To Get Job

LaRaia Opposed New Hospital Post Because Of 'Adverse Reaction'

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

City Councillor Joseph LaRaia says he opposed the creation of a new supervisory post at Quincy City Hospital because of "adverse reaction" from both hospital personnel and Quincy residents.

LaRaia, who cast the sole dissenting vote at a special council meeting last Wednesday said, "I didn't think the position should have been created because of the feedback I received."

Six votes were required to pass the measure and the vote was 6-1. Among the six was Councillor John J. Quinn whose son John J. Quinn Jr. is expected to fill the position.

Also voting for the creation of the job were Councillors Dennis Harrington, Leo Kelly, John J. Lydon Jr., Clifford H. Marshall and Council President Arthur H. Tobin, Councillor Warren Powers, who last month voted against the appropriation of the $11,291 to fund the position, was absent at the time of the vote. Councillor James Sheets, who also opposed the appropriation, was away on vacation.

Although no one has been officially named to fill the post, Hospital Director Harlan L. Paine Jr. said:

"I presume that he [Quinn Jr.] will be appointed."

Paine noted that Quinn had been on vacation but was expected to return at the beginning of this week. "I'm not sure what the procedure will be," Paine said. "Whether the job will be posted or not."

He also said that the hospital had not yet received official notification of the council's creation of the position. But he added, "I suspect things will be straightened out by the first of the week."

Paine said that the "Night Supervisor for Administration" would solely handle "the non-professional area" of the hospital, such as supervision of maintenance, housekeeping, power plant and security departments within the hospital during the evening. The new supervisor would not, Paine said, assume the duties of chief executive officer in the absence of the director and assistant director.

Although La Raia had voted last month to appropriate the funds for the supervisory post, he decided to oppose the actual creation of the job. He explained:

"At first, my feeling was that our [the City Council's] function was to pass on measures to give departments the authority to fill positions. But I had phone calls from people who felt that the council should stop there."

"Reaction to the position being created was adverse from hospital people and from the citizenry. It got to the point where we [the council] were in the position of being the personnel authority to fill the position ourselves because of all the notoriety surrounding the situation."

LaRaia added that his personal reaction did not affect his decision.

"I don't let my personal reaction get involved in the vote," he said. "I am there to represent the public ... and the reaction against the position dictated how I voted."

La Raia said he believed the people opposed not only the creation of the post but the "personality duel" involved as well.

Tobin stepped down from the podium before the vote, expressing resentment over accusations of "playing politics". He said:

"People should be just as willing to help deserving honorable candidates for positions when they merit the help whether or not they are related to public officials."

A published report that young Quinn was working on his master's and doctoral degrees in hospital administration at Northeastern University triggered questioning phone calls, to The Sun, and to radio station WJDA.

A check by The Sun, revealed that Quinn is not registered in a master's nor in a doctoral program at that university. Furthermore, a student cannot work toward his doctorate until he has first earned his master's degree.

However, Quinn was enrolled in University College at Northeastern University as a part-time, undergraduate student from Spring 1973 until Spring 1974. The associate registrar of the university described Quinn's program as "general". He explained that a student enrolled in such an undergraduate program must first complete 40 quarter hours of work before matriculation. The student's record is then reviewed and

Old Coins Unearthed

Archeologist Team Digging For John Hancock's Well

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Quincy is a city teeming with historicity and tradition. Yet even more history - centuries old - is being unearthed on the grounds of Adams Academy, now being renovated as a museum by the Quincy Historical Society.

Dr. George Horner, archeologist of Quincy Historical Society, reports that an excavation operation - ongoing for two weeks - will soon end when picks and shovels reach the now rock-filled well at the site of patriot John Hancock's birthplace.

According to Horner, an 1880 photograph shows the location of the well referred to by President John Adams as "John Hancock's well". Diggers, under the direction of Richard Riley, a teacher at Quincy High School, are probing the area in search of the rocks known to cover the well.

Also involved in the digging is Daniel Lutts, teacher of anthropology at North Quincy High School.

Last week Horner said that diggers had reached the 1880-1885 level when the grounds were used as a playing field at Adams Academy. Then, just as now, the boys lost and never found loose change dropped from their pockets. Horner said that excavators have unearthed an 1876 penny, and 1888 quarter and an 1882 nickel embossed on the back with a U.S. shield. Diggers have also found glass, pottery and a brick traceable to John Hancock's house.

Hancock, the famed first-signer of the Declaration of Independence, was born Jan. 12, 1737 in a house built in 1733 by his father, Rev. John Hancock, an early minister of First Parish Church. The Hancock home stood on the site of the Adams Academy.

In May 1759, the frame house was razed by fire. The Adams Academy was constructed over its cellar after President John Adams deeded the land to the city of Quincy on July 25, 1822. According to the late William Edwards, author of "Historic Quincy", the deed carried the following provision:

"...A stone school house should be erected over the cellar which was under the house built in 1733 by the Rev. John Hancock."

Apparently, no one attempted to restore the historic birthplace of John Hancock.

The red-brick Academy, built with Quincy granite at a cost of $28,867, opened to young boys in 1872.

Enrollment peaked in the 1876-1877 school year with 154 students registered.

But soaring expenses and inadequate income eventually forced the Academy to close in 1907.

In 1965, a developer made a $140,000 bid to turn the century-old site into a plush, 50-unit motel-restaurant. The proposal never materialized.

"We'll be within the well area soon," Horner said. The digging project, conducted under the auspices of the Quincy Historical Society, includes plans to rebuild the well to resemble the original one.

According to the century-old photograph, the well is round, made of stone, is three feet in circumference and stands approximately three feet above the ground.

Horner indicated that this historic, interred well, once uncovered, might become a tourists' "wishing well".

Lydon Suggests 'Hotline'

For Senior Citizens

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., has asked Mayor Walter J. Hannon to open a telephone hotline for Quincy senior citizens.

This hotline would link senior citizens directly to city services designed for them and would give them information on public and private agencies dealing with the elderly.

Lydon said: "It is my hope that the hotline will help break some of the barriers of loneliness and isolation which too often prevent the elderly from fully participating in society."

He suggested that the hotline be staffed by older volunteers who would undergo an intensive training program.

Mary Pearson Wed To Scott W. Brown

Miss Mary Margaret Pearson and Scott W. Brown were married recently in St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd M. Pearson of 54 Ames St., West Quincy and is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School and Peter Bent Brigham Hospital School of Nursing.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon W. Brown of Port Chester, N.Y., and is a graduate of Port Chester High School and Boston University where he majored in Psychology. Mr. Brown is currently studying for his masters degree in Psychology at Montana State College.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a square-necked, A-line empire gown of white silk organza over white satin with sheer elbow-length puff sleeves trimmed with Venice lace. Her floor-length veil of silk illusion en train, bordered with Venice lace, was arranged from a Venice lace bow. She carried a cascade of Stephanotis, white carnations, pink roses and baby's breath.

After a wedding trip to upper state New York, the couple will reside in Bozeman, Mont.

1000 Southern Artery Residents Planning Trip To Mexico City

Residents of 1000 Southern Artery are planning a week-long trip to Mexico City.

The plane will leave Logan Airport on Thursday morning, Nov. 7 and return Wednesday night, Nov. 13.

Three sightseeing tours are included in the trip. Mrs. Ruth Knowles will accompany the group, accepting reservations starting Aug. 1. Only 55 seats are available on the plane.

Three monthly deposits are required: one at the initial reservation, a second on Sept. 1 and a third on Oct. 1. Quinwell Travel Service is handling the arrangements for the trip.

Two all-day trips to Martha's Vineyard have been scheduled for August. Both leave 1000 Southern Artery at 8:45 a.m. - one on Friday [Aug. 9], the other on Aug. 23. The "Island Queen" will sail from Falmouth to Oak Bluffs on Martha's Vineyard. A bus will then take the group on a 2½-hour tour of the island. Expected return time to Quincy is 6 p.m.

Another trip to Cape Cod Canal has been planned for Friday, Sept. 13. A bus will leave 1000 Southern Artery at 8:30 a.m., returning at approximately 3 p.m. The cruise along the Canal will last three hours aboard the "Onset Vacationer".

The August Birthday Party will feature Salvy Cavichio, well-known entertainer currently performing at a resort in New Hampshire. Accompanied by organ-playing Florence Troupe, Cavichio will perform on the xylophone at 3 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 13 in the auditorium.

"Johnny Tremain", the 80-minute Walt Disney adventure film, will be shown on Wednesday, Aug. 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium. The movie is about daring youth in a new land and it captures all the drama of such historic episodes as the Boston Tea Party and the battles of Lexington and Concord.

Albert Saunders, director of the popular Polka Dots Band, will perform for the sixth consecutive year at the Aug. 19 cookout. They will begin playing at 7 p.m. from the Band Pavilion at the rear of North Wing.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS She wonders why she plays with men

Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

Since my graduation from college I've been trying to size myself up as a person. Whenever I go out with a guy, I always end up playing a game with him, leading him on. Then, when I win, I lose interest. I keep telling myself that down deep inside I know the guy's not right for me. But when this happens over and over again I begin to wonder. I guess I'm worried that if and when I marry I'll always be afraid of winning my game and losing interest.

L.R.

Dear L.R.:

When love becomes a game you play, you're bound to lose the final round!

Your "come-on" is smooth and effective, seen in your figure-eight g's. With your colorful imagination, shown in the large lower loops on g, you've got enticement tracks coming out both sleeves. Your technique wins, but your fears conflict. You don't lose interest, you're just plain scared. You're afraid he'll look at someone else and you'll lose him, seen in the small loop in capital I. You're afraid of what other people will think, seen in the high part of the n. Then that same lower loop, which provides the cards to play your game, can also deal you a bad hand. It keeps past memories alive and tantalizes your feelings of inadequacy.

Feeling unworthy, then, you deprive yourself of love which could be yours, seen in the backslashing of the t crossing. Beware of that imagination! It works two ways. It can create a more colorful, cunning you, or it can build a bigger fear!

Today's Women

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Invest in child, return is love

By ANN RUDY

These inflationary days, people are beginning to realize money doesn't grow on trees. But human nature, being dogged, is looking for money hedges instead.

A money hedge, as if you didn't know from reading all those stay-rich-quick articles, is someplace to put your money to protect it from losing its value. If you are lucky enough to have this problem there are plenty of people around to make helpful suggestions.

The real estate salesman will take you to lunch, between showings, and tell you confidentially — that you simply cannot lose on the hot deal he has in mind. Sometimes the lunch is so good you almost forget that the hot deal he has in mind is his commission.

And there is the broker who, despite the sagging market, will tell you the stock bargains were never bigger. Never mind that his commissions are so low these days he is selling encyclopedias on the side.

Or, if you are an art buff, there are paintings, Chinese bases or rare antiques — buy now and sell later.

I can't help thinking of what Socrates said one day while on his way to the A&P to buy a box of toothpicks: "Why is it," he asked, "men concern themselves so with material things, yet give not a thought to their children to whom they will relinquish all someday?"

He was a clever old goat and was trying to make us think. And frankly, I'll take Socrates over any realtor or stock broker for all-out caring about the human race.

Going on his advice, I've got a hot tip for you: get your kid's teeth straightened — he'll smile at you and mean it. Send him to college with enough help that he doesn't drop out from the burden of trying to pay for it all himself.

Instead of a piece of the action, go after peace of mind so you will be able to listen creatively to what he has to say to you. And, if you've invested yourself well in him, you have a mutual exchange of love. Beats the other kind of Mutual Exchange to hell.

Of course, you can't sell a kid like that on the open market for anything near what you've put into him. But Socrates would probably tell you to hold onto him as a good investment.

Right Technique Is What It Takes For Blood Stains

With warm weather now upon us and the increase in outdoor activities, laundry problems will be growing by leaps and bounds.

Skinny knees, knocked noses and cut elbows in addition to a few tears will carry with them one of the most difficult problems to deal with at the washing machine... that of the bloody nose.

More clothes are probably discarded for blood stains than for any other reason, except for wear, according to Virginia White, home laundry expert for Miracle White Co.

Blood, like any other type of stain, in most instances can be taken out of clothes, if only the proper procedure is used.

First immerse the stained area promptly in cold water. Allow it to soak for a minimum of 45 minutes. During the soaking period rub stain occasionally to loosen it.

Next, machine wash the garment in the hottest water the fabric will allow adding ½ cup Super Cleaner, ¼ cup non-chlorine bleach and 1 cup non-phosphate laundry detergent.

If the stain is not fresh, rub with a paste mixture of table salt and water. Let stand for about one hour. Then follow the above outlined immersing and laundering procedure.

Husband's criticism taken seriously

Mrs. Beryl Loat, 46, of Coventry, England, is in jail for life on a manslaughter charge for killing her husband last year by putting weed killer in his Sunday dinner.

The mashed potatoes she fed Arthur, her second husband, had a lacing of sodium chlorate added. She says she didn't want to kill him, just make him sick — because he had criticized her cooking. —

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Allow time to pursue your creative and artistic interests. Attend to the details of bookkeeping, accounts and bank records. Romance is on your menu too. Guard against impulsive speech or angry reply.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Accept changes at work pleasantly. Catch up on routine detail tasks. Take notes on important information instead of trusting your memory. A short trip is possible. A social affair brings you a new friend.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Review that project carefully before presenting it to a higher-up. Be concise and direct in your writings. Keep a curb on your temper — don't be sarcastic. Keep your cool during hectic active periods.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — You're in high gear now. Launch projects, see those in high positions — your magnetism is high. Be patient in the face of problems with mate or partner. Accept your own responsibility in the relationship.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — You can attain your personal ambitions, but don't ride rough shod over others. Be diplomatic and give an associate a feeling of importance too. You are persuasive and can launch a new difficult project now.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — The help you give a friend at this time will make a tremendous difference in their future life. Let creative ideas germinate in your mind while you attend to more practical matters. Don't daydream.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — If convenient, this is a good time for your vacation. Social life is active — you are in demand. You could hear of business opportunities now. Finish up all uncompleted tasks to be free for new beginnings coming up.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — You can get your breath now after recent hectic activity. Work in the background to accomplish the most. Enjoy your improved, optimistic outlook on life. Curb independent attitudes with mate or partner.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Assume your share of entertainment expense. You want to get out and about to places of amusement and it costs money. An offer which makes possible the achievement of a goal could come to you now.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — A serious, long-term commitment in partnership or marriage is forming now. Some Capricorns may decide to buy a home or real estate — build an addition to present home. Career is accented too.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Your social contacts now do not appear very rewarding and are ultraconservative. Think carefully before lending money. You are emotionally oversensitive now and disappointments loom unrealistically large.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Business and profession are favored. Think in terms of service, honesty, and lasting values. Have time by yourself to recoup energies. Clean up all tasks hanging fire and clear the decks for later action.

RIGHTS 'N' WRONGS Shower can be held after a marriage too

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service
Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I just returned from an extended vacation and learned that the daughter of my best friends is to be married two weeks from now. I want to give her a shower but it will take me some time to get organized and send out the invitations. How soon BEFORE the wedding can I give such a party?

Busy in Baltimore

Dear Busy:

If you are wondering about the timing let me say that any time is proper. However, a day or so before the nuptials will find the bride-to-be and her mother very busy with last-minute details. If you can't plan your party for the week before the wedding why not pass and give the newlyweds a party when they return from their honeymoon? Strictly speaking, a shower is given only for a bride-to-be but nowadays her fiancé is often included and the all-girls party is a couples event. I see no reason why you couldn't give the newlyweds a shower if you still want to.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

I have to buy five wedding gifts this month. I'm running out of ideas. Help!

Friend In Need

Dear Friend:

I asked some "old" brides, those who had been married this year, which wedding gifts pleased them the most and which were real duds. High on the welcome list were a set of kitchen knives, house plants, an omelette pan, bed linen, towels, cookware, a selection of wine, a hibachi and a coffee-maker. On the "bomb" list were a tray too small for anything but a salt and pepper shaker, hand-painted egg cups, liqueur glasses, a cookie jar in the shape of a valentine and a sterling silver ice bucket. (The last gift was sent to a bride who would be living in a trailer while her husband finished college.) For a few more suggestions on gifts to please the newlyweds, try one of these: hot tray, bathroom scale, casseroles, electric frying pan, card table, dictionary or gift certificates to a restaurant or a florist.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Would it be alright for 17 of us girls to go in together and buy a friend a sewing machine as a shower gift rather than a lot of small gifts?

One Of The Gang

Dear One:

It's not only proper but VERY thoughtful!

Questions on etiquette may be mailed to Riv Tobin, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

How greeting cards started

The first modern greeting card was a Christmas card made in London in the 1840s. Henry Cole commissioned Calcutt Horsley, an artist of the Royal Academy, to create an original design and had 1,000 copies lithographed to send to friends. — CNS

THE SECOND TIME IS EASIER

What would you do if your home caught fire tonight? Save the wife and children. Call the fire department. Get a ladder, grab the family jewels, find a fire extinguisher. Get out. But these thoughts come easily when you're reading the newspaper.

But what if you woke up in the night - smelled smoke - saw fire? You'd react on instinct instead of logic and that could spell panic. And panic breeds death.

It's easier to evacuate a burning home safely if you've done it before in practice, especially for the children. Determine at least two exits from each room and which to use - depending upon the location of the fire.

Schools require fire drills, but they are neglected in the home where chances of fire are 200 times greater. Remember - the second time is easier, especially if it's the real McCoy.

● Market Report

Summer Apples Arrive, Native Corn Supply Increasing

The summer apple season has started in the Bay State, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA], with a good supply of Lodi's on produce counters this week.

The Lodi is a green apple, sharp in flavor, excellent for cooking. It produces good applesauce and fine apple pies.

Picking of the Puritan, first red apple of the season, is expected to begin this weekend, says the MDA. Several central Massachusetts orchards will be advertising pick-your-own, and some will have fresh vegetables for sale on the same basis.

Native Massachusetts sweet corn is becoming more plentiful each day, with prices moderating as the supply increases. Much of this year's crop is the bi-colored variety - white and yellow kernels intermixed - and the quality and flavor improves daily. Some growers continue to offer the standard yellow corn as well.

Corn must be fresh to be sweet and light, the MDA points out, with the recommendation that you buy corn the same day you expect to eat it. Some Thursday shoppers lay in a supply of fresh corn for Sunday dinner, and are disappointed with its flavor. Corn should be used as soon as possible after picking. If it must be held overnight, it should be wrapped in a damp towel and refrigerated.

Fresh green beans from nearby farms are plentiful, and very reasonably priced, especially compared to prices of a few weeks ago. This presents a good opportunity to start preserving them by canning or freezing.

Locally-grown green cabbage is also in heavy supply, as are fresh cucumbers. Romaine lettuce and the summer squashes, especially Yellow and Zucchini.

Summer squash need not be peeled for cooking, merely scrubbed clean with a brush, and cooked for eight to ten minutes in a covered saucepan with a small amount of water. It should be kept slightly crisp, rather than soft and mealy. If it holds its shape, it's usually properly cooked. Overcooking destroys the flavor, as with so many other vegetables.

Zucchini can be attractively baked by selecting small, young ones and baking them whole. When almost done, slit each one lengthwise and add a strip of cheese. When the cheese is melted, it's ready.

For home gardeners, a tip from MDA: as your tomatoes ripen on the plants, it's time to give them another small feeding with any good garden fertilizer. This helps the plant keep its vigor as the tomatoes take all the nutrients available. Continue to give them plenty of water, too, to keep the fruit plump and juicy.

● Sun Spotlight On Election

William Cowin: A GOP Candidate Who Isn't Afraid Of Watergate

By BOB HOOKWAY

At least one Republican candidate for state office doesn't think Watergate will hurt his chances for election.

On a recent visit to The Quincy Sun, William I. Cowin, candidate for Attorney General affirmed his confidence in Massachusetts voters. Cowin believes voters will study the candidates rather than cast a blanket indictment on an entire political party.

"I'm not worried about the Watergate issue," he declared. "Massachusetts voters have a history of voting for the man rather than the party."

The 36-year-old Newton resident even expressed optimism as to the effect Watergate would have on the September primary and the November election.

"After Watergate the people are going to listen more closely to what the candidates have to say," he predicted.

On the subject of qualifications for the office of Attorney General, Cowin points to his experience in the mid 1960's as assistant attorney general and Chief of the Administrative Division of the Department of the Attorney General for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. A former legislative assistant to Senator Edward Brooke and special counsel to Boston Mayor Kevin White, Cowin noted that most of his political experience has been in the area of law enforcement.

A prime concern of the Attorney General has to be the effect of New York's stringent new drug laws on the drug flow in Massachusetts, he said. It is still too early to tell what effect these laws are having on the Bay State, he said, but he reflected on the legislation:

"I am against passage of the New York type drug laws in this state. The practice of issuing one penalty for all is inflexible and does not take individual cases into consideration."

Cowin approved of that portion of the law dealing with repeated offenses, stating that habitual drug offenders should be dealt with severely.

On the legalization of marijuana he said: "I think the possession of marijuana should be de-criminalized. I can't see any sense in the police chasing a kid over a sprig of marijuana. The effort of law enforcement officers for this sort of thing is wasted."

Cowin sees no reason to block the free legal commerce of marijuana, and favors regulations on use of the drug, similar to those governing the use of alcohol.

WILLIAM COWIN

Of recent concern to consumers, including those in Quincy, is the fuel adjustment charge on utility bills. Asked to comment on a possible solution to the problem, Cowin responded:

"There is no easy answer, but it is obvious that utility companies must stop lying about the charges. The fuel costs of the utility companies must be properly calculated and divided, making sure that the rates of return are sufficiently low for consumer absorption."

Cowin pointed to a need for the assessing of the companies capital structures and financing losses to assure that the consumer is not picking up the tab for company error in these areas.

Cowin, a former chairman of the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities, said he believes that department was not adequately funded and staffed. He believes changes should be made.

"I would like to see the practice of using the department as a political football stopped. The department should be in the interest of the consumer and not to further the interests of privately owned investor companies."

"The Attorney General must stop attacking the department and start providing it with good legal counsel."

Cowin said he considers Democrat Francis X. Bellotti of Quincy his chief opponent. The other two Republican contenders are Charles Cabot and former candidate for the U.S. Senate, Josiah Spaulding.

Cowin said that as far as political views and similarities are concerned, "a blanket could be thrown over the three" Republican hopefuls. But he says he is probably the most conservative of the three.

Cowin feels quite strongly about the matter of campaign financing. He revealed a plan that he came up with almost as a joke before realizing the practicality of it. The plan which he proposes to put before the legislature is simply designed to shorten the length of political campaigns in Massachusetts. Cowin sees enormous advantages in limiting the length of campaigns to three or four months.

"First of all," he said "the plan would reduce the chance for campaign abuses and force the candidate to devote more time to the real issues. Secondly, it would mean that candidates who already hold an office would spend more time at that office and less time campaigning."

Cowin's plan would also limit the incurring of political obligations on the part of the candidate, which he equates with campaign spending.

The Environmental Impact Law requires private industry to reveal to the Commonwealth what effect their operations will have on the environment. There is currently a bill before the legislature to repeal this law. The topic is a source of concern to environmentalists.

Pointing to the length of time necessary for new industry to be approved under the impact law, Cowin feels that the law needs alteration. "Under the rigid environmental law now in effect the economy of the Commonwealth suffers," he said. "Changes should be made in the law which would speed up the approval of new industry. The law should not, however, be repealed."

"I have had good relations with the legislature in the past and have not competed with them. I will not, however, be guilty of ignoring the legislature as frequently happens with executive officials."

The Republican hopeful would initiate some changes in his office staff. Cowin feels that it would be more effective to combine two or three staff jobs that would normally be part-time, into one well-paying, full-time job.

Finally, as William Cowin sees it, the most serious problem in Massachusetts that he as Attorney General would be in a position to correct is governmental corruption.

"Allegations must be investigated quickly and action taken immediately," he said. "Problems must not be left to hang unresolved."

It remains to be seen, however, what effect governmental corruption within his own party at the national level will have on William I. Cowin's chances to become Massachusetts Attorney General.

STAFF INTERN Ronald Iacobucci of Quincy shown with Congressman James A. Burke on steps of Capitol Building.

Washington Report

Pressure Building For Impeachment

[Ronald Iacobucci of Quincy is serving as an intern on the staff of Congressman James A. Burke in Washington. The Quincy Sun has invited him to write on his experience and impressions. His first article follows]

BY RONALD IACOBUCCI

I am proud to report my internship with Congressman James A. Burke.

I was immediately and warmly welcomed as a working member of his staff. As an intern, I am given the rare opportunity of participating fully in the activities of the Congressman's office.

I have found the usual responsibilities, such as considering the mail, most unusual. I was amazed by the volume of correspondence. I have found that Congressman Burke must handle various constituent requests and take into consideration a great number of views and opinions on matters before the Congress from his constituents as well as concerned citizens across the country.

I have learned that Congressman Burke encourages such requests. In fact, of the many people I have met here in Washington, this man truly has the concerns of his constituents at heart; an extremely fair and decent man.

My internship gives me an opportunity to investigate and answer constituent inquiries. I also have an opportunity to attend briefings on pending legislation, committee hearings and sessions of Congress. I participate in an ongoing program of activities for congressional interns. For example, a tour of the White House, a reception at the Chinese Embassy and a lively and informative seminar series. These activities have given me a tremendous insight into the process of our government.

I find, however, a government plagued by Watergate. I realize now that my appointment to intern here in Washington comes at a very historic moment in our country's history. The future of a President and the Presidency itself is in doubt. From my vantage point, I can sense the pressure building in the Congress. There was no question that the Judiciary Committee would report articles of impeachment.

The great concern in Washington is where do we go from here? For myself, I feel that there exists a critical need for greater citizen participation in government. Each of us in our own small way must become involved. It is time for us to begin to explore ways of making some kind of contribution.

I can imagine that many citizens of Quincy do not think very highly of the word "Washington". But from the smiling faces of the tourists that I see everyday, I am encouraged to believe that there remains some hope for our system of government.

I wish to thank the Quincy Sun for providing me an opportunity to express my views, and I look forward to reporting to you from Washington next week.

Local Republicans Fuming Over Sargent's QHA Appointment

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Quincy Republicans are fuming over Gov. Francis Sargent's appointment of Mrs. Rosemary Wahlberg to the Quincy Housing Authority.

It's nothing personal against Mrs. Wahlberg. It's just that she happens to be a Democrat and they think a Republican should have gotten the post.

In fact, some of them took such a burn that Sargent's GOP gubernatorial opponent Carroll Sheehan reportedly picked himself up quite a bit of local support and some volunteer campaign workers as a result.

Two Republicans wanted the job: School Committeeman and bank president, Francis A. McCauley and Hugo [Flip] Fabrizio, oil dealer and a bank director.

McCauley had the job for the past five years and would like to have continued in it.

The QHA appointment was the last one in the state to be made. It was supposed to have been made before the GOP state convention but the word was that it was being stalled to help keep the Quincy delegation in Sargent's camp. Thus Sargent kept both McCauley and Fabrizio dangling for weeks.

In the meanwhile, Sargent campaign headquarters were opened on Foster St., the tab being picked up locally. It came close to being closed because of the Wahlberg appointment.

Fabrizio, at last report, was in line for another appointment that they say may come this week.

DEPUTY SHERIFF John Brownell is running a rare campaign for Norfolk County Sheriff. Rare for other candidates, but not really for him. He has nixed any fund-raising events.

"The only money I'll spend is my own and some given me by close friends," says Brownell. "I don't believe in spending other people's money. And this way, I'm not committed to anyone."

Brownell has been in five campaigns since 1952 and says each one was carried out with fund-raising events. In them he figures he spent about $20,000-most of it his own money.

He has allowed an approximate $10,000 budget for this campaign-most of which, he says-will be his own money and that of close friends.

"It's the way I want it," says he.

DON'T KNOW HOW serious he is, but Joseph Cahill, recently retired Old Colony Crushed Stone Co. executive, is hinting he will run for Ward 3 councillor next year.

THAT BIG POLITICAL pow-wow we noted in last week's column [the early morning one at a Quincy Center eating spot] had a lot of people guessing a lot of things. What it was really all about, we hear, was: let's rally around Bob Quinn for Governor. Those attending a local Who's Who in Democratic circles - got together to get behind Quinn's campaign and move it locally.

SHOPPERS AND STOREKEEPERS in the North Quincy business area knew the face was familiar as the man approached them Monday. Could it be? Yep, it was former Gove, Foster Furcolo on the campaign trail again. Furcolo campaigning for his son, Mark, Democratic candidate for state treasurer, was travelling alone, chatting and handing out campaign literature. "And he was really moving," notes Councillor Warren Powers. Furcolo stopped Powers, saying, "Don't I know you?"

JOYCE BAKER, Republican candidate for state representative in the Fourth Norfolk District, has come up with a moving campaign billboard-a painted van that is getting plenty of mileage around town.

WILLIAM O'CONNELL, Quincy Historical Society vice-president and membership chairman, reports the group now has 986 members-up 56 since June 1. Joining as a life member is Sam Wakeman of Hingham, former general manager of the Quincy Shipyard when it was owned by Bethlehem Steel. Wakeman, who has a ranch out west, now dabbles in real estate investments.

TALENT DEPT: A good crowd turned out for the opening of the art show at the Adams Shore Library last week. The display by students of Marilyn LeBlanc, will continue for a few weeks.

NICE-GESTURE-DEPT: Dave and Jessie Minkofsky sponsored their 11th annual movie night at their Adams Shore home for the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post. Proceeds aid the JWV's program for hospitalized veterans.

SMILE DEPT: Democratic gubernatorial candidate Mike Dukakis was honored at a reception at the home of Rep. William Delahunt Saturday night. There was some chit-chat about the legislature which had adjourned at 2 a.m. Saturday. Dukakis smiled and recalled that while he was in the legislature, he had hanging on the wall of his office a quote from Colonial days which said in effect that neither man, woman, child, or property was safe while the legislature is in session.

Hannon Seeks $800,000 E&D Transfer To Help Tax Rate

Mayor Walter J. Hannon was to ask the City Council at another special Wednesday session to transfer $800,000 from the Excess and Deficiency Fund as a deduction in determining this year's tax rate. "We haven't had an E and D fund surplus for three years," Hannon said. "This money will be a direct reduction against the tax rate."

According to City Auditor Alexander Smith, the $800,000 would bring the tax rate down by $3.15.

Last year's tax rate was $154.30. Reliable City Hall sources estimate that the rate would jump $9.90 without any city employee raises.

Hannon said that salary negotiations are still incomplete.

Each $100 in across the board pay raises for city employees would add approximately 92 more cents to the tax rate, it is estimated.

Hannon said that he hopes the rate will be set by the end of next week. "We'll have it buttoned up by then," he said.

He added, "the department heads have all done a good job in running their departments within their budgets. The Council has also done a good job."

Also listed on the agenda was the confirmation of the appointment of Bruce W. McLain of 28 Vine Ave., Quincy Point, as assistant director of Quincy Heritage.

This item was on last week's special agenda, but Councillors Leo J. Kelly and Dennis Harrington felt that the council should be more instrumental and active in reviewing candidates for the position.

John R. Graham, director of Quincy Heritage, had recommended the appointment of McLain, but Kelly said he believed the council should discuss the position with Graham and arrive at a mutual recommendation.

Other items listed for discussion at the special session were:

- Appropriation of $2,000 to the account, Bureau of Relocations [reimbursable].

- Appropriation of $11,382 to the account, Engineering, Personal Services, for salary increases to certain engineering department employees in accordance with Revised State Salary Schedule.

- Appropriation of $1,850 to the account, Treasurer's, Capital Outlay, to buy a new checkwriting machine.

- Transfer of $10,000 from the account, Sale of Lots, Pine Hill, to the account Improvements to Cemeteries.

- Acceptance of a $1,000 gift from the estate of Kalil Lahage to purchase new equipment for Quincy City Hospital.

- Acceptance of a $25 gift from Mrs. Edith Grigor to be made part of the Coronary Care Unit Fund in memory of Hector A. Lopez.

- Petition from Boston Gas Co. for installation of two gas mains: one at South St., Quincy Point, the other at the intersection of Black's Creek and Southern Artery.

- Petition from New England Telephone and Telegraph Co. for a conduit at Hancock St. and Clay St., Wollaston.

- Petition from Mass. Electric Co. for a conduit at Chapman and Clay Sts., Wollaston.

Norfolk Labor Council's COPE Endorses Candidates

The Norfolk County Labor Council's COPE Committee has endorsed a number of candidates in this fall's state election, announces President George McCall. Among them, announces President George McCall are: Governor - Robert Quinn, Lt. Governor - Thomas O'Neill, Attorney General - George Sacco,

State Treasurer - Robert Crane,

State Secretary - John Davoren,

State Auditor - Thaddeus Buczek,

Congressman - James A. Burke.

State Senator - Arthur Tobin, State Representative - James Papile [First Norfolk].

Thomas Brownell [Second Norfolk], Joseph Brett [Third Norfolk], William Delahunt [Fourth Norfolk].

Norfolk County Sheriff - Clifford Marshall.

Robert LeBlanc Named To Board Of Registrars

Robert LeBlanc of 157 Standish Rd, Souvatum, has been appointed by Mayor Walter J. Hannon to serve on the Board of Registrars for the city of Quincy.

He succeeds Fred J. Prezioso of 34 Roberts St., South

Quincy.

The appointment, effective immediately, will continue through the first Monday in February, 1976.

Aug. 13th Voter Registration Deadline

Tuesday, Aug. 13 is the final day for voter registration before the state primaries on Sept. 10. Two final special days have been set aside during which citizens can register to vote at City Hall. Those days are Saturday, Aug. 10, from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. and Tuesday, Aug. 13 from 8:30 a.m. until 10 p.m.

There is also daily registration at the Election Department of City Hall from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Hospital Post Controversy

[Cont'd from Page 2] evaluated. He then, formally declares himself a degree candidate in a specific field. A total of 176 quarter hours is required to earn a degree.

Quinn received his bachelor of science in Business Administration from Suffolk University in Sept. 1973.

During the same special session, LaRaia also cast the single vote opposing a $5,009 salary adjustment for the recently created position of natural resources commissioner.

This adjustment boosts the current $15,582 annual salary of Park and Recreation Director Richard Koch to $20,591. Koch has been offered the position by Mayor Walter J.

Hannon, but will accept it only if assured a leave of absence from his present job.

I AM A PENCIL

Today in school Sam used me all day. First he used me to write his name on his lunch. Then he used me for 12 addition problems in math. In reading I got a break, but not for long. Sam had to do a vowel worksheet.

Now its lunch, I thought I would have a hour break but Sam and his classmates could not go out because it was raining. He used me to finish his homework because last night he didn't finish it.

The afternoon began. Sam did language and he did not use me at all he had to use a pen. Sam where he lived, telephone number, and how many people in his family. He eared so many times my head began to hurt and my hair got all messed up.

At the end of the week I was bald. Sam had used me all the way up to my neck. I wonder what he is going to do next? Oh what is he doing? He just threw me in the wastebasket. Good-bye.

A TALL BUILDING

I would like to be a building, a big tall building. Imagine the view I would have to be able to see the whole city. I could see how busy it is in the day and watch it die down at night. But when it rains I get all wet and soggy. I don't like that. When it snows I get cold and shivery I don't like that either. But when the sun comes I like that all nice and warm. Once a year they come to paint me. Then I stand out and shine brightly. When the street gangs come I wish I could run and hide. They write on me and break my windows. They climb my fire escape and brake off my steps. Boy they really hurt me. I wish I could open up and scream. I feel so ashamed in the morning when all the people walk by and see me looking like a dump. Well one day they wrecked me so bad that up and there going down. Boy I wish I could get my hands on those kids but its to late now. I can see the men coming to tear me down already. Now there setting up the tools. I guess I have to say good-bye.

If I was a base ball I would get hit and batted all around. There are many things I could do. I could fly, get torn and get my stitches ripped. Dependable, Beacon Cleaners Merge

Two well known Quincy dry cleaners have merged.

Beacon Cleaners of 624 Hancock St., Wollaston has joined in a business relationship with Dependable Cleaners of 675 Hancock St., also of Wollaston.

Announcement was made jointly by Joseph Grippi former owner of Beacon and Donald Fawcett Sr., owner of Dependable. Fawcett said the merger will enable residents of Wollaston to be served more efficiently.

Dependable Cleaners will operate Beacon Cleaners at 624 Hancock St. and Grippi will remain to manage the establishment.

The merger brings the total number of Dependable locations to eight. The former Dependable cleaning location at 675 Hancock St., will be closed in order that the firm may make use of the space in the Beacon location.

4 Youths Collect 2 Tons of Newspapers

Four junior high schoolers from Wollaston have collected two tons of old newspapers which will be re-cycled.

Frank Mullen, 14, of 78 Lincoln Ave., his 12-year-old brother Joseph, Matt Kanan, 12, of 83 Lincoln Ave., all of Central Junior High School - and Rick Gale of Prospect Ave., a 14-year-old at St. Ann's School, all canvassed Wollaston Hill door-to-door, asking for discarded newspapers.

In one month, the boys collected two tons of reusable paper. They have stacked the papers in bundles and soon plan to deliver half of the load to Sugarman and Co. on 299 Centre St.

These industrious boys will received $12 for every ton of paper.

3 From Quincy Attend Public Relations Institute

Three from Quincy were among the participants in the Professional Public Relations Institute sponsored by the Massachusetts School Counselors Association (MSCA) and held at Boston University last week.

The Institute, which had as its goal the development and improvement of communication skills for school counselors, was directed by Carol L. Hills, Associate Professor at the B.U. School of Public Communication.

Speaking on preparation of material for local radio was H. Winslow Bettinson, program director of radio station WJDA.

Enrolled in the Institute was Louise B. Forsyth, coordinator of testing for the Quincy Public Schools, who is active in the area of public relations for the American and the Massachusetts School Counselors Associations.

Donna Montgomery A.F. School Graduate

Airman Donna J. Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Montgomery, 39 Woodward Ave., Quincy has graduated at Keesler AFB, Miss., from the Air Training Command's basic course for electronic specialists.

She received instruction in communications and electronics systems principles, and is remaining at Keesler for advanced training.

She was graduated in 1971 from Quincy High School.

Dukakis Proposes Steps To Control Budget Spiral

Michael Dukakis, Democratic candidate for Governor, proposed here Saturday three concrete measures he would take "to bring the spiraling state budget under control."

In an address given to supporters and other interested citizens at a reception at the home of Rep. and Mrs. William Delahunt of 43 Myopia Rd. Quincy, Dukakis urged:

- Restrictions on new spending programs until Beacon Hill's revenue base is increased;
- Implementation of a budgetary reform package recently passed by the Legislature,

- Appointment of an aggressive Secretary of Administration and Finance "who can serve as a watchdog over our fiscal affairs" to the current practice of passing new spending programs without knowing what they will cost and where the money will be coming from.

"Massachusetts," Dukakis noted, "is a recognized leader in all types of public services," but, he warned, "as we spend further and further into the red, we're driving so many jobs out of the state that our social conditions are worsening."

"We are going to have to bring our budget under control and improve our economic base," Dukakis said, "before we'll have the money to pay for an expanded set of social programs. In the meantime, we'll just have to make tough decisions on spending priorities."

Dukakis cautioned, however, that responsible budgetary decisions would be impossible "unless the Legislature and the Governor's budget and understand it."

Therefore, Dukakis said, "as Governor, I will implement the budget reforms passed by the Legislature."

The measure, which Dukakis supported before its enactment, requires open budget hearings, written justification of spending increases in any state program and strict review of all deficiency budget requests.

"Finally, we need a Governor and a Secretary of Administration and Finance who will be tough, effective managers and who can provide the type of administrative leadership this state sorely needs," Dukakis said.

"Governor Lucey of Wisconsin," Dukakis observed, "has instituted a highly successful program to get greater productivity out of state agencies for far less cost."

"By simply insisting on a five per cent productivity increase from every state agency," Dukakis continues, "Wisconsin was able to save millions of dollars and provide its cities and towns with nearly half a billion dollars in local aid. And that's the way we have to move here in Massachusetts."

Dukakis concluded by noting that the fiscal picture for 1975, "is, if possible, even more bleak than this year's."

"And," he continued, "the only way this picture can be improved is if we change our budgeting procedures, our attitudes toward planning and the style and quality of our leadership."

Morris Silverman Social Hall To Be Dedicated

Beth Israel Synagogue will dedicate the social hall and chapel therein at the Morris Silverman Social Hall, Sunday morning Aug. 11.

Morris Silverman, a lifelong resident of Quincy, was president of the Beth Israel Synagogue for 22 years. He was an auto dealer in Quincy for many years, a member of the United Masonic Lodge of Brookline, the Aleppo Temple and Taleb Grotto. He was a past president of the B'nai B'rith in Quincy, a member of the Quincy Knights of Pythias and a member of the Quincy Conservation Commission until four years ago.

Rabbi Jacob Mann will conduct the morning worship service at 8:30 a.m. Following the religious services and dedication, the assembly will be served breakfast in the social hall, hosted by the Brotherhood and the Women's Council.

Mrs. Jack Klaver is president of the Women's Council, Jack Klaver is president of Beth Israel Synagogue and Morton Arons is president of Beth Israel Brotherhood.

CYO Hosts N.Y. Unit

CYO Headquarters in Wollaston will host the New York Warriors musical team, which will be among 12 leading junior corps of the country competing in the 11th annual CYO national invitational drum and bugle corps contest Tuesday College Alumni Stadium, Boston.

Rt. Rev. Robert W. McNeill, Boston Archdiocesan CYO director, who is also in overall charge of the CYO Nationals program, will be personal host to the Warriors, who made an outstanding showing in last year's contest.

The 12 corps will be competing for $15,000 in prize money in the CYO event, which has become established as one of the nation's major musical competitions and pageants.

The famed Blue Stars of LaCrosse, Wis., are the defending champions in a field that also includes the Casper, Wyo., Troopers, three-time winners of the CYO championship and owners of numerous international championships, and the Anaheim, Calif., Kingsmen, holders of a host of national and international titles.

Fall Semester Courses At Quincy Junior College Listed

The fall semester evening credit and non-credit courses at Quincy Junior College are scheduled to begin Sept. 9.

A new degree program has been added to the Quincy Junior College evening division. As of September, students in the evening division will be able to work towards an Associate in Science degree in Electronic Technology.

The evening division will offer 19 new credit courses ranging from witchcraft, satanism, and the occult, to Italian cultural heritage, to digital electronic circuits this fall.

4 Students New Associate Members Of School Committee

Four Quincy students were to be sworn in as associate members of the Quincy School Committee at a special Wednesday evening meeting.

The following new associate members will serve during the 1974-1975 school year.

Joseph Carroll, a senior at North Quincy High; George Condos, a senior at Quincy High; Robert Ross, a senior at Quincy Vocational Technical High and John Ford, a senior at Quincy Junior College.

There will be 11 new non-credit courses including establishing a food cooperative, preparation for the Scholastic Aptitude Test in Mathematics and 10 speed bicycle repair.

The Italian cultural heritage course is part of a set of four Italian studies courses, two of them on the language and the fourth on Italian-Americans.

The course will be taught by Orazio Z. Buttafuoco of Quincy, who came to the United States in 1958, and now writes for Incontro, the only Italian language newspaper in the greater Boston area.

Prof. Buttafuoco studied the classics, philosophy, history, and medicine while in Italy, and was a sports reporter. He is a registered professional soccer referee.

No knowledge of the Italian language is required for the course.

The digital electronics circuits course is part of a new curriculum offered by the college in electronics technology, leading to an associate in science degree in the applied sciences, offered in cooperation with the Vocational Technical School. The curriculum is intended to train technicians for immediate employment in electronic analysis, circuits, and systems.

The other new credit courses include cost accounting, education of the exceptional child, handbuilding pottery and ceramics, sculpture, personnel management, and introduction to law enforcement.

Registration will be Sept. 3 through 5 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m., and Sept. 6 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For more information on all evening credit and non-credit courses, contact the Office of Continuing Education at 471-2470.

$600 For John Adams Slide-Tape Show

The Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities has awarded a $600 grant to Quincy Heritage to produce a 15-minute slide-tape show on Quincy-born John Adams, second President of the United States.

Winslow Bettinson of radio station WIDA will narrate the slide presentation which will utilize pictures taken from the many available portraits of John Adams.

The presentation will be distributed throughout the Quincy school system and will be available to interested civic groups.

Quincy Heritage is the official group serving the city for programs related to the 350th anniversary of the founding of Mt. Wollaston and the American Revolution Bicentennial. The Rev. John R. Graham serves as its executive director.

Richard Joyce Raises Over $30 For MD

Richard Joyce of 47 Hall Place, West Quincy, raised over $30 for muscular dystrophy at a carnival held in his yard.

Richard, an 11-year-old sixth grader at St. Mary's School organized the carnival and was helped by his brother Michael, a first grader at St. Mary's. Lisa O'Brien, a friend from Hingham, told fortunes.

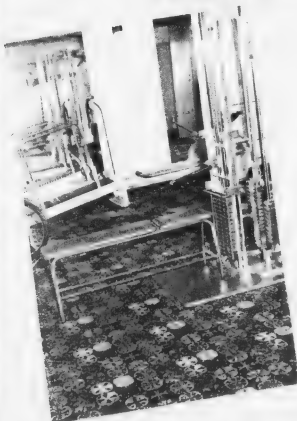

Approximately 25 neighborhood youngsters attended the carnival where Richard sold items ranging from picture frames to sports equipment to records and lamps.

Richard has already mailed his $30 check into the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Sears Defeats HN For Title

Sears Roebuck won the Quincy Junior Baseball League championship by defeating Houghs Neck, two games to one, in the playoff finals.

Sears clinched the title with a 9-0 romp in the deciding game last week as Bill Deitsch pitched a no-hitter and Steve Picot hit a three-run homer and a single. Deitsch struck out 15 of a possible 18 batters and walked five. Deitsch also had a double and Kenny Mann and Jimmy Austin a single apiece.

Matt Kenny made a great catch in the third inning while Mike Abboud and Greg Oriola made outstanding plays for Houghs Neck.

Earlier Sears had rebounded from a 14-3 thrashing to nip HN, 2-1, and even the series. Trailing, 1-0, going into the bottom of the sixth and final inning, Sears scored twice, the winning run coming on a bases loaded walk.

Houghs Neck pitcher Abboud held Sears hitless until the fifth inning when Fred Palmer singled. Mark Messina and Deitsch pitched up the only other hits off Abboud in the sixth.

Messina pitched four excellent innings for Sears and was relieved by Picot, who was outstanding and picked up the win.

Houghs Neck had four hits, singles by Oriola, Jeff Giordani, Tom McFarland and Matt Kenny, while Madden and Oriola were standouts defensively.

Sears, coached by Bart O'Leary, a veteran of 20 years coaching, finished with a 17-5 regular season record and a 4-1 playoff mark.

Babe Ruth League

Police, Fire Dept. In Finals

The Quincy Babe Ruth League playoff finals between the defending champion Police Boys' Club and the Fire Dept. got underway Wednesday at Adams Field and will continue tonight [Thursday], Friday and, if necessary, Saturday and Sunday.

It is a best three out of five series.

The Police Boys' Club won the National League title with a 19-3 record. It eliminated the American League runner-up, Houghs Neck Legion, 8-0 and 4-1, in the semifinals.

In the first game Lou Fishman was the winning pitcher, giving up three hits and striking out six. Ronny Donovan had the only extra base hit of the game, a triple, and other hits were collected by Mike Murphy, Chuckie LoPresti, Brian Connolly, Mike Boyle and Fishman. Greg Zoia, Fred Kussman and Bud Cassidy had the Houghs Neck hits. Mark Giordani was the losing pitcher.

In the second game LoPresti was the winning pitcher, yielding three hits, striking out seven and walking only one. Connolly had a two run triple and LoPresti had two run hits. Donovan, Richie Boyle, Fishman, Murphy and John Ferris had other hits. Artie Davis pitched well in a losing cause. Jeff Connerty, Kussman and Davis had the only Houghs Neck hits.

The Firemen earned the right to meet the Police by winning the American League crown with a 16-6 record and eliminating the National League runner-up, Hancock Bank, 9-6 and 4-2, in the semifinals.

Prosecution Or The Easy Way Out?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Publisher, The Quincy Sun

Richard M. Nixon has finally resigned and there are those who feel he has suffered enough and should be spared prosecution of the offenses he committed while President of the United States.

Some feel this way because of sincere compassion. Others because they have grown tired and weary of that now ugly word Watergate.

We have had our moments of compassionate thoughts, too, since Mr. Nixon announced he would step down. And we, too, are tired of hearing about Watergate and would like to see honest efforts now focused on solving the many domestic problems threatening our nation: shaky economy, inflation, unemployment, skyrocketing taxes, energy crisis, etc.

But to let the matter just drop without further action would, we believe, be taking the easy way out. An easy way, an unwise one and an unfair one.

If Mr. Nixon is allowed to just say goodbye, fly off to San Clemente with a $60,000 pension and secret servicemen to protect him while he perhaps spends his time writing "The Real Story Behind Watergate", then we are saying we have two degrees of justice in the United States.

How can the top man go scot free when others involved go to jail? Why should John Erlichman receive three concurrent prison terms of 20-months-to-five years each while Richard Nixon gets on a plane and goes home? Why should John Dean receive a one-to-four year sentence and other lesser figures in the scandal go to jail for varying lengths of time while The Chief arrives home and muses he doesn't have to worry about driving a car because he has secret servicemen to do that?

Last May 9 we editorially expressed our feelings quite strongly after Mr. Nixon was forced to release heavily edited transcripts of Watergate tapes.

The editorial was entitled: "The President: His Own Neck."

We noted then that for months we had been willing to give Mr. Nixon the benefit of the doubt when he insisted he knew nothing about the Watergate cover-up. We said that at times we had even admired him for what appeared to be good old American "guts" when he refused to release the tapes claiming he wanted to preserve executive privilege for future Presidents and that national security would be harmed. Such noble words.

But after reading the heavily edited transcripts, we said it was clear to us that what Mr. Nixon was really trying to do by holding onto the tapes was to save his own neck.

"Mr. President," we concluded, "we ask you to resign for the good of the country."

Well, he now has resigned, but not voluntarily. He was forced to resign, just as he was forced to release the edited transcripts and then the tapes themselves.

He resigned only after he found out how the impeachment winds were blowing along the Potomac. In fact, he resigned only the day after Senator Barry Goldwater informed him that he had just four votes left in the U.S. Senate.

The night he appeared on national television to announce his resignation was an opportunity for Mr.

'Did It For Patients' Safety'

Fired For Ripping Out Hospital Bed Cords

A unit manager at Quincy City Hospital has been fired by Mayor Walter Hannon for "cutting" 25 electrical bed cords on a surgical floor at the hospital.

Robert Burke, 32, of 72 Whitwell St., admits ripping out - not cutting - the cords but says he did it "for the safety of the patients and the nurses."

He asserts that the cords were frayed and the outer insulation torn, posing an electrical hazard to both patients and employees.

Burke who refused to resign vowed, "I'm going to fight it all the way."

He has filed a grievance with the Quincy City Employees Union. A union spokesman said a complaint in Burke's behalf will be filed with the State Labor Board.

Although the damaged wires were discovered last week, Burke said he "ripped the plugs

$5.60 Hike

New $159.90 Tax Hike A Case Of Bad News But Good News

Quincy's new $159.90 tax rate came as both good and bad news this week.

Bad news because a $5.60 hike over last year's rate will mean bigger tax bills this year. Good news, though, because the $5.60 increase is a lot easier to take than the ominous possible $20 to $30 jump predicted some months back.

"With the cost of living rising some 13 per cent in the past year, we are pleased to keep taxes down to an increase of only 3.6 per cent," said Mayor Walter J. Hannon in announcing the new rate Tuesday.

Hannon said it was possible to keep the increase to a minimum "by maintaining budgetary efficiency." A special budget committee was established by him in 1972 to scrutinize each item proposed by city departments and, as a result, the budget was cut some $6.6 million this year.

"We achieved this minimal increase in the tax rate because we are running the city like a business," said Hannon. "We congratulate our city department heads who have cooperated so willingly by running their departments efficiently and in a businesslike manner."

City council budget cuts and tapping the E & D Fund for $800,000 also helped. The $800,000 E & D money took $3.15 off the new rate.

Councillor John J. Quinn, chairman of the City Council's full-membership Finance Committee, said that the committee's efforts "should not go without notice."

The committee, Quinn said, cut the Mayor's original budget by about $1.9 million.

"If the Mayor's budget had been allowed to stay as it came into the Council," Quinn said, "the tax rate would have been roughly seven dollars higher, approximately $12.60."

Hannon noted that President Gerald Ford Monday night advised the voters of America to elect officials who would "say no" to policies which could boost government spending and inflation. Speaking of his own administration, Hannon said:

"We have said no, also. We haven't pleased everyone but we

● Sun Survey

60.6% Polled Here Think Nixon Should Be Prosecuted

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Should Richard Nixon be prosecuted after having resigned from the presidency?

Richard M. Nixon

after Mr. Nixon's televised

Nearly 61 percent [60.6 percent] of those polled in a random sampling conducted by The Quincy Sun the day resignation, favored prosecution of the former chief executive.

The tally was 20-13. Twenty Quincy and South Shore area residents - nine Democrats, one Republican, and 10 Independents - answered affirmatively while 13 people - five Democrats, four Republicans and four Independents - replied negatively.

The poll was conducted mainly in downtown Quincy although two were questioned by telephone.

Mrs. Grace E. Burgess of 429 Newport Ave., Wollaston, who describes herself as "a staunch Democrat," said: "He should get the same treatment as the others. Why should he go scot free? We've had enough of this 'executive privilege'." "And now, people have so much compassion for him and for his family-the same people who wanted Nixon out of office so badly. Forgetting about it just isn't justice."

Irving Felman of 83

Gulliver St., Milton, an Independent voiced fear that members of Nixon's "team" could still wield influence within the government. He said:

"It shouldn't stop now. He still has his team behind him in office. He could do more harm."

Mrs. Beatrice Meighan of 73 Bicknell St., Germantown, a Democrat believes Mr. Nixon's involvement in Watergate has "done a lot of damage to the country." "We were always thought of as a good people, a good country. But not any more," she said.

One Quincy Independent who wished to be unidentified, favored prosecution because of Nixon's tardiness in telling all the facts. "He should have come out with it in the beginning. He knew from the start. Nixon is guilty of the same crimes as the others who have been sent to jail."

Another Independent, Eileen M. Casey of 87 Marlboro St., Wollaston, $193,890 In New Plumbing

Inspector of Plumbing and Gas Fitting James A. Erwin Jr., reports 110 plumbing applications for an estimated $193,890 in plumbing were filed during the month of July.

A total of $681 was received for permits. One-hundred fifteen plumbing inspections were made.

Major projects for the month were an $80,000 apartment complex at 123 Elm St., Quincy and one at 62 South St., Quincy Point, costing $35,000.

Erwin also reported the filing of 56 applications for gas installations costing an estimated $10,093.

Forty-three inspections were made and $109 was received for permits.

60.6% Would Prosecute Nixon

advocated prosecution, although she was "sorry to see the whole thing happen." She marveled that such "a learned man" like Mr. Nixon could have been involved in political scandal. "And he is supposed to set an example for our children," she added.

Mrs. Anne Reilly of 231 Whitwell St., Quincy, a Democrat, balked at the thought of jailing Mr. Nixon, but said the former president "deserves to get a little harder treatment."

"He should be dealt with accordingly," she said. "He has never said what he has done and has never said that he shouldn't have done it. And he hasn't said he's sorry."

Priscilla Barkhouse of 2 Keyes St., Quincy Point, a Democrat said: "He is guilty of a lot of things we don't even know about yet."

Nine persons - five Independents, three Democrats but only one Republican - called for Nixon's prosecution because he committed a crime and "should be treated like everyone else."

Richard Boyle, a Democrat from Canton, commented: "The presidency alone does not allow Nixon amnesty. If you or I had committed such acts, we'd have been prosecuted."

Mrs. Meredith Persson of 119 Jaffrey St., Weymouth, an Independent, said: "He shouldn't be exempt from prosecution because he was the President. In fact, his being President is one reason in itself why he shouldn't be exempt."

"He broke the law," said Dorothy Fitzgerald of Middle St., South Weymouth, an Independent. "He should pay like anyone else."

Kenneth Johnson Sr., a 19-year resident of Quincy and a Democrat, now living in Brockton, said: "He committed a crime and should be prosecuted. It makes no difference who you are in life."

Mrs. Nettie Murphy of 137 Palmer St., Germantown, an Independent, said: "He's like everyone else. He committed a crime and should be prosecuted."

Mrs. Dolores Silva of 55 Davis St., Wollaston, an Independent, brushed aside presidential privilege: "He should be treated like any other person doing wrong. There should be no exemptions just because he was the president."

Mrs. Adele Gowans of 50 Silver St., Quincy Point, a Democrat, said: "If he did wrong, he should be punished."

John Gilroy of Carver, an Independent, echoed a similar thought: "If it had been you or myself, we'd be prosecuted."

Harold Burden of 96 Washington St., Quincy, a Republican who noted he voted for Richard Nixon, said the former chief executive should "get the same treatment as the others."

But other people opposed any prosecution of now-Citizen Nixon.

"I like him," said John Grant of 38 Cherry St., Quincy Point, an Independent. "To me, he was tried by a kangaroo court. I'm wondering why they didn't investigate the Democrats in Kennedy's administration."

Ralph Dodge of 3 Shoreside Rd., Adams Shore, an Independent, replied: "No. The public is so tired of this thing, and it would cost a lot of money to try and convict him. He and his family have been punished enough."

Albert Salhaney, of 60 Grandview Ave., Wollaston, an Independent, called Nixon "a good man." He opposed prosecution, saying, "Anyone in politics is a little crooked. Nixon did a lot for the country."

Officer Donald Pearson, a member of the Quincy Police Department for seven years, commented:

"He has suffered enough over the past months. He's lost the presidency. That's enough of a loss for any person."

Harry Achatz of 36 Woodman Circle, South Weymouth, and David Pettengill of 22 Miller St., Braintree, both Republicans, agreed.

Achatz said, "We've heard enough of this stuff." Pettengill commented, "The country has gone through enough, and Nixon has suffered enough."

And Mrs. Betty Trabucco, a Democrat of 67 Safford St., Wollaston, echoed that Nixon "has gone through enough as it is."

"Leave him alone," said one unidentified Democrat from Quincy Point.

"He's suffered enough. He can't hurt us anymore," said a Houghs Neck Independent.

"I feel sorry for him," said Mrs. Helen Crotty, a Republican of 20 Spence Ave., Quincy Point. "Leave him alone."

Two polled expressed mixed emotions on the subject of prosecution. Carl Ameen, a Democrat from Weymouth and a former 20-odd-year resident of Quincy, said:

"I usually like to see any man taking his medicine. But Nixon has suffered enough. He'll have this with him for the rest of his life. Leave him alone."

Miss Marie Corayer of 151 Sea St., Quincy, a Republican, at first thought Nixon "should go to jail." But she has changed her mind. "I think we should forget about the situation."

An unidentified Democrat from Weymouth thought it would be "a disgrace to the country" to jail Mr. Nixon. "We've gone through enough. What good would it do to put him behind bars?"

And Democrat Emma Giancola of 73 Bicknell St., Germantown, said, "It would be too trying for the country. Let's get our country back together again."

John Carlson, an Independent of 63 Suwanee Rd., Weymouth, perhaps crystallized the entire issue when he observed: "I'd just like to know the truth."

NEARING THE FINISH -- Rev. William Carroll [right], and William Horne pedal the final yards of their 119-mile bike ride.

Raises Over $2,380

Priest Pedals 119 Miles For Charity

Rev. William R. Carroll, a curate at St. John's Church, Quincy, has raised over $2,380 for the St. Vincent de Paul Society in Boston.

He didn't raise the money during a Sunday collection nor at a church bazaar or benefit. He raised it through a 119-mile bike ride to Provincetown.

Fr. Carroll earned over $20 for every pedalled mile, through the collective sponsorship of friends and parishioners. Individual contributions ranged from one penny to one dollar.

Providing the incentive for the trip and accompanying Fr. Carroll was William Horne of 95 Monroe Rd, Quincy. A professor at Boston College School of Management and a financial consultant, Horne has made the haul to Cape Cod on three other occasions. Three weeks ago, he took a test run of the route followed by him and Fr. Carroll "just for exercise."

As the story goes, Father Carroll jokingly said to Horne, "If you can do it, I can do it." Horne accepted the challenge, and the rest is now history.

The official time for the 119-mile ride was nine hours and 35 minutes. The two men left St. John's on Monday morning at 7:10 and arrived in Provincetown at 4:45 p.m.

They biked on Rte 53, turning onto Route 3A at Kingston. They whizzed through Plymouth Center, pedalling over the Sagamore Bridge onto Rte. 6A as far as Eastham. They travelled Rte 6 from Eastham to Provincetown.

The two stopped at the Church of St. Peter in Provincetown to get the pastor's signature, verifying their arrival. Fr. Carroll and Horne, equipped with 10-speed bikes, made four check-point stops along the way and took frequent breathers for long, cool drinks of water.

The day after the trip, Fr. Carroll described himself as "weary but satisfied". He marvelled at his biking companion, saying:

"He led all the way! He's in fantastic shape."

Asked if he'll try the excursion again, Fr. Carroll said, "Not for a while...maybe next year."

Tobin Seeks MDC Action Against Drinking, Noise Near Shea Rink

Senator-Council President Arthur H. Tobin has asked Lt. Francis McKenna, commanding officer of the MDC Police, to help eliminate the "heavy drinking, carousing and disturbing of the peace" prevalent near Shea Skating Rink in West Quincy.

Tobin said that he was also writing in behalf of Councillor James A. Sheets.

Tobin noted the evidence of "property damage and excessive noise in the neighborhood" which he said is most disturbing to elderly citizens and residents with families.

Lt. McKenna admitted that the MDC "has had problems there and has made arrests there." He added, "Our officers are aware that this is a spot which requires added coverage."

Tobin requested that McKenna gather the names and addresses "of the youngsters hanging around the area after dark" so that he and Sheets could notify the parents of the people involved.

McKenna commented that the force "tries to honor requests and to beef up coverage" in problem areas.

City Saves $140,755 In Fuel Oil Campaign

Purchasing Agent Richard Newcomb reports a saving of 469,183 gallons of oil, or an estimated dollar saving of $140,755, as a result of an "active campaign to cut fuel consumption."

The saving was recorded during the heating year from July 1, 1973 to June 30, 1974, in comparison with last year's fuel consumption.

Officer Matthew Pino inspected at random a total of 55-odd buildings, including schools, libraries, Quincy City Hospital and the Fire Department in the city.

He said he "popped in at random," checking the thermostat and closing open windows. He also talked with the building custodians and inspected burners.

Gallon savings throughout the city added up as follows: Schools, 402,670; Hospital, 30,677; Fire Department, 7,017; Libraries, 9,990; other buildings, 18,829.

Pino noted that some schools still use No. 5 oil, a cheaper but thicker oil which costs more to burn than No. 2 heating oil. He said that all schools will eventually run on No. 2 oil.

AFS Plans Benefit Flea Market Sept. 14

The American Field Service Quincy Chapter is planning a Flea Market, Saturday, Sept. 14, in the parking area of the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

Purpose of this event is to raise money for an international scholarship fund which, for the past 10 years, has allowed many Quincy High School students to spend either a summer or a full school year living with carefully selected families in such varied countries as Germany, Denmark, Japan, Belgium, Ecuador, Spain, Norway, and the Philippines.

At the same time, the fund has brought to Quincy High School, students from Spain, Peru, Ireland, Brazil, Norway, Argentina, and Holland for a year, to become members of families here, and to share in the life of this community.

Space will be available at the Flea Market for rental. Those interested should contact Mrs. Joseph Wine, 103 Shore Ave., Merrymount.

Parents need love too

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

What can I do about my parents? They are so out of it that you can't believe it. I'll just give you a couple of examples.

They hate my records. They prefer Glenn Miller. Dad gets his hair cut so short his scalp shows. Mom is overweight. She talks about diets but that is the extent of her efforts. How can I update them?

Sweet Sixteen

Dear Sixteen:

Be patient with under-achievers. When Mom doesn't stick with her diet, let her know that you love her anyway. Be tolerant of Dad's haircut. It's important to him to look like his peers. Remember, parents need to feel loved, too. Get it?

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I am engaged to John and we will be married in August. Since both of us are juniors, John thought that I should quit school for a year, support us, and then return to my studies sometime in the future. For a year it wouldn't be so bad. I agree that it is important for him to finish school; however, recently he has been suggesting that I work four or five years so that he can go to law school. He has also hinted that I could work long enough to save a down payment on a house.

I am beginning to feel that he only wants to marry me for by earning power. When he looks at me and asks these things, I just melt. What can I do to slow him down?

Diane

Dear Diane:

If you put John through law school and earn enough for a down payment on a house, John may decide he should never go to work. He seems to have a cash register for a heart and dollar signs for eyes. Tell him that you will both finish college and THEN you will consider marriage. The characteristics displayed by John don't improve, they just get worse.

Put The Lid On Odors From Clothes Hamper

Clothes hamper odor becomes especially conspicuous in the summer months—but don't feel hampered by it.

Freshen your clothes hamper by following these suggestions from Virginia White, laundry expert for Miracle White.

First, clean hamper insides thoroughly with a heavy duty laundry detergent such as Miracle White and water. Use a damp sponge to avoid saturating wood or wicker. Allow to dry thoroughly in a shaded area out of doors, if possible. Spray with disinfectant.

Paint hamper insides with clear lacquer to prevent future absorption of odors.

Hang an air deodorant ball inside hamper lid or any other place where depositing laundry won't be obstructed.

Allowing just-worn underwear and shirts to "air out" over shower rod for even an hour will help prevent build up of offensive hamper odors.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Ballistic clothes banish fears

By ANN RUDY

If you think fashion today has out-kooked itself, look again.

I'm not talking about string bathing suits, or even Gucci alligator shoes from Beverly Hills that have to be sent back to Italy because it isn't nice to kill alligators and what good will that do the alligator now, poor thing?

No, I'm talking about Ballistic clothing. It wasn't a big ad in the newspaper, just a low-key announcement that if it's bullet-proof clothes you're after, there's a place in Long Beach, Calif. where the House of Halpin will tailor their unique clothes to your particular needs.

And in today's violent society, why shouldn't we have safety as well as style? If I'm going to run over to my bank to make a deposit, I'd like to look as nice as the next woman and still not have to worry if a gang of bank robbers swarmed in and announced, "OK, everybody, this is a stickup."

If I was wearing Ballistic clothing, all I'd have to do is strike a fashionable pose and say, "I may look like just an ordinary woman, but I have on a bullet-proof pant suit, so buzz off."

And I'd like to have a suit made for my husband, too. Only yesterday he told me he had a scare just as he turned into our driveway. He'd been listening to the car radio on his way home from work and there had been, along with the smog report, two robberies, a kidnapping and three shootings.

Hypered by the news, he turned down our street and a kid about 8 ran across a lawn pointing a plastic gun at the car.

"Bang! Bang!" said the kid, and my husband ducked. Makes a grown man feel like a fool.

But if he'd had on a Ballistic suit he could have sat proudly at the wheel, secure in the knowledge that if that run was real the bullet would merely rip through his windshield, hit his praying hands tie-tack, ricochet off the dashboard and return to lodge harmlessly in his breast pocket.

In Ballistic clothing we could all face the world unafraid. Or almost.

In the Kitchen

TOSTADA STACK-UPS

- 2 cups chopped fresh tomatoes
- 1/3 cup sliced green onion
- 2 teaspoons finely chopped hot cherry peppers
- 1 teaspoon salad oil
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
- 4 tostadas (crisp fried tortillas)

- 4 cups shredded lettuce
- 1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
- Bottled low calorie salad dressing

In bowl, combine tomatoes, onion, pepper, oil and garlic; chill. Top tostadas with lettuce, cheese and tomato mixture. Serve with dressing if desired. Makes about 2 cups sauce. (4 servings — 207 calories per serving.)

Prices are on the rise everywhere

Prices rose an average 9.6 per cent in the European Economic Community last year, according to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

The average increase in OECD member countries was 11 per cent, with the United States scoring 9.6 per cent, France 10.3 per cent, Britain 12 per cent and Japan 23.1 per cent. — CNS

POINT OF VIEW

Valerie Harper ready for 'Rhoda'

By DON FREEMAN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — For reasons that seem obvious enough to require little explanation, Valerie Harper will be entrusted with her own series this fall. The title, fittingly, is "Rhoda" — Rhoda Morgenstern, of course, best friend, neighbor, confidante and dispenser of sharply honed witticisms on the Mary Tyler Moore Show.

This is what the trade calls a spinoff, a chance for a supporting player to assume center-stage. The record shows that not every spinoff clicks into a successful series. Contrarily, one might point to the old Andy Griffith Show, which included Jim Nabors among its cast and in time spawned the Gomer Pyle series with Nabors in the title role.

The odds would seem to favor Valerie Harper. Superbly written and extraordinarily well played, the role of Rhoda Morgenstern, rich in pungent dialogue, has brought Miss Harper three successive Emmy awards. The new series will be produced, moreover, under the helm of the Mary Tyler Moore Show people, clearly another asset.

Its coproducers will be David Davis and Lorenzo Music, creators and coproducers of the Bob Newhart Show. Davis and Music are well-versed, in short, in the tricky terrain of the half-hour television comedy.

You can listen to Valerie Harper, who is wearing a big black hat and a spiffy kind of black and white outfit and looks absolutely terrific, and there is an unusual dearth of actors' ego as she gives full credit to the role she has played. This is a conspicuous rarity. In the acting business, the player often as not assumes that the role was secondary to his (or her) talent, style, looks and warm personality. — CNS

"Rhoda Morgenstern," Valerie is saying, "is a marvelous part. It isn't me at all. I don't talk like her or act like her. But I did share an apartment once with four girls in New York and a lot of the original characterization I tried to base on them, on their special inflections and attitudes."

"On the other hand," she went on, "much of Rhoda's reaction to things are the same as mine except that I'm not as funny or as free. Little kids really respond to Rhoda on the show and the reason, I think, is that they appreciate the way she has of saying the unsayable. I guess they like her for the same reason grownups do — because she's funny and she's fun and she kids about herself and her own shortcomings."

According to design, the new series will make a departure from the old turf. For one thing, Rhoda returns to New York on a vacation, she meets a fellow named Joe, who is divorced and has a 10-year-old son. She decides to remain in New York and by the eighth episode in the series they are married.

"Rhoda gets married?" said Miss Harper. "Sure, it had to happen. Her cells tell her it's time to get married. She was ready for marriage, ready to face those problems. The guy, Joe, is in the demolition business with his ex-father-in-law and they look on New York, with all of its old buildings, as one big job."

"And Rhoda goes into another line of work. Window dressing was all right while she was in Minneapolis but now she wants a change. She wants to be more than a window dresser in The City. So, she gets a job in a publishing house. For the show, for Rhoda, it's a fresh start, a new beginnings."

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Action centers around work, close associates, people you rely on for successful results. Place emphasis on gaining cooperation. If a project you have been working on now appears valueless, let it go.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Concentrate on creative activities not related to your work area. Civic involvements are favored. Romance is highlighted — show your affection for another. Catch up on projects around the home — beautifully.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Tension eases somewhat. Relax more at home — take a short trip if possible. Real estate concerns are indicated. Be discreet and cautious about clandestine romance to avoid possible embarrassment to you.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Very constructive ideas or feelings are the order of the day now. Rely on your intuitions and put them to practical use. Compromise can be the way to settle problems incapable of solution until now.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Your feeling of "at peace with the world" should be used in professional and personal activities — don't let opportunities slip by. Use an unexpected financial windfall to increase your personal wardrobe.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Good time for a vacation if at all possible. Personal relationships are pleasant and fulfilling — a happy time. Finances are favored. Intuition and intellect are sharpened and your ideas are well received.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Possibility of a long-held dream or wish coming true. Friends contribute importantly to your achievement of desires. Professional opportunities are indicated. Curb impulsive expenditures — stick to your budget.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant)

— Research and investigate to stay on top of what is happening in work area. Be outgoing socially. You could meet people who are important to you. Do not endanger savings by speculative investments now.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Use patience and wit in your interpersonal dealings — go "out of your way" to be attentive to others. Career goals are favored and you can find the ways to solve problems. Loved ones are helpful.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Ideas about your professional activities "fall into place" and some extent of secrecy appears involved. Matters which have been stalemated or delayed could come through at this time. Use care in transit.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Your reputation and professional prestige increase. Don't react emotionally when others are jealous and show resentment. Travel is emphasized. Finances are favored. Ideas abound — put them to work.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Communication regarding career is favored with travel as part of the picture. Agreements made in secret should be kept that way — secret. Romance is on the agenda too, possibly with a Scorpio-like person.

Stay Alive!
By Jack Silverstein

AVOID THE DRUNK - HE KILLS

One of the most gruesome statistics is that alcohol is the cause of over half of all the highway deaths year after year. Unfortunately many of the victims killed in alcohol-caused accidents are the innocent "other guys".

How can the "other guy" identify the alcoholic potential killer so he can keep out of his way? Look for these common driving faults: Driving noticeably slower than normal traffic. Straddling the white or yellow dividing line or weaving from lane to lane. Reacting slowly, such as failing to stop until partially through an intersection.

The best defense against a drunk driver is to move completely out of his path. If you can pass him safely, do so immediately. If you can't, fall back several car lengths. It will give you more time to react if he suddenly jams on the brakes.

● Market Report

Green, Yellow Beans In Ample Supply

The Massachusetts harvest is extremely heavy right now, with prices very reasonable, says the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA].

Green beans of all varieties are in ample supply, and priced so low that one might consider canning or freezing supplies for later use. Beans come in many varieties: some are green, others waxy yellow; some are flat, some round; all are equally good, depending entirely upon personal taste.

When buying beans, suggests the MDA, they should be crisp and firm, but tender. Snap one between your fingers; it should be crisp enough to snap easily, and break without bending. If it bends first, it's not fresh. If the pod is ridged or bulged, the beans will be old, tough and leathery.

Keep refrigerated, in a moisture-proof container until ready to use. Keep them dry before sealing in a plastic bag or tub; wet beans do not keep well, so don't wash them until ready to cook.

And - don't overcook them. Drop one pound of beans into a half a cup of boiling water, with a half teaspoon of salt if you wish. Cover, and cook for the shortest time possible - until they're just tender - for fullest flavor. Twelve to 16 minutes boiling time is plenty, says the MDA.

There has been very little drought damage in the Bay State so far, and local farmers are bringing great quantities of excellent vegetables to market daily.

Cabbage, sweet corn, blueberries, outdoor [vine-ripened] tomatoes, cucumbers, summer squashes, peppers, bunch beets and the salad crops are in abundance at farm stands and produce counters.

But the picture may change if we don't get some rain pretty soon, says the MDA. Many growers have turned to irrigation, but even that remedy fails when ponds run dry. Some fields cannot be irrigated, and those will suffer first. The corn season could end prematurely if fields dry up, and vegetables such as cucumbers do poorly in the heat without enough water.

Mr. and Mrs. Biagio Salomone of 68 Water St., South Quincy, were guests of honor at a recent dinner and reception held at the Sons of Italy Social Center, marking their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple were married June 22, 1924, at St. John's Church. Mrs. Salomone, the former Laura Mercurio, is a native of Aragona, Sicily. Mr. Salomone was born in Quincy.

The couple are the parents of five children, Mrs. Sadie Pritchett, Mrs. Thesa Arienti, Mrs. Rose Marini, Mrs. Marie Conti and Anna Salomone. The couple have 10 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Mr. Salomone is a member of the Order of the Sons of Italy and the Aragona Society. Mrs. Salomone is a member of the Stella del Nord Society and the Quincy Aragona Women's Society. Mr. Salomone before his retirement was a painter for the Bethlehem Steel Company and the General Dynamics Corporation for 42 years.

More Spent On Beer, Smokes, Pop Than Beef

The American consumer spent more for beer, cigarettes and bottled soft drinks in 1973 than for beef, the USDA reports in a plaintive note published in "Rule of Modern Agriculture Report".

Retail expenditures for fresh beef last year totalled $7.6 billion, while totals for the three "unnecessary" groups came to $8.85 billion - some 17 percent higher.

The official suggestion was that we may have to change our eating habits in the future. The news indicates that the change is already taking place.

$40,000 Grant To Help Start CP Developmental Day Care Center

A $40,000 grant from the Massachusetts Developmental Disabilities Council will help to begin a Developmental Day Care Center at Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc.

The program will be in operation as soon as a staff is hired and trained.

The objective of the center is to prevent or ameliorate developmental disabilities in children up to age five.

The organization also reports that Retired Senior Citizens Volunteer Program (RSVP) has sent many helpful volunteers to the center.

Miss Alice Hogan of 73 Bicknell St., Germantown, assisted in answering the telephone two days a week during the months of March through June.

John Mahoney of Quincy was responsible for the coordination and organization of an open house. He also helped with office responsibilities during the executive director's hospitalization.

Nathaniel J. Waldman of School St., Quincy, helped with moving to the center's new headquarters.

In addition, five Quincy parents, whose children receive therapy at the clinic, offered their help in addressing and stuffing envelopes. They were Mrs. Dean Annis, 15 Ellington Rd., Wollaston; Mrs. Wilma Blake, 1296 Furnace Brook Parkway, West Quincy; Mrs. Donald Calabro, 400 Granite St., Quincy; Mrs. Charles A. Scheutz, 107 Phillips St., Wollaston; and Mrs. Peter J. Wallace, 100 Furnace Brook Parkway, Quincy.

Three teenagers from the Neighborhood Youth Corps are also volunteering their time to the clinic. They are Martin McDonald of 14 Sea Ave., Houghs Neck; Michael Cruise of 541 Newport Ave., Wollaston; and Cynthia Lamphere of 78 Quarterdeck Rd., Germantown.

Candidates Night Aug. 28 At 1000 Southern Artery

The 1000 Southern Artery Senior Citizens Center will hold a Candidates Night Wednesday, Aug. 28 in the auditorium starting at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Bedros Baharian, Executive Director of 1000 Southern Artery, will preside.

Candidates who are running for the following offices:

governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, sheriff, senator, congress or state representative are invited to participate.

Mrs. Blanche Wellman, Program Director, may be contacted at 471-1000 for further information.

John King To Take Part In Unique Scientific Experiment

Coast Guard Sonar Technician Second Class John F. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence S. King of 170 Federal Ave., South Quincy, is scheduled to participate in the largest and most complex international scientific experiment ever undertaken.

As a crew-member aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Dallas, operating out of Dakar, Senegal, he will be assisting with the collection of data over the tropical Atlantic and adjacent land areas. The data will be used for a study of the behavior of cloud clusters and their role in the larger circulation of the atmosphere.

King will be assigned to aid the Dallas in its mission as a floating communications center and oceanographic and aerological platform. His ship, homeported at Governor's Island, N.Y., will be one of 25 assembled for the operation, along with several aircraft and support from 75 to 100 land stations.

A 1971 graduate of Quincy High School, he joined the Coast Guard in August 1971.

Ensign Alan McKenzie Graduates From Justice School

Navy Ensign Alan B. McKenzie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McKenzie of 179 Presidents Lane, Quincy has graduated from the Military Justice Course at the Naval Justice School Newport, R.I.

During the five week course he received instruction in the principles and application of the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

Leo Antonelli On Destroyer Tender

Navy Seaman Recruit Leo Antonelli Jr., son of Mrs. Helen E. Antonelli of 220 Quincy Ave., Quincy, has reported for duty aboard the destroyer tender USS Piedmont homeported in San Pedro, Calif.

Sacco Would Abolish Special Judges, Reinstate Capital Punishment

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Many people sceptically regard the office of attorney general as a mere whistlestop on the ride to the governor's office.

And candidates competing for attorney general usually wince, chuckle or fidget when asked, "Do you have any aspirations for the governorship?" They usually answer with a blunt, bullet-like "No" and wait for the next question.

George L. Sacco, the first-announced candidate for attorney general, is different. He didn't wince; he didn't chuckle; he didn't fidget. He answered the question earnestly and without rhetoric:

"I want to be attorney general in 1974 and four years later. I want to run for re-election. I want to finish the job."

He continued, "Of course I have ambition. Anyone without it will not be a good attorney general. But the most important thing for me now is to be attorney general for the people of Massachusetts."

Underlining the seriousness of his quest for the office, the 37-year-old Sacco relinquished his powerful post as vice-chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. He had held the office for five years.

In announcing his resignation last February, Sacco explained that he wanted to avoid potential conflicts between his duties at the State House and his responsibilities as a candidate for attorney general.

The dark-haired, dark-eyed Sacco is dynamic and aggressive. "I will be an activist attorney general," he said. "I will not sit in the State House. I am going to work with the people and help change the concept of the office."

Sacco has spent over 16 years in Massachusetts politics. He began his career at an unusual age - 21 - and at an unusual time - while still an undergraduate at Suffolk University. In 1959 he was elected to the Medford School Committee, leading a fight to construct the first new Medford school to be built in 20 years.

In 1962, after serving two terms on the School Committee and graduating from Suffolk University Law School, Sacco was elected to the House of Representatives, serving six consecutive terms.

An eleven-year veteran of the House, he supported the creation of the Massachusetts

GEORGE SACCO

Consumer Council and was the original sponsor of "Citizens Right to Sue Law" providing for citizen-suits against polluters.

Sacco also authored a set of laws increasing the penalties for illegal possession or registration of firearms. He said that only 125 out of 936 firearms violators received sentences last year. "The courts have to get tough with someone who consistently disobeys the law," Sacco said.

During his visit to The Quincy Sun, Sacco slammed big utilities, race tracks, the lottery ["Should we run a society on a gambling basis?" he asked], and the welfare system in Massachusetts.

Calling the state's welfare department "the worst in America," Sacco said he advocates "sensible" welfare programs, "ones that do not separate husband and wife, ones that do not keep an able-bodied man out of work because it's more painful for him to be on welfare."

Sacco, who has won all 14 elections ever entered, pledged to remember the taxpayer. "The people's money has to be the first priority in planning programs," he said. He also wants "to fill the fiscal vacuum" existing between a governor's request for funds and the legislature's appropriation of the money.

"Who watches where the money goes?" Sacco asked.

During his 11 years as a Massachusetts legislator, Sacco fought a requested rate increase of $122 million for public utilities. He led the defeat of a $55 million tax rebate to the state and he opposed legislation giving a race track a million dollar tax rollback in 1973.

If elected attorney general, Sacco said that he would begin "a fresh approach" within the office.

"We've been starting with the 14-year-olds who smoke marijuana but we have to go to the top and slap people there hard."

Educated in Medford, Worcester Academy, Northeastern University and Suffolk Law School, Sacco specialized in criminal law for minor offenders. He has filed legislation to extend the concept of the Boston Court Resource Project - a project emphasizing the rehabilitation, not the jailing, of youthful offenders.

In addition, Sacco wants to abolish special judges - judges who hear cases in the morning and then present them, as lawyers, in the afternoon.

"Special judges mean special justice," Sacco said. "It is this dual standard of justice that I am running against: 'one for the rich and one for the poor.'"

Before law mandated it, Sacco publically announced his campaign contributions and opened his IRS returns to public scrutiny. "I made a full disclosure of my assets," Sacco said. "I believe it is important for the voters to know this information."

Sacco himself brought up an accusation that he is spending money on billboards and thus "buying" his way into office. Countering that accusation, he remarked, "People who support me are trying to 'buy' good government."

Unafraid to air his stance on issues controversial and sensitive, Sacco has filed legislation to re-instate capital punishment. He feels that the death penalty would act as a deterrent to the commission of "senseless intentional murders." Sacco said:

"I'd like to see the day when I can be an abolitionist. But we must concern ourselves now with victims and potential victims of crime."

With six candidates contending for the same office, it sometimes becomes difficult to distinguish between them all. Sacco's solution is this: "I admire all my opponents. I don't make personal attacks on them. I only ask the voters to measure my credentials against theirs. And I'm someone who will stand up and be counted."

'I'd Rather Be Me'

"Who would you rather be than anyone else?" ... I asked Kay who was struggling with some heavy life situations. She was widowed ... two children ... now deceased two years ... she was working and growing in her position. Her greatest problem was loneliness. She had her children ... but she needed adult ... particularly male companionship. She had come to talk over this problem and to learn new ways ... and attitudes in the area of meeting and dating. "It's like being a teen-ager all over again," she said. We forget that teen-agers have their problems in meeting and relating ... and many go steady and even marry unwisely and too quickly just to get rid of the problem.

"But in answer to your question 'Who would I rather be than who I am?', I think I would have to say 'NO ONE. I'd rather be me than anyone else I know.'"

"Why?" I pressed her. I try to get people to think ... to reason with me. We know ourselves better and how to relate to others when we reason aloud with someone.

Kay and I thought through three reasons why she would rather be herself than anyone else. The first ... "I KNOW MY SITUATION ... its problems ... my limitations ... and I can go on from here to learn how to cope with it. If I could exchange places with someone else, that situation would also have problems which I would have to get acquainted with before I could even begin to deal with the problems." Kay is right ...

and this applies to all of us. Whose situation could you really handle better than your own?

Kay's second reason for wanting to be herself ... "I'M GETTING TO LIKE MYSELF. I see a lot of potential in myself. I feel that I'm just beginning to live." Kay was 45 now. She was learning to "let go" of her children ... now in their teens. She had seen that her married life had been too much "trying to please George to the neglect of my own self." Now she's free ... free to be her own person ... to do her own thing. She was liking her real self. No wonder she's saying "I'd rather be me."

Kay thought a moment ... and then came up with a third reason why she's rather be herself. "I'M EXCITED ABOUT THE FUTURE. I can see that I'm coping better with my own personal situation ... that I'm liking myself so much better (for awhile she even blamed herself for George's death ... car accident) ... and now I'm getting excited about the future ... the new things I'm doing and plan to do." She was taking tennis lessons ... going to an art class ... was working full time ... refurbishing as she could the worn out furniture in her home ... making new curtains and besides these and her full time job she was eager and ready to meet new people ... particularly eligible men. She had never before been so attractive a person. She is confident. I guess no one is really ready to live until he/she comes to accept the fact that "I'd rather be me." It's rather important ... really now ... you have no other choice.

A Promise Of Hope In The World Today

Editor, Quincy Sun:

What is going on in the current national and world scene these days is heart-rending to all of us as citizens. Most of us are in deep anguish over all of it. It would challenge our faith in our fellow man. It would defy our best efforts to do good. Is there no hope anywhere? Yes, there is.

May I share with you and your readers my own feelings of spiritual refreshment and hope - yes, and renewed faith too in my fellow man? I was in Boston this week and beheld for myself the awe-inspiring sight of a vast array of youth 7,000 strong. Quietly and without fanfare or notice 7,000 young people from all parts of the world including the USA converged on Boston at the new Christian Science Church Center. Chartered planes and individual groups from Paris, London, Hamburg, Zurich, Bombay and Johannesburg, yes and from California, Oregon, Montana, Wisconsin flew in over the weekend.

They came by motorcycle, bicycle, chartered buses, with backpacks and sleeping bags. All of them members of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston. All of them not drinking, smoking or taking drugs in any form whatsoever. From all walks of life they came to attend a 3-day international youth conference. The theme? "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" based on the words of St. Paul from the book of Acts. Their purpose? To dialogue in finding ways to help make this a better world through their own purer lives and by loving their fellow man in a Christian practical meaningful way.

I prayed with them and sang with them and my heart surged with gratitude for these young - a segment of our world population of youth upon whom the future of our world largely depends. Whose lives are dedicated to serving God based on the works and teachings of Christ Jesus. Sontanety, freshness, courage and hope, spiritual commitment to God characterized their actions and activities. To me they represented the fruits of every parent's hopes, labors, sacrifices, trust in God for the development and character of their children.

At the end of it all on Wednesday evening - after three days of talks, panels, music, films - many of them gathered informally at the far end of the reflecting pool at the church center and standing beneath a warm summer moon, in the shimmering shadows of the sparkling fountain they poured forth hymns of praise to God - not to attract attention, but softly, from hearts filled with love and gratitude. I stood among them too and sang in joy with them - grateful to be a part of it all.

This evangelistic evidence filled me anew with hope and courage to pray more diligently for my country and my world and for the children of the world. To uphold in my own life the highest standards of character, ethics and behavior. To me this was good news on the local scene. And a promise of hope in the world today.

In renewed hope and faith,

Prosecution Or The Easy Way Out?

Nixon to come clean. He didn't do so. He was resigning, he said, because he had "lost his base in Congress."

He didn't mention Watergate. If only he could have said something like: "My fellow Americans, I have tried to be a good President. But I am human. I made a mistake in judgement. I am sorry about Watergate. I hope you will forgive me and not judge me on that alone."

The following morning in an emotional farewell to his staff he drew a comparison between himself and Teddy Roosevelt which was hardly pertinent.

He read beautiful passages from Roosevelt's diary which described Roosevelt's despair over the death of his wife. But Roosevelt hadn't lost his Presidency in shame.

"Always in the arena," said Mr. Nixon of President Roosevelt. "Tempestuous, strong, sometimes wrong, sometimes right, but he was a man and as I leave, let me say, that's an example all of us should remember because only if you've been in the deepest valley can you ever know how magnificent it is to be on the highest mountain."

We wonder what Teddy Roosevelt would have had to say if he were alive to hear Mr. Nixon.

There was another time when Mr. Nixon compared himself to Harry Truman because of the latter's ordeal after firing General MacArthur. Mr. Truman despised Mr. Nixon and hung on him the label "Tricky Dicky". Mr. Truman was conveniently dead at the time Mr. Nixon buddied up to him and could not comment.

And there was the time that Mr. Nixon said it was President Lyndon Johnson who suggested he take those tax exemptions on his papers. Mr. Johnson was also dead at the time and could make no response.

And speaking of past presidents, it was our new president, Gerald Ford, who really made you think that noon on television when he took his oath of office promising to "uphold and protect the Constitution and laws of the United States."

"This oath has been taken by every President since George Washington," President Ford noted a few moments later.

Yes, including Richard M. Nixon who then proceeded to trample all over it.

How a man could climb so high and fall so low in such a short time is hard to believe or understand.

The real shame of it all is that as you look back, Watergate was not needed to assure Mr. Nixon his political victory.

Regardless of how you feel about Mr. Nixon now, three things are quite evident: he lied to the American people for two years, violated the trust they placed in him and put himself above the laws of the land.

We think he should face those laws now like anyone else accused of felony or misdemeanor, he should be forced to make a full disclosure of what he has done.

There are those who will disagree with us, but we believe Mr. Nixon should be prosecuted. Some sincerely believe Mr. Nixon has suffered enough and some, no doubt, will say "we shouldn't kick a man while he's down."

We believe he should be prosecuted because the guy next door would be prosecuted if he does something wrong and because through prosecution the full story of Watergate may finally be documented.

And, it appears, unless there is prosecution Mr. Nixon isn't about to admit his deep involvement in the Watergate coverup. He hasn't so far, really.

If he does not admit his involvement, years from now we're going to hear debate over whether he was really guilty or innocent. Let's not let history get fouled up on this one.

And if Mr. Nixon is prosecuted and found guilty, let the court decide if it wants to be lenient. Just don't let him walk off as though it was somebody else—not him—involved in the most scandalous administration in the nation's history.

In the long run, our nation will be better and stronger for it—and generations to come, safer for it.

We shouldn't take the easy way out. That would be shortchanging posterity.

Cleared by Court

John Thomas Scopes was convicted of teaching evolution and fined $100 after the famous "Monkey Trial" of 1925 in Dayton, Tenn., but was later cleared by the state supreme court, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

World's longest toll superhighway is the Governor Thomas E. Dewey Thruway. This 559-mile expressway connects New York City, Albany, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo, N.Y.

Wollaston Controls Suggested

Geoffrey A. Davidson, director of the Quincy Planning and Community Development Department has written to Richard J. Koch, Chairman of the Wollaston Golf Course Advisory Committee suggestions for traffic control in connection with the new course off West Squantum Street.

"Careful attention should be paid to the corner of Evans and West Squantum Sts. on the golf course side to give maximum views around the corner," he said.

Davidson said that revised plans for the recreational facility which would originally have located the multi-creational facilities along West Squantum St. would create difficulties. He said the intersections should be controlled by traffic signals.

Davidson said in part:

"If these improvements are made I believe that Evans St. can provide a proper and adequate access to the new recreation area facility. I look forward to working with the County Commissioner's Advisory Board as this most important project continues."

The Wollaston Golf Club is planning to move its facilities in the very near future to a new location on Adams St. in Milton. Plans have been submitted and accepted by the club members for a new course and clubhouse in the adjacent town of Milton.

'Surveillance' For Faxon Park

Councillor Clifford H. Marshall has asked Mayor Walter J. Hannan to implement an emergency telephone-communication system in Faxon Park.

He cited "an unfortunate incident" where several youths harassed a family in the park.

"If there had been an emergency communication system there, the Quincy Police could have been there to assist these people," Marshall said.

Marshall feels that the installation of such a system will "ensure the safety of the many citizens of Quincy who use the park."

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board, said that there would be "increased utilization of the present communication system in the park" as well as "greater surveillance in the area."

That present communication system is the locked police box. Its key hangs in the Field House. Koch is asking the tennis instructors in the park "to take a trip through the park periodically," checking for any disturbance.

He noted that when lights are installed at the park, someone will be there until 10 p.m.

2 City Council At-Large Seats Open Next Year?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

If you like to look ahead, politically, there may be two city council at-large seats up for grabs next year.

Councillor Joseph LaRia is sitting in one of them and he is looking and acting more and more like a mayoralty contender every day. It's virtually a sure bet he will vacate his at-large seat to seek the mayor's office.

And now, insiders are speculating that Council President Arthur Tobin may give up his at-large seat to devote more time to increasing duties in the state senate.

Tobin, if he does vacate the seat, would do so reluctantly according to usually reliable sources. But they feel he is on his way to higher places in the senate and that he just isn't going to have the time to serve in the City Council, too.

And if Tobin does bow out, some political figures think it could set the stage for the return of former Mayor James McIntyre to the municipal political arena as a council at-large candidate.

McIntyre reportedly is still toying with the idea of returning to municipal office. Those close to him say he misses being out in the front line of action even though he is still a behind-the-scenes political power.

It would be ironic if Tobin does step out and McIntyre takes his seat as Tobin succeeded McIntyre as senator when the latter resigned to accept the post as senate counsel.

And, if McIntyre did return to the council he might also succeed Tobin as council president.

THEY'LL BE CALLING the Dimmock Building "Little City Hall" pretty soon. As we recently reported, Rep. Thomas Brownell, Rep. William Delahunt, Assistant City Solicitor Robert Fleming and Norfolk County Federal Funds Coordinator Robert Langlois have formed a law partnership that will be based in that building.

Now, three others are moving into the same suite but in their own offices: former Mayor James McIntyre and T. David Raftery, chairman of the city's Capital Improvements Committee and Planning Board member and William Grindlay, City Budget Coordinator. Grindlay will have an accounting office there and McIntyre and Raftery law offices.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly who raised his voice against conditions at a drinking spot and got the windows of his barber shop smashed by bricks in return, recently heard from "the other side". Sixteen residents who appreciated his speaking out, sent him a thank you card saying: "Hope this will help you with the cost of your windows. Thanks for representing us." Enclosed was $60.

"I really appreciated it," says Kelly, whose windows are still boarded up. "It was very thoughtful and considerate of them."

But he isn't going to use the money for his windows. He's donating it to the Houghs Neck Community Council's scholarship in memory of Dorothy Rae, the popular traffic supervisor at Atherton Hough School who died suddenly last May.

QUINCY DEMOCRAT Paul Barry says he's "walking the county" in his bid for Norfolk County sheriff. He has already knocked on doors in 11 communities—covering an estimated 30 miles, so far. ★★★

WE'VE HAD SOME inquiries as to the number of signatures the candidates for sheriff filed with their nomination papers. Don't know what that proves because as the man once said, it's the number of votes you get that counts.

Food Absorbing Less Income Than It Did 6 Years Ago ?!

By Philip J. Lawrence
President

COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursday

Any housewife can tell you she is spending much more for food than she did five or six years ago. But what may surprise her is that her food bills are absorbing a smaller share of personal income than they did six years ago.

According to National Consumer Finance Association figures, less than 16 per cent of income now goes for food compared with over 17 per cent six years ago.

This despite the fact that costs of similar baskets of food rose 8 to 12 per cent between April and December 1972, according to figures from the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Such figures are based on the Department's estimates of specific amounts of each of eleven groups of food and make no allowance for meals or snacks eaten out.

Department figures show that a family of four in December 1973 with pre-school children expended $35.30 per week on a low-cost plan, $44.70 on a moderate-cost plan, and $53.90 on a liberal plan. A family of two between 20 and 35 years of age spent weekly $24.30 on a low-cost plan, $30.80 on a moderate-cost plan, and $37.40 on a liberal plan. A family of two 55 to 75 years of age expended $19.90 on a low-cost plan, $25.70 on a moderate-cost plan, and $30.60 on a liberal plan.

Today's housewife is probably right in her surmise that the family is saving less than it used to. Saving has been shaved down from 6 to 5 per cent over the past six years.

Personal taxes continue to go up, claiming almost 15 per cent of personal income - up from 13 per cent six years ago. Spending on transportation goods and services now absorbs 11 per cent of personal income - up from 10 per cent in 1967.

Little difference between now and six years ago is evident in the percentage of personal income going for shelter [21%], clothing [7%], interest payments [2%], and the miscellany of other consumer outlays [24%].

The increased percentage going to taxes is mainly due to an increasing proportion of income receivers in higher income brackets now than in previous years. Total personal income was up 65 per cent, according to the National Consumer Finance Association figures - from $629 billion in 1967 to $1,035 billion in 1973.

Very large gains in farm income account for heavy increases in personal income in the Plains and Rocky Mountain States. Gains ranging from 14.9 to 23.8 per cent in one year [third quarter 1972 to third quarter 1973] were recorded in North Dakota, Kansas, Idaho, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Minnesota. Smallest income gains for the same period, ranging from 7.6 to 9.4 per cent, were in West Virginia, Mississippi, Rhode Island, North Carolina, New York, Delaware, Missouri, Louisiana and the District of Columbia.

Blood is needed to cover the long Labor Day week-end ahead.

Chamber, Curry College To Sponsor Seminars

Thomas J. Flatley, President of the Flatley Companies of Braintree, has been appointed chairman of a newly formed group that will conduct a series of four annual South Shore Citizens' Seminars. Announcement was made by David Lord, Vice President of Public Affairs for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

The seminars will be sponsored jointly by Curry College of Milton and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and are being developed to cover topics expected to range from the economy of the South Shore to the community and cultural development of the area.

Flatley is currently developing a team of 14 persons comprised of a representative group of businesspeople, labor leaders, civic and cultural leaders, and elected officials who will develop a format for the meetings, which will be held at Curry College.

The seminars will be planned along the lines of the Boston Citizens Seminars, which originated at Boston College.

Flatley said that many people on the South Shore have indicated to him a need for a better dissemination of information throughout the area with regard to industry, economic growth, housing, education, hospitalization, environment and the many other areas which affect our daily life.

The South Shore Citizens' Seminars will provide an opportunity for knowledgeable spokesmen on all sides of an issue to present their views to citizens of the South Shore.

Washington Report

'He Has Suffered Enough'

By RON IACOBucci
[Ron Iacobucci of Quincy, serving as a summer intern on the staff of Congressman James A. Burke in Washington, had a front-row seat to resignation of President Richard Nixon. Here he reflects on the historic event.]

It was with deep sorrow that I witnessed close-up the resignation of our country's 37th President, Richard M. Nixon.

The resignation was a sad, personal tragedy for a man, but more importantly it was the climax to a remarkable drama of shock and scandal that has played our country for two years.

The House Judiciary Committee had concluded its debate and was prepared to debate to the full House the articles of impeachment it had so carefully and fairly approved. It appeared that the House would vote impeachment by a close margin. There remained many doubts in the Congress as the full House moved to consider the question of impeachment. It was going to be a tough decision.

The President's supporters throughout the hearing had demanded the "smoking gun", the unquestionable evidence that would prove Richard Nixon directly involved in the Watergate cover-up. The transcript of the June 23, 1972 conversation between President Nixon and H. R. Haldeman suddenly provided in full the "specificity" demanded by the President's defenders.

By his own hand the President sealed his fate. After the disclosure, it was only a question of time before resignation.

Bar-B-Q At Lakeville

The annual chicken Bar-B-Q of Lakeville Hospital will be held on the hospital grounds, Route 105 on Sunday Aug. 18.

The day's menu includes half of a barbecued chicken, corn, baked beans, tossed salad, potato salad, cranberry sauce, hot bread and butter, watermelon, coffee and soft drinks.

Serving will be from 1-3 p.m. Tickets are available at the hospital switchboard.

Martin McGowan CPA Society Fellow

Martin E. McGowan of Quincy has been elected a Fellow of the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants.

A senior accountant with Coopers & Lybrand in Boston, he is a graduate of Northeastern University, cum laude, where he received his BS degree in accounting in 1970.

I sensed that Capitol Hill was not really surprised to learn of the President's involvement, but it was deeply shocking to learn that he had lied to the people. By Wednesday, the President's support in Congress had eroded completely.

In the office as on Capitol Hill the air was tense. We were jumpy and nervous from anticipation of what was to come. It seemed inevitable that this would be his last week in office.

On Thursday, at 12 noon, I attended an address by former Senator Eugene McCarthy. His talk was on the tragedy of Watergate. As he spoke, he was interrupted and handed a note. He announced that the President had asked for air time and that he would resign the following day. I was stunned.

As a witness to this historic event, I was deeply moved by the President's resignation and his farewell address. I applauded him for the manner in which he left office; with grace, strength and dignity. However, many could not forget that President Nixon was guilty of crimes and that Citizen Nixon should be brought to trial for these crimes.

I personally feel that he has suffered enough, that the country has suffered enough and it is time to put this behind us.

I take confidence in the fact that while our country was locked in the middle of crisis, while power was passed quietly from one man to another, the machinery of government continued to function. As we approach our bicentennial it is gratifying to know that our constitution does indeed work and that the Presidency is not the office of an individual but of all the people.

This experience has taught me a great lesson that I will never forget; the need for honest citizen involvement in government. Thomas Jefferson expressed this feeling over 170 years ago when he said:

"If once the people become inattentive to the public affairs you and I and congress and assemblies, judges and governors shall all become wolves."

Congressman James A. Burke calls former President Richard Nixon's resignation speech "a tactful statement made without rancor."

"The President's call for unity, and his urgings that the government continue toward our common goals were among the most important aspects of the speech," said Quincy's representative in the House.

Burke noted that the recent events "have served to point out the wisdom of our Founding Fathers in establishing a nation, and a system of government which can withstand and endure great trials."

Stressing that "the nation would continue on," Burke declared:

"This too will pass away. History will record these events, not as failures of our system, but as proof of the strength of our Constitutional form of government."

Burke said he was encouraged by President Gerald Ford's statement and in Ford himself. He said he is ready to give every possible assistance and cooperation to the Ford Administration.

"This is a time for our nation to look ahead," he said. "It is a new beginning and an opportunity for all Americans to join together in working toward common goals."

Sun Nixon Poll Differs From National

The Quincy Sun Survey, showing nearly 61 per cent of Quincy and South Shore residents favoring the prosecution of former President Richard Nixon, contrasts with a national survey taken recently.

The national pole shows over 55 per cent of the voters opposed to Nixon's prosecution.

Yet, the difference should not come as too much of a surprise, as everyone knows, Massachusetts was the lone state voting against Nixon in 1972.

In Quincy, the McGovern-Shriver ticket received 23,528 votes and the Nixon-Agnew ticket received 17,763.

Kelly Seeks Bus Route Change To SS Office For Seniors

Councillor Leo J. Kelly has proposed an alteration in the Quincy Square-Squantum bus route to make travel to the Social Security Administration offices on Heritage Drive, North Quincy, easier for elderly citizens.

Kelly sent his suggestion to MBTA General Manager Joseph Kelly, in an effort to alleviate the transportation problems experienced by many elderly residents of Quincy.

Kelly noted that the two public transportation options open to elderly citizens - the MBTA Red Line and the bus line down Hancock St. - involve a long walk and the climbing of many steps.

He suggested that the Quincy Square-Squantum run, Route 211, be altered to turn right at Farrington St., left on Holbrook Rd. and left on Newport Ave., proceeding to the intersection of Newport Ave. and Hancock St., stopping in front of State Street South, where the SS office is located. The bus could then turn right at Hancock St. and proceed to East Squantum, resuming the normal route.

Kelly commented that this alteration "would not result in significant increased time, mileage or inconvenience to present patrons," but that it would "provide great relief to the community's elderly."

N.Q. Knights Plan Clambake, Other Activities

The Knights of Columbus, North Quincy Council, is now accepting mail reservations for this year's clambake to be held, rain or shine, Sunday, Sept. 22 at Romuva Park, Brockton.

Bake Master is Frank Basile. A ticket including lobster costs extra.

Plans are being completed to hold the installation of council officers Sunday, Sept. 15 at 8 p.m. in the council hall. A reception for the Grand Knight and officers will begin directly after. Committee chairman Fred Luffy has planned a buffet and dancing.

Hap Esdale was reappointed State Charity Chairman at the Grand Knight's Conference held in Springfield. Grand Knight Edward Keohane and Deputy Grand Knight Nicholas Fasano also attended the conference.

The Council's bowling league will start Thursday night, Sept. 5 at Olindy's Bowling Alley. This year's bowling officers are Dick Collins, president; John Weidt, secretary; Joe Radzik, treasurer.

Bowling will begin at 9 p.m. every Thursday. Two banquets have been scheduled during the year.

New $159.90 Tax Rate Good News And Bad News, Too have used that word on many occasions. This tax rate reflects that policy of saying no."

Hannon cited two major "no policies" which helped the tax rate. One was a $200-300,000 savings gleaned by denying the addition of 16 men at the newly-converted fire station in Germantown.

The other was a $280,000 yearly saving by combining the city's collection and pick-up of garbage and trash.

Hannon said he had been aiming for a tax rate increase "of under $10." Speaking of the new $5.60 figure, he said, "There are an awful lot of people we can thank for this. We have good department heads."

The current budget was held in line despite severe cutbacks in federal funds for the city, Hannon said. These included reductions in law enforcement and emergency employment programs, funds for the schools and neighborhood improvement projects.

Most of the increases in the budget were due to inflationary costs, including fuel oil, materials and building supplies, Hannon said. "Practically everything the city buys cost more," he noted.

The Mayor indicated that services to the citizens of the city have been expanded during the past year and plans for additional services are being developed.

The long-awaited fire station in Germantown was put into operation. In addition, a new fire engine and hook and ladder truck were added to the fire department's equipment, as was a new 1,000 gallon pumper unit and a new rescue truck.

The Park-Recreation Departments have made substantial improvements in Faxon Park and are continuing their programs of refurbishing and upgrading park and recreational areas including widely used tennis courts, Hannon said. Squaw Rock is now maintained by the city's Park Department for the enjoyment of Quincy residents.

"Having City Hall offices open during evening hours has made it much easier for the people of Quincy to conduct regular city business," he added.

The Building Inspectors Department has expanded its office personnel with the addition of a building inspector and a public safety officer thus making it possible to conduct more frequent and thorough inspections of buildings, Hannon noted.

"In addition," said the Mayor, "the Park and Highway Departments have increased the number of laborers so that we will have a cleaner city."

The Mayor's program to refurbish and rehabilitate public buildings is continuing. "This work is helping us to reduce maintenance and heating costs in city-owned buildings," he said.

"Another reason for the lower than expected tax rate is the increased revenues from parking meters," Hannon declared. "By enforcing parking meter regulations, this has also cut down on all-day parking by MBTA commuters. People coming to shop in downtown Quincy now have an easier time finding parking spaces."

While commenting on the current fiscal condition of the city, the Mayor pointed to the fact that for the first time in three years the city has a substantial E & D fund "which reflects many of the economy measures" he has instituted during his administration.

With the valuation increase the smallest in years, the Mayor pointed out the need to implement the downtown revitalization program. "It is essential for the city to attract new businesses in the downtown area so that we can maintain a preferable tax rate situation," he said.

He continued:

"Over the past few years, new construction in the city has amounted to an average of $10 million a year. However, this past year only $3 million in new valuation has been added to the city tax rolls. We must maintain an open attitude towards possible new development so that the tax burden does not fall on the individual property owner."

"Fiscal responsibility has always been one of my major concerns and I appreciate the help and concern of the City Council; the City Auditor, Alexander Smith; the Budget Coordinator, William Grindlay; and Purchasing Agent, Richard Newcomb; in making certain that efficiency is maintained in every department in the city," he said.

Glad Tidings Bible School Aug. 19-23

Glad Tidings Church of 158 Washington St., Quincy, will offer a one week Vacation Bible School August 19-23.

Classes will be held between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. Commencement ceremonies will be held Sunday August 25, at 7 p.m.

According to Rev. William McPherson, pastor, the theme will be "Prepare".

"We will be pointing children between the ages of four and 14 years of age, to the Word of God," he said. "Each child will be impressed with the necessity of including God in the planning and preparation for the future," he said.

A Bible centered curriculum will be used, along with the following activities: Crafts, music, Bible Lessons, and contests. A sampling of some of the different crafts to be made during that week can be seen in the display window at the Quincy Savings Bank downtown office.

Official registration begins Monday Aug. 19 and concludes Tuesday, Aug. 20. Pre-registration can be made on two Sundays, Aug. 11 and 18, between 9:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. Registration fee for each student is $1.

The following people are actively participating in the school:

Director, Esther Kemp, Pianist, Verma McPherson, craft director, Karen R. Rydwansky, assistant craft director, Ron Korzenewski, transportation, Tom O'Neill, registration, Frank Rydwansky Jr., assistant registration, Frank Souther, publicity, Don Johnson, all of Quincy, and music director, Judy Plemption of Mattapan.

Teachers - Nancy Korzenewski, Ann Donahue, Tina Popowicz, Gene Kemp, Floyd Connor, Ragnhild Souther, all of Quincy, Janet Welsh, Baintree, Cameron Temple, Lee Simpson of Milton, and Barbara Rathbun of So. Dartmouth.

Former Labor Leader

Services Held For Charles Johnston

A funeral Mass was celebrated Wednesday for Charles M. Johnston of 108 Phillips St., Weymouth, a former labor leader at the General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard. Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Mr. Johnston died Sunday at Quincy City Hospital following a long illness. He was 46.

Arthur Fitzgerald, who succeeded Mr. Johnston as president of Local 90, said in tribute: "We will miss him. He was an active and good labor man."

Mr. Johnston had been a quality control inspector and was a past president and former director of Local 90, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, AFL-CIO.

He was also a past president of the Norfolk Labor Council and was a director of the Office of Emergency Organization. During World War II he served with the Air Force.

He was a charter member and past officer of the Adams Heights Men's Club; was a member of the Cyril P. Morrisette Legion Post; and served on the Board of Directors of Quincy Chapter of the Red Cross.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Emma T. [Carroll] Johnston; his mother, Mrs. Marianna Johnston of Quincy; a brother, James N. Johnston Jr., of Canton, and two sisters, Mrs. Rosemarie E. O'Rourke of Quincy and Mrs. Mary Connolly of Tewksbury.

'Soul' Christian Science Lesson-Sermon

"Soul" is Sunday's Lesson-Sermon at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy Center. Passages from Psalms 67 include: "God be merciful unto us, and bless us; and cause His face to shine upon us; O let the nations be glad and sing for joy: for Thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth."

Church service and Sunday School are at 10 a.m. during August.

Early Childhood Education Registration Opens At YMCA

The Quincy YMCA has established an Early Childhood Education Center for boys and girls 3 to 5 years old, which will open this September.

Its goal is to provide the environment and kind of experiences that will allow the pre-school child to develop mentally, as well as physically and socially. In addition to the center's own, fully equipped facilities, use will be made of the YMCA pool and gym for instructional purposes.

Each of the team teachers holds a degree in education, and has had considerable experience in the teaching of children of 3 to 5 years.

Registrations are now being accepted at the YMCA for the school year, Sept. 9, 1974 - June 20, 1975. Two sessions are offered each day: 8:30 - 11:45 a.m., and 12:30 - 3:45 p.m. Children may be enrolled for either the five morning or afternoon sessions, Monday through Friday, or for Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings or afternoons, or for Tuesday and Thursday mornings or afternoons.

Sheila Burke, Blessed Sacrament, Quincy, CYO, won the Intermediate Division 50-yard backstroke race at the annual CYO swimming championships last week at Brookline Pool.

Miss Burke also had a second in the Intermediate 50-yard freestyle.

Jack Gauthier, St. Thomas More, Braintree, was one of the meet's standouts, capturing both the Intermediate freestyle and backstroke races.

St. Catherine's, Norwood, won the boys' division title with 43 points, and St. Joseph's, Wakefield, took the girls' team championship with 37.

Bill Doucette won the Senior freestyle and backstroke races for St. Catherine, Norwood. Bernie Wenstrom, St. Catherine, Norwood, was second in Cadet freestyle and backstroke races, and Robert Boch, St. Catherine's, took second in the Intermediate 50, freestyle and a third in Intermediate backstroke.

Jesse Owens Classic

12-Year-Old Quincy Girl Places 4th In San Francisco Meet

"It was a wonderful experience which I'll never forget."

These are the words of 12-year old Laurie Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Clarke of 1421 Quincy Shore Drive, Merymount, who last Saturday competed in the national Inter-City Championships of the 10th annual Jesse Owens Junior Track Classic for novices in San Francisco.

Laurie and her sister, Suzanne, 11, a Quincy Sun newspaper carrier, competed in the qualifying meet July 11 at Boston University's Nickerson Field.

Laurie won the long jump with a leap of 13 feet, 2½ inches, to make the national meet while Suzanne barely missed as she finished second in the softball throw. Only the winners of the Boston event went to the nationals in Frisco.

In the nationals Laurie bettered her Boston jump with a leap of 14 feet, 11½ inches, but had to be satisfied with fourth place in the 12-13 age group.

She missed by a half-inch of winning a medal, given to the first three finishers in each event.

"I met some awfully nice people that I never would have met otherwise and the coaches who worked with us are wonderful," Laurie said upon her return home.

Laurie and the other 35 Greater Boston representatives had a rigorous practice schedule. Since the Boston meet on July 11 they had to workout for three hours daily.

"I had joined the Quincy Track Club but dropped out because I knew I couldn't do all this practicing for the national meet and still work out with the Quincy club," she explained. "However, I am going to join up again."

"I found out one thing, no matter how hard you practice, you can never practice hard enough."

Laurie and the other Greater Boston representatives were flown to San Francisco, all expenses paid, and they stayed at the Hotel St. Francis, in the center of the city. "It was such a beautiful place," she said.

"I have always loved sports, like most kids, but never thought I would get a chance to compete in a national competition like this," she added. "My mother (Adrienne) always told us girls, 'Never say the word can't when attempting something. Always try first—if then you can't—try again.' And I guess that's just what I will do. Try and try again."

After winning the Boston meet, Laurie, who had done 16 feet in the long jump, worked with Alfreda Harris, coordinator of the Boston program. "She gave me a lot of pointers," Laurie said.

"As far as I'm concerned, I have regular, average kids and if they have a little talent, that's great," said the attractive Mrs. Clarke. "It is just natural for them. My husband and I are joggers and another daughter, Kelly-Anne, now 16, was a strong shot putter a few years ago."

Janice Kelly To Compete In Baltimore

Janice Kelly, 14-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kelly of 65 Copley St., Wollaston, will be one of 66 boys and girls representing the Boston Youth Games who will compete in the eighth annual United States Youth Games Friday in Baltimore.

The competition will take place at Morgan State College with athletes from Richmond to St. Louis, and 13 cities in between, taking part.

Janice qualified for the national meet by winning her event, the 100-yard dash, in a competition at White Stadium and will run in the 100 and also in the relay in Baltimore.

Janice, one of the most active members of the Quincy Track Club, holds several Quincy High girls' track records, although only in junior high, and she has been a consistent winner in Quincy Track Club meets held weekly at Veterans Memorial Stadium and in outside meets in Braintree and Brockton.

This is the second straight year Janice has competed in the national meet. A year ago, she, Jill Seamans and Maria Ciano also of Quincy competed in Birmingham, Ala., but none of the local girls placed.

Sox Open 9-Game Home Stand Friday

The Red Sox, following another successful road trip which strengthened their hold on first place, return to Fenway Park Friday night to start a nine-game home stand.

They will play three games each against the Minnesota Twins Friday, Saturday and Sunday, the Chicago White Sox Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and the world champion Oakland Athletics Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 23, 24 and 25.

There are several special events planned during this trip including Youth Group Day Saturday at 2 p.m., Leominster-Clinton Day Sunday at 2, and "Old Ironsides Night" Monday saluting the USS Constitution during which Navy Secretary J. William Middendorf will be on hand to make a presentation of valuable mementos for the 'Old Ironsides' museum in Boston.

Other specials are the second Poster Night Tuesday, Youth Group Day Wednesday at 3:30, Mass. Elks Night Friday, Aug. 23, and Latin American night Saturday, Aug. 24, at 7:30. Many Quincy Elks are expected to be among the fans at Elks Night.

Latin American Night will see Luis Tiant, Juan Marichal, Mario Guerrero, Diego Segui and Roger Moret of the Sox and Bert Campaneris, Angel Mangual and Jesus Alou of the Athletics receive special pre-game honors.

There is also added interest among Quincy fans in the three-game Chicago series as North Quincy's Pete Varney is now with the White Sox after being recalled from the Iowa Oaks and could well see action against the Red Sox.

Y Indian Guide Program For Fathers, Sons

Beginning in September the Quincy YMCA will be starting a new program for fathers and sons, ages 6-8 years, called Y Indian Guides.

Y Indian Guides is a national father and son program sponsored by each local YMCA. It is a program in which fathers and sons participate together as big and little braves in small units known as Tribes. Its purpose is to multiply the number of things that fathers and sons can do together.

As the name indicates the program of Y Indian Guides is based upon the lore of the American Indians. Just as the life of the Indian revolved around the wigwam or tepee, the tribal meetings are held in rotation in the homes of the braves.

This is maintained with a maximum of freedom giving boys full opportunity to develop their initiative under the guidance of their dads. Some of the activities included in the program are trips, handicrafts, story-telling, study of Indian culture, songs, games, picnics and camping. For further information contact the Quincy YMCA - 479-8500.

Quincy Golfer In Women's Title Tourney

Mrs. John Eramo, Furnace Brook Club champion, will be among the more than 90 top women golf champions representing clubs throughout Massachusetts competing in the 9th annual Tournament of Women Golf Champions at Ferncroft Country Club, Danvers, Aug. 19.

Over 400 Take Part In 'Nature Week'

Over 400 Quincy youngsters participated in "Nature Week", the fourth special week of summer recreation planned by the Recreation Department.

A total of 33 playgrounds - about five per day - visited Faxon Park during the week, taking part in a host of activities.

Pond St. and Wollaston playgrounds won the treasure hunt, and 10 playgrounds collected the required butterflies, frogs, branches, bark, litter and bugs in less than eight minutes to win the scavenger hunt. The 10 winning parks were: Snug Harbor, Quarterdeck, LaBrecque, Wollaston, Shea Rink, Welcome Young, Beechwood Knoll, Stoney Brae, Pond St., and Fore River.

During the week, tables were packed with seven and eight-year-olds, working on mobiles, leaf prints, totem poles and egg-carton bugs. Nine through 12-year-olds worked with leather craft, decoupage, and yarn drawings.

Each park also completed nature displays and the youngsters will select the best one from their playground as the entry in final judging late in August.

Outstanding displays were "Fish Tank" from Fore River, "Terrarium" from Snug Harbor, Beechwood Knoll and Elm, "Snake House" from Pond, "Shells on the Beach" from Bayside and "Butterfly Collection" from Whitwell.

●Senior League

Championship Playoffs Underway Aug.21

The Quincy Youth Arena's Senior Summer Hockey League climaxes a highly successful first season when it stages its championship playoffs beginning next Wednesday night at the arena.

The regular season ended last night [Wednesday] and two of the four playoff spots were still up for grabs going into those games. Only the first place Boston Budmen and second place Atlantic Flames were sure of playoff positions.

In the playoff openers next week the first place team will meet the fourth place team and the second and third place finishers will collide. Game times are 6:30 and 9 p.m. In the finals on Wednesday, Aug. 28, the winners will meet at 9 and the losers in a consolation game at 6:30.

Last week the Quincy Clovers, still in the running for the playoffs, walloped the Newman Club, 9-4, exploding for five goals in the final period.

Quincy took a 2-0 first period lead when Joe Dunderdale scored at 4:44 with an assist from Frankie Guest and Mike Farina scored at 14:30 with Barney Nevins assisting.

The Newman club made it 2-1 early in the second period but the Clovers came back with a goal for Gene Farina and assists for Paul Golden and Dennis O'Connell. Newman scored again but at 6:21 Mike Farina scored again unassisted and Quincy led, 4-2, going into the final session.

Here the Clovers extended their lead to 6-2 when John Cunniff scored unassisted at 9:03 and Tim Morrill tallied at 9:46 with an assist for Dunderdale. Following the Newman Club's third goal, P. J. Flaherty scored for Quincy at 17:00 with an assist for Cunniff and Golden scored at 18:42 with

Greens, Reds Remain Tied For Mite House Lead

The Greens and Reds remained tied for the Mite House League lead with easy wins during the past week.

The Greens blasted the Blues, 12-1, with Steve White exploding for six goals and Bobby McCabe adding four. Bobby Foreman had two. Firman also had five assists,

● Midget House

Greens Squeeze Oranges, 4-2 Whites Wallop Reds, 10-8

In the Midget House League the Greens defeated the Orange team, 4-2.

Rich Troy, Mark Kelly, Bud McAuliffe and Joe Carty scored for the Greens with assists for McAuliffe, Bob Carmody and Ed Martin. Paul Flanders and Rick Bowin had the Orange goals with Jeff Harrison, Jim Connolly and Kevin Doyle having assists.

The Whites won a wild one from the Reds, 10-8, with several boys fattening their scoring records. For the Whites Mark Paolucci had five goals, Dan Maurano four and Dave Peters one. Peters had seven assists, Maurano and Paolucci three each and Jim Connors one.

For the Reds Dennis Bertoni had the hat trick, Dave Perdios two goals, Dennis Doherty, Ed McDonald and Jim Kelly one each. Bertoni and Perdios had two assists each, Jim McConville, McDonald, Doherty and Rich DiPietro one each.

●Bantam House

Greens Hold Lead, Orange, White Teams Win

The Green team maintained its hold on first place in the Bantam House League with a 4-1 win over the Blues for a 7-1-1 record.

Scoring for the Greens were Chris Erikson, John Urbanus, Dave Lewis and Mike Bondarick with two assists for Sean Jago and one each for John Satkewich, Bondarick, Dan Gorman, Tom Pistorino and Dave Lewis. For the Blues Ed Kane scored and John Norton assisted.

The Orange team topped the Yellows, 4-2, with Kevin McGrath, Don Perdios, Ed Kane and Paul Palmer scoring for the winners. Perdios had two assists and Kane one. For the Yellows Tommy Brennan scored both goals with Billy Deitsch having two assists and Mike Walsh one.

The Whites defeated the Reds, 4-2. Dave Lewis had the hat trick and Paul McDermott the other goal for the Whites, with Mark Rooney having two assists, McDermott and Paul Zenga one each. Dan Boti and Bunky Harte scored for the Reds with assists for Boti and Kevin Walsh.

Varney May See Action Against Sox

When the Red Sox play the Chicago White Sox next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at Fenway Park, North Quincy's Pete Varney may see action with the White Sox. He is one of the team's outstanding catching prospects. Varney, former North Quincy

High and Harvard baseball and football standout, was called up last week from the Iowa Oaks of the Triple A American Association and reported to the team in Texas.

Pete, who has played for two years with the Oaks, finally hit his stride at bat this year and had 17 home runs and a .289 batting average when recalled. Since being signed by the White Sox after refusing many hefty bonuses in order to finish his career at Harvard, Varney had always been a fine receiver but had his troubles at bat.

Sully's, Sabina's Win Pair

Sully's Spa won two squeakers during the past week in the Quincy Softball League, edging Hofbrau, 9-8, and Mr. Kelly's, 13-12, scoring the winning runs in the final inning both times.

Against Hofbrau Mike Flynn had a key double and triple and Marty Twohey homered. Bill O'Meara had the game winning hit. Dave Drew and John Moriarty led the Hofbrau attack with five hits between them, including a home run by Moriarty.

The game with Kelly's was a real slugfest featuring 11 extra base hits. Glen Gauthier belted two gargantuan home runs over the Rotary Field fence, both well over 300 feet. Sam Brown, Al Sampson, Bruce Wood and the hot-hitting Gauthier accounted for 14 hits between them.

For Sully's O'Meara had four for four with six runs batted in. George Berard and Paul Nagle had three hits each while Twohey drove in the winning run with a double. Nagle also excelled on defense, making a Sabina's also won two games, breezing over Barry's Deli, 12-0, and Bill's Texaco, 7-1.

Sabina's collected 18 hits against Barry's and scored 10 runs in the fourth inning to ice the win. Harry Harrington was the defensive star at second base, making many fine stops and starting a fast double play. Ted Stevenson had a home run for the winners and Ernie Zimmerman had two of Barry's five hits.

John Babson homered against Bill's Texaco and Harrington had another great game in the field. Steve Martinson shone at shortstop for Texaco. Sabina's will play Wells Grille tonight [Thursday] in a game which should decide first place in the National League West.

●Junior Baseball

Quincy All-Stars Oust 3 Favorites

The Quincy Junior Baseball League all-star team, knocking off three of the pre-tourney favorites, is one of six remaining teams in the New Bedford tournament with 20 teams being eliminated.

The Quincy team, coached by Jack Donovan, received top pitching performances from Billy Deitsch, Paul O'Toole and Andy Carrera.

In their first game the Quincy stars walloped St. Ann's of Fall River, one of the favorites, 7-1.

with Deitsch pitching four scoreless innings and Carrera working in relief. Bob Biagini, O'Toole, Bob DuBois, Steve Picot, Deitsch, Carrera and Bill O'Connell had the key hits for Quincy.

Quincy blanked Lowell, another top favorite, 6-0, with O'Toole and Carrera combining for the shutout. O'Toole, Picot, Deitsch, Carrera, Brian Donovan, Mike Abboud and Bob Howlett were the hitting stars.

Quincy then defeated one of the tourney's top choices, Sudbury, 8-6. O'Toole, Deitsch and DuBois pitched two innings each. Deitsch and O'Toole hit three-run homers to put Quincy into the quarterfinals. Abboud, Carrera, Picot and O'Connell also hit well.

"Quincy can be proud of these boys as they reflect the quality of baseball in the city," Donovan said. "All three teams they defeated were rated as favorites by the tourney officials."

Recreation Tennis Tourney Aug. 17-25

The fourth annual Quincy Recreation Department Tennis Tournament will be held Aug. 17 - 25 at the Vocational Technical courts.

The tournament is for Quincy residents only.

Tennis specialist Kevin McGinley announces there will be womens' singles and doubles; girls 16 and under singles, mens' 40 and over singles, boys 16 and under singles and boys 14 and under singles and mixed doubles.

Registration forms are available at the Quincy Recreation office from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday or at the Voc-Tech or Faxon Park Tennis Courts from 5:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Entries must be in by Saturday, Aug. 10.

Roche, Senafini In Record Win At FB

Rena Roche and Mario Senafini set a 1974 record with a one-over-par 36 to take low gross honors in the weekly mixed Scotch foursome at

Furnace Brook Golf Club. Joyce Robbins and Joe DiFederico shot low net of 41-31, Priscilla O'Neill and Bert Nogler had second net of 42-31, while Dolly Nogler and Matt Smith, Helene McPeck and Fred Lufly tied for third net of 44-31.

The number of children participating in the Quincy Recreation Department's summer program continues to increase each week.

Golf specialist Don Smith reports that at Furnace Brook Golf Course many young golfers are perfecting their games in preparation for the final city tournament. Some of the children to watch in the tournament are O'Rourke's Kevin Donelin and Steve Blazer, Kevin Williams and Billy Bert of Snug Harbor and Squantum's Billy McDonough, Dennis Donaghy and Billy Hickey.

Music specialist Karen Walsh reports an overwhelming number of melodious songsters around the city this past week. A few of these youngsters were Pond Street's Vinnie Baldi, Richard Powers and Ann Carol, and Mike Salvatore, Dorna Aluisi and Paula Boland of Kincaide.

Tennis specialists Betty Vittner and Kevin McGuinley spent last week working with the children on their serves. Those who showed particular improvement were James Ross and Justin Obert of Faxon Park, Heron Road's Joe Lynch, Janet Dennis and Ann Marie Nigro and LaBrecque's Richie Monahan and Steve Baylis.

Archery specialist Tim Flynn's band of merry-men is growing each week, as more and more children are taking part in the program. A few of the yeomen are the Anderson family of Myles Standish including Jimmy, John, Timmy and Rhonda, Montclair's Ronnie Bardson and Billy Andon and Snug Harbor's Paul Morrison and Donna O'Neil.

Field trips to the Arnold Arboretum was the special activity of the nature program this week. Hundreds of children romped through this special park, where trees from almost every part of the world can be found. Some of the enthusiastic children were Elm Street's Mike and Janet Sandomato, Karen Dinardo, Robbie Gaogon, Allison Fay and Peggy Thorely.

The popular arts and crafts program continues to be the big favorite of the children around the city. Last week stuffed animals were the creations of the kids. Some of the most innovative were done by Perkins' Claire Lynch, Carol Lynch and Dave Raftery, Chris Rusconi, Claire Sullivan and Kara Shannon of Columbia and Fore River's Joanne McBride, Rob Corman and Tom Cortis.

Along with arts and crafts, the ceramics program run by specialist Andrea Quinn has drawn large enthusiastic amounts of children. Andrea reports that all of the children have displayed outstanding artistic ability. A few of the participants have been Dottie Peterson, Faith Lindberg, Greg Dabelli of Welcome Young, Montclair's Paula Murphy, Jean Vella and Kelly Markly and Atlantic's Barbra Chimieli and Jimmy Milton.

More and more swimmers are passing swimming tests and advancing into higher classes reports swimming supervisor Julie Doherty. Some of the children that have moved up a notch are Dianne Ford of Nickerson Beach, Toni Judice of Orchard Beach, Snug Harbor's Sue Keefe, Mary Lucas and Denise McGowan and Fanno Street's Linda and Mark Miceli.

To live so near the sea and to not take advantage of one of Mother Nature's greatest wonders is a shame. Well, there are hundreds of children across the city of Quincy who have heeded this warning and they are all enrolled in the Boating and Sailing program down at Blacks Creek Boathouse. Some of the children are Mark Rooney, Terry Hogan, Alan Dyer, Karen Pike, Bill Norton, Rob Roche, Maggie White, Jerry Shea, Mark Gazzola, Al McGinnis, Tom Campbell and Tom McMahon.

On the sports scene, playoff competition begins this week. To date most of the district titles have been clinched with a few still undecided. The following is a list of the teams which thus far have clinched playoff berths:

Boys Midget Baseball - O'Rourke, Pollard, LaBrecque, Merrymount, Montclair and Whitwell. Boys Junior Baseball - Wollaston, Snug Harbor, O'Rourke and Squantum. Boys Junior Basketball - Atlantic and Elm Street. Boys Senior Baseball - O'Rourke, LaBrecque and Elm Street. Boys Senior Basketball - Forbes Hill, Harborview, Elm Street, Montclair, Squantum and O'Rourke. Girls Junior Basketball - Elm Street, Welcome Young, Whitwell, LaBrecque and O'Rourke. Girls Junior Softball - Pond Street, Faxon Field, LaBrecque and O'Rourke. Girls Senior Basketball - Wollaston, Squantum, O'Rourke and Elm Street. Girls Senior Softball - Fore River, Perkins, Wollaston and O'Rourke.

In what was probably the most exciting game of the summer season, Pond St. and Fore River battled each other to determine the District Champion in girls junior softball. The score was tied 9-9 going into the bottom half of the final stanza with Pond St. at bat. Rhonda Cabral opened the inning with a sharp single to left, then Deanna Galante stepped up to the plate and blasted a towering triple to drive in the winning run. It was a super win for Pond St. and a disheartening loss for a gallant Fore River squad.

Besides Galante, key players for the victors were Lisa Cadmen who socked a home run and Michele Breen and Martiello Perez who each lined two hits. Starring in defeat was Laura Thompson who put on one of the best individual performances of the season. Laura slugged two home runs besides playing flawlessly in the field. Other Fore River standouts were Lisa Grazioso, Kathy Myers and Mary McBride.

In the scorching heat, Montclair's senior girls softball team defeated archival Atlantic 13-7. Laura Baker held on for the win. The offensive punch for the Montclairites was supplied by Jean Vella, Rhoda Zoia, Chris Berio and Kendra Donovan. Standouts for Atlantic were Donna Ellis, Nancy Pasquerello and Susan Estabrooks.

The game was one of comebacks, as both Pond St. and Fore River fought back each time the other gained a lead. Poetic justice would have called for a tie, as no doubt both teams deserved the victory. Lets hope the upcoming playoffs provide the tension and heroics that this game did. Be sure to turn to this page next week and find out.

Raiders Train At Maritime Quincy, North Open Grid Workouts Aug.26

By TOM SULLIVAN

Would you believe that schoolboy football time is here again?

Quincy and North Quincy will officially start workouts for their first season in the Suburban League Monday, Aug. 26, the first day allowed for practice, but preparations actually will get underway this week.

Friday at 10:30 a.m. Quincy's candidates will be given their physicals at Vo-Tech, while North's candidates will receive theirs on Saturday at 11:30.

North's players will receive their equipment Saturday at 9 a.m. while Quincy's will be distributed before the first practice on Aug. 26.

For the second year in a row, the North Quincy candidates will mix business with pleasure as they spend the week of Aug. 26 - 31 at the Mass. Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay together with the Norwood squad.

A year ago the Raiders and Milton enjoyed a pre-season summer camp during the same week at Camp Wono in East Brewster.

However, this year North and Milton renew their old rivalry and North Coach Ralph Frazier and Milton Coach Jack Bowes, a former aide to Frazier, agree that last year's camp on the Cape served to strengthen the spirit of competition.

North and Milton will open the season Sept. 22 at Milton. Schoolboy teams are allowed to play 10 games this year and North, in addition to seven Suburban League games, will play Milton of the Bay State League and two old Greater Boston rivals, Malden and Both North Quincy and Norwood will bring about 100 boys to the Mass. Maritime Academy camp. Frazier will be accompanied by his assistants, all holdovers, Ted Sadowski, Tom Fitzgerald, Dick Meyer and Ken McPhee. Norwood will be led by Coach John Doherty and his aides.

"We found last year's camp with Milton to be a most profitable and interesting experience and the boys all loved it," Frazier said. "The facilities at Camp Wono were fine but I feel the college-type facilities at the Maritime Academy will serve us even better."

The North players and coaches will leave the high school Sunday morning and return Friday night. They will open their drills at 8:30 a.m. Monday, the 26th.

The boys will have a snack before practice and breakfast following the morning workout. Following a free period of two hours, they will have a skull session, another free period and an afternoon practice. Dinner will be followed by a squad meeting and lights out.

Frazier explained that the teams may have some passing scrimmages together and the boys will be eating together and sharing many of the other activities.

Instructors will be the coaching staffs of both schools augmented by other coaches within the school systems.

"You get to know all the boys on a first-name basis, especially the sophomores coming up from the different junior high schools," Frazier added. "This is advantageous to the coaches. The coaching at a camp is a lot more individualized and it builds up a tremendous amount of unity."

The boys will be offered many other activities including several other sports at the beautiful Maritime Academy camp.

While North is enjoying its camp sessions, Coach Hank Conroy will lead his Quincy candidates on a double session basis during the first week of practice at Faxon Field.

The Presidents will have a morning session and, following a one-hour break, another two-hour session.

Conroy has his same assistants, Bud Mosher, John Bogan, Dave Burke and Hank's son, Mark, who joined him last year and led the sophomores to a successful season.

Quincy, also playing 10 games, will open on Sept. 22 at home against Dedham of the Bay State League. Other opponents, in addition to the seven in the Suburban League, will be old GBL rivals Revere and Malden.

●Babe Ruth League Police Club Wins Championship

The Quincy Police Boys' Club won the Quincy Babe Ruth League championship for the record straight year by defeating the Firemen's Local 792, three games to one in the title series.

The Firemen exploded to win the opening game of the series, 11-5, with Tom Wilkinson the winning pitcher and Lou Fishman the loser, despite giving up only four hits. Eight walks and six errors made the difference.

Ed Daley had a double and single, Bill Buckley a double and John Wilkinson a single for the Firemen's hits. The Police had eight hits, three by Fishman, two by John Andrews including a triple, a triple by Chuckie LoPresti and singles by Ed Laracy and Mike Boyle.

The second game was a heartbreaker for the Firemen as they overcame a 10-run deficit only to lose in the last inning, 12-11. Each team had nine hits. Ron Donovan was the winning pitcher, relieving LoPresti with one out in the third inning.

LoPresti and Fishman had two hits each for the Police, while Daley had three hits, Gary Oriola and Buckley two apiece for the Firemen. The tying and winning runs scored in the last inning on a single by Andrews, a sacrifice bunt by Mike Murphy, a passed ball and singles by Fishman and LoPresti.

The Police won the third game, 5-4, as the Firemen left 12 men on base and couldn't come up with the key hit. Murphy was the winning pitcher, giving up five hits and striking out four. Fishman had three hits and LoPresti two for Police while Buckley had a double and single for the Firemen.

Police clinched the title with a 6-1 win in the fourth game. Fishman pitched one-hit ball, Daley having the only hit. Fishman struck out six. John Ferris had two hits and Brian Connolly a triple for the Police.

The Police team, managed by Dick Laracy and assisted by Shorty Donovan, had a 25-4 record for the season, including a win over St. John's, the South Shore CYO champions, and won the National League crown.

Fishman had a 9-3 pitching record, LoPresti was 8-0, Donovan 5-1, Murphy 2-0 and Ferris 1-0.

Top batters were Fishman, 477; LoPresti, 448; Connolly, 380; Ferris, 343 and Murphy, 315. The catching was handled by Ferris, backed up by Andrews and Billy Oakes. The infield, rated by many the best in the league, had Fishman and LoPresti at first base, Ed Laracy second, Donovan shortstop and Murphy third. Fishman also played third and Murphy short.

The outfielders were Connolly, Andrews, Richie and Mike Boyle, Larry Baker and Jim Burr. Two reserve infielders, Tom Brennan and Fran Donovan (out for the most of the year with a broken wrist) could have started for many teams.

The Fireman, managed by Ray Dunn and Assistant Joe Wilkinson, won the American League title with a 17-5 record. In the past four years the Firemen have won two division championships and finished second the other two years.

"I think our record and our performances against the Police this year indicate the type of players we have," Dunn said.

"This was a great series and two of the games could have gone either way. We are very proud of our players, they did a tremendous job."

QTC City Championships Aug.22

Next Thursday night the Quincy Track Club will sponsor the biggest meet of the season--the Quincy City Championships at 5:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

More than 250 members of the QTC, who have been competing each Thursday night at the stadium, will compete for trophies to be awarded to individual winners and medals which will be presented to second and third place finishers.

This meet will be the highlight of the club's first season of organization, a season which has seen intense interest and keen competition, especially among boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 15.

In last Thursday's weekly meet at the stadium, Nancy McCarthy, George Martell and Lee Watkins were triple winners, Miss McCarthy winning the 100-yard dash, 440 and running with the winning relay team in girls' 9-11 class, Martell taking the long jump and shot put and running with the winning relay team in boys' 9-11 division, and Watkins winning the boys' 16 and older long jump, 100-yard dash and 220-yard dash.

There were several double winners. Sean Burns won the boys' 9-11 100-yard dash and ran with the winning relay team, Janet Petkun won the girls' 9-11 long jump and ran with the winning relay team, Janice Kelly won the girls' 12 and older 100 and ran with the winning relay team and John Cavanaugh won the boys' 9-11 440 and also ran with the winning relay team.

The club recently bused more than 60 boys and girls to Brockton for that city's NEAAU-sanctioned meet which was a feature of its Summerfest program and they made an outstanding showing.

Among the outstanding Quincy performers in the recent Brockton meet were Richie Finnegan, who won the high jump and 440 and took third in the long jump in the 11-12 age bracket, and Andy Levitsky, who won the long jump, took second in the 50-yard dash and third in the 100 in the 9-10 age bracket.

Jackie Leone was second in the 11-12 long jump, George Bourikas second in the 11-12 high jump, Peter Doherty second in the 11-12 shot put, Billy McCarthy third in the 11-12 shot put, Glenn Collins third in the 9-10 440, and Carl Nord third in the 9-10 100.

The team of Jay Collins, Ed Cahill, Gene Kornski and George Martell won the 11-12 special relay.

Chris Kennedy was second in the men's open 440 and he and Paul Doherty were in the relay team which won the Men's open event.

Quincy's girls also came in for their share of medals.

Carolyn Baker won the 11-12 long jump, Janice Kelly, despite excellent time, was third in the 13-15 100 as she lost to Rene Rochester of Brockton, the state champion, and a New York girl; Annette McKeon took third in the 9-10 50-yard dash, Laurie Smith and Kelly Tobin tied for third in the 13-15 high jump and a team of Laurie Smith, Joyce Kennedy, Debby Biagini and Janice Kelly was second in the relay, losing to a New York team.

Fired For Ripping Out Hospital Bed Electric Cords

out...almost two months ago...so the bed cords would have to be remade."

The cords are for raising or lowering the electrically operated beds.

Burke was summoned to a meeting last Thursday in the hospital director's office. Mayor Hannon and Assistant Hospital Directors Constance Lundy and Richard Newcomb were present. Hospital Director Harlan Paine was on vacation.

Hannon quoted Burke as saying, "I'll do anything of a radical nature to improve hospital care."

According to Burke, Hannon said that he, Burke, had "exceeded his authority" in removing the plugs. But Burke said he feels the issue "goes deeper than bed cords."

Employed at the hospital since April 1971, Burke has been a unit manager since August of that year. He said that he had complained to the hospital maintenance department about the frayed cords, giving the department a hand-delivered work requisition Feb. 8, 1973, asking that the plugs be remade.

Burke said he also informed Lt. Robert Kelley of the Quincy Fire Department's Fire

Prevention Bureau, about the cords. Kelley verified that Burke had mentioned the problem in passing during a conversation "about six to nine months ago."

Kelley said that he, in turn, brought the matter to the attention of the hospital maintenance department. Kelley said he was assured by the department that the problem would be taken care of.

"I had no reason to doubt their veracity," said Kelley. "I had heard nothing else from them."

He noted, however, that evidence of electrical problems did not show up on his quarterly inspections dating as far back as December 1973. Kelley said:

"In my inspection tours, I didn't see anything apparently wrong electrically."

Burke said he also sent two letters - one dated Aug. 21, 1973, the other Oct. 25, 1973 - to the hospital Safety Committee, asking for a "100 per cent check on all plugs and outlets."

He contended that a two-inch metal length of tubing, capped in rubber and extending beyond the edge of the bed guard rail, could come in contact with the wall outlet when the bed was raised and lowered.

Yet Adolph Minukas, assistant supervisor of maintenance in the hospital, said:

"To the best of our knowledge, there was no danger created by the cords."

Calling Burke's act "bad judgement," Minukas said, "he created a needless bit of work of repairing and replacing what he has done."

Burke said Minukas and Joseph Paradise, retired superintendent of maintenance who is covering for vacationing Richard Serafini, present superintendent of maintenance, discussed the plugs with him the day before he was fired. Minukas had just discovered the damaged plugs which Burke said he ripped out "about two months ago from S-5."

S-5, the surgical floor where the incident took place, has been closed since early June to be air conditioned.

Miss Lundy said that the matter was "entirely out of her hands." She noted that the Massachusetts Hospital Electrical Engineers had inspected the entire hospital "within the past couple of months," apparently finding nothing wrong with the cords.

Miss Lundy said, "If he [Burke] feels he has a cause, he can go through the proper legal channels."

Both Mayor Hannon and Burke seemingly unbending in their decisions.

Hannon said, "We're not going to back down on our stand."

And Burke said, "I'm going to fight it all the way."

Quincy Heritage Seeking Program Volunteers

Quincy Heritage, Inc., is seeking volunteers to assist in its programs to commemorate the city's 350th anniversary and the nation's bicentennial.

Some 40 major programs, planned for implementation in 1975 and 1976, are now in various stages of development, and volunteer help for them is urgently needed, according to Quincy Heritage Director John R. Graham.

"We are looking for individuals with all types of skills," Rev. Graham said. "We need photographers, writers, typists, linguists for ethnic research, tour guides, historical researchers, and people interested in site restoration," Rev. Graham said.

"Of course, the basic qualification a volunteer must have is enthusiasm. Persons expressing interest in helping will be given our 12-page overview of programs to enable them to choose the particular area in which they wish to serve. Or they may suggest a new avenue of pursuit of Quincy's Heritage which could be incorporated into our overall design," he said.

The Heritage Director stressed that help is being sought from all age groups.

Interested persons may contact Quincy Heritage assistant director Bruce McLain at Quincy City Hall.

MARSH CONTROVERSY — James F. Donahue, chairman of the Conservation Commission, says that the Houghs Neck third marsh, shown here, is dying and needs to be flooded to be saved. But Dr. Alfred V. 'Sheer Lunacy'

Chamber 'Parking Crisis' Meeting Set For Sept. 5

Calling the proposed reduction in parking spaces for manufacturing firms "sheer lunacy" the South Shore Chamber of Commerce announces it will conduct a parking crisis meeting, Thursday, Sept. 5.

The meeting will be at 8 A.M., at the conference center of the South Shore National Bank, Chestnut St., Quincy Center.

All area manufacturers employing 50 or more individuals are invited at that time to meet with Congressman James A. Burke, a ranking member of the House Ways and Means Committee, to discuss the potential for eliminating what the Chamber calls a "devastating regulation". It requires firms employing more than 50 people to reduce their parking space by 25 per cent before May 31, 1975, or face a $25,000-a-day fine for non-compliance.

The Chamber said Congressman Burke has agreed to participate in the meeting and listen to the concern of the business community, and to consider appropriate legislative action.

A Chamber spokesman noted: While the attempt to reduce air pollution by reducing automobile use is admirable, the system of eliminating opportunities for individuals to be gainfully employed, especially in suburban locations where mass public transportation is not readily available, is sheer lunacy. This is bureaucratic bungling at its worst, and we believe that the Congress must step in and help legislate common sense for the administration.

"With already high unemployment in the area, and scares of recessions floating in the wind, it is totally unnecessary to create more frustration, antagonism, and meaningless regulation for the business community to cope with."

Environmental Analysis Of S. Quincy Station Underway

MBTA General Chairman Joseph C. Kelly, announces that an environmental analysis of locating a South Quincy station and related parking and highway facilities is now underway.

The Authority in cooperation with the Mass. Department of Public Works has engaged the architectural firm of Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Quade, and Douglas, Inc. to carry out the analysis.

The study is being sponsored by the U.S. Department of Transportation under a technical study grant of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration. It will examine the environmental and socio-economic impacts of extending the Authority's Red Line to South Braintree, either with or without a transit station in close proximity to the Southeast Expressway system.

The study will develop and evaluate alternative plans and focus on such matters as traffic, air quality, noise, water resources, natural systems, community resources, economics, and aesthetics.

Rep. Joseph E. Brett has accepted an invitation from Kelly for his "participation and cooperation" to serve on a committee citing Brett's "experience and knowledge". A meeting will be scheduled at Brett's convenience. The planning activities are being directed by Robert Davidson, director of planning and construction and John K. Leary Jr., project manager.

Over 350 Families In Neighborhood Watch

Police Chief Francis X. Finn announces there are now 35 active neighborhood groups in the city involving at least 350 families in the Neighborhood Watch program.

The program has as its goal the reduction of house breaks and other crime in the city. The Neighborhood Watch program is designed to alert citizens through the self-help program in protecting their own homes and that of their neighbors.

The program includes: Discussion of crime prevention at group meetings with a police officer as a mediator. A movie film is shown to demonstrate the most effective way in which a home can be secured against illegal entry. Various types of locks are displayed at the meetings and an Operation Identification engraving tool is being made available to each group.

Residents interested in participating are invited to call the Planning and Research Division of the Quincy Police, 479-1212, Ext. 378.

Called Health Hazard Hough's Neck Marsh Flooding Stirs Debate

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly will "request that Mayor Hannon step in" to solve the Houghs Neck Third Marsh controversy.

Kelly said he wants the Mayor "to make it clear to the Quincy Conservation Commission how the professional people in the city feel about the situation."

Yet both camps in the controversy still remain staunch in their respective stands.

The Conservation Commission, chaired by James F. Donahue, advocates the removal of the tide gate at Spring St. in order to flood and thereby save the marsh by increasing its salinity. According to Donahue, the area is changing from a salt marsh into a fresh water meadow.

He emphasized that the influx of water "would be monitored" to prevent flooding which is feared by residents living near the area. "It would be done during a period of average or below average high tides," Donahue said.

Yet Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney reluctantly opposes the flooding of the marsh, declaring it "raw sewage". Flooding it, he said, "would constitute a serious health problem."

Donahue, however, disagreed with the label "raw sewage". Citing an Aug. 8 coliform count taken by a Cambridge research lab, Donahue said the creek water between Edgemere Drive and Rock Island Rd. showed a coliform count of 100,000 not 10 million which is the figure indicating raw sewage.

"The count is 100 times better than raw sewage but 100 times worse than the maximum acceptable count for bathing," Donahue said.

Dr. Mahoney attributes the marsh contamination to houses on Spring St., Spring Terrace and Freca Rd. which use cesspools and are not connected with city sewerage.

He proposes to "tie these houses into the city sewerage system", asking payment "over a long period of time" thus easing the financial burden.

Dr. Mahoney added that even when these houses are hooked up to the city sewerage system, he would still forbid the flooding of the marsh.

"The sub-soil of the marsh is saturated with sewage six inches to two feet down. This sewage could seep into the water. I will not allow the marsh to be flooded."

Dr. Mahoney also added, "I'm not making these judgements by myself. I've had state consultants in."

Councillor Kelly has called the whole matter "closed, absolute, final, ended." He said the only reason why water wasn't moving through the creek was due to sand build-up at the gate near the sea wall. He commented that the DPW's work on the area had been "fabulous."

"They've done an outstanding job on the area," he said. "Why doesn't the Commission wait a little while and see if the major corrections done by the DPW work?"

Nonetheless, the Conservation Commission advocates a closely monitored trial opening of the tide gate in order to give "the maximum amount of tidal action and the minimum amount of flooding" to the area.

Mrs. Clara Yeomans, executive secretary of the Commission, explained the value of saving the marsh:

"A marsh is a valuable natural resource. It's a buffer against storms; it's nature's way of screening pollution - it's a purifier; and it's a nursery for everything in the sea."

She said that a healthy marsh "can take care of a great deal of pollution...through nature's chemical and tidal action."

But Dr. Mahoney said, "I'm not concerned with a blade of grass when it comes to the health of the people of Quincy."

Registered Voters Drop Over 1,900

According to unofficial tabulation, 46,862 Quincy residents are eligible to vote in the Sept. 10 primary.

This figure is down by 1,976 from those registered for last year's preliminary city election in September.

A total of 48,838 residents registered for last year's city election. Of those, 26,905 were Democrats, 9,065 Republicans and 12,868 Independents.

A total of 27,002 women and 21,836 men registered.

As of July 1, the registration was 45,562 including 25,187 Democrats, 8,353 Republicans and 12,022 Independents. Of that total, 25,289 were women and 20,273 were men.

Approximately 1,300 have registered since July 1 for the September primary, but the final figure and political affiliations have not yet been determined.

Old Hancock Bank Building Being 'Upgraded'

The sight of workers inside the vacated Hancock Bank touched off speculation that someone was planning to move in.

But ATS Realty, in charge of leasing of the building now empty over two years, said that workers are "upgrading the building."

The lessor will welcome a lessee, a spokesman said.

"STATE-OF-THE-ART-CAR" glides into a station stop ready to give passengers a jerk-free, quiet and air-conditioned ride to their destinations. You can test ride it on the Quincy Red Line for the next four weeks.

'New Generation In Rail Cars'

SOAC Makes Local Debut

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

An air-conditioned, smooth-riding, screechless, jerkless rapid transit train is making a month-long guest appearance in Boston.

The "State-of-the-Art Car" [SOAC], sponsored by the U.S. Department of Transportation's Urban Mass Transportation Administration [UMTA], is a two-car vehicle combining the best in currently available mass transit technology.

Quincy passengers may test-ride the modern $350,000-plus two-car beauty from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., and from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m.,

Monday through Friday.

SOAC will be operating on the Red Line between Harvard Station and Quincy Center Station and between Harvard Station and Ashmont Station. The car will not run on Saturdays but will operate on Sundays from 9 a.m. until 8 p.m.

During Monday's opening day ceremonies on Boston Common, Frank Herringer, administrator of UMTA, said that SOAC represents "a new generation in rail cars."

"It embodies the best in available off-the-shelf technology," Herringer noted.

The building of the "State-of-the-Art-Cars" was federally funded through 1970 legislation which provided $10 billion over 12 years for urban transportation improvements. Three of the $10 billion were to be used over a five-year period to upgrade, extend, improve and develop new bus, rapid transit and commuter rail service across the country.

The cars, built under the management of the Boeing Vertol Company of Philadelphia, were designed with passenger comfort and convenience in mind.

The SOAC is carpeted and air conditioned and travels at a speed averaging 60-65 mph. It is a spacious car, 75 feet in length and almost 10 feet in width.

A rubber chevron spring suspension provides a smooth ride in spite of the speed, and an aluminum device installed within the wheels of the car cuts down on noise. The car's acceleration/braking system ensures that stops and starts are entirely jerk-free.

The vehicle's two cars - the low density and high density - each carry approximately 100 people. The seats are made of fiberglass fitted with upholstered cushions of aqua, blue and red.

The wall-to-wall carpet is flecked with blue and purple in one section and with red and blue in another. The second car contains several small tables situated between pairs of seats located alongside the wall of the train.

The walls of the car are beige and the ceilings are high and equipped with ample lighting. There are even upholstered-covered arm rests attached to the wall near double seats. The cost of each air-conditioned, carpeted, upholstered, quiet, fast-moving car is somewhere in the vicinity of $350-$400,000.

James Morrison, branch manager of the Surface Transportation Systems in Philadelphia, noted that the new Green Line test cars to be available in May of next year, will be equipped with features resembling the SOAC.

Perhaps the new convenient, comfortable, quiet cars will lure commuters into leaving their cars at home, thus easing traffic jams and air pollution. But Morrison warned that orders for the SOAC take time to fill - approximately two years.

Cerasoli Petitions To Put S. Quincy MBTA Station On Ballot

Robert A. Cerasoli, candidate for state representative, has filed a petition to place the proposed South Quincy MBTA station on the Nov. 5 final state election ballot as a referendum question.

Cerasoli, who seeks the First Norfolk District seat on Monday filed 573 certified signatures with Secretary of State John Davoren. He said he collected over 1,000 signatures but only 200 are required. The signatures were certified at Quincy City Hall.

The petition asked that the question read: "Should the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority [MBTA] Construct A Rapid Transit Station in South Quincy?"

Cerasoli said the next move is for Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn to approve the wording and give the go-ahead to place it on the ballot.

The question would appear only on the ballots in the First Norfolk District which includes Precincts 1, 2, 5 of Ward 3 [South Quincy], all of Quincy Point [Ward 2] and Precincts 1 and 11 of North Weymouth.

Cerasoli said the referendum question would give South Quincy residents their only chance to vote on the proposed MBTA station issue.

He said he opposes the proposed station because it "will cause a rise in property taxes, the MBTA assessment will double by 1975, three stations in Quincy are enough and there is no need for a fourth less one-half a mile from the center station.

"And," he added, "the land that presently brings in property taxes to the city of Quincy will be taken by eminent domain with the city assuming the payment of deficit taxes to the MBTA."

"The people of South Quincy," he said, "do not need a station to destroy the character of their neighborhood so that people in other South Shore communities can have the convenience of parking in South Quincy at our cost.

"Hopefully, if the voters in the representative district vote against a proposed station on the Nov. 5 ballot, the referendum will persuade the federal government not to grant funds for a South Quincy station, but to go forward with plans for an agreeable South Braintree station."

Heritage Moves Office To MBTA Station

Quincy Heritage has moved its offices from City Hall to space donated by the MBTA at its Quincy Center station.

Men from the school system's maintenance department delivered three desks, three chairs, two file cabinets, typewriters and stands to the new location for the city's Bicentennial and 350th anniversary organization.

The MBTA office will also serve as a temporary visitor information center, according to Heritage Director Rev. John R. Graham.

Phone service to the new office will not be completed for about another week. In the meantime, persons may reach Quincy Heritage by leaving messages at Mayor Walter Hannon's office at City Hall.

Burke Named To New Committee

Congressman James A. Burke by a vote of the entire Democratic Caucus of the House of Representatives, has been elected to serve on the newly formed Budget Committee.

Burke was nominated for the position by a unanimous vote of the Ways and Means Committee which selected three of its members to serve on the powerful new committee.

The Budget Committee is being formed by the Congress in order to assist that body in maintaining firm and orderly control of the federal budget and to bring federal appropriations in line with Federal revenues.

As the second ranking member of the House Ways and Means Committee, Congressman Burke brings to the new Committee expertise on such matters as Federal revenue raising and fiscal budgetary authority. Burk served on the Joint Study Committee on budget control, the predecessor of the new standing committee.

YOUR HANDWRITING TELLS Backhand reveals her uncertainty

By DOROTHY
ST. JOHN JACKSON
Certified Master
Graphoanalyst
Copley News Service

Dear Dorothy:

Is it normal to be so worried about our young people in college? I'm afraid they may try drugs, go hippie, drop out of school, or have a nervous breakdown from too much pressure. They are really wonderful children, and when they are home they seem to be happy and well adjusted. Why am I so fearful something may go wrong?

S.T.

Dear S.T.:

Because you've had things go wrong before. Your backhand writing reveals it. You're not too sure about people, so you've thrown a question mark over your whole environment.

Communication is hard for you, and is seen in the closed a's and o's, combined with the lower loop in the y and your backhand writing. Your lines are down. You have to bend, if you're going to relate.

Try to have painstaking discussions with your children. Let them bring their college stories home for your receptive ear. An expressively interested parent, with much praise and little criticism, automatically attracts closeness. Don't be afraid to use your heart — it works wonders with kids.

Seems that child-raising has gone "mod." Since we threw away the old techniques before we found some new replacements, many parents, today, are as bewildered as you.

There are many ways to be a good parent, but with the conflicts of modern youth, such ways are not without effort. Trust your children — but let them know it.

A mother's concern is natural, but a mother's worry is a hazard. Worry is simply a product of your own thinking and a sure way to accomplish nothing.

D.J.

Selected letters will be answered in this column. For a limited time, you may obtain your own personalized handwriting chart by sending $2 and a page of your writing to Dorothy St. John Jackson, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

COOKING CORNER

You can cut down on the calories

By SUSAN DELIGHT

According to a recent survey, 44 women out of 100 think they weigh too much — but only 17 million women are now dieting.

Diets scare many people — make them feel they must entirely change their eating habits. Dieting really hinges on one fundamental — counting calories. To lower weight, the daily intake of calories must also be lowered.

Sample carried lunches might include Pickle Cottage Cheese Medley, which adds up to 182 calories per serving, and Tuna-Tomato Lunch which is about 215 calories per serving. This low-calorie count even leaves room for a low-calorie dessert such as Blueberry Clouds. Any of these can be featured at home meals.

BLUEBERRY CLOUDS

- ½ cup skimmed milk
- 3 eggs, separated
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- ½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 cup blueberries, pured
- Non-nutritive sweetener, equivalent to ¼ cup sugar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ¼ cup sugar

In a small bowl beat together egg yolks and milk. Mix with gelatin in top of double boiler. Place over boiling water, and stir constantly until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon rind, lemon juice, blueberry puree, nonnutritive sweetener and salt. Chill until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; gradually add sugar and beat until stiff. Fold into blueberry mixture. Spoon into dessert dishes and chill until set. Garnish with quartered lemon slices.

Yield: Six servings, 100 calories each.

LOW-CALORY DISH — Blueberry Clouds will add interest to summertime menus without adding unduly to the calorie count.

PICKLE COTTAGE CHEESE MEDLEY (Makes 4 servings)

- 1 pound creamed cottage cheese
- 1 large carrot, shredded
- ¼ cup chopped sweet gherkins
- 2 tablespoons chopped radishes
- ½ teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1 can (16 ounces) low calorie peaches, drained
- 4 radish roses
- 4 sweet gherkin strips

Mix together cottage cheese, carrot, chopped gherkins, chopped radishes and seasoned salt; chill. Serve with peaches, radish roses and gherkin strips. Approximately 182 calories a serving.

TUNA-TOMATO LUNCH (Makes 4 servings)

- 2 medium tomatoes (about 14 ounces)
- 2 cans (6½ ounces each) tuna, drained
- ¼ cup sweet pickle relish
- ½ cup chopped celery
- 2 tablespoons low-calorie Italian dressing
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons freeze-dried chopped chives

Halve tomatoes; cut in sections, leaving intact at center. Mix together remaining ingredients and mound on tomato. For lunch box, wrap each serving in plastic wrap. Approximately 215 calories a serving.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Get down to business and work on a project left "hanging fire." Listen to intuition but don't go off on unproductive tangents. Be generous with praise for a loyal employee or co-worker. Be tactful in business dealings.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Good time to take your vacation if possible. Indulge in pleasurable and cultural pursuits. Possibility of finding a future business partner. Favorable time to undertake a self-help or do-it-yourself program.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Now is the time to renovate, redecorate and beautify your home, making it a family project. Pressures start to build and are best handled by reaching decisions promptly as problems arise or else confusion results.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Carry on with routine things carried over from last week. Assume a cooperative role and let others "carry the ball." Vitality may be low, so see to it that you get plenty of rest. An old romance may return.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Entertainment of a cultural nature is favored now. Your relationship with a financial advisor is best kept on a platonic basis. Use your intuition in regard to a big project. Finances appear to be improving — slowly.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Don't display in actions your inner emotional turmoil. A new romantic involvement appears up-corning. This is not a good cycle to invest money. Listen to your own common sense instead of another's enthusiasm.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Direct your energies to working "behind the scenes" just now. Over-optimism may cloud your judgment, so be very realistic and investigate all the facts. Use your artistic abilities in a realistic way.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant)

— Get "out and about" now with friends — socialize. Evaluate your financial picture for progress made thus far. Make plans and set goals. Work on long-range projects that require a careful, detailed approach.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Curb tendency to be too outspoken — don't be critical of others. Transportation could be a temporary problem. Guard health. Eat and drink only fresh, uncorrupted foodstuffs. Curb temper.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Listen carefully to your inner intuitions and trust them implicitly. Take another long, hard practical look at a project you are considering — some things appear unclear. Read the "fine print" carefully.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Your approach is serious and your concern should be with practical matters. Good time to set up systematic and organized methods of operation. Your high standards and integrity will pay off for you now.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Work on projects already in progress. Care for friendships, associations which have proved reliable in the past. Legal matters and journeys are favored. Hints of professional opportunities may come now.

There's a man's lib too

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

The way I see it, it's not all a woman's lib. There is man's lib too. There is a living change in evolution on earth for all humans. Women want equal rights and men want them too. We are learning gentleness, kindness and understanding.

John in the County Record

Dear John:

I have condensed your letter and say, "Right on!"

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

Because I only selected a sterling silver pattern for my wedding gifts I didn't get any stainless. Now I'm stuck with a thousand dollars worth of sterling. Can I use it every day or will people think I'm putting on the dog? I really like the pattern... better than any other type of flatware I've ever seen. My mother says we should buy some cheaper equipment and save my sterling for best. We really can't afford to buy anything right now and I wouldn't want her to buy us anything more.

Just married

Dear Just:

Use that sterling! It won't break, crack, chip or peel. In fact its finish will improve with use. The more often you use and wash it, the less polishing it will need. Don't let your mother talk you into a Sunday-best syndrome.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

In a recent newspaper article I read the phrase, "The widow of the Late Mr. So and So." Aren't the words, "widow" and "the late" synonymous?

Illini staff writer

Dear Illini:

You are correct. To use the words "Widow" and "the late" is the first no-no taught in basic journalism.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

How should I identify myself on the phone when speaking to clerks or tradespeople?

Mrs. John Archer

Dear Mrs. Archer:

By all means identify yourself as Mrs. Archer, never Doris Archer. If you have to give your name and address for delivery or work order purposes use your husband's name.

Dear Mrs. Tobin:

What do you add to sugar to caramelize it? New in the art.

Dear New:

You add nothing. Simply heat the sugar over low heat in a heavy utensil until the sugar melts and develops golden-brown color and caramel flavor. It will be syrupy.

Questions on etiquette may be mailed to Riv Tobin, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Self-cleaning oven is a good bargain

A self-cleaning oven costs no more to operate, on the average, than a conventional oven which must be cleaned manually, according to General Electric.

The cost of a self-cleaning cycle is about a dime, the company says, but this is offset by savings in normal use from the improved insulation.

PRE-ACCIDENT ORACLE

What can parents tell about their teenage child if he has failed in grade school, smokes cigarettes, works full-time, or has a police record? Answer: It's likely that he'll be involved in a traffic accident before he becomes 21.

These are the conclusions of a study by the National Safety Council entitled "Pre-Driving Identification of Young Drivers with a High Risk of Accidents." The study revealed that young drivers who will become involved in traffic accidents can be readily identified ahead of time by one or more of the following indicators:

They experience academic difficulty in grade school, failing one or more grades before grade eight. They were regular cigarette smokers at or before age 16. They had worked full-time at or before age 17. Or they had been charged with a criminal offense.

Lisa Haapanen Selected To Study In Switzerland

Miss Lisa Haapanen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weikko W. Haapanen, 122 Centre St., Quincy, has been selected by the American Field Service International Scholarship Organization to study in Switzerland during the school year 1974-75.

She flew to Paris Monday, and then to Berne, the capital of Switzerland, for a week of orientation. From Berne she will go to live with a carefully selected family in a small town near Zurich. Here German will become her language for the year as she studies in the local school.

Lisa was an honor student of the 1974 class at Quincy High School where she was a member of the Quincy High School AFS Chapter. Upon her return from Switzerland, she plans to enter college.

Social programs and activities for the 1974 - 1975 season for Quincy Senior Citizens are announced by Mrs. Marion Andrews, Director of Senior Citizens Activities for the Quincy Recreation Department.

The third annual Quincy Senior Citizens "Nite Out at Foxboro" will be held Wednesday, Aug. 28. Tickets on sale until today [Thursday]. Dinner will be served in the clubhouse preceding the races.

On Sept. 12, Senior Citizens Clubs and representatives of Quincy Nursing Homes will participate in the eighth in a series of Nites Out for Patients at the Bryan VFW Post Home. The planning committee will meet with Mrs. Andrews at the Kennedy Health Center Auditorium, Friday at 1:30 p.m.

The annual foliage trip to New Hampshire is scheduled for Oct. 9, 10 - 11.

Montello's in Quincy will be the location of the Annual Harvest Ball and Dinner, Friday, Oct. 25. A family style roast turkey dinner will be served.

The fourth annual Bowling Nite and Supper will be held Nov. 9. Supper at Walsh's Quincy Room will follow and prizes will be awarded.

Arrangements have been made for a trip to the Chateau de Ville Dec. 1 for luncheon and the performance of "Star Spangled Girl" starring George Hamilton.

A catered spaghetti supper followed by dancing will be held Jan. 17. The annual selection of the "King and Queen of Hearts" will be made at the Valentine Dinner Dance, Feb. 14. On March 14 the annual St. Patrick's Supper and Dance will feature a catered corned beef and cabbage dinner.

The remainder of the season will feature another Nursing Home Patients Nite Out in April, Senior Citizens Government Day, May Festival, Blossom Time Dinner Dance, all in May and a four day trip in June. The definite dates of these will be announced.

Sons Of Italy To Host Over 200 CP At Dinner

More than 200 CP adults will attend the second annual full course catered Italian dinner being sponsored by the Quincy Sons of Italy Lodge 1295, Sunday at 1 p.m. at the lodge social center, 120 Quarry St.

John A. Bersani and John J. Fantuchio are co-chairmen of the dinner committee.

There will be an orchestra, entertainment and group singing.

A highlight will be the presentation of a $500 donation to the Cerebral Palsy Building Fund which will be accepted on behalf of the CP by Albert J. Marchionne, president, and Arthur Ciampa, executive director.

The Sons of Italy Lodge recently celebrated its 50th anniversary. During those years it has engaged in many charitable endeavors as part of its community service.

Any cerebral palsied adult of the South Shore who has not already received an invitation may attend the dinner by contacting CP Headquarters, 105 Adams St., Quincy, [479-7443].

Nursing Home Patients Nite Out Meeting Friday

Representatives from the city's Senior Citizens Clubs and Nursing Home activity directors will meet Friday at 1:30 p.m. in the Kennedy Health Center Auditorium.

Plans will be completed for the eighth in a series of Nites Out for nursing home patients to be held Thursday, Sept. 12, at the Bryan VFW Post Home. The Nursing Homes and 20 of the city's Senior Citizens Clubs have participated in the series of "Nites Out" with approximately 1200 patients in attendance. The program consists of refreshments, entertainment and prizes.

Refreshments are provided and served by a committee of senior citizens with transportation arranged by the nursing homes. Prizes are donated by both the clubs and the nursing homes.

Isabel Reardon Chancellor Daughters Of Isabella

More than 2,100 delegates from 26 states, five Canadian provinces and the Philippine Islands recently attended the biennial national convention of the Daughters of Isabella [in Boston].

Mrs. Isabel Reardon of 122 School St., Quincy is chancellor of the Massachusetts State

Circle. The organization is divided into three strata: a Supreme Circle, supervising the entire order; State Circles, directing groups in a given area; and Subordinate Circles, managing membership in a particular district.

Market Report

Fresh Cabbage At Low Prices

Fresh green cabbage from Massachusetts farms is on the market in plenty, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA] and it is priced at almost record lows.

While you may not be able to substitute it for all the other higher-priced foods, its versatility is worth a better look.

Cabbage is enjoyed raw, as in salads and cole slaw, and cooked, from simple boiling alone through a wide range of dishes: fried with apples and sausage; stuffed with meat and condiments; combined with many other foods.

High in vitamin content - highest, in fact, when uncooked - cabbage is very low in calories.

A half cup of uncooked cabbage provides only 13 calories, and only 32 when cooked. Combine it with mayonnaise in cole slaw and the calorie count jumps, of course; but it is a much-neglected menu item that can do wonders for a tired menu...or a tired menu planner.

Select reasonably solid heads with all but three or four of the wrapper leaves removed, and with stem cut reasonably close to the head. Avoid bursting heads, worm injury and decay or yellowing of the leaves. Check the stem; if the base of some of the outer leaves have separated, the head may be coarse and strong in flavor.

Cooking, as with most vegetables, should be minimal. Three to ten minutes in just enough water to cover in a saucepan - the time depending on the size of the chunks - should be enough. The longer you cook cabbage the stronger it gets, while losing crispness and flavor. It should come to the table white and slightly crisp.

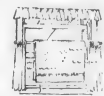

Jean Cooke's

Cole Slaw

Half head of cabbage, finely shredded; one small carrot, grated or thinly sliced; one small onion, grated, to taste; several sprigs of thyme, cut; one heaping tbsp. sour cream added to enough mayonnaise to moisten the mixture and hold it together; mix all thoroughly with salt and pepper to taste. Serves six, to rave notices.

The Kitchen Almanac

front of an open kitchen window. Incoming air is cooled by the moisture of the towel.

Cooking tips from the pros... The chefs at the Black Angus in Minneapolis make their renowned hush brown potatoes using baked potatoes. (The baked variety make the difference!) Potatoes are baked the night before and stored overnight in the refrigerator. The next day the potatoes are shredded and cooked to a golden brown in vegetable oil. (The oil is repeatedly drained off after the potatoes have been turned.)

Know The Mixing Lingo
Cream - To beat shortening and sugar until thoroughly blended and creamy.

St. Joseph's Guild Lists Schedule For New Season

A primary election day cake sale Sept. 10 will be the first of various fund raising events to be held by St. Joseph's Mothers' Guild, Quincy Dec. 11.

Mrs. George Roberts and Mrs. George Ford are co-chairmen of the sale which is to be held at the Fore River Club House, Nevada Rd., from 8 a.m. until sellout.

A Mass at 7 p.m. at St. Joseph's Church will officially open the Guild season on Sept. 11. The business meeting at 7:30 p.m. will be followed by a cake decorating demonstration by Mrs. Keith McElman.

Saturday morning, Oct. 5 from 9 a.m. to noon there will be a rummage sale in St. Joseph's School Hall, Pray St.

A parent-teacher social will provide the program for the Oct. 9 meeting. Room mothers to be announced will serve as hostesses at the monthly meetings.

The election day cake sale Nov. 4 will be held during voting hours at the Fore River Club House.

Mrs. Chickie Abdallah, Mrs. Connie Galante, Mrs. Trish Foley, Mrs. Pat Biggi and Mrs. Rosalie Paolucci are co-chairmen of the fourth annual Christmas Bazaar to be held Saturday, Nov. 9. Numerous tables of gifts, foods, Christmas decorations, white elephant, knitted articles and a special children's room will once again provide early Christmas shoppers with a wide selection of tasteful gifts.

"From Our Kitchen to Yours" is the program to be presented by the Boston Gas Company at the Nov. 13 meeting.

Rev. Joseph Downey, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, will present a slide program on Portugal at the Guild Christmas party Dec. 11.

The January 8 special program will be a silent auction. Quincy's Pride: "Patriots, Presidents and Possibilities" is the title of a slide and sound presentation to be shown at the Feb. 12 meeting by the Quincy Heritage Committee.

Mrs. Richard Mahoney will be chairman for the covered dish supper to be held at the March 12 meeting. A nominating committee will be appointed at this time.

The election of new officers at the April 9 meeting will be followed by a wine and cheese tasting party. Mrs. George MacLean will be the chairman of this social, event to which husbands and friends are invited.

The annual closing banquet at which the installation of new officers will take place, will be May 14, the place to be announced.

A young organization proceeding into its fifth year, St. Joseph's Guild hopes through the efforts of its members and with the active support of an interested community to continue to assist in aiding St. Joseph's School.

Officers for the year include: Mrs. Robert McBride, president; Mrs. Paul Shea, vice president; Mrs. John Jeannette, secretary and Mrs. Patricia Biggi, treasurer.

Meetings are held in the school hall on the second Wednesday of each month opening with a business meeting at 7:30 p.m. unless indicated otherwise.

Cabot Says He Would Be Non-Political Attorney General

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Attorney general candidate Charles C. Cabot, Jr. says that he has one principal commitment: the law.

Denying any aspirations for the governorship, the Republican candidate said:

"My respect for the law is deeply felt in that I would not let political ambition interfere. I would do my job 'until the end of the term."

In announcing his candidacy in early June, Cabot pledged "to restore respect for the law," campaigning as a "non-politician". He commented:

"I have a message that will appeal to the voters. This is a year in which concern for people, a motivation for public service and legal experience will have more appeal than political experience and unsanctioned, political convention endorsements."

Schooled at Milton Academy, Harvard College and Harvard Law School, Cabot has practiced law for 17 years, most recently with the Boston firm of Sullivan & Worcester. He serves as selectman in the town of Dover and acted as attorney and assistant general counsel for the U.S. Information Agency from 1959-1961.

The 43-year-old father of three received the backing of former Watergate Special

CHARLES C. CABOT, JR.

Prosecutor Archibald Cox. In a letter sent to Cabot headquarters, Cox said:

"I am glad to endorse your candidacy... The Commonwealth would be greatly benefited if you were to become Attorney General..."

On the campaign trail, Cabot has noticed "a very unhealthy situation" of suspicion directed at politicians. To counteract the label "politician" - with all its connoting connotations - Cabot said that he hopes to convince voters of his integrity and honesty.

"I hope to be able to prove that a man can run for public office today without losing his dignity, without losing his sense of self-respect, and without losing his sense of what is right."

Cabot also voiced a concern for victims of crime. Noting a wide-spread disenchantment with the judicial system, Cabot commented that many citizens no longer bother to report crimes. Nonetheless, Cabot emphasized the need to deal with crime victims with "consistency, courtesy and compassion."

The slender, soft-spoken attorney hopes to install modern data banks within the legal system - banks containing the essential information on an offender. "There is no need for 8 or 9 continuances," Cabot said. He feels, too, that these banks could help deter crime if potential law-breakers were thus guaranteed a prompt trial.

While Cabot acknowledged the "progressive and enlightened legislation" in the state, he leveled a criticism: "The legislation is not effective if it is not enforced vigorously."

Cabot has taken on the mammoth task of keeping the government, in his words, "completely honest". He said, "A non-political attorney general is in a better position to do so."

"And as the chief anti-corruption officer in the Commonwealth," he added, "the attorney general has the responsibility to do so."

systems repairman, is assigned to a unit of the Pacific Air Force. He previously served at Luke AFB, Ariz.

Tom O'Neill, III Seeking Identity Of His Own

By TOM HENSHAW

Thomas P. O'Neill III is learning that a race for lieutenant governor can present problems not covered by the political textbooks.

For instance, the 29-year-old son of House Majority Leader Thomas P. [Tip] O'Neill Jr. was on a handshaking tour recently when he was confronted by the ultimate political putdown.

"I'm Tom O'Neill from Cambridge," he told a woman. "I'm running for lieutenant governor."

"Sorry," she snapped. "I can't vote for you. I don't live in your district."

"It can be a real problem," O'Neill said the other day on a visit to the Quincy Sun, That's another problem.

A lieutenant governor doesn't really do anything that would impress a prospective voter so a candidate has to go around talking about the impressive things he'd like to do if he were elected.

"I'd like to see a cabinet position with the lieutenant governor at the head that would provide a liaison between the communities and the state and the federal government," said Tom O'Neill.

"Many communities are not aware of what is available to them from the federal government.

"The art of obtaining federal funds is so sophisticated that some cities are hiring men for the sole purpose of going after them.

"The office of lieutenant governor could provide this service.

"They pay a guy $30,000 a year, he should do more than cut ribbons."

If you have to spend your time making up things to do, then why run for the job?

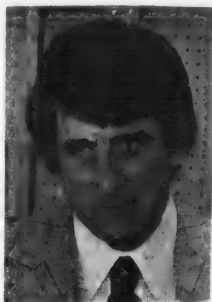

"I'd be a liar if I told you I'm not looking to the future," said O'Neill. "But I have no big plan.

"Times change. Who can say where anyone will be in political life five or 10 years from now.

"The day of the 10-year plan to win an office is long gone."

Lt. Schmecht In NATO Exercise

Coast Guard Lt. Harry F. Schmecht, husband of the former Miss Evelyn E. Jansry of 546 Willard St., West Quincy, participated in the NATO training exercise "Safe Pass" in the mid-Atlantic.

THOMAS P. O'NEILL, III

When it comes to campaigning, Tom III is a few steps ahead of everyone else. There's always Tom Jr. [Tip] in the background.

"Sure, my father will campaign for me," he said. "Wouldn't your father campaign for you?"

"The trouble is I can't get him in town long enough to campaign.

"There is some question if Carl Albert will run for another term as Speaker of the House.

"As the No. 2 Democrat in the House, my father might run for the job.

"Then he'd have to be out campaigning for Congressmen around the country.

"I might never see him during the campaign."

Mightn't a political name like O'Neill be a handicap in the aftermath of Watergate, which has served to make the title "politician" anathema to a large segment of voters?

"I think incumbents may be in trouble," said O'Neill, who is in his first term as a state rep.

"But I don't think a name or a relationship places you in danger.

"And I don't think O'Neill is a name that would be a detriment.

"If it's tied to Watergate at all, people think only good of it. "I'm proud to have the name. "I'm not ashamed of anything my father has done.

"But I've got to earn an identity of my own."

And an identity for the lieutenant governor, too.

Council Feels Slighted On Tax Rate Announcement

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Mayor Walter Hannon didn't exactly endear himself to some members of the City Council when he announced Quincy's new tax rate last week.

The actual $5.60 hike [to $159.90] looked pretty good after all those ominous predictions of a $20 to $30 jump some weeks back.

Hannon pointed out that the tax increase was only 3.6 per cent while the cost of living has risen some 13 per cent in the past year.

He chalked it up mainly to "maintaining budgetary efficiency"...and..."because we are running the city like a business."

Some of the councillors—especially the newer ones—feel they were pretty much ignored when the credit was being handed out.

They're doing some behind-the-scenes grumbling about it, noting that they took an axe to the budget submitted to them by the Mayor. If it wasn't for them, they contend, the $5.60 hike would have been considerably higher.

If His Honor should find a copy of "How To Win Friends and Influence People" under his Christmas tree this year, and wonders who it's from, check the City Council.

FORMER Lt. Gov. Francis Bellotti will have an open house tonight [Thursday] at his Quincy headquarters, 1464 Hancock St., starting at 7:30 p.m. Speaking of Bellotti, just about every attorney general candidate that has visited The Sun's office in the past few weeks, concede that he's the man to beat for the job.

A RECEPTION and dance for Robert Cerasoli, Democratic candidate for the First Norfolk District state representative seat, will be held Saturday from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post, Broad St. Ray Dunn [479-5964] is ticket chairman.

YOU'VE HEARD Peter Falk doing those Columbo yogurt commercials on radio. Right? Wrong! That's not Falk but Mike McNally, Quincy's answer to Rich Little. Mike, whose father Frank is a John Hancock Insurance sales representative and active in civic affairs, is known as "The Man of 101 Voices." He can do that many different voices including many personalities. Among the latter, in addition to Falk, are Jimmy Stewart, James Mason, Ed Sullivan, Ted Kennedy and Richard Nixon. He's had some 50 different commercials running on radio at the same time.

But with him it's a mini as well as mimic career. His real profession is teaching at Rochester High School.

Next time you hear a local commercial and the voice of a celebrity, chances are it is really Mike McNally.

INDEPENDENCE AVE. is beginning to look like Campaign Row. Political signs are sprouting there like weeds.

SPEAKING of signs, have you seen the campaign car of Herbert Reppucci running as an Independent in the Fourth Norfolk state representative district? It's really something. All painted with Reppucci plugs... Helen McDonald who ran for the City Council last year, was manning Reppucci's car the other day. She's for him in this election.

LATEST MEMBER of The Quincy Mustache Club is the Quincy Y's Paul Harvey. Blond.

AUTO BUMPER STICKER: Dick Nixon Doesn't Have U.S. To Kick Around Any More.

SMILE DEPT: Quincy Chevrolet dealer George Reardon muses that as far as he's concerned he thinks it's great to have a Ford in the White House.

What Is Pairing A Vote?

A concerned citizen called the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone to say that her congressman was out of town the day an important vote was taken but that he told her his voice was heard, nevertheless, by pairing his vote. "What did he mean by pairing?" asked the caller.

This question is one of the many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

When a legislator wants to vote on a bill but cannot be present, he will sometime call a colleague taking an opposite position and ask him to refrain from voting. Thus they form a "pair" with each on record but with zero net result in the vote.

The pairs are recorded in the roll call but only to specify which way each man stood on the issue.

Washington Report

Brooke Sees Ford Ending Crisis

[Following is a report from Washington by Senator Edward W. Brooke in which he gives his reaction to President Gerald Ford's first few days in the White House.]

By SENATOR
EDWARD W. BROOKE

The resignation of Richard M. Nixon and the ascendancy of Gerald R. Ford to the Presidency proceeded smoothly and proved once again that our system of government does indeed work. It works even in the most unique circumstances such as the first Presidential resignation in our nation's history and the elevation of our nation's first appointed Vice President.

In spite of the great changes that we shall see in the conduct of the Presidency in coming days, there is also a comforting continuity as the responsibility for governing changes hands.

As we look to the future of the Ford Administration we shall find that President Ford's foreign policy will continue to build on the successes of Richard Nixon's diplomatic initiatives.

In domestic policy we shall see significant changes in style as well as substance as President Ford carries out his motto of communication, conciliation, compromise, and cooperation with Congress.

The agenda for action is vast. Our nation is experiencing rampant inflation, which must be checked. Too many essential programs have been deferred because of a stalemate between Congress and the Executive Branch. This stalemate must be ended. We must get on with the nation's business. A new working relationship between Congress and the President is essential and this will require each branch meeting the other half way. I believe that President Ford has both the respect and friendship of an overwhelming majority of Congress to realize a smooth and productive relationship between the two branches.

In his first address to the Congress, President Ford promised to listen to the Congress in order to bring the Executive and Legislative Branches together in a spirit of cooperation and compromise. He has made an effort to end the hostility between the White House and the press. And with a promise of "openness and candor" he has started binding the wounds of Watergate and restoring the confidence of the American people in their system of government. But leadership should not be solely embodied in the President. Leadership is a shared responsibility.

It is shared not only by the President and the Congress but by every American Citizen.

And President Ford in his address to Congress asked the American people to vote for members of Congress, whether Republican or Democrat, who can make the tough decisions necessary to curb inflation and to get our economy back on an even keel.

President Ford wants and the country needs a Congress with which he can work to insure enactment of a national health insurance proposal, to provide jobs, and to meet the goal of a decent home for every American.

For too long the specter of impeachment has diverted the attention of the Congress and the American people from these goals.

The nation has now been spared the agony of protracted impeachment proceedings. The pall of Watergate has been lifted from the Presidency, but not from the courts where the Watergate trials are proceeding.

Watergate may be diminished by the resignation of President Nixon and the ascendancy of President Ford, but the lessons of Watergate must not be forgotten. We have seen the effect of a too powerful President. Our system of checks and balances, which our founding fathers drafted to prevent abuses of power, was ignored by those who perpetrated Watergate. Fortunately, in the end the checks worked and the balance was restored.

Time and again our system of government has proven that it can work. What we need now is to insure that it works even better in the years ahead. It is essential today that we begin restoring the shattered confidence of the people in the ability of government and in their ability to direct that government.

With President Ford's leadership, I believe the crisis of confidence will end and we will begin our process of national reconciliation.

Here in Washington there is a feeling of euphoria. We feel we shall, we feel we can, and we feel we must have national reconciliation.

ROBERT A. CERASOLI SPEAKS ABOUT THE ISSUES

•SOUTH QUINCY MBTA STATION

The people of the 1st Norfolk District should not be burdened with an outrageous and spiraling tax assessment for an additional MBTA Station in South Quincy. ROBERT A. CERASOLI believes in a strong Home Rule Concept and is unalterably opposed to this raping of the taxpayers.

He is the only candidate to speak out publicly against the proposed South Quincy Station before the State Committee on Transportation. This is a matter of Public Record.

ROBERT A. CERASOLI is the ONLY Candidate to initiate a Citizens Petition Drive to place the Question of the proposed station on the November, 1974, Representative District Ballot.

Because of his untiring efforts, the people of this District will finally be allowed to publicly express their sentiments on this all important major issue.

He will continue to protect the people and their just Rights. He will have the Time to Listen and most importantly the Time to Act.

•THE WELFARE SCANDAL . . .

Ignorance is NOT bliss when it comes to the taxpayers understanding of our incredible State Welfare Program. Misinformation and a serious lack of creditable information only compound the problems and hinder any significant reform of our Welfare System.

Well over ONE BILLION DOLLARS will be allocated for welfare payments this year to support approximately 14% of our State's population. Robert A. Cerasoli believes that our welfare crisis can no longer be tolerated, a sweeping monetary tightening combined with cost conscious management must be instituted AT ONCE. Our present grab-bag system encourages unemployment and worse yet, the dissolving of the family structure. The recent buildup in our State's Welfare Program staggers the imagination. In 1960 there were 170,000 welfare recipients in our state, now listen to this, in mid-1973, this number has exploded to more than 750,000 persons.

While I recognize that the legitimate needs of less fortunate individuals must be met, my VOICE will be heard LOUD and CLEAR against those who by deliberate schemes abuse this Social Program.

Brett, Kelly Disagree On Bus Re-Routing

The re-routing of the Quincy Sq.-Squantum bus line proposed by Councillor Leo Kelly has met with opposition from Rep. Joseph Brett.

Kelly proposed the change at the suggestion of Putnam Borden, executive director of the Council on Aging, in order to make travel to the Social Security Administration offices on Heritage Drive, North Quincy, easier and safer for elderly citizens.

In a letter to Joseph Kelly, general manager of the MBTA, Councillor Kelly noted that the alteration would not inconvenience present patrons.

Yet Brett disagrees. He, too, wrote a letter to Joseph Kelly. He said that the change in route "would cause hardship and inconvenience to a number of MBTA patrons along the present route."

Councillor Kelly, however, noted that the area losing service - West Squantum St. from Farrington St. to Hancock St. - has only three or four residences, all within 30 to 40 yards of the West Squantum St. and Hancock St. intersection, where the bus would resume its normal route. He said:

"In actuality, the proposed change will bring service closer to the residential area surrounding these businesses."

Speaking of the change, Brett said, "There are other ways that bus service can be provided to that area without depriving many other citizens of their present service."

Robert Collins Leaves NQHS To Become Scituate H.S. Principal

Robert Collins of 77 Cushing Rd., Cohasset will step down as assistant principal of North Quincy High School to accept the principalship at Scituate High School.

Dr. Lawrence Crendon, superintendent of Quincy Public Schools, praised Collins as "one of the finest educators in service in the Quincy Public School System at the present time." Dr. Crendon continued:

"Scituate's gain is our loss. He's an extraordinarily fine man and educator."

Collins has been assistant principal at North Quincy for two years, one as acting assistant, a second as the appointed assistant. He was assistant co-ordinator of the Language Arts and Social Studies for two years.

Collins also served an internship with Dr. Crendon while working towards another degree.

Collins, the father of four children, has also taught social studies in the classroom.

Harrington Would Like To See State Street South 'Job Center'

City Councillor Dennis E. Harrington hopes to see State Street South "provide a variety of job opportunities oriented to Quincy and South Shore residents."

In a letter recently sent to Jack Benson Jr., president of SSB Realty, Inc., Boston, Harrington emphasized the development of mutual goals for the complex through direct input by the Quincy Planning Department. Harrington said:

"The Planning Department is in the unique position of having knowledge of the needs of our city and the ability to structure plans which conform to the desires of local residents."

Harrington conceives of the area as "a job center of good, long-term, stable firms," specifically excluding firms whose future "depends upon the next windfall of federal funds or contracts."

He said that high rise residential development in the area "should be de-emphasized if not eliminated."

The Ward 6 councillor said he wants the area to be "an integral part of the community" not "an independent vacuum apart from our community."

"I have read with great interest of the proposed changes in the master plan for development at State Street South. The entire area is one of great importance for Quincy's future and therefor deserves our close and careful attention."

"Future growth at State Street can and should be a great asset to Quincy's future, but if poorly conceived, it surely will be a liability to our City."

"In my opinion, there should be mutual agreement as to the future goals for the entire complex. This agreement, it appears, can be best reached by the direct input of the Quincy Planning Department during preliminary formation of the master plan."

"The Planning Department is in the unique position of having knowledge of the needs of our City and the ability to structure plans which conform to the desires of local residents."

"For example, in Quincy today the unemployment rate is approximately 10.5%. In an economy which has traditionally relied upon few major employers, diversity is an important goal of our local economy. Thus, I would wish to see State Street South grow in a way to provide a variety of job opportunities oriented to Quincy and South Shore residents."

"I believe the area should be primarily dedicated to a 'job center' of good, long term, stable firms; specifically excluding those firms whose future depends upon the next windfall of federal funds or contracts."

"I further feel that high rise residential development in the area should be de-emphasized, if not eliminated entirely, but that careful thought must be given to making State Street South an integral part of the community. The area should not generate in an independent vacuum apart from our community, rather State Street must be a 'participating segment of the City of Quincy.'"

Harrington added: "We must all work to solve community problems, such as unemployment, traffic and a good physical design. I am sure that Quincy officials and citizens are ready to work with State Street officials for the future."

Tierney Speaks Out At Wollaston House Party

Democratic Congressional candidate Joseph M. Tierney met with a group of 60 Quincy residents at a house party held at 51 Berlin St., Wollaston, home of John Tierney, brother of the candidate.

Tierney reviewed the common problems of the district, focusing on issues of particular importance to Quincy such as unemployment, the nation's highest cost of living and the flight of industry.

Tierney said: "What the district needs is a Congressman who does not isolate himself from the people and the problems at home."

The plight of the shipyard and forced busing were two problems greatly concerning most people meeting with Tierney.

The Hyde Park candidate is an opponent of forced busing.

In a visit to The Quincy Sun, the 33-year-old Democrat also spoke in favor of tax reform. "People in the middle income bracket haven't received relief in years," Tierney said.

He also advocated the opening of Congressional hearings to the public. "Congress has to...let the sun shine in," he said.

A graduate of Boston State College, where he majored in English, and a graduate of Suffolk Law School, Tierney taught English on the secondary level for two years. He has served on the Boston City Council for two terms, describing his role as "active in problem-solving."

Tierney criticized Congressman James A. Burke for what he called his "silence on the issue of impeachment."

"It was a matter of conscience...and I was shocked when he didn't take a stand," Tierney said.

Tierney said he would not make promises he could not keep. But he did pledge "to represent the people, not big business, and not special interests."

Brett Seeks Traffic Lights At Beach, Fenno Sts.

Rep. Joseph Brett has requested the addition of two or three traffic lights at the intersections of Beach St. and Fenno St., Wollaston, "to make entry onto Quincy Shore Drive easier and safer for motorists."

In a letter addressed to MDC Commissioner John Sears, Brett noted that at present, stop and go traffic lights are located at East Squantum St. and at Furnace Brook Parkway - streets which are two or three miles apart.

Although Brett admitted that there is "no easy solution to the problem," he expressed hope that "some experts in the field of traffic control can work out a plan" to make entry onto Quincy Shore Drive safer.

Survival, Inc. Has New Administration Office

Survival Inc., the youth and drug program, has moved to a new administration office at 725 Southern Artery, Quincy.

Robert Hassey, executive director, said the new office will serve to coordinate the various programs of Survival. Besides responsibility for program design and staff development, other functions of the new office will eventually include evaluation of prospective program participants, maintaining financial accounting system and payroll, preparation of funding proposals, community relations and education, development of clinical programs for treatment, and provision for outside consultation and training when needed.

The move represents a big step for the agency which started out four and a half years ago as a strict rehabilitation program serving Quincy. It has expanded to a broader youth service type organization dealing with many problems and covering the entire South Shore.

Despite government cutbacks on social programs on all levels, the program has reached a budget of over $200,000 and is servicing 300-400 people per week through its in-patient service at the Joseph H. Whitman House, family and individual counseling at the Counseling Center, Court and Prison services, and its 24 hour Crisis Line.

The hours for the office are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The telephone number is 773-5704.

Library Receives $6,000 For 'Imagine That' Project

Warren E. Watson, director of the Thomas Crane Public Library, announces the central children's department has received a $6,000 federal LSCA, Title I grant for a unique children's services project for homebound children from the pre-school years through age 12.

The project will be operative at the first of the year. Project IT [Imagine That] will supply paperback books, games, filmstrips and cassettes to parents or agencies caring for homebound children. Filmstrip projectors and cassette players will also be supplied with the materials.

The materials in the collection are entertaining and creative—just what's needed when a child is at home with the measles, recovering from an operation, or confined because of a long-term illness.

When the winter cold and flu season arrives Project IT will be ready for use. All parents or an agency have to do is phone the central children's department, request materials for their children, then drive by the library later that day to pick up their packet of materials.

Imagine that!

The airman, who was trained in security and law enforcement, is being assigned to Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C., for duty with a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

On The Labor Scene

Cathy Bennett Receives $1,000 Bricklayers Scholarship

Quincy High School graduate Cathy Bennett of 21 Chickatabot Rd., Merrymount, is this year's winner of the annual John F. Tracy Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers $1,000 Scholarship Award.

Miss Bennett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Bennett, entered state-wide competition for the scholarship, vying with approximately 60 other students.

To win the scholarship, Cathy took a two-part test. The first section contained 20 objective questions on all phases of labor. The second section called for an essay on "a comprehensive labor program for the 1980's."

Cathy's winning suggestions for the future included a shorter work-week and a higher degree of cooperation between labor and management. Her essay was chosen by a six-member panel of judges. They were Fr. Mortimer Gavin of Boston's Catholic Labor Guild; Joseph Sullivan of Quincy, president of Mass. Labor Council, AFL-CIO; Joseph P. O'Donnell, executive director of Trade Union Program at Harvard University; John P. Regan, attorney and former Boston School Committee chairman; Franklin Murphy, regional director of AFL-CIO and Frank Nolan, president of Mass. Federation of Teachers.

Cathy graduated with distinction from Quincy High School where she was an all-around athlete. She was a member of the Girls' varsity basketball team, captaining the squad during her junior and senior years. In her sophomore year, she ran for the track team and in her junior year played varsity tennis.

Cathy is also the winner of the high school's Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow Award. She received an honorable mention in the state competition.

Cathy was also a member of National Honor Society.

In the fall, she will attend McGill University in Montreal, majoring in Biology. She plans a career in veterinarian medicine.

Joanne Tribble Receives William Curtin Scholarship

The Norfolk County Labor Council, AFL-CIO, announces that Miss Joanne M. Tribble, a June graduate of Quincy High School, is the recipient of its annual William Curtin Memorial Scholarship award.

Earlier this year, Joanne, a National Honor Society member, received a four-year renewal scholarship from Cornell University, where she plans to matriculate in the fall. Her major field will be oceanography.

Joseph Sullivan Labor Chairman For United Way

Joseph A. Sullivan, of Quincy, president of the Massachusetts State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, is serving as labor participation chairman in the 1974 United Way of Massachusetts Bay campaign, according to William C. Mercer, UW campaign chairman and president of New England Telephone.

Sullivan is reaffirming the strong support which organized labor has traditionally given the United Way.

Sullivan, past chairman of the South Shore Committee on Alcoholism, has served the United Way in previous campaigns. He is a member of the board of directors of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay and attended Boston College.

Paul Christian Coast Guard Graduate

Coast Guard Fireman Apprentice Paul D. Christian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Christian of 52 Narragansett Road, Merrymount, graduated from recruit training at the Coast Guard Training Center, Cape May, N.J.

During the 10 weeks of basic training, he received instruction in seamanship, damage control, close order drill, first aid, marksmanship, Coast Guard history and military regulations.

He will now go on to a formal school for his job specialty, or to on-the-job training aboard a cutter or at a Coast Guard station.

Quincy Heritage, Wednesday, began exploring the remains of the end of the first commercial railway in America to see if the Bunker Hill Wharf there can be restored into a historical attraction for tourists.

Bunker Hill Wharf, located on Neponset River at Gulliver's Creek, off the westerly side of Granite Ave., was the end point of Quincy's Granite Railway built in 1826. It was along that railway that the Quincy granite was shipped to Bunker Hill Turn on lights while away and use an electric timer.

Be suspicious of unknown delivery men and salesmen. Beware of a package that is delivered you do not expect. Demand proper identification from unknown persons.

Be suspicious of broken or open windows; persons loitering about the neighborhood either on foot or in a car; and of the sound of breaking glass or shattering wood.

Be suspicious of strangers carrying appliances, household goods, or luggage from a neighbor's home. Get the registration number of the car and a good description of the person.

Be wary of wrong number telephone calls which are often made to determine whether anyone is at home. Ask questions of the caller and inform other members of the family about the call.

Some tips on safeguarding homes include, according to police:

If the bolt on the door extends $3/4$ of an inch it is fairly safe unless the door frame is flimsy. However if the bolt extends a full inch it is a good locking mechanism. Residents can depend on the lock as protection if they remember to throw the deadbolt with their key when they leave their home.

Window catches are not a cure-all as a glass cutter can be used to remove a small piece of glass and allow the catch to be freed. Additional devices can be obtained in hardware stores to protect windows on the ground floor and those facing a fire escape from being opened.

Wharf and from there to Charlestown to build the Bunker Hill Monument.

A party of five was scheduled to leave Boston Harbor Marina Wednesday afternoon aboard the Quincy police boat to examine close-up the condition of the historic site. The party included Quincy Heritage Director Rev. John R. Graham, assistant Bruce McLain, Mayor Walter J. Hannon, Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington, and Heritage general chairman Lawrence Creedon.

Rev. Graham said that there is a "good possibility" the Bunker Hill Wharf could be restored to approximate its original state. He intends to seek grants that would enable Quincy Heritage to make the site a tourist attraction.

Rev. Graham noted that the southeast expressway virtually passes over the Bunker Hill Wharf and it might be possible to create an expressway overlook there that would attract many people and draw them into Quincy proper to visit its other historic sites.

United First Parish Church Fall Season Starts Sept. 8

The first service of the fall at United First Parish Church [Unitarian] will be Sunday, Sept. 8 at 10:45 a.m.

The choir will rehearse at 9:30 a.m. and child care will be provided.

The church office will be closed Labor Day, Sept. 2. The pulpit committee has been formed and includes William Edwards, chairman; Henry Kretz, recording secretary; Al Pearson, Olga Gellatly; Anne Sargent, Jim Pickel; Lillian Holmes and Carl Ketrot, alternate.

William Flavin, church historian, has been asked to form a group interested in giving tours of the historic church building. He is asking those interested in assisting him to contact him as soon as possible.

Coming events include meetings of the Board of Governors on Tuesday, Sept. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the parish hall. The Sanity Sisters are having their first meeting Wednesday, Sept. 11 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. This is a discussion and service group of young women with baby sitting provided.

The Third Friday Group will hold the opening meeting of the fall Friday, Sept. 20, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs.

Douglas Gladstone, 80 Haviland St. Further information those interested may call 471-0504.

The Church's Bicentennial Committee hopes to have the church staffed with tour guides during the official celebration from April 1975 through November 1976. Dorothy Wright, is chairman of the sub-committee on Guides and Information.

Church secretary, Linda Roberts, will be on vacation from Aug. 26 - 30. Volunteers to fill in at anytime should call the church office at 773-1290.

MURA Evaluates Medical Services

A crescendo of activity is taking place in hospitals throughout the country in response to the establishment of the Massachusetts Utilization Review Association [MURA].

Utilization review is defined as "evaluation of the efficient use of professional medical care, services, procedures and facilities."

Mrs. B. Magness, R.N., of 595 Adams St., Quincy, is the Nurse Coordinator at Quincy City Hospital of the Utilization Review Department. She has worked at the hospital for 14 years.

In part, MURA is a response to growing consumer interest in understanding the reasons for increased costs of medical care. More directly, the program is the result of an increase in the complexity of requirements set forth by organizations and programs such as HEW, Medicare, Medicaid, the Mass. Department of Public Health, Blue Cross and the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. Due to the individuality of each hospital, these regulations are met in a variety of ways.

The ultimate plan of MURA is to organize a State Executive Committee consisting of representatives from each of the five Professional Standards Review Organization [PSRO] in Massachusetts. Area groups would coordinate utilization groups at the PSRO area level.

The following were named officers and members of the State Executive Committee for 1974: Mary Simeone, Lawrence Memorial Hospital, director; M. J. Ekstrand, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, vice-chairman; Kitty Phelps, University Hospital, secretary; and Mary Phalen, Beth Israel Hospital, treasurer.

Maureen Higgins won the girls 16 and under singles with a 6-2, 6-1 win over Cindy Driscoll. This pair combined to defeat Maureen O'Malley and Chris Bonoli, 10-3, for the doubles title.

The tournament directors were Richard Murray, Bill Egan, Phil Steele, Paul O'Malley and Bob Grazer. The tourney was climaxed by the annual picnic with Ed Courts doing all the cooking. The directors thank PJ's Variety Store for its contributions.

Koch Club Softball Game Tonight

The Koch Club Young Men's Softball Team will play the Koch Club Alumni tonight [Thursday] at 6 p.m. at Cavanagh Stadium, Birch St., North Quincy.

Dick Koch Jr. and Joe Koch will co-captain the young men's team, while Dick Koch Sr. will manage the Alumni squad.

It was 27 years ago, in 1948 that the Koch Club was founded at Cavanagh Stadium in North Quincy, with two softball teams formed to participate every Saturday and Sunday afternoon, with the emphasis on enjoyment for the 30 participants. The young men's squad will include several second generation Koch Club members.

Although the Koch Club was started with softball its activities quickly expanded to include basketball, baseball, bowling, social, and charitable activities.

The Koch Club Youth Activities started in 1951 with 44 boys, now includes both boys and girls, with 50,000 participants in youth programs and 10,000 in adult activities.

Steve Mele, Ged Phelan, Ken Furfari, Kenny Marsters, Jamie Doherty, John Stevens, Bob Sullivan, Bob McKay, Jimmy Hurley, John Downy and Mike Cullen.

Sarruda, Myer Seek Penn Starting Posts

Two former North Quincy High stars, Jim Sarruda and John Meyer, are among the top candidates for starting positions on the U. of Pennsylvania football team which opens pre-season camp Aug. 30.

Sarruda, a senior in his third year with the varsity, heads the list of candidates to replace last year's linebacking trio, all three of whom graduated. The ability of Sarruda and his teammates to fill these gaps at linebacker may prove decisive in Penn's bid for the Ivy League title this fall.

When Sarruda was tri-captain at North, Meyer played with him while a junior. Now a Penn junior, Meyer seeks to become a regular offensive tackle on a line that helped last fall's squad rewrite the record book.

With Adolph Bellizeare, former Braintree High standout and the greatest rusher in Penn history, exploding out of the backfield, the 1973 team set new highs for first downs, total offense, pass completions and passing yardage.

Already, in only two varsity seasons, Bellizeare has broken the school career rushing record with 1,595 yards, returned 19 punts for 302 yards, 26 kickoffs for 485 yards and caught 31 passes for 341 yards.

Averaging 166.6 yards a game, he ranked as the third best all-purpose runner in the nation and finished seventh in that category as a sophomore. With 60 points to his credit last year, Bellizeare, a Penn senior, was the leading Ivy League scorer.

●Mite House Reds, Greens Remain Tied For Top Spot

The Reds and Greens remained in a first place tie in the Mite House League with wins during the past week, giving each a 6-2-1 record.

The Reds blanked the Blues, 6-0, with Chris Hurley scoring five goals. Jim Crossman had the other and Dave Edgen and Chris Deady had assists.

The Greens nipped the Yellows, 5-4, with Mark McManus having two goals, Steve White, John O'Connor and Bobby McCabe one each for the Greens, while Bobby Forman and Mark Walsh had assists. Sean Loughman had the hat trick and Brian Chase the other goal for the Yellows.

The Orange team and Whites played to a 5-5 tie. Danny Kelly had the hat trick for the Oranges and Pete Quinn and Sean Loughman had the other goals. Quinn, Kelly and Jeff Murphy had two assists apiece. For the Whites Marty Tolson had two goals, Mark Chambers, Chris Hurley and Bud Marnell one each. Brian Chase had two assists, Hurley, Chambers and Chris Murray one apiece.

●Pee Wee House Reds Tie Blues, 4-4 Yellow, Orange Win

The league-leading Blues were held to a 4-4 tie by the Reds in the Pee Wee House League.

The Blues still have a comfortable lead with an 8-1-1 record. Mark Boussy, Mark Veasy, Kevin Chase and Tommy Mullen scored for the Blues with Mullen adding two assists and Rich McCarthy, Kevin Carney and Boussy having one each.

For the Reds Robbie Craig had two goals, Eddie O'Gara and Mike Marshall one each with Gerry Redmond having two assists, Craig, Robbie Zanardelli and Ed Doherty one apiece.

The Yellows defeated the Greens, 6-3, with Tony Chiochio exploding for five goals and Steve Walsh having the other. Mike Ferreira had two assists and Tommy Mullen one. For the Greens Paul McGrath had two goals and Kevin McCormick one. Paul McConville and Chuckie Marshall had assists.

The Orange team walloped the Whites, 6-0, with Gene Kornse, Danny Flynn, Scott Richardson, Bobby Palermo, Sean Dennis and Joey Rathgeb scoring and Brian Sullivan having two assists. Rathgeb, Richardson, Palermo and John Baylis one each.

Quincy Youth Arena Thanked For Handicapped Program Help

The Quincy Youth Arena has offered the use of its rink each week to a group of severely handicapped youngsters who meet during the summer at Snug Harbor School under the direction of William Jacques.

In a letter to Jack Powers, manager of the Youth Arena, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon wrote, "I am writing to convey our appreciation to you for making it possible for several of our severely handicapped children to skate at the arena each week.

"Mr. Jacques has indicated that the children look forward to their skating session and that this experience has helped them with their motor development and coordination. Thank you very much for your continuing interest and support."

"It is a pleasure for us to give time to these children at our rink," Powers said. "It is a great source of satisfaction for us to see the interest shown by the children and to see how they have improved so much since they began skating. I'm very glad we can be of help."

Corayer, Serafini FB Low Gross Winners

In the weekly mixed Scotch foursome at Furnace Brook Golf Club, Marie Corayer and Mario Serafini shot low gross of 41.

•Senior League Quincy Clovers In Title Playoffs

The Quincy Clovers walloped the Walpole Chiefs, 8-4, last week to nail down third place and a playoff berth in the Quincy Youth Arena Summer Senior Hockey League.

The playoffs got underway last night [Wednesday] with the first place Boston Budmen playing fourth place Newman Club and Quincy facing second place Atlantic Flames.

Next Wednesday night the championship game will be played at 9 o'clock and the consolation between last night's losers at 6:30.

In last week's regular season finales Lee Royer put Walpole ahead of Quincy with a goal at 4:12 of the first period but the Clovers rebounded with three. Mike Farina scored at 7:24 with Rich Fowkes assisting, Bob Fowkes scored at 7:43 with Frank Guest assisting and Brian Nevins scoring at 14:00 with an assist for Farina.

In the second period Mike Farina made it 4-1 Quincy at 3:40 with Nevins and Dennis O'Connell assisting, John Cunniff scored at 5:10 with assists for Guest and P. J. Flaherty, Tim Morrill scored at 6:30 with assists for Gene Farina and O'Connell and Rich Fowkes made it 7-1 at 11:48 with Gene Farina and Joe Thunderdale having assists.

Walpole started fast in the final period with two goals but Morrill scored Quincy's final goal at 16:11 with Paul Golden assisting. Walpole added its final goal in the last minute and a half.

In other results the powerful Budmen wound up with a 8-2 romp over the Whitman Cats and the Flames topped the Newman Club, 5-2.

FINAL STANDINGS

•Executive League Reds Score 4 In Final To Win

The Reds scored four goals in the last period to top the Blues, 6-2, in the Quincy Summer Executive Hockey League.

Jack McDonald put the Reds ahead in the second period with assists for Fran Moriarty and Smokey Adams and Jack Hurley made it 2-0 with Jim Daley and Joe Chase assisting.

In the final period Gary DeCoste scored for the Blues with an assist for Ed O'Riordan, but the Reds bounced back with two, the first by Hurley with Walt McLean and Buckie Zanardelli assisting and the second by Zanardelli with Hurley and Daley having assists.

Dave Hickey scored the Blues' second goal with an assist for Wayne Copper and Zanardelli scored twice to complete the hat trick. Chase and Daley assisted on his second goal and Hurley and McLean on the third.

The Greens edged the Golds,

6-5, just holding off the losers, who scored three times in the final period. Bob Hayes had two Green goals and Bob Kane, Frank Furey, Fran Whalen and Tom Boussy one each. Whalen had three assists, Hayes two, Bibby Lewis, Furey and Boussy one each. For the Golds Dave Towle had two goals, Gene Irwin, Gary DeCoste and Jack Hurley one apiece. Towle, DeCoste, Bob Drury, Hurley and Irwin had assists.

•Midget House Greens Upset Whites, 7-4

Laracy and Carmody each had one.

Jim Connors had two White goals and Mark Paolucci and Dan Maurano one each. Paolucci had three assists and Connors and Dave Peters one apiece.

The Orange team breezed past the Reds, 6-1, with Marc Walsh having two goals, Tom Park, Jack Powers, Paul Flanders and Bill Morrison one each. Jimmy Connolly had two assists, Morrison, Walsh, Jim Conostas and Dennis Bertoni. Don Carl scored for the Reds with John Picard and Frank Shea having assists.

•Squirt House Reds Take 7th, Greens Win 6th

The Red team kept its hold on first place in the Squirt House League with a 4-2 win over the Blues, giving the Reds a 7-2-1 record.

The Greens stayed right behind with a 6-3-1 mark by topping the Yellows, 8-3. Ricky Miller and Kevin White each had two goals for the Greens and Billy Gray, Kevin Chase, Mike Marshall and Tommy Murphy one each. Chase had six assists, Murphy three, Marshall two and Joey Engrassia one. For the Yellows Mike Cullen had two goals and Denis Furtado one with Furtado also having an assist.

The White defeated the Orange, 4-1, with Brian Mock scoring twice, Bill Bradley and John O'Connell once each. Mike O'Hare had two assists, Bobby Ready, Mock, Keith Blaney and Paul McCabe one each. Mark Tenney scored for Orange and Rich Durham had an assist.

Koch Club Women Open Season Sept. 5

The Koch Club Women's Bowling League will begin its 20th season, Thursday Sept. 5, at 8:30 p.m. at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys, Broad St., Quincy.

Women are welcome to join. There are a few openings. However, every woman joining will bowl as a regular or spare. The league will bowl the first two weeks for averages, and the third week teams will be assembled.

Simmy Koch, founder of the league in 1955 and first president will again preside.

Anne Moody is secretary and Linda Koch treasurer.

O'Brien Club In Boston Playoffs

The O'Brien Club basketball team of Quincy, which plays virtually year-round, is now involved in the playoffs of the Boston Neighborhood League Open Division.

Tuesday night it was to meet an old rival, The Boston Bruins, regular season champions, in the semifinals.

The O'Brien Club, which last winter was co-champion of the Cranberry League and which won the Quincy Y Spring League crown, finished in a three-way second place tie in the Boston Neighborhood League.

Last week in the playoff quarterfinals the Quincy team defeated Lena Park, one of the teams tied for second place, 84-73.

Bob McNamara, 6-7 center, scored 31 points and Gary Bowen, 6-9 forward, scored 15. Jim Nelson contributed 13. Among the players for Lena Park was Guard Artie Williams of the Boston Celtics.

The number of children participating in the Quincy Recreation Department's wide variety of programs continues to rise each week.

There is nothing more soothing to the soul than the vibrant sounds of youthful voices. Music specialist Karen Walsh reports that last week there were hundreds of youngsters across the city filling the air with melodious notes. Some of the children were Quarterdeck's Terry Glynn, Robin Walsh and Jenny Mehan, Billy Coose, Tracy Daley and Chris Constat of Shea Rink and Wollaston's Kenney Mann and Bobby Bolster.

Clad in Lincoln green and recreation blue is archery specialist Tim Flynn. Timmy says his cohorts around the playgrounds are readying themselves for that final city shootout. Looking forward to the competition are Hazel Conroy and Bob Williams of Snug Harbor, Whitwell's Tony Quintiliani, Jimmy Principato of Pond Street and Squantum's Bill Ennis.

To become a good golfer it takes years of practice, ask Lee Trevino. Well, up at Furnace Brook Golf Course with the helpful instruction of specialist Don Smith, many youngsters are putting in long hours of practice to hopefully perfect their game. Some of the children are Alyson Fuller and Sue Ayles of Forbes Hill, Fore River's Tommy McBride, Ronny Cross and Paul Arthur and Tim Bell, Joe Mulken and Paula Anderson of Myles Standish.

On the beaches it was a little brisk to say the least. This inconvenience though, hasn't in any way affected the attendance of the Recreation Department's swim program, reports swimming supervisor Julie Doherty. A few of the enthusiastic participants have been Orchard Beach's Sheila Beck, Maureen Clasby and Gary Gougian, Carol Mavor and Lynne Duffet of Mound Street Beach and Perry Beach's Sue Welliver and Patty Morrel.

Arts and crafts specialists Gina Kelly and Darlene D'Olympio instructed the children last week in the use of that almost forgotten instrument the sewing needle. The kids made everything from pillows to teddy bears. Some of the best creations were done by Perkin's Dave Raftery, Terry Hack and Lisa Cody, and Mary Riseman, Brigitte Morrel and Sue Boudreau of LaBrecque.

It seems that the most commonly played sport during the summer is tennis not baseball. At least that is the opinion of tennis specialist Kevin McGuinly as he cited the overwhelming attendance figures of the tennis program this year. Just a few of these tennis aspirants around the city are O'Rourke's Lois Malvesti, Janet Sines of LaBrecque, Maureen and Diane Graham of Squantum and Welcome Young's Christine Nagel.

There is nothing more exhilarating to the senses than the fresh scents of a woodland grove or a babbling brook. There are hundreds of children who agree with me on this statement, as they got a chance to feel the warmth and life of Mother Nature, when nature specialists Paula Weidmann and Mike Parros took them to the Arnold Arboretum. Enjoying the trip were Elm Street's Janet Sandonato, Mike Sandonato, Karen Dinardo, Robbie Galgon, Alyson Fay and Peggy Thorely.

Quincy Bay Race Week was recently completed and no doubt a lot of the racers were products of the Recreation Department's boating and sailing program. Some of the children enrolled now in the program with future hopes of racing in Quincy Bay Race Week are Pam Pettiti, Jean McCormick, John Shea, Ellen Deady, Bill Norton, Danny Kenney, Linda Kelleher and Alan Dyer.

Ceramics specialists Andrea Quinn and Beth Hanratty report that more and more children are coming to the Quincy School to take part in the popular ceramics program. Some of the best creations last week were done by Tracy Nelson, Debbie Cavanaugh, Kenny Runge, Joan Chino, Paula Murphy and Joanne Sarrea.

There was exciting, tense, bone-chilling sports action in all divisions in the first round of the playoffs. In what was probably the top pitching duel of the season, Wollaston's Billy Deitsch and Snug Harbor's Gordan Spencer matched wits for six masterful innings. Into an extra stanza the game went with Wollaston at bat in the top of the seventh. Thus far Spencer had baffled the Wollastonians, but suddenly Gorden's magic disappeared. His fastball had lost its zing and the Wollastonians finally got his number. Tim Foley led off with a sharp single followed by back to back homers by Bobby Flynn and Bobby Bolster.

In the bottom of the seventh Deitsch went to the mound with some new enthusiasm bolstered by a three run lead. He proceeded to strike out the side. Wollaston had won a thriller and Snug Harbor had lost a heartbreaker.

Besides the brilliant pitching of Deitsch and Spencer, the game was filled with some outstanding defensive play particularly by the opposing left fielders Steve Spencer and Bob Hatfield. Both made two amazing circus catches. So, its on to the semifinals for Wollaston and its back home for a disappointed Snug Harbor squad. It seems to me that they deserved a better fate.

In a real barnburner, Forbes Hill edged Squantum 39-38 in senior basketball. It was a tough hardnosed affair with the lead changing hands continuously throughout the game. With 35 seconds left Forbes Hill's Scott Roberts hit a jumper to put the Hilltoppers one up. After a missed Squantum shot Forbes Hill's Paul Kelleher had a one and one situation at the line and a chance to put the game on ice. He missed and the rebound was knocked out of bounds. It was Squantum's ball with seven seconds left. Whitey McGuigan was set to throw the ball in. A stiff Hilltopper defense forced him to chance a long pass. It was intercepted by Mike Brae and it was on to the semifinals for Forbes Hill.

For the Hilltoppers the big gun was center Jay Nelson, who banged in 20 points and who was simply immense on the boards. On the other side of the ledger Squantum's sick guard Rich Mahoney topped Squantum scorers with 11 points.

●Quincy Softball Sabina's Takes 2 To Lead National League West

Sabina's won two games during the past week to take over first place in the National League West in the Quincy Softball League.

Sabina's smothered Jonathan's, 23-5, with George McCall going five for five, Steve Verenis having four hits, Larry Baker driving in four runs and Dan Marini and Scott Healey hitting home runs. Jack Morrison had two hits for the losers.

Sabina's solidified its hold on first place by topping runnerup Wells Grille, 8-3, with Ted Stevenson leading the way with three hits. Defensively McCall made a great catch of a Gary McGrath belt, crashing into the left field fence at Rotary Field.

●Junior Baseball National All-Stars Win 2 In Row

The Quincy Junior Baseball League's National League All-Stars, managed by Jim Walsh of Kiwanis and George Richards of VFV, defeated the American League stars, managed by Bart O'Leary of Sears, in two straight games.

In the first game the Nationals, trailing, 6-0, rebounded to wallop the Americans, 20-9. Hitting stars for the Nationals were Bob Biagini, Billy Burt and Billy O'Malley with doubles, Paul O'Toole and Gordon Spencer with home runs and Danny Whyte and Chuckie Sullivan with two singles each. Billy O'Connell was the winning pitcher. For the Americans Phil Caggiano and Jim Travers had two hits each.

The Nationals swept the series with a 7-6 squeaker. Biagini led the game off with a home run and O'Toole hit a three-run homer for the Nationals. Joe Crifo doubled and scored the winning run in the fifth inning. Biagini and O'Toole also had singles. Spencer was the winning pitcher. Billy Deitsch had a homer and two singles for the Americans.

Quincy All-Stars Eliminated At NB

After eliminating three of the tournament favorites the first week, the Quincy Junior Baseball League All-Stars were eliminated in the quarterfinals of the state tourney at New Bedford.

Quincy finished with a 4-2 record in the double elimination tourney.

Quincy bowed to Dartmouth, 5-2, despite strong pitching performances by Billy Deitsch and Paul O'Toole.

Bob Biagini had a triple and single and scored both runs and O'Toole drove in a run with a double. Biagini also made two outstanding plays in centerfield.

Other Quincy hitters were Steve Picot, Deitsch and Billy O'Connell.

Quincy led, 2-1, going into the sixth when Dartmouth exploded for four runs on four hits.

This is the first year Quincy has entered this annual tournament and Coaches George Roberts, Jack Donovan and Charlie Jaehng were "pretty proud" of the fine performances of the boys.

Mike O'Connor, president of Quincy Junior League Baseball, was instrumental in entering the Quincy team. A tryout was held for each boy recommended by his coach and after careful elimination, the 15 were picked from a group of 45.

Assisting the coaches in the tournament were Sal Salvatore, coach of Sal's All-Stars, who was a base coach and Art Lowell, who scored all the games.

●Boating Safety Bow Riding Is A Killer

By MARK BOURBEAU
Coast Guard Journalist

The scene: A family out for a happy day's voyage on their cabin cruiser. As they course through the water, the three children climb up on the bow, where the sea spray dashes over them.

It's exciting to sit up there, legs dangling, with the whole, endless ocean rushing to meet them. They laugh, and shout to their mother behind the wheel, and their father laying out lunch on the stern. Hot dogs and watermelon! A whole cooler full of lemonade! What a wonderful day!

For years grief-stricken parents asked themselves countless times the unanswerable question, "Why?" To them, the "How" never mattered. Whether it was a wave a little larger than the rest, or a slip caused by childish exuberance, it didn't matter to them.

The result was still the same. Their eight year old son had fallen right beneath the bows of their boat, and although the mother had cut the engine instantly, somewhere beneath that boat he'd died.

BOW RIDING. Thousands of boaters each year engage in this nautical Russian roulette. To adults who do it it's exciting, and if the danger is apparent to any of them, well, a little danger makes it more exciting, doesn't it? Those people are fools.

Far worse, most bow riders are children. They're innocent. They don't know any better. But the parents who casually watch their children bow ride are criminally negligent.

Why is bow riding so dangerous? First, the most stable small boat in the world is still as impotent as a cork to resist the ever changing action of wind and wave. An unexpected jar, a sudden bounce can come from any quarter, at any time.

Secondly, most small boats have no railings or handgrips to hang onto on the bow. Third, if a bow rider does fall overboard, he or she is in the worst possible position, directly beneath several tons of moving boat, right in the way of the thrashing screw. Even if the boat's operator does see the person go over, it would take a miracle for him or her to be able to stop or turn the boat away in time.

Besides being deadly and foolhardy [as if that isn't enough], bow riding can be very costly financially, too. According to Commander Howard M. Violette, Chief of the Boating Safety Division of the First Coast Guard District, if the Coast Guard catches an operator permitting bow riding, the operator will be fined up to $500. And with the Coast Guard's Boating Safety Detachments patrolling all over the New England coast, there's a very good chance of being caught.

Do yourself a favor. Don't permit bow riding on your boat. Be insistent. Your friends and family might not thank you, but at least they'll probably return from your cruise alive and in one piece, and you won't have your conscience ruining your sleep. And you won't have to face a $500 fine.

Now, go have a safe and happy summer. Safe Boating is No Accident.

McDermott Has Shot At Harvard Varsity

Sophomore Bob McDermott of Quincy is among a group of 103 Harvard football players invited to the Crimson's 1974 pre-season camp starting Sept. 1 in Cambridge.

McDermott, a tight end, started at that position with the 4-2 freshmen in 1973 and is expected to challenge for a varsity berth this fall. He shared the team lead in catches on the freshman team with a total of 12 for 188 yards, an impressive 15.7 yards per reception.

Coach Joe Restic, who guided Harvard to what many considered a surprising 7-2 mark last season, feels his squad will be hard pressed to equal that record this fall.

"We lost a large group of quality players through graduation," Restic notes, "especially on defense. If we can come up with replacements and maintain the outstanding attitude displayed last season, however, then we're going to be in every football game."

McDermott, a graduate of Quincy High School

McDonald Stresses Qualifications

George McDonald, Norfolk County Commissioner and candidate for sheriff of Norfolk County, recently addressed 275 volunteers attending an organizational meeting of the committee to elect him sheriff. During the meeting at the Hollow Restaurant, Quincy, McDonald stressed two factors in evaluating a candidate's qualifications: the need for proven administrative experience in county government and familiarity with security of the courts and House of Correction. McDonald was elected and re-elected as Quincy City councillor-at-large. In 1968 he was elected commissioner of Norfolk County and re-elected for a four-year term in 1972. As sheriff of Norfolk County, McDonald pledged to do "the same good job" which people have come to expect from him.

Also addressing the meeting were Thomas McDonald, brother of the candidate and Quincy coordinator; John McCarthy, chairman, Randolph Democratic Town Committee; Francis O'Brien, selectman, town of Dedham; John Capavella, Braintree coordinator and William Rennie, Weymouth coordinator. Daniel Duggan and John Lamere were appointed coordinators from Milton.

Williams To Seek Mini-Post Office, Library For Seniors

Atty. Thomas Williams, candidate for state representative from the First Norfolk District says if he is elected he will seek a mini-post office and library facility to be built at or near the senior citizen complexes.

He said that many people who live in the senior citizen's complexes are in need of these facilities because they are unable to travel great distances.

Williams also cited the need to improve and extend the Medicare and Social Security benefits. He said many senior citizens have fixed incomes that are no longer adequate because of inflation and the high cost of living.

He made the remarks in a coffee hour at the apartment of Dorothy Griouard, 1000 Southern Arroyo.

He said that "people who have paid millions of dollars in State and Federal taxes should not be forgotten by the government."

Papile Criticizes Opponents' Statements

A party in support of James P. Papile, candidate for state representative from the First Norfolk District, was held recently at the home of Irving Forman 42 Great Hill Drive, Weymouth.

Papile criticized statements made by two opponents.

"Although it may not be advisable to look over your shoulder toward your political opposition you must when you are continually questioned by some of the voters in the district as to the tactics and statements of opposing candidates," Papile said.

Papile said that the knocking down of commercially abandoned buildings were already arranged for by City Councillor Clifford Marshall as was the installation of a traffic light in Quincy Point.

"These are both city level problems and handled through the City Council not at state level government," Papile said.

Papile said that promises made to increase social security benefits, are national government problems and again not at a state representative level.

"I am particularly appalled at the continual statement in an opponent's advertising and hand-out literature," he said.

"The statement is that he is the only candidate who will be a full-time representative. I have stated in my advertising and literature that I have arranged to leave my full time employment to become a full time state representative. This opponent however continues to use the statement he is the only would-be full time representative," Papile said.

Quincy Man President U.S. Life Income Fund

A former Quincy man has been elected president of the U.S. Life Income Fund, Inc., a $50 million closed end investment company listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

He is Richard J. Chouinard of Great Neck, N.Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chouinard of 1485 Furnace Brook Parkway.

A graduate of Quincy High School, Class of 1950, he is also a cum laude graduate of Northeastern University where he received a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration. He also did postgraduate work at Harvard where he received his Master's degree in Business Administration from the Graduate School of Business Administration.

In New York he has taken part in numerous securities industry seminars. He has served as Thesis Administrator of the American Bankers Association Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers University.

His financial background includes responsible positions with the New England Merchants National Bank of

Francis Daly Undergoes Duty

Navy Seaman Francis Daly, son of Mrs. Hazel O. Daly of 546 Willard St., West Quincy, spent two weeks of active duty with Intermediate Maintenance Support Unit 23Z-1 at the North Boston and the Irving Trust Company of New York.

In June he was elected a vice president and director of the fund and vice president-portfolio manager and a director of its adviser. Prior to that he was vice president of the financial house of Bache and Company where he served as director of Eastern International Sales in the Government Bond Department.

Lincoln-Hancock 4th Graders Present 'Rip Van Winkle'

Snowy-bearded and snoring Rip Van Winkle lived again as Miss Daveilyn Ross directed fourth graders at Lincoln Hancock School in a stage production of Washington Irving's legendary story Rip Van Winkle.

Miss Ross is a junior at Eastern Nazarene College, majoring in Elementary Education.

Some 30 students in Mrs. Silvia Edgar's class and two first-graders comprised the cast.

In fact, a first-grader, Scott Steen, played the leading role of Rip, the old man who flees from his badgering wife Dame Van Winkle [played by Virginia Mann], into the snow-capped Catskills.

Other members of the cast included Dennis Farrel, the supposed "show-stopper" who played Rip's dog Wolf; Tyna Sigley, Rip's daughter; David Rucker, Rip's grandson; John Goodwin, Hendrick Hudson, Gary Perfetuo, orator at town elections; Maureen Flaherty, Jean Dullin, Daniel Mitchell and Scott Wyntunsky as children; Jim Dumanson, Russell Clark, Stephen Alvisey and John Goodman as Rip's cronies; and Tommy Petigrew, Kevin Shamey, David Franklin, John Albert and Stephen Wagers as Hudson's crew.

Also appearing in the play were Lisa Hallisey and Linda Prezioso.

The fourth graders put on two 45-minute productions of the play: one for the students and faculty of the school, another for parents, relatives and guests.

First-grader Colleen Phillips introduced each scene of the three-act play. Miss Deborah Ross, senior at Quincy High School, handled make-up and costuming. Sound effects were provided by radio station WJDA.

Michael Rand Sworn In As Coast Guard Cadet

Michael P. Rand, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Rand of 49 Edison Park, Quincy Point, has been sworn in as a cadet at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn.

Following physical and military training, and a brief training cruise, he will begin the academic year, with studies including nautical science, physics and calculus.

The four-year Academy curriculum leads to a bachelor of science degree and a commission as ensign in the Coast Guard.

Rand is a graduate of Quincy High School.

David Sullivan Navy Recruit Grad

Navy Fireman Apprentice David L. Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Sullivan, of 15 Pequot Rd., Adams Shore has graduated from recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Orlando, Fla.

He received nine weeks of intensive instruction in seamanship, small arms training, fire fighting, close order drill, first aid and Naval history.

He will now report to a formal school for specialty training or to a ship or shore station for on-the-job training.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'You Let It Happen'

Sally Lou seemed very puzzled as she described the relationship with her husband, Arthur. "He makes me feel like a child ... he tells me what I can do and where I can go. He criticizes my cooking ... the way I drive ... the way I talk with people. I just don't like the way he makes me feel. Now ... I'm beginning to drink too much and that's because of the way he treats me."

"But Sally Lou!" I said ... "You're letting all this happen to you. You're letting Arthur get to you ... he's not making you feel like a child ... he's not making you drink ... you decide how you will react to him ... and his criticisms."

"What else can I do?" What Sally Lou was doing with the counselor was what she had done with her husband ... playing "little girl" ... saying "protect me" in essence ... tell me Daddy, what to do. She played this little girl ... dependency role well. She's been practicing it for well over thirty years. She knew how to roll her eyes ... cross her legs ... use soft tones to get what she wanted from men. She had learned this from her father. Her father was a nice ... tender ... weak man whose pride and joy was his little Sally Lou. She could get anything she wanted from her Daddy. The script with men she learned as an innocent little girl she's still following as a big girl. Her problem is that all men are not like her nice, tender, weak Daddy. So when a man doesn't treat her as her daddy treated her, she's lost ... cries foul ... "he's doing these awful things to me."

Of course, Arthur had his problems. He knew better how to treat a dog than he did a woman.

There are many men who think the only way to be male is to throw their weight around. The truth is that they are very insecure emotionally. Power ... clout ... keeping the upper hand ... this is being male to some men. But a woman doesn't have to put up with this sort of subservience. When she does ... she's just LETTING IT HAPPEN TO HER.

How shall she avoid letting these things happen to her? First, she must disengage herself from what she can't tolerate. When a person loves himself/herself enough to protect oneself from emotional onslaughts ... as a father or mother protect their children from outside enemies then they won't let things happen to them which injure. Never mind what Arthur will think if you ignore his criticism. Think of what's good for you. Nobody respects weakness.

Secondly ... instead of reacting as a little child to his attacks ... ACT ADULT. Speak your mind ... "You're not my daddy ... I'm not your child ... I will no longer tolerate your abuse ... nor will I let myself be destroyed by your boorish ways. I'm willing to discuss with you your feelings and wishes and reach adult ... rational agreements ... but no more of this browbeating ... no more of your put-downs."

Sally Lou did just this. She went on and made for herself a program ... got a job ... enrolled in an adult education course. She bought a car so she had independence which every woman needs. She quickly grew ... letting her own good adult emerge. No longer did she just "let it happen to her". The marriage was saved.

If Sally Lou can do it ... you can do it too.

Plans Disclosed For $10-$15 Million Quincy Sq. Office Condominium

Atty. Nathaniel M. Sherman, representing the Bucchini Family Trust, has announced plans to construct a $10 to $15 million seven-story office-condominium building on six parcels of land between Faxon and Saville Ave., in Quincy Sq.

Sherman made the disclosure at a public hearing in City Hall held to discuss the proposed Quincy Center Historic District.

The complex would include space for medical, legal and cultural activity and a two-story parking facility as well.

Although Mayor Walter Hannon has not yet seen the actual plans, he told The Quincy Sun he "would encourage" any project aimed at developing and enhancing Quincy.

In revealing the plans, however, the Bucchini Family Trust opposed the inclusion of the complex in the Quincy Center Historic District for commercial reasons. Sherman said his client wants to guard against the "crass, commercial world." Sherman emphasized that the Bucchini Family Trust is not at all opposed to plans for the Quincy Center Historic District.

Under the plan, Faxon Ave. will be widened to create access to the old Quincy District courthouse and Quincy Junior College. Sherman noted that traffic in this section of the city would "flow freely."

Rev. John R. Graham, director of Quincy Heritage, said the committee would take no stand on the Bucchini opposition but would send the minutes of the meeting to the ordinance committee considering the boundaries of the proposed historic district. The location of the proposed complex falls within the historic district's borders.

Graham told Sherman that in his opinion, the seven-story building would be consonant with the committee's own plans for Quincy. Graham cited Savannah, Ga., as an example where business development actually enhanced the site's surrounding historical sites.

QJC Students Will Write Quincy Bicentennial Histories

Students from Quincy Junior College will participate in writing Quincy's historical past in preparation for the forthcoming bicentennial celebration.

Young people from the college approached Professor James A. Sheets, chairman of the History and Government Department, and a city councillor, inquiring as to how they could become involved in the bicentennial program and at the same time increase their own knowledge and understanding of Quincy's history and institutions.

According to Sheets, in response to their request, the Department has developed a program whereby students can research and write Quincy's past history and at the same time receive credit for it.

Students would be responsible for the collection, organization and analysis of material, as well as the actual writing of manuscripts. They would work with original manuscripts and archives housed in both Quincy and Boston and also work with local historical organizations, city departments, civic groups and other city institutions.

According to Sheets, students would help determine the subject areas to be researched. Interests could focus on two areas: people significant in Quincy's history and, the history and development of local institutions. Topics that might be considered include: John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Josiah Quincy, John Hancock, Colonel Francis Parker, Anne Hutchinson, the evolution of the structures of Quincy government, the history of shipbuilding, iron and granite industries, and the development of Quincy religious institutions.

The monographic histories and biographies when completed will be published as part of the bicentennial program and be made available throughout the public school system, at libraries, public agencies and the Tourist Information Center in Quincy. The individual monographs once printed could also form a modularized textbook that could be utilized in a two semester college level course on the History of Quincy that is projected for 1976.

The History and Government Department believes this new program will increase the student's knowledge and understanding of the City's history and institutions and encourage them to become involved in other Bicentennial activities.

Any individual is qualified to participate and enroll in this program who meets the general requirements for admission to the College. However, the program which begins in September of this year will be limited to 25 students. Those people interested should contact the general college office for additional information.

Bonnie Majors Wins Bermuda Trip As Ms. Kimberley

Bonnie Majors of Boston, a 23-year-old student at Boston State College, was voted Ms. Kimberley 1974 at the first annual contest held at Kimberley's Lounge, Quincy Shore Drive.

The semi-finalists were chosen from Kimberley's audience during the past five weeks.

After a champagne send-off party at Kimberley's, the new Ms. Kimberley will enjoy a weekend in Bermuda, compliments of the management. The trip is being planned by Columbus Travel.

Marsha Mortimer of Abington, first runner-up, will have her own chauffeur and limousine at her service for a weekend, through the courtesy of Presidents Limousine Service. She will also receive a stand up haircut by Salon D'Italia on Newbury St., Boston.

Mayor Calls Him 'Irresponsible'

LaRaia Won't Apologize 'Until Hannon Does'

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia indicates he will not consider an apology demanded by Mayor Walter J. Hannon over the veterans services department furor until he gets an apology from Hannon over the cemetery department investigation.

LaRaia told The Quincy Sun: "If he wants an apology he should practice what he purports to espouse, and that's this: he made damaging statements - libelous statements - about me directly during the cemetery investigation. He should have apologized. He was asked to correct what he had done...but he never offered an apology to me."

That was LaRaia's reaction to demands made by Hannon on Tuesday that he apologize to William L. Villone, director of Quincy Veterans Services, his staff and the city of Quincy as well. Hannon said:

"Mr. LaRaia owes Mr. Villone, his department and the city of Quincy an apology. But it probably won't be forthcoming."

The Mayor said that LaRaia had cast "a whole cloud of suspicion" over Villone and his staff and had "joined the crowd of irresponsible city councillors in going to the newspapers and radio stations with the story."

"If he [LaRaia] had any decency, he would have called Mr. Villone."

Villone joined the Mayor in asking LaRaia for an apology.

"The matter could have been settled within a few minutes if Mr. LaRaia had contacted me," Villone said. "But he ran to the newspapers. He has caused my staff irreparable damage."

Villone labelled the whole incident "a publicity matter." Responding to that label, LaRaia when asked for comment by The Sun said:

"I'm surprised at Bill Villone. I have told him that he has done a good job in the department and have complimented him on it. I don't feel that any one individual was castigated at all. All I requested was an investigation. Unfortunately, I got an overreaction. I'll have to excuse Mr. Villone's impetuosity."

LaRaia also said that Hannon had overreacted to the situation:

"My request for an investigation in no way cast a spell on the department of veterans services. Mr. Hannon is making an issue of my request. He overreacted when he should have welcomed an investigation to at least set the record straight."

Casualty Of Rising Costs

Old Colony Laundry Shuts Down

Forrest I. Neal, Jr., president and treasurer of Old Colony Laundries, Inc., 100 Quincy Ave., confirms that the 78-year-old company will officially close at the end of the week.

He said "the prime reason" for the shut-down was continued pressure from the company's two unions coupled with union members' drop in incentive. Neal said:

"Our two unions of organized labor continue to press for more and more with less and less productivity."

Neal, head of the company for 23 years, said he was faced with the possibility of a strike when he had to deny employee pay raises several months ago.

"We couldn't give it to them," Neal said. "Business wasn't that good."

Emphasizing that the closing was completely voluntary, Neal said:

"I've worked here all my life and I'm sorry to see the place close. But the purpose of a business is to make money. If it's not doing that, it's foolish to keep on."

Neal explained, too, that the recent and rapid escalation of operating costs affected the decision to close Old Colony.

"Our principle fuel, No. 6 oil, has gone from $1.69 per barrel to $12.99 per barrel. The bulk of that increase came last November."

Neal added that the cost of gasoline, electricity, soap and other supplies has also skyrocketed.

At the time of closing, Old Colony Laundries, Inc., employed less than 100 workers. During its heyday, the company payroll exceeded 250.

Neal's plans for the three-acre plot on Quincy Ave. are still sketchy.

"We may develop the property ourselves," he said, "or sell it to a suitable developer."

Neal noted that high rise apartments could be built on the property since it is properly zoned for such construction.

Old Colony is not leaving its retail customers stranded. The company has merged, Neal said, with Pilgrim Laundry and Dry Cleaning Co., located on 65 Allerton St., Roxbury. "No retail customer will be disappointed," Neal said. "We've made sure everyone is taken care of."

He added, "After 78 years of service, you don't turn the key in the door and say so long."

Valuation $818.7 Million

The Commissioners of Corporations and Taxation today agreed with the Board of Assessors to a final equalized valuation of the City of Quincy at $818,700,000.

Elmer K. Fagerlund, Chairman of the Board of Assessors stated that earlier this year the Commission had proposed a valuation of $890,900,000. However, as a result of negotiations with the Board of Assessors the City gained a reduction of $72,200,000 from the original proposal.

It is this final equalized value from which the distribution of state money is computed, and in the next two years will reflect greater cherry sheet available funds to the City than had the original proposal valuation been used.

Brownell Seeks Stop To Low-Flying Planes

Rep. Thomas Brownell has asked Edward King, director of Mass. Port Authority, to investigate noisy low-flying airplanes over Quincy.

Brownell said that he had received "a number of calls" from his constituents, complaining about noisy, low-flying aircraft interrupting

TV watching and children's sleeping during the evening hours.

As a solution to the problem, Brownell said, "A curfew on night-time landings is impractical. The most reasonable approach is to increase the altitude of the planes flying over residential areas in Quincy."

Salary Goes To $12,975

Patrolmen Get $1,400 Pay Raise

Quincy patrolmen will receive a $1,400 pay hike effective Jan. 1, 1975, boosting their yearly salary to $12,975.

Patrolmen have received a salary of $11,575 after two years of service since Jan. 1, 1973.

The 30-month contract covering Quincy's 180 patrolmen allows for a cost of living adjustment on July 1, 1975, based on the Consumer Price Index for Urban Wage Earners in the Greater Boston Area during the year span from July 1, 1974 - July 1, 1975.

The contract stipulates that the adjustment be at least seven per cent but at most nine per cent.

The 120 patrolmen on the nightshift will receive a 10 per cent differential - a hike of three per cent - effective July 1, 1975.

Day patrolmen will receive a weekend differential of one dollar per hour for time worked on Saturday and Sunday.

In accepting the $1,400 pay raise, the patrolmen relinquished a fringe benefit allowing them to work one-half of their lunch hour. This practice netted approximately $360 per man.

The patrolmen have agreed to work that half-hour unpaid.

New Students Should Enroll

All students new to the city of Quincy and to the Quincy Public Schools should plan to enroll during the week of August 26.

Parents of elementary school children should register their children in the appropriate elementary school.

Junior or senior high school students should report to the guidance office of the school which they will be attending. Members of the guidance staff will be available each day to meet with the students and their parents in order to assist them with program planning.

All new students should bring transfer cards with them.

Phone Directory Being Delivered

Quincy-South Shore area residents will be reading a new book soon - New England Telephone's new South Suburban telephone directory.

Beginning today [Thursday] the company will begin delivering nearly 150,000 copies of the directory, which includes listings for Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Scituate and Weymouth.

Distribution of the directory, which features a New England snow scene on its cover, is expected to be completed by Sept. 27.

The South Suburban directory is just one of 92 different telephone directories delivered annually to New England Telephone's five-state operating area.

Over the past year more than 11 million directory copies - amounting to about seven billion pages - have been issued.

Burke At Post Office Sept. 5

Congressman James A. Burke announces he will meet with Quincy residents Thursday, Sept. 5 at the Quincy Post Office. Burke will speak with Quincy constituents from 9:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. He said:

2,500 City Employee Parking Spaces May Be Lost Under EPA

Mayor Walter J. Hannon morosely envisions the elimination of as many as 2,500 Quincy City employee parking spaces resulting from the recent Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) directive.

By bowing to the directive to slash employee parking 25 per cent, Hannon said the city's parking ratio will dip to one space for every four employees.

The current ratio is one space for every three employees. There are 3,952 city employees.

Hannon foresees added burdens for the city of Quincy. Speaking of the parking spaces soon-to-be-eliminated, the Mayor said:

"These cars could conceivably end up on our streets, thereby increasing the need for added policing of our city streets."

He noted that the "already inadequate parking situation" for city employees would worsen with added elimination of parking space.

Explaining that city zoning ordinance requires each business to provide "adequate parking for its particular use," Hannon said:

"I feel that we have spent hours of thought and effort in creating laws which benefit the City only to have them superceded by this directive of the federal government."

Hannon noted, too, that Quincy City Hospital, plagued already with "a serious shortage of parking," will lose more than 110 spaces under the EPA directive.

This directive has been imposed on all employers of 50 or more people in an effort to reduce air pollution and to achieve federal standards set for the protection of human health.

Although the Mayor said the city is "submitting" to the edict, he commented, "We do not necessarily agree with it."

Hannon Vice-Chairman Mayors' Bicentennial Committee

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has been appointed vice-chairman of the Mayors' Committee on The American Revolution Bicentennial within the United States Conference of Mayors in Washington, D.C.

As vice-chairman of the committee, Mayor Hannon will be working with mayors throughout the New England region as specific plans for Bicentennial activities are formulated.

Noting Quincy's unique role in the history of the nation, Mayor Hannon said that Quincy Heritage is already "in the forefront of communities across the nation that are planning exemplary programs of enjoyment and service to citizens."

Quincy Heritage is the city's organization that is coordinating programs for the 350th anniversary of the city and the nation's 200th birthday.

Hubby on thin ice

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My husband is 24 and I am 22. We both work and I feel we should both participate in our recreational pursuits. However, my husband loves to ice skate and spends his free time doing exactly that. I've never skated in my life and feel my husband should do something else for entertainment.

Lately he has been commenting about some of the girls who do figure skating. How should I handle this?

Sandra

Dear Sandra:

Tell Hubby that he is skating on thin ice! In the meantime, take skating lessons and accompany your husband to the rink.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I enjoy your column most of the time but your answer to "Frantic" concerning the grandmother who wanted to come to the wedding dressed in a square-dancing outfit was really ridiculous. Surely, you can understand that Grandma's square dancing scene would ruin the most important day in two people's lives. How could you possibly say, "Be glad Grandma can dance at 70?"

They should tell Grandma to come properly dressed and not ruin the wedding. I hope you are not afraid to print this!

Another Grandma

Dear Grandma:

From the result of the mail, many others agree with you. Thanks for your opinion. I could be wrong.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I'm having trouble with my nails. What can I do to protect them?

Alice

Dear Alice:

Manicure your nails weekly. Shape your nails carefully, following the shape of your fingertips to achieve an oval. Do this gently from the underside of nail — never from the top and avoid filing too far down into the corners as this makes nails more likely to break.

Protect weak nails against splitting, peeling, chipping, and breaking by applying a nail conditioner such as Protein Nail Conditioner by Max Factor.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I never thought I would be writing to you for advice, but here I am. My problem is my husband. We argue about everything. It has gotten to the point where we can't discuss the weather without having a big fight.

We have two children and are both in our late 20s. Don't suggest that we see a counselor because my husband would not go. I have to do something because I can't live in constant turmoil. Where did we go wrong?

Bessi

Dear Bessi:

You may not like my answer but here it is. If your husband refuses help, go alone. What can you lose? You may learn a new approach to some of your problems. Ask your minister, priest, or rabbi to recommend someone and go today.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Vacation over? blues start

By ANN RUDY

Post-vacation blues is a condition that is no respecter of age. It strikes young and old alike — usually within 12 hours after arriving home from wherever you've been.

Here are a few suggestions on how to avoid the post-vacation blues.

Mothers should be cautioned not to try separating dirty clothes from clean clothes while packing for him in order to make doing the laundry simpler.

At the end of a vacation there is no such thing as clean clothes, and when the poor woman discovers this she may go into a slump even before she gets home.

If possible, have dad pack the dirty clothes in the trunk of the car while mother isn't looking. If he can't get the trunk shut over the mound, have him tie it down with the larriat little Bobby bought as a souvenir of the Last Old Town in the west.

This will keep little Bobby from tying his sister to the bed in an effort to prolong the vacation passed check-out time at the Last Old Motel in the west.

Once home, mother must keep out of the supermarket for at least two days, where the sight of raw meat, unripened avocados and screaming yellow zonkers is a painful reminder that vacation eating is over and she is once again in charge of feeding four people

The blues strike old and young.

ple three meals a day on exactly $6 more than she expected to pay.

Dad, if he is able after looking at the length of the lawn, should bring dinner from the pizza place on the corner. He can save money by not ordering any for mother because once she has access to her scale at home and sees she has gained five pounds, she will refuse to eat it.

If possible, unplug the TV and tell the kids it's broken. This will prolong the relative calm of your vacation and help the whole family adjust gradually to the decibel level they are used to living with.

Once the phone, doorbell, washing machine, rock station and barking dog are all going together again, then you can turn on the TV and nobody will notice.

And the final prescription for post-vacation blues: take one postcard showing the idyllic view of Lake Willenono, shred carefully and forget the whole thing.

STITCHING WITCHERY

Old jeans can be made into quilt

By BETTY W. KINSER

Have you been saving old jeans? Good. Turn them into a durable, washable, warm and groovy quilt.

Cut a regular size sheet in two crosswise (or just fold it in half crosswise and baste edges together). This gives you a 54-inch-by-80-inch backing fabric.

Onto this backing sheet baste large patchwork pieces cut from the jeans. Feather-stitch, trim, line and tack for a quilt you can't wear out. (Send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for complete instructions.)

+ + +

Have you ever wondered what to do with those cloth calendars?

Leona Naslund, of Denison, Iowa, has an idea: Fold in half, sew up three sides, stuff with knit scraps or old nylon hose, close for a colorful pillow... just right for TV room, child's room or den.

Complex Rickles tender, caustic

By JOANNE B. ROMINE

What tickles Rickles? Does Don really have a "funny bone," or is it bitterness and malice that motivate his insult approach to humor? Let's take a look beneath the surface of this sharp-tongued, well-known comedian and see what his writing reveals.

His writing shows him to be a very complex person. He is torn in many directions by emotional conflicts that began early in life. Most of the time he is outgoing and spontaneous. At other times he is withdrawn, self-contained and reflective. His moods are rather unpredictable, which makes it difficult for others to understand him, or to get along easily with him. When he hits a low, he actually becomes depressed, suffers moments of anxiety and feelings of self-castigation.

He is interested in people. He likes to observe and analyze, but he is fussy when it comes to choosing close, intimate friends. If he likes you he will be a champion in your defense; when he loves, it's a total commitment. (You don't want him as an enemy!) He is firm on decisions and positive in his opinions. If involved in debate he becomes argumentative and enjoys every minute of the mental exercise.

Don's type of humor did not develop and grow from a warm, happy, mischievous disposition. It began early in life as a defense against criticism and ridicule. He was a sensitive child, and is still a very sensitive man. People can put him down quite easily.

As a result, he had to become tough in order to survive emotionally. He learned that attack was his best defense. He soon learned that his quick wit and biting sarcasm was effective. It first became a habit, and then a way of life. He can toss out the insults and he can take them, too — but it hurts. He will attempt to conceal his feelings, but those who know him well can detect the emotional slump when someone has hurt him.

Don's caustic humor has made him rich and famous, but not entirely happy. He is still reaching out, searching and growing. He is working at developing a healthier philosophy of life, learning to better understand others as well as himself. However, he will always be a marshmallow inside — loving, caring, tender and sentimental, yet trying so hard not to let it show.

For Rickles' fans, you can write him in care of Gene Shefrin Associates, Inc., 9441 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

PLAN HOME FIRE ESCAPE

Fire drills are required in schools but neglected in the American home where the chances of fire are 200 times greater, where more than 10,000 persons die each year from fire — more than half of them children and old people. So, do your family a favor and plan a fire escape procedure.

Here's how: Appoint a "fire chief". When the father is home, he's the chief; otherwise the mother, a teenage son, or daughter; even the baby sitter.

The chief stresses that all doors should be closed at night. It takes fire 10 - 15 minutes to burn through a wooden door.

Next, your family visits each bedroom and figures out two escape routes. The usual route is the shortest way outside. The second route is an emergency exit through a different door or window. Plan how each member can reach the ground using the emergency route. Next decide on a meeting place outside the home. Then practice!

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Extend your efforts outside the usual work area — humanitarian or community projects may be involved. Career problems can be solved by calling on past experience. Achieve your goals by enlisting cooperation.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Well-meaning friends may overestimate the help they can give you — better count on yourself, primarily. Confusion appears to cloud some issues. You can unravel the mystery by personal investigation.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Your professional standing and public image is accented now. A step forward may have some strings attached. Take time to rethink current projects and study. A phase seems to be ending — new starts upcoming.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Travel, legal matters or publishing projects are accented now. Guard health — don't overdo. Control emotional display. View with suspicion deals that seem too good to be true — because they probably ARE.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Control your emotions. Resist displays of temperance. Investigate "inside yourself" in a quiet meditative way your feelings of restlessness. Finances appear to concern you, but money matters should improve now.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — You appear concerned about coworkers, pets and children now. Much that you do benefits them greatly. Good time to study and train yourself in something you've always wanted to do but couldn't until now.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — As business affairs become less time consuming, give time and attention to mate and close friends. Sharpen up present skills — learn new ones now. Follow your own instincts rather than the advice of friends.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov.

21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Social activities increase and you appear to be behind the scenes doing the planning. Your romantic life is emphasized in a favorable way. Legal matters and the signing of contracts is favored also.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Friends and neighbors are helpful now as you expand mentally. Study vocabulary and literary things. Achievements coming now increase your feeling of personal worth — you prove a new skill to yourself.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Good time for practical plans to improve your home. Make agreements. New ideas, buying and selling, launching promotions — all are favored now. Listen to advice from partners who appear realistic.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Valuable information can come to you through personal contacts. Decisions must be made which affect the entire future. Use logic. Questionable deals involving partnerships should be sidestepped.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Resist tendency to be overly aggressive — be cautious and conservative. When the "spotlight" hits you, keep your head out of the clouds and your feet on the ground. Anything speculative is not advisable now.

149 At Chiavaroli Reunion

Four generations of the Antonio Chiavaroli family attended a summer reunion at Pageant Field last Saturday.

Although relatives from far-off California and Kentucky could not attend, 120 of the total 149 Chiavaroli relatives travelled from New Jersey, Rhode Island, Connecticut and Massachusetts for the family gathering.

Mrs. Mary Chiavaroli of 32 Barry St., West Quincy, and the late Antonio Chiavaroli were married Feb. 9, 1909 in Newark, N.J. They had 14 children of their own and boast 51 grandchildren, 49 great grandchildren and one great-great granddaughter.

Everyone enjoyed a game-filled day of sack races, egg throwing contests, horseshoes, and softball games. And there was plenty of food at a catered feast of lobster, steamed clams, chicken, hotdogs and hamburgers.

The reunion lasted all day and word has it, it's to become an annual affair.

Market Report

Potato Crop Bigger! Prices Lower?

The fall crop of potatoes should be larger than that of a year ago, says the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA], with some seven percent more acreage devoted to the once-lowly spud.

There's even the possibility - hardly a prediction, but a chance - that potatoes will be cheaper by the middle of September, when they will reach produce counters in volume.

Based on information from the USDA Crop Reporting Service, there are 1.14 million acres of fall potatoes in the ground - some 70,000 acres more than in 1973. With an average yield of 200 hundred-pound boxes to the acre, that's a lot of potatoes.

Here in New England, the major potato crop comes from Maine, with about 142,000 acres under cultivation. Idaho produces more than any other state, from some 340,000 acres of potatoes. The Bay State grows them on only about 4,000 acres. Nevada is getting into the act for the first time, with 8,500 acres reported.

The old song went, "Potatoes are cheaper, tomatoes are cheaper, now's the time to fall in love!" The spuds might be cheaper; the tomatoes probably won't be. As for the third line, you pays your money and you takes your choice.

Be Careful

Home Canning

With home canning on the increase now, the MDA repeats an oft-heard warning: follow the directions to the letter to avoid food poisoning. There are no short cuts. An excellent booklet on avoiding botulism is available without charge from any County Extension Service office in the Commonwealth.

Wollaston Mothers Club Opens Season Sept. 12

Wollaston Mothers Club will begin its 1974-1975 program with a smorgasbord welcoming new members Thursday, Sept. 12.

Coffee hours throughout the year begin at 11:30 a.m. and the business meeting starts at 12:45 p.m. All meetings take place at Wollaston Lutheran Church, 550 Hancock St.

The Executive Board will host the opening meeting and the vice-presidents, Mrs. John Markonish Jr., and Mrs. Robert Aldrich, will co-chair the afternoon meeting.

Atty. Martin S. Cosgrove will speak on "Women's Rights in Domestic Relations Cases." All members must make reservations, calling Mrs. Peter Dravinskas [names A through L] or Mrs. Walter Mayer [names M through Z].

The Program Committee and Quincy Federation Representative will host the Sept. 26 meeting. Mrs. Simon Tutunjian, Mrs. Edwin Hayes and Mrs. Charles O'Connell will chair the meeting which features Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, director of Pupil Personnel Services in the Quincy Public Schools, addressing the meeting.

More details on the Oct. 10 bus ride will follow. The Reception Committee will host this meeting and Mrs. Philip Spring will act as chairperson.

There will be an 8:30 p.m. sherry reception on Oct. 17 at the home of Club President Mrs. Martin Cosgrove in honor of new members and sponsors.

At the next meeting, Oct. 24, an auction will take place with Mrs. Walter Fleming as chairman. Hostessing the meeting will be the Arts and Crafts, Telephone and Drama Committees.

The Literary and Arts Committee will host the Nov. 7 Christmas Workshop to be held at Franklin E. and Jessie Dawes Memorial on Quincy Shore Drive. Mrs. Arthur Rochelle Jr., will chair the meeting which will begin at 10 a.m. and run until 2 p.m.

On Saturday, Nov. 16, all committees will sponsor an art and hobby fair entitled "Doing Our Own Thing". Proceeds from the fair, to be held at St. Chrysostom's Parish Hall, 523 Hancock St., will go to the Scholarship Fund.

Fair hours will be from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Mrs. Arthur Rochelle Jr., will head the planning committee. South Shore National Bank will carry a window display Nov. 2-16.

Mrs. Robert Noble, Mrs. Robert Dunham, Mrs. John Markonish Jr. and Mrs. Carl Blenkhorn will chair the Dec. 12 Christmas gathering. Hostessing the meeting will be the Art, Antique, Book Review and Finance Committees.

The first meeting of 1975 will feature a "Miss Ellaneous Pageant" Jan. 9. This variety show will begin at 8 p.m. and hostesses for the evening will be the Annual Luncheon, Community Service and Scholarship Committees. Mrs. William Tyler is chairman for the event and Mrs. Philip Spring is co-chairman.

The Culinary Committee will host the Jan. 23 "Out of our Kitchen" meeting sponsored by the Boston Gas Co. Mrs. Louis Ciarfella will chair the meeting.

Dr. David Goodman will speak at the Feb. 13 meeting on the subject, "A Woman and Her Health". The Gourmet and Literary and Arts Committees are the day's hostesses and Mrs. Robert Walsh Jr. and Mrs. Arthur Rochelle Jr., are co-chairmen of the meeting.

Barry Hannon Would Crack Down On 'Disorganized' Crime

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Barry T. Hannon, Democratic candidate for Attorney General has noticed a certain "loss of hope and fear of the future" pervading the voters in Massachusetts.

"Everything seems to be becoming unglued," he said.

Yet Hannon does not dwell on the pessimistic.

"There are two things one can do in a crisis," he commented: "Wallow in self-pity and face the future in fear, cowering in a corner, or stand up and re-build our society."

Hannon also warned against shunning the political process in such times of hopelessness and fear. He said, "To abandon government, democracy, and those who seek to serve is a serious mistake."

Through his campaign, the 38-year-old Norfolk County Register of Deeds hopes to "restore respect for the law."

He hails from Braintree where he chaired the Democratic Town Committee from 1967 through 1969. He was a member of the Massachusetts legislature from 1966 to 1970. He was recently elected president of the statewide Register of Deeds Association by acclamation. He had formerly been the vice-president of the organization.

Educated at Milton High School, Tabor Academy, Holy Cross College and Boston University Law School, Hannon has been practicing law for 12 years. But he has noted a lawlessness pervading the state that must be countered:

"In the past 10 years, there has been an erosion of respect for the law," he said. "This manifests itself in the increased rate of crime ranging from vandalism to robbery to murder."

BARRY HANNON

If elected Attorney General, Hannon would "get rid of the dungeons" incarcerating juveniles and "re-establish corrective rehabilitative facilities for youthful offenders."

Calling a juvenile's sentence to Walpole as "a kiss of death," Hannon envisions a rehabilitative program "with a camplike atmosphere" including confinement and discipline but excluding "brick walls and steel bars."

He feels that such a program is necessary to erase a juvenile's "thumb-nosing attitude toward the law." He said:

"There is no sanction attached to the commission of a crime. Offenders then brag to their peers, saying, in effect, that crime does pay. Unpunished juveniles then become an advertisement for a life of crime. I care about the 10,000 eyes looking at the person going back on the street, thumbing his nose at the law."

Hannon also wants to tighten up the furlough program in the state, making an offender ineligible until less than one year remains prior to his eligibility for parole.

Although Hannon ranks organized crime high on an attorney general's "list of 'to do's,'" his emphasis is on disorganized crime.

"It's not the Mafia," Hannon said, "who set fire to the young woman in Dorchester. It's not the Mafia who rob local Cumberland Farms. It's disorganized crime that is destroying the fiber, the spirit, of our society."

Hannon cited, too, the area of consumer protection as "a continuing task" for an attorney general. He said:

"New plots to defraud the public are always being drawn up. We must eliminate them from society."

Recently Hannon proposed an extension of the consumer protection movement: the creation of an office of elderly affairs. This office would co-ordinate public services for the elderly, answer their questions, and advise them on financial and legal matters.

Calling the elderly "the financially oppressed" of the Commonwealth, Hannon urged lawyers to "offer their services to the elderly at minimal cost." He added:

"Legal advice on estate planning and wills ought to be available to senior citizens according to their ability to pay. I believe the attorneys of Massachusetts, through their bar associations, would join me in this opinion."

As Norfolk County's Register of Deeds, Hannon reorganized and computerized the records at the registry. He was later appointed to a special governor's commission to study the state-wide reorganization of registries. Hannon commented:

"The need for better efficiency is everywhere in our government bureaucracy. That is one of the reasons I seek the office of Attorney General."

Furcolo Charges Crane Trying To Ignore Him

Mark Furcolo, a 33-year-old Democrat, is challenging Robert Crane for the office of state treasurer.

Furcolo, the son of former Gov. Foster Furcolo, criticized Crane's 10-year reign as treasurer.

"The past treasurer has done a pretty bad job," he said.

An announced contender for the office since early April, Furcolo said that Crane is purposely ignoring his candidacy.

"My opponent is acting as though there is no contest. When he saw I was going to take him to task on his record, he decided to stay away from me and, to create no interest in the race."

Educated at Wilbraham Academy, Yale College and the University of Pennsylvania Law School, Furcolo was an assistant attorney general for two years under Robert Quinn. He also served as an assistant district attorney in Suffolk County for one year. He taught history and government at Mt. Hermon Academy in Western Massachusetts.

In order to acquire the best rate of return on taxes, Furcolo is an advocate of competitive bidding among banks for state funds.

"An effective treasurer could have done this 10 years ago," he said.

In addition, Furcolo has cited the lottery as in need of administrative and operational repair. Presently, the state treasurer is the chairman of the five-man lottery commission. However, if elected, Furcolo says he would seek to oust the treasurer from that commission, forming instead "an independent, supervisory board to oversee and regulate the lottery, not to run it."

Furcolo charged that under the present set-up, the treasurer-as chairman of the lottery commission - is not "free to evaluate and to police the lottery." He cannot, Furcolo said, ask questions such as, "Is the advertising for the instant game fair or deceptive?" "Is the commission administratively top heavy?"

"He's just not removed from the situation," Furcolo said.

To back his statements, Furcolo cited what he says is a recent example of deceptive advertising for the Instant Game - advertising not made public by Crane. The Instant Game carries the come-on promise of a winner in one out of five tickets.

However, according to Furcolo, State Lottery Director Dr. William J. Perrault confirmed in a television interview the correctness of a student analysis showing that the real chances of winning are only one in 76. Furcolo said:

"Crane didn't tell the people this because the 'Instant Game' is his baby in a sense. This confirms the fact he shouldn't be involved [in the operation of the lottery]. He can't be objective about it."

Furcolo is campaigning on an admittedly limited budget - a budget precluding the purchase of television time. He must, therefore, comb the entire state, meeting as many voters as possible.

"You can only physically meet 100,000 people, if that many. But I want to let the people know that there is a choice for the first time in 10 years. They don't have to elect Crane."

Quinn In Mayor's Race?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Walter Hannon, William Delahunt and Joseph LaRaia look like next year's mayoralty contenders as we have previously noted.

But don't overlook one other name: John Quinn. The "Dean" of the City Council openly states he will run again next year, but if you try to pin him down, he won't say that he will be a candidate for re-election.

Mention the mayor's race however, and you'll get a grin from him. "Let's just say I'll be running next year," says he.

Quinn is now in his ninth term, 17th year, as a councillor. He has always run at-large and has been a consistent top vote getter.

Quinn came into the City Council in 1958 along with the return of Plan A after Quincy's honeymoon with Plan E ended in divorce on the grounds of incompatibility and disillusionment.

In each of the nine elections Quinn has polled a good city-wide spread of votes—the kind you build a mayor's run on.

Three years ago when Hannon defeated Rep. Joseph Brett to succeed James McIntyre as mayor, Quinn came close to getting into that race. A major reason he stayed out of it was a personal one—regarding his job.

Now, according to sources, he could if he wishes—run and serve as mayor. The prior problem, they say, has been ironed out.

He would be a formidable opponent in next year's mayoralty race which already looms as one of the best in recent years. With Quinn in it, it would be a political lulu.

SPEAKING OF Mayor Hannon, he says there are two reasons why he knows for sure that the parking garage in the Ross area is a success.

First, the receipts show it.

And, second, his wife, Pat, has become a believer.

"When we first built the garage," Hannon confided to a group of downtown businessmen the other day, "she told me she would never go in there. But she parks there now."

CONGRESSMAN James Burke, home from Washington for a couple of weeks, doesn't think Nelson Rockefeller will have much of a problem being confirmed as vice-president. "Not unless there's something big there that we know nothing about now," he said. Burke also believes that Rocky will help solve some of the nation's economic woes.

A READER CALLED the other day noting that we had used the term "E & D Fund" in a news story regarding the new tax rate and wondered what it meant.

Well, it stands for "Excess and Deficiency Fund" in city accounting terms. In layman's terms, it is a reserve fund where surplus money [if you can believe there is such a thing as surplus money these days] goes. For example, money that comes to the city after the tax rate is set or money that may be left over in a department budget.

Around City Hall it's also known as the "rainy day account" or the "municipal cookie jar" to be used in an emergency or for some other important matter.

Mayor Hannon tapped it for $800,000 for example to help keep the tax rate from going up another $3.15 over the $5.60 hike.

A RALLY AND dance for Clifford Marshall, Quincy councillor-state representative seeking the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County sheriff, will be held Saturday, Sept. 7 at the Norwood Arena from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. Barbara Chiasson of Quincy is ticket chairman.

WELL, you'll have to admit that Fred Sisti is keeping his campaign for state representative in low key. While other candidates in the state election are putting up big signs, slapping on bumper stickers and auto roof signs, Sisti is pedalling a bicycle—with two "Sisti" signs on it—one in the front and one on the back. That's all there is.

For the past 10 years Quincy Youth Hockey has looked to the business of Quincy, not only for their financial but moral support in aiding our organization to like a business."

Using a little common sense I come to the conclusion that the above is also a Myth.

That the tax rate went up only 3.6 per cent is due to many factors not related to good management or good business practice. - Let's take a look: -

1. The City Council did some heavy trimming from the original Mayor's budget - and we are grateful for that.

2. Money from Federal Sharing, the Lottery, extra bond issue, $600,000 earned interest, all amounting to around $5,000,000 [that's about $20 on the tax rate] gave the administration a healthy margin.

3. In 1972 under Mayor Hannon's administration, the city budget was over $35,000,000 - for July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1975 the City received food and rent benefits from his office during three weeks in 1962. But his office was later reimbursed, Villone said, when a state settlement supervisor ruled the case belonged in Boston.

Cavicchi added that he had contacted the state police who are conducting a statewide investigation of veterans services departments following the discovery of fraudulent claims in Suffolk County.

Cavicchi said, too, that a state police investigator had found "no irregularities" in the Quincy veterans services department during a visit two weeks ago.

At a Monday meeting in Hannon's office, Acting Police Chief Roy Cavicchi reported that the man in question had received aid justifiably from Boston "during part of 1962, part of 1963 and two months of 1964."

Villone said that the man had LaRaia, in a letter to Police Chief Francis X. Finn, requested an investigation of the city's veterans services department last week.

LaRaia had received an anonymous telephone call from a Quincy resident who claimed that a Quincy man, ineligible for benefits, had received Quincy veterans aid while in state prison.

LaRaia continued: "Mr. Hannon knows, as an elected official, that he is expected to represent the public to the best of his ability. There is nothing irresponsible about that. It's a matter of public business and should be open to the public. Much of government needs to be opened. The doors need to be taken off the hinges."

Last February LaRaia charged that occupied graves in Mt. Wollaston were resold and that some old remains were carried to a cemetery department dump. The matter is still under investigation.

The entire Veteran's Services controversy erupted when

William Flavin Director Curry College Concert Choir

William T. Flavin of Milton, well known concert and opera singer and a curator of the Quincy Historical Society, has been named Director of the Curry College Concert Choir, effective Sept. 1.

Announcement was made by Dr. Frederick Kirschenmann.

Flavin will succeed Prof. Edward H. Hastings of the Curry faculty, who is now co-director of the Milton Choral Society. The Curry Choir was formed in 1965 and has appeared at the New York World's Fair and at Expo '67 Montreal. It has also performed before numerous audiences in the New England area.

A native of West Paris, Me., Flavin was a finalist on the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air and has sung with many opera companies, including the Boston Opera Company, Richard Opera Company, New York City opera, and British Columbia Opera Company. He has also made numerous concert appearances in both the United States and Canada.

During his career, Flavin has sung more than nine major operatic roles in performance. Among awards he has received are a Rockefeller Grant for a year's study in Germany and sponsored study at the Wagner Festival in Bayreuth, Germany.

He has also studied at the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston University, and Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

Along The Campaign Trail

Brownell Says Experience Qualifies Him For Sheriff

John H. Brownell, campaigning for Norfolk County sheriff, says experience qualifies him for the job.

The Quincy Democrat notes that he has served as a deputy sheriff for more than seven years and has had more than three years experience in government penal services.

He also points out that his background includes more than 20 years of business and executive experience in management and labor.

He has served as a steel and welding inspector in building construction an executive and security officer for a large business concern, vice-president of Local 2468 Carpenters and Joiners of America, AFL-CIO.

Brownell has also been a principal inspector of hulls for the U.S. Navy Bureau of ships, assistant Chief of Staff of the Massachusetts VFW, commander Norfolk County VFW Commanders.

He is a former Marine and Navy combat veteran of World War II.

Brownell is a member of the George F. Bryan VFW Post, Houghs Neck Legion Post, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quincy Lodge Loyal Order of Moose and an associate member of the Norfolk County Prosecutors Association.

Guzzi Campaigns In Quincy

Secretary of State candidate Paul Guzzi brought his campaign to Quincy last week.

Accompanied by Rep. William Delahunt [D-Quincy], Guzzi greeted workers at General Dynamics and also campaigned through the city meeting Quincy residents.

Guzzi, who is running for the Democratic nomination against incumbent John Davoren in the September primary, was critical of his opponent's performance in office.

"I wouldn't be running for office again as fellow Democrat if I was satisfied with his performance," Guzzi said.

Guzzi has proposed public financing of elections, an Office of Citizens' Assistance in the Secretary of State's Office to make government "more accessible to people," and an Independent Public Attorney to prosecute election law violations, political crimes, and conflicts of interest.

Guzzi, presently a State Representative from Newton, has been endorsed for Secretary of State by Mass. Caucus '74 and by 40 of his colleagues in the Legislature including Reps. Delahunt and Thomas Brownell of Quincy.

Ernest C. Reid Reappointed Notary

Ernest C. Reid of 63 Presidential Drive, Quincy, has been reappointed as a Notary Public, State Secretary John F.

Charles Ross Installed Chairman Veterans Past Commanders Club

Charles N. Ross was installed as chairman of the Quincy Veterans' Council Past Commanders' Club at ceremonies held recently in the officers club of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

Other officers installed included:

Lawrence Perrette, vice chairman; Allen A. Kofman, secretary; Peter Stonis, treasurer; Paul W. O'Neill, public relations officer; Thomas McDonald, assistant secretary; and Thomas Hanrahan, Arthur Perrette, Louis Cassani, outgoing chairman, and Arthur Senter, executive committee.

The guest speaker was Capt. Henry L. Cassani, commanding officer of the South Weymouth Station and son of Louis Cassani.

The club voted unanimously to oppose amnesty for draft dodgers and deserters and urged all veterans to turn out for appropriate services on Memorial Day honoring the war dead.

Donald Stafford At A.F. Academy

The son of a Quincy resident has been assigned to the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colo., for duty.

Air Force Master Sgt. Donald D. Stafford, son of Mrs. Charlotte M. Stafford of 20 Fort St., is an aircraft maintenance superintendent with the 3253rd Flight Training Squadron.

Previously assigned at Mather AFB, Calif., he is a 1951 graduate of Quincy High School. His wife, Virginia, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde N. Danforth of Denver.

Cpl. Robert Kilroy At Quantico Marine Base

Marine Lance Corporal Robert J. Kilroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Kilroy of 42 Tyler St., North Quincy, has reported for duty at the Marine Corps Base, Quantico, Va.

A 1972 graduate of Don Bosco Technical School, Boston, he joined the Marine Corps in August 1972.

MONEY TALKS

You Are The One To Rebuild Pride In Self-Government

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COMMON FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Hottelbrook
8-4 Wednesdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

"No doubt Watergate will have many consequences, but quite possibly its biggest historical impact will be this - that it demonstrated once and for all the moral bankruptcy of existing campaign financing practices."

This is the opening gun of a report, "Integrity in Politics", by John Gardner and his Common Cause, the national citizens' movement that has been described as the best organized and most professional movement of its kind in history.

Under Gardner's inspiring leadership, Common Cause has grown to become a strong voice for the average citizen toward preserving the values of our democratic structure and restoring confidence in its procedures.

Currently, under the theme, "Rebuild Pride in Self-Government", Common Cause is marshaling its forces in support of public financing of election campaigns, as issue now before the House of Representatives. Common Cause documents that under the present system of financing elections, money flows to incumbents of both parties by 2 to 1 over their opponents. "Power resides in incumbents," says Gardner, "and no one knows better than the special interests, who gave incumbents $3 for every $1 they gave to challengers."

He cites the answer given by Maryland Congressman Edward Garmatz, chairman of the House Merchant Marine Committee in 1972, when questioned about the heavy political contributions he received from the maritime industry: "Who in the hell did they expect me to get it from? You get it from the people you work with, who you helped in some way or other. It's only natural."

Gardner notes that the Majority and Minority Leaders in the U.S. Senate have endorsed public financing, and on November 27, 1973, a clear majority of Senators voted for public financing of both Presidential and Congressional elections. An Administration-supported filibuster defeated their efforts.

Common Cause supports a mixed system of public financing that would combine public funds with small private contributions. The cost of public financing will be modest; moreover, it will eliminate indirect costs to taxpayers and the favors special interests win from government. [Witness, for example, the $500 to $700 million more paid for milk after the dairy producers made their large contributions to the Committee to Re-elect the President and the Administration immediately raised milk price supports.]

Common Cause espouses no political carry; concerned citizens of all persuasions are among its membership [annual dues of $15, payable to Common Cause, 2030 M Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036]. Whether or not you belong, you can join the vast majority of Americans who in a Gallup poll last year strongly supported public financing of elections.

Write your U.S. Representative today [House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515], urging reforms of campaign financing that will provide public funds for Congressional and Presidential candidates, an independent enforcement agency, ceilings on contributions, and limits on campaign spending.

It's your democracy. Only you can keep it clean.

Reppucci Favors Capital Punishment

Herbert Reppucci, Independent candidate for state representative in the Fourth Norfolk District, is in favor of the death penalty for those convicted of first degree murder.

Speaking to a group of voters at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fishman, 227 Fayette St., Wollaston, Reppucci said:

"The only way to curb the soaring murder rate in Massachusetts is to institute capital punishment for all convicted killers.

"The only way we can deter potential killers is to promise them that they will pay the maximum penalty if they take another person's life. It is indeed unfortunate that certain state legislators believe in furloughing convicted killers while the victims lay dead in their graves."

Reppucci said that in a statewide referendum several years ago, Quincy residents voted over-whelmingly in favor of the death penalty, yet the present incumbent voted against it in the State House.

"Instead of ignoring the views of my constituents I will solicit them," Reppucci said. "At this time in our nation's history, representatives who refuse to head the will of the people cannot and should not be tolerated."

Lydon Urges Veterans To Check On Benefits

Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon, chairman of Veterans Services, urges veterans recently separated from military service to check the timetable on two veteran benefits.

He noted that if a veteran wants his job back, he must apply to his former employer within 90 days of his separation date.

A veteran also has 120 days to convert, without a physical examination, from Servicemans Group Life Insurance to Veterans Group Life Insurance. But he has up to one year to convert if totally disabled at separation and if the condition does not change.

Backyard Carnival Raises $25 For Leukemia

Nancy Hubbard of 53 Cushing St., Wollaston has raised $25.93 for the Leukemia Society in Boston.

Nancy, a nine-year-old fourth grader at Massachusetts Fields School, sold lemonade, hot dogs and popcorn at her backyard carnival to raise the money.

Neighbors attending the carnival played a number of games for prizes and searched the white elephant table for bargains.

Helping Nancy were five friends: Felicia Sehto, Patricia Meehan, Mark Hubbard, Joe Soricelli and Danny Johnson.

Nancy has already mailed her check to the Leukemia Society in Boston.

2 From Quincy To Attend Baha'i Conference

Suzanne Baker of President's Lane, Quincy and Frank Bellotti Jr., of 120 Hillside Ave., Wollaston will join thousands of Baha'is throughout the country in a five-day Baha'i national conference in St. Louis beginning Aug. 29.

The conference was called to prepare American Baha'is for their vital role in a world-wide five-year plan recently received from the supreme governing body of the faith, the Universal House of Justice.

This plan is designed to consolidate and to expand the Baha'i community by proclaiming the fundamental teaching of the faith - the oneness of mankind - to every strata of society.

Lydon Requests More RSVP Visits To Elderly

Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon has asked the Retired Senior Volunteer Program [RSVP] to increase the number of aides visiting the city's isolated elderly.

The volunteers would provide personal, informal services - such as letter-writing - on a regular basis. Such a service is often beyond the means of professional social service agencies, he noted.

ENC Receives $595 Grant

Congressman James A. Burke announces that Eastern Nazarene College has been awarded a $595 Instructional Equipment Grant.

The funds, he noted, will be used to improve the quality of undergraduate instruction by providing financial assistance on a matching basis for the acquisition of instructional equipment, materials and minor remodeling.

Mobile 'Philatelic Center' Here Sept. 5-6 For Stamp Collectors

A special mobile "Philatelic Center" vehicle, fully stocked with dozens of items of interest to local stamp collectors, will be in Quincy area next Thursday and Friday, Sept. 5 and 6.

Thomas F. O'Neill, manager of the Quincy Post Office, announces the center will be at McIntyre Mall, next to City Hall, from 1 to 4 p.m. and at the Quincy Post Office Sept. 6 from 10 a.m. until noon.

O'Neill said: "We are extending an invitation to the thousands of stamp collectors and 'would-be collectors' in the South Shore area to visit the special philatelic vehicle which will be stocked with a large supply of various commemorative stamps, starter kits, souvenir mint sets, American commemorative panels and the latest edition of "Stamps & Stories", a full color, pocket size book, containing information on more than 2,000 United States and United Nations stamps".

Postal Service market surveys indicate that approximately 16 million Americans, young and old, collect postage stamps, a hobby known as philately. People from all walks of life and all educational and economic levels find stamp collecting both worthwhile and fascinating.

"Philately is an educational hobby that should be encouraged especially among the young people," O'Neill said. "In these days when we all need to be reminded of our American heritage, the study of stamps can be rewarding. A stamp collection sketches the history of our Nation and its many accomplishments."

O'Neill said his office will continue to carry a well stocked supply of philatelic items for the convenience of local collectors. For a complete stock of available philatelic items, Postal customers are urged to visit the newly established "Philatelic Center" located in the lobby of the General Post Office, corner of Milk and Devonshire Streets, in downtown Boston. The center is open Monday through Friday, 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Wickens & Troupe Offering Community Service 'Bulletin Board'

Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy, has added something new in the way of community service.

It's a Wickens & Troupe Bulletin Board which will appear each week in The Quincy Sun beginning with today's issue.

There is a blank 3 inch by 2½ inch space being made available free by Wickens & Troupe to non-profit groups and organizations for community service program and project announcements.

Roger G. Hamel of Wickens & Troupe said:

"The space is open free to non-profit groups wishing to publicize community service programs and projects or other worthy causes. For example, it might be a service club or women's club raising money for a scholarship fund or a veterans group sponsoring a patriotic essay contest or a church putting on a bazaar."

Those interested in using the free space must contact the Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home on the Thursday before the announcement is to appear.

"The space is being made available on a first come, first served basis," Hamel noted.

QJC Offers Course In Small Business Advertising

A new course which will aid mail, local businesses in advertising and sales promotion will be offered by Quincy Junior College, Community Services Division, this September.

The course, Advertising for Small Business, will touch the basic fundamentals of advertising in retail and small business operations. Students will be given the opportunity to develop a basic understanding of advertising, marketing skills for current and future business needs, and the ability to measure the impact of advertising.

Advertising layout, copy, media selection and their effectiveness will also be discussed.

The course will be instructed by James T. Noonan, Account Executive and Director of New Business for the Quincy-based advertising agency - S. Gunnar Myrbeck & Company, Inc.

Anyone interested in enrollment should contact Edward Tumivivus, Director of the Community Services Division, at 471-2470.

Survival, Inc. Appoints 2 New Staff Members

Survival Inc. has appointed two new staff members to aid in their multi-faceted youth and drug program which serves the entire South Shore.

The positions were made possible by a recently announced federal grant totaling $145,000.

Marie Vergis, a graduate of Springfield College with a Master's degree in Counseling/Community Organization and Development, is a full-time counselor at Survival's out-patient counseling center, 44 Faxon St., Quincy. She previously held a social work position involving casework and family therapy, and has worked for a hotline counseling and referral service.

William J. Doherty of 31 Hovey St., North Quincy was Community Relations Coordinator at Survival's new administration office, 725 Southern Artery, Quincy. A graduate of Boston University's School of Public Communications, she holds a Public Relations degree. She has had previous public relations experience with an ex-offender half-way house and the Red Cross.

"Our constant growth here at Survival made these appointments necessary," explained Executive Director Robert Hassey. "I feel the experience of both these staff members in their separate fields has added to the expertise of our present staff of professionals and paraprofessionals and has helped Survival expand to better serve South Shore youth."

John Leary Appointed To Cemetery Board

John Leary of 14 Ruthven St., North Quincy, has been appointed by Mayor Walter J. Hannan to serve as a member of the Public Burial Places' Board of Managers.

Leary, 43, succeeds Felix

Favorite of 139 Elmwood Ave., Wollaston, a member of the board since its inception in 1958.

Leary's appointment to the seven-member board takes effect immediately and continues through September, 1977.

A communication consultant with New England Telephone Co., Leary works out of the Rockland office.

He and his wife have six children: five boys and one girl.

Louise Forsyth ASCA P R Coordinator

The Governing Board of the American School Counselor Association announces the appointment of Miss Louise B. Forsyth of Quincy, as coordinator of public relations for 1974-1976.

Public Relations was mandated as a program priority by the 1974 ASCA Delegate Assembly which met in New Orleans last April with the goal of informing students, parents, and the community at large about the services of school counselors so that there can be better understanding and utilization of these services.

The Public Relations

Coordinator will work closely with the ASCA officers and with the regional coordinators of elementary, junior high, high, and post secondary school counseling for ASCA.

Miss Forsyth, who coordinates the testing program and guidance information services for the Quincy Public Schools, has long been active in professional affairs having served the Massachusetts School Counselors Association as treasurer, secretary, president-elect, president, and executive secretary. She has also chaired the public relations committee of MSCA.

She has served ASCA as a member of the national committees on state divisions, guidance and media, and public relations. She represented Massachusetts at the ASCA Delegate Assembly in New Orleans in 1974.

In 1973 at the San Diego Convention she was the recipient of ASCA's awards as Counselor of the Year, Guidance Administrator of the Year, and Professional Writer of the Year. Also in 1973, she was cited by the Massachusetts SCA for distinguished professional leadership.

Norfolk County Receives AAA Rating On Bonds

Norfolk County Treasurer James M. Collins reports the

$1,750,000 county bond issue, sold earlier this month, received a credit rating of "AAA" by Moody's Investors' Service, Inc.

This is the best rating obtainable, and indicates that these Norfolk County bonds are of the highest quality with the lowest degree of risk to the investor.

Collins express "great satisfaction" with the triple-A bond rating by Moody's, considered the key independent, investment advisory service for New England. The confirmatory notice from the certifying bank stated:

"The Triple-A rating facilitated the sale of this issue at a favorable rate and definitely worked to the benefit of Norfolk County. The treasurer's office should be commended for its expertise and diligence in providing the myriad financial data submitted to Moody's. This work was an important factor in the rating," the notice concluded.

The bond issue was favored with a low bid of 5.54 per cent [net interest rate] by a group managed by the Harris Trust and Savings Bank. Informed financial sources describe this as an excellent rate in the current money market. Competition for the offering was keen as a total of 29 brokers, banks, and financial institutions participated in the bidding.

Collins notes that the proceeds of the 20-year tax-exempt issue will be used to purchase land of the Wollaston Golf Course.

Williams Replies To Statements

Atty. Thomas Williams, candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District speaking at a lawn party at the home of Mrs. George MacLean and Mrs. William Corliss on Silver St., Quincy Point, took issue with what he termed ill-advised attacks on his positions by an opponent, "based on misinformation."

Williams said: "I would like to inform you, and my opponent, that the demolition of Baxter Corner is largely within the sphere of state issues, since the state wishes to widen that road under its jurisdiction, which would require the removal of those derelict buildings. Route 3A is a state road."

"It is incumbent upon a representative to concern himself with this matter insofar as it does concern the state. Beyond that, it is a worthwhile project which would improve and beautify the local area. The buildings are ugly, blighted and unsafe, and I would voice my support for a small, green park on the site, which would enhance the property values and appearance of the area."

In answer to another statement, Williams declared:

"My opponent would do well to learn the programs and laws of the Commonwealth. There is currently a state program called, 'Supplementary Security Payments', for senior citizens. Eligible senior citizens may receive payments from the state which supplement Federal Social Security. Since January 1974, the payments have been sent on the same check as Social Security, as per agreement of the Federal and State Governments."

"This is a good program because of the fast rising cost of living in our state, and I will work to extend it to all senior citizens who legitimately need it. I strongly suggest my opponent learn about such programs so he can help the elderly in case he is ever elected."

"Our district has one of the largest concentrations of senior citizens anywhere. Many problems, on the local, state and federal levels affect each one of my constituents. As an attorney, I know the laws of the Commonwealth and I will always be available, full time, to help and keep my constituents informed."

"I will not only work on state issues, but I will take an active interest, lobby and voice my opinions on all problems affecting this district, whether on the local, state or federal level. In difficult times like these, the public needs as much response as it can get from public servants to help solve problems at all levels of government."

Norfolk County Trust

262nd Largest Bank In U.S.

Norfolk County Trust Company with deposits of $315,320,432 ranks among the 300 largest banks in the United States, according to an annual survey report released by the American Banker, a daily trade newspaper.

Norfolk County Trust Company was rated the 262nd largest bank in the country as of June 30, 1974. This represents a gain of 13 positions from 275 a year ago.

Norfolk maintained its position as the largest commercial bank in Norfolk County and second largest trust company in Massachusetts.

N.E. Electric Reports Earnings

New England Electric System reports earnings for the month of July 1974 of 13 cents per share, the same as July 1973, when 1,250,000 fewer shares were outstanding.

Renegades In CYO Contest At Weymouth Tonight

The Quincy Renegades, who have already won the championship of the Junior Division Drum and Bugle Corps will be among the entries in a CYO Music Circuit contest tonight [Thursday] at the Legion Field, Weymouth.

The Quincy unit has a string of six consecutive victories.

St. Francis of South Weymouth, host for the event, is engaged in a close battle with the Holy Family Defenders of Rockland for first place in the Senior Drum and Bugle Corps Division. Going into third contest Rockland has 21 points closely followed by St. Francis with 20 points.

Harrington Asks QSD Interconnecting Lights

Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington has asked the MDC to investigate the possibility of imposing a 30 m.p.h. speed limit along Quincy Shore Drive from Sea St. to the Neponset River Bridge by synchronizing and interconnecting the seven traffic lights along that artery.

Harrington explained that a person beginning at a green light could proceed along the boulevard without hitting a red light IF he obeyed the 30 m.p.h. speed limit. However, if the driver exceeded the limit, he would be stopped by a red light because of the synchronization controls.

Harrington said: "It is my belief that traffic can be required to move through this area efficiently at 30 m.p.h. and that the public safety will be greatly increased."

Harrington described this move as a proposed "second step" towards ensuring safety along the heavily-travelled Quincy Shore Drive.

The first step was the new and improved signalization, channelization and widenings along Washington St., Southern Artery and Sea St. funded by TOPICS, a near-million dollar traffic improvement project.

Yet Harrington said that the completed improvements "end at Quincy Shore Drive." Noting the importance of Quincy Shore Drive as a link to the Neponset Bridge for Boston based commuters, Harrington said:

"The road carries a tremendous volume of traffic...which has created serious safety problems for years."

He feels that his "second step" will make Quincy Shore Drive safer for all who use it.

Auto Show Planned For Downtown Oct. 18-19

Downtown Hancock St. between Granite and School Sts. will become a mall again Friday and Saturday, Oct. 18 - 19, for an auto show.

Sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association the show features new 1975 automobiles from 10 Quincy automobile dealers.

Hancock St. which will be closed to traffic for two days, as it was for three days during the highly successful Sidewalk Bazaar in July.

Plans also call for a display of antique automobiles and other activities including shows sponsored by the Essex County Agricultural Organization featuring agricultural information, cow milking; an exhibit showing costs and value of a shopping basket of food; and a replica of a side of beef to explain the newly named cuts of beef.

Other activities will be rescue from a blazing car by the Quincy Fire Department; a state police helicopter landing.

The 10 dealers taking part in the show include, President Chevrolet; Quincy Motor Co., Foley's Chrysler and Plymouth Agency; Tom O'Brien's Pontiac; Duggan Brothers Chevrolet; Fore Rivers Inc., Lincoln-Mercury Dealer; Nick's Foreign Car Sales; Hassan Brothers, American Motors; Jack Daniel's Morriset Volkswagen, Inc., and South Shore Buick.

Old Colony Laundry Shuts

[Cont'd from Page 1]

The company was born in Braintree in 1896, moving to Quincy 12 years later. Neal's father, Forrest Neal Sr., headed the company from that time - 1908 - until 1951. The laundry set up operations in Tirrell Carriage factory in Edwards Meadow, now the site of Ross Parking Area.

During World War I and the influenza epidemic of 1918, the company was cited for outstanding service to the community.

Then, in 1930, the laundry moved to its present location. Neal called the specially-designed building "the nationwide show place of the laundry industry."

Neal reminisces that during the '30's, the laundry was delivered by horse and wagon. With pride, he recalled that his father was the first in the industry to give two-week paid vacations to the drivers of the wagons.

"And the man's horse got a rest, too," Neal added. "He was put out to pasture during his driver's vacation and an alternate horse was put on the route."

During World War II, the National War Production Board in Washington declared Old Colony an "Essential Industry to the War Effort."

After the war, home washers and dryers muzzled into the family service end of the business, Neal said. But the growth in hospital and hotel service quickly compensated for the growth in technology.

5 Double Winners, 4 Records In QTC Finale

The Quincy Track Club, the state's only chartered city-sponsored club, wound up its first season with a bang last week as it held the first annual Quincy City championships before more than 500 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

More than 300 members of the club, nine years of age and up took part in the meet which featured keen competition in all events. Trophies were presented to all winners and medals to second and third place finishers.

Shawn Burns, Chris Kennedy, Nancy McCarthy, Janice Kelly and Dotty Irvine were double winners. Setting new records were Bart Petracca in the boys 16 and up mile, Rich Mahoney in the boys 16 and up two-mile, Geoff Hennessey in the 16 and up high hurdles and Jack Macheras in boys 12-15 440.

Club President Carl Leone, Directors Dr. Lawrence Creedon and Bill Ryan and Ralph Colson, "Mr. Track" in New England, presented outstanding athlete awards to Joe Irvine and Nancy McCarthy, 9-11 group; John Ladd, 12-15; Janice Kelly, girls 12 and up, and Lee Watkins, boys 16 and up. Kelly, Watkins and McCarthy were undefeated this year.

"This was a truly great first season and we expect next year to be even more exciting," said Lou Tozzi, club secretary and director of the weekly meets at the stadium. "The younger boys and girls learned the fundamentals of track and showed tremendous improvement each week. We only entered one outside meet officially, the New England AAU-sanctioned meet held as part of Brockton's Summerfest program and I think we would have won the team championship if they had a team trophy. Our kids did a remarkable job."

"Next year we hope to enter more outside meets. This year several of our members entered the weekly meets in Baintree unofficially and did very well." He paid tribute to two of his North Quincy trackmen, Paul Doherty and Mark Canavan, for their dedicated work all season.

The following won the city championships last week:

100-yard dash - Shawn Burns, boys 9-11; John Ladd, boys 12-15; Lee Watkins, boys 16 and up; Nancy McCarthy, girls 9-11; Janice Kelly, girls 12 and up.

220-yard dash - Joe Dirico, boys 16 and up; Janice Kelly, girls 12 and up.

440 - Shawn Burns, boys 9-11; Jack Macheras, boys 12-15; Chris Kennedy, boys 16 and up; Nancy McCarthy, girls 9-11; Dotty Irvine, girls 12 and up.

BOB MORTON, former North Quincy football star and now a varsity quarterback at Holy Cross, kept in shape this summer by competing with the Quincy Track Club and here is shown taking off in the long jump at last week's Quincy City championships.

●Babe Ruth League

National All-Stars Win, 12-5

The National League defeated the American League, 12-5, last Saturday at Adams Field in the annual Quincy Babe Ruth League all-star game.

The winners were managed by Dick Laracy of the Police Club assisted by Ed Hutchins of Hancock Bank and Jack Kelly of Morrisette. Jerry O'Leary of Burger King managed the Americans assisted by Dave McMillan of Houghs Neck Legion.

The Nationals collected only seven hits but nine walks by five American pitchers helped them considerably. Lou Fishman, Bob Stack and Matty King each had a triple and double and Jim McGinley had the other hit. Mike Murphy scored three runs.

The American League were held to two hits, both off starting pitcher Brian Ready but wildness forced him to give way to Fishman in the third and Fishman pitched no-hit, no-run ball the rest of the way. The only American hits were by Steve Bell and Jim Kennedy.

Playing for the National League were Fishman, Murphy and John Andrews of the Police Club, Brian Kelley and Ready of Morrisette, Stack and Dave Rafferty of Granite City Electric, McGinley of Sons of Italy and King of Hancock Bank.

The American League was represented by Tom Wilkinson of Fire Dept., Peter Niosi and Jim Baze of Burger King, Paul Marini, Tim Cahill and Kurt O'Sullivan of Elks, Lenny Picot, Mark Buchanan and Kennedy of Bersani Brothers, Bell and Mark Giordani of Houghs Neck Legion.

Junior Baseball Leagues

Registration On Sept.7

The Quincy Junior Baseball Leagues will hold registration for 1975 on Saturday, Sept. 7, from 9 a.m. to noon at Quincy Voc-Tech gym.

Commissioner Robert T. Woodman stresses that all boys who played Junior Farm or AAA League ball this year must register, as well as any 8-15 year olds residing in Quincy. There will be an application fee of 50 cents.

Only residents of Quincy born after July 31, 1957 and prior to Aug. 1, 1966, are eligible.

When a player is drafted, he will be notified by his manager before Oct. 30. Anyone not selected will be placed in the player pool of each respective league. During the season when teams need new players, they will draw names from the player pool list. Later being notified of being drafted, a registration fee of $10 will be required from players in Triple A, Junior League and Babe Ruth League.

Eight-year olds will not try out but will be assigned to the Junior Farm League and notified by team managers. The overflow go into the player pool.

Nine-year olds will report to Artery Field [Southern Artery] for tryouts, Saturday, Sept. 14, at 9 a.m. and Sunday, the 15th at 1:30 p.m.

Those 10 years of age will report to Artery Field on Sept. 14 at 2 p.m. and Sept. 15 at 4 p.m.

Eleven-year olds will report to Artery Field Saturday, Sept. 21, at 2 a.m. and Sept. 22 at 1:30.

Those 12 years of age will report to Artery Field Sept. 21 at 2 and Sept. 22 at 3:30.

Those 13 years old will report to Merrymount Field Sept. 14 at 9 and again the same day at 2.

Fourteen-year olds will report at Merrymount Field Sept. 15 at 1:30 and those 15 will report to the same field Sept. 15 at 3:30.

Senior League Hockey Budmen, Flames In Showdown

The first place Boston Budmen and second place Atlantic Flames met last night [Wednesday] for the playoff championship of the Quincy Youth Arena Senior Summer Hockey League.

The third place Quincy Clovers played the fourth place Newman Club in the consolation game.

The Flames outscored the Quincy team, 4-1, in the final period to win a wild one, 13-10, last week, while the Budmen defeated the Newman Club, 11-5.

In the free-scoring Quincy-Atlantic game, each team scored six times in the first period and three times in the second.

John Cunniff scored the first two Quincy goals in the opening period, Charlie Ahern and P. J. Flaherty assisting on the first and Dennis O'Connell on the second. Mike Farina scored with assists for John White and Joe Dunderdale and Cunniff scored his third goal with Frank Guest and Flaherty assisting. Paul Golden had a goal with O'Connell assisting and Flaherty had the other first period goal with Guest and Ahern assisting. Cunniff scored his fourth goal of the night with Guest assisting, Flaherty scored with an assist for Ahern and Dunderdale scored with Golden assisting to round out the second period scoring.

Quincy took a 10-9 lead on Dunderdale's goal at 1:10 of the last period but that was it for the Clovers and Atlantic went on to score four times.

Defense was virtually nil with two Atlantic goalies having a combined total of 48 saves and the Quincy goalie 33.

The game was filled with penalties with Atlantic having eight minors and four majors and Quincy seven minors and two majors.

Mite House Reds, Greens In Ties

Both the Red team and Greens played to ties last week and remain in a first place tie in the Mite House League with 6-2-2 records.

The Reds and Yellows played to a 7-7 tie. Paul Marshall had one of the biggest nights of the season with all seven Yellow goals. Mike Barry had two assists and Kevin Golden one. For the Reds Chris Hurley scored four goals, Brian Spring, John DiPietro and Bobby Drury one each. Hurley, Spring and DiPietro had assists.

The Greens and Whites tied, 4-4. Chris Hurley had two White goals, Jim Daley and Paul Belanger one apiece, with Brian Chase having two assists, Richie Marnell and Marty Tolson one each. Mark McManus had two Green goals and Bobby Forman and Bobby McCabe one each, while McCabe had two assists and Pat Duffy, Gary Caruso, Steve White and Jim Seamens one each.

The Orange team defeated the Blues, 2-0.

Executive League Reds, Blues Romp

The Red team smothered the Golds, 10-1, in the Summer Executive Hockey League at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Reds had a 10-0 lead before the Golds' Jack Hurley finally scored late in the game. Jim Daly had the hat trick, Wally McLean had two goals, Joe Chase had two, Dick Reinhardt, Smoky Adams and Fran Moriarty one each. Chase had four assists, McLean had three, Reinhardt three, Moriarty two, and Jack McDonald one. Charlie Duffy and Ed Dwyer assisted on Hurley's Gold score.

The Blues defeated the Greens, 7-4. Gary DeCoste had the hat trick for the Blues, Kevin White had two goals and Harry Crispo two. Jack Powers had three assists, DeCoste two, Dave Edgren, Joe Gannon, Tom Noonan, Bill Monahan, Dave Hickey, White and Wayne Cooper one each.

For the Greens Jack Hurley had two goals and Bob Kane and Frank McAuliffe one each; Kane had three assists, McAuliffe and Hurley two each and Bibby Lewis one.

Bantam House Whites Upset Greens, 3-2

The White team upset the league-leading Greens, 3-2, in the Bantam House League, but the Greens remain in first place with a 7-2-1 record. White goals were scored by Don Perdios, John Kelley and Dan Sullivan with Perdios adding two assists and Sullivan one. For the Greens

Dave Lewis and Sean Jago scored and Mike Bondarick and Steve White had assists.

The Blues nipped the Yellows, 3-2, with John Kelley scoring all the Blue goals with Paul McDermott, Ray Coleman and Steve Campbell assisting. Billy Deitsch scored both Yellow goals and Tommy Brennan and Bobby Hayes had two assists apiece.

The Reds edged the Oranges, 4-3, with Dave Lewis having all the Red goals and Leo Doyle having two assists. Mike Storer scored all three Orange goals with Howard Chadbourne and Don Perdios having assists.

Squirt House Reds Peel Orange, 8-2

The Red team stayed on top of the Squirt House League by peeling the last place Oranges, 8-2. The Reds have an 8-2-1 record.

Kevin Duff scored two goals for the Reds and Kevin White, Mike Connolly, Chris Gorman, Tom Richards, Steve Baylis and Paul Bamberg one each. Gorman had four assists, White two and Richards one. Mark Tenney and Paul McCabe scored for the Orange with Bob Cosby having two assists, Richie Durham and McCabe one apiece.

The Greens remained one game behind the Reds with an 8-5 win over the Whites. Mike Marshall had four Green goals, Kevin Craig three and Tommy Murphy the other. Murphy and Craig each had four assists, Billy Gray three and Marshall two. For the Whites Bobby McCabe, Bill Bradley, Paul McCabe, Mike O'Hare and Bobby Ready had the goals with O'Hare having three assists, Ready and Bobby McCabe two each.

The Yellows nipped the Blues, 3-2.

Pee Wee House Blue, Green, Orange In Wins

The Blues kept up their winning ways in the Pee Wee House League with a 5-4 win over the second place Yellows and lead the league with an impressive 9-1-1 record.

Freddie Palmer and Bob Currier had two goals apiece for the Blues and Bob Larsen had the other. Tom Mullen and Brian Flynn each had two assists, Mark Boussey and Dick McCarthy one each.

For the Yellows Steve Walsh, Mike Doherty, Mike Ferreira and Bobby Bolster, Ferreira and Kevin Coymann assists.

The Greens defeated the Whites, 5-3. Joe Carroll had two Green goals and Paul Melia, Paul McConville and Paul McGrath one each. Carroll, Chuck Marshall and Tim Joy had assists. For the Whites Martin Gray, Mike Quigg and Bill Doran scored and Joe Connolly and Wayne Cooper had assists.

The Orange team romped over the Reds, 14-5, as Scott Richardson exploded for six goals and added two assists. Brian Sullivan, Danny Flynn and Ed Campbell each had two goals and Steve Shoemaker and Joe Rathgeb one each. Richardson, Sean Dennis and Flynn each had two assists and Sullivan and Steve Storer one each. For the Reds Robbie Zanardelli had two goals, John Keeley, Karl Nord and Robbie Craig while Craig and Zanardelli each had two assists and Nord and Johnny Toland one each.

The Quincy Recreation Department's summer program was climaxed last week, with special events, such as, the annual Field Day, the fourth annual Recreation Tennis Tournament, the Water Carnival and Nautical Day.

The Water Carnival was held at Fenno St. Beach with an estimated more than 200 persons participating. In charge of the activities was swimming supervisor Julie Doherty. Features included the imaginative skits put on by the children of each of the 13 recreation swim stations and the age group swimming races.

The team title was taken by the host Fenno St. team, as they compiled 31 points. Orchard Beach placed second with 27 and Adams Shore was third with 15. The individual winners of each age group:

Boys ages 6-7, Lonnie Harris; boys 8, James Madden, boys 9, Jackie McDonough, boys 10, Chris Dunn, boys 11-12, Bobby Shanton, boys 13-14, John Convey.

Girls ages 6-7, Leanne Laflaur; girls 8, Ruth Shiois, girls 9, Kathy McGrath, girls age 10, Sue Murray, girls 11, Donna Marcin, girls 11-12, Patty Murray and girls 13-14, Patty Murry.

Special recognition also goes to the Quincy Recreation water skiers who put on a spectacular water ski display at the Water Carnival. Also water skier Dave Merrill receives this year's "Evil Kneivel Imitation Award" for riding one ski straight into the beach, hitting the sand, and doing a complete flip in the air, landing unharmed on his feet. Special thanks goes to swimming supervisor Julie Doherty for conducting such a superb program and to nautical supervisor Barry Welch and his water skiers for their splendid performance.

The playground program closed with the annual Field Day at Merrymount Park. Races, relays, an awards ceremony and a performance by the Recreation Rhythm Band were just some of the events held. In the races and relays, the children competed for team and district honors. The team title was taken by For River with 31 points, with Perkins and Shea Rink second and third with 20 and 17 points respectively. District honors were taken by District 5 with 46 points, followed by District 6 with 35 and District 2 with 33.

Nautical Day was held at the Blacks Creek Boathouse with a record crowd attending the event, which lasted from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Nautical supervisor Barry Welch supervised such activities as row boat and sailing races, a barbecue and a moonlight sail.

The biggest event of the week was the fourth annual Quincy Recreation Tennis Tournament with 420 competing. The registration count has tripled since the tournaments inception in 1970, with credit going to Tournament Director Kevin McGuinely. Following are the tennis champions:

Boys 14 and under singles, Leo Bottary; boys 16 and under singles, Dennis McCarthy; girls 16 and under singles, Sue Coleman; mens singles, Ed McKinnon; mens doubles, Ken Rickson and Charlie Ross; womens singles, Rita Morach; mixed doubles, Phil Maloney and Tracy Maloney, womens doubles, Jesse Copman and Shirley Laing and mens 40 and over singles, Jim Wilcox.

The Recreation Department's sports playoffs also came to an end last week. The recently crowned 1974 champions are: Merrymount, Midget Baseball; O'Rourke, junior boys baseball; Merrymount, junior boys basketball; Squantum, senior boys baseball; Forbes Hill, senior boys - basketball; Squantum, junior girls softball; Beechwood Knoll, junior girls basketball; O'Rourke, senior girls softball and Wollaston, senior girls basketball.

The Recreation Department congratulates all these championship teams for fine seasons, and to all those teams that didn't quite make that pot of gold this summer, remember that the winter recreation program is not too far off.

In conclusion, this summer's program has been the most successful, attendance-wise, in Recreation history. All the summer programs from the playgrounds to ceramics have had overwhelming numbers of children participate. These attendance figures are a tribute to the spirited and concerned interest of all recreation personnel.

'Christ Jesus' Lesson-Sermon At Christian Science Church

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father." John 14: 12. Church service and Sunday School are at 10:45 a.m.

"Christ Jesus" is the topic of this Sunday's Lesson-Sermon at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St. Quincy.

Scriptural passages from the New Testament book of John include these words:

All-Star Cast To Appear On MDAA Telethon

They say never to break up a winning team, so for the second straight year, the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon local cut-ins on WLVI-TV will be hosted by Dave Maynard of WBZ radio, Rex Trailer, TV personality and the Boston Bruins' Ken Hodges.

Announcement was made at a press luncheon at the Colonnade Hotel, Boston, by Larry Jannello, telethon coordinator.

Last year, a record $326,005 was raised in greater Boston thanks to these three and a host of other local radio, TV and sports personalities who gave up their holiday weekend to talk on the phone with people making pledges to benefit Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America.

Maynard will host the WLVI-TV studio portions of the 21½ hour Telethon which starts at 9 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 1 and continues through Monday, Sept. 2 at 6:30 p.m. For the first time, there will be hourly cut-ins throughout the entire Telethon. In addition, Maynard will make phone calls to people who will be holding Telethon parties in their homes.

Trailer will be stationed outside in the Channel 56 parking area to meet and interview people who drive up to deposit money in one of two Boston Fishbowls [the other Fishbowl will be in front of the Colonnade Hotel located on Huntington Ave.].

Hodge, who is the Massachusetts State Chairman of MDAA, will be working with both Maynard and Trailer as well as manning the phones to take pledges from the hundreds of Bruin fans who call and support the Telethon every year.

In addition to local celebrities that include Sonja Hamlin, Don Gillis, Natalie Jacobson, Bill O'Connell, Weston Adams Jr., Bruce Schwoeger, Eddie Andleian, Bob Glover, Harry Sinden, Len Berman, Clarke Boethe, Joe Albani, Don Awrey, Len St. Jean and WBZ radio personalities Larry Justice, Larry Glick, Carl Desuze, and Jerry Williams, there will be 122 stars of stage, screen, television and radio who will appear on the national Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

The national show, originating from the Hotel Sahara in Las Vegas, will include live pickups from New York and Nashville and will be broadcast over the 172-station coast-to-coast Telethon network including WLVI-TV, Channel 56.

Among those now slated to join Lewis and anchorman Ed McMahon in Las Vegas are Anna Maria Alberghetti, Jack Benny, John Davidson, Fats Domino, Chad Everett, Totie Fields, the Mickey Finn Show, David Hartman, Joey Heatherton, Arte Johnson, Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme, Michel LeGrand, Jack Lemmon, Liberace, Ida Lupino, Johnny Mathis, Jan Murray, Jim Nabors, Lois Nettleton, Wayne Newton, George Segal, Susan Strasberg, Mel Torme, Jerry Vale and Dionne Warwick.

The Nashville segment of the Telethon will be hosted by Johnny Cash. His guests will include June Carter, Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass, Bobby Goldsboro, Dolly Parton and Charlie Rich.

The New York show will be hosted by Dorothy Collins. Among those scheduled to appear with her are Muhammed Ali, Sammy Cahn, Godfrey Cambridge, Carol Channing, the Electric Company, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Gladys Knight and the Pips, Richie Havens, Helen Hayes, Aliza Kashi, B. B. King, La Lupe, Julius LaRosa, Kay Medford, Jerry Ohrbach, Soupy Sales and Enzo Stuarti.

Behind the scenes at television stations throughout the country over 100,000 volunteers will run more than 1,000 individual pledge centers and help station personnel put on local cutaways slated for every hour of the Telethon.

Last year's show broke all Telethon records, raising a grand total of $13,527,185 after all pledges were collected. In Greater Boston, $326,005 was raised.

Rev. Steele Martin To Assume Duties At Christ Church Sept.1

Rev. Steele W. Martin will begin his duties as rector of Christ Episcopal Church in Quincy, Sept. 1.

He succeeds Rev. Chester A. Porteus who recently retired.

Rev. Martin, a native of Illinois, is presently the rector of St. Michael's Episcopal Church in Brattleboro, Vt. He received his B.A. degree from Northwestern University in Evanston and his S.T.B. and S.T.M. degrees, from the General Theological Seminary in New York City.

After serving on the faculty of the General Seminary for two years as a fellow and tutor, Rev. Martin spent a year and a half involved in urban work at St. Margaret's Episcopal Church in the Bronx.

REV. STEELE W. MARTIN

In 1954 he was called as rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church in East Providence, R.I., where he spent five years. He then traveled to Brazil where he taught in the Episcopal Seminary. He spent three years in that country.

Upon returning to this country in 1962, he accepted his present position in Brattleboro. Rev. Martin has twice served as a deputy to the National Episcopal Church's General Convention. He is also on the executive committee of the board of directors of the General Theological Library in Boston.

Mrs. Martin is married to the former Priscilla Clark of Evanston. Mrs. Martin has been editor of the Diocese of Vermont's bi-monthly paper, the Mountain Echo. The Martins have one daughter, Candace, who has just completed her freshman year at Marlboro College.

Lutheran Convention Slide Report At Trinity

Rev. James Kimmell, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, will present a slide and tape report on the recent Lutheran Church of America Convention held in Baltimore.

The showing will take place on Sunday at the 9 a.m. worship service in the church.

Rev. Kimmell served as an advisor for the New England Synod Youth Delegation at the National Youth Convention. He prepared the young people for the issues to be discussed at the convention.

The following officials were elected at the convention:

Trinity Lutheran will return to its regular fall worship schedule on Sunday, Sept. 8 at 10 a.m.

Rev. Albert Bates To Direct Golden Rule Bible Class

Rev. Albert E. Bates of North Quincy will direct the Golden Rule Bible Class of Quincy.

The Bible Class was headed for 50 years by the late Dr. Carl H. Leander and for the past two years by Oliver F. Tatrow Jr. of Abington who is stepping down because of ill health.

Rev. Bates plans to put added emphasis on this work by having a Bible School Church, Worship Service, Young Peoples and Evening Soul-inspiring Service and a Singership.

He also plans to open a Coffee House Ministry to assist those young and older people with such problems as drugs, depression, alcohol. He will also work with Senior Citizens in the South Shore area, and young married couples.

Impact Study Shows

MBTA Gives Quincy More Balanced Economy Base

The beneficial impacts that rail rapid transit is having on the City of Quincy can be realized by other communities in the South Shore corridor by an extension to South Quincy and Braintree.

So says the final report of an impact study made for the MBTA by the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

The study encompassed the impacts of the line, which opened in September 1971, on traffic volumes and patterns, land use, and the economy of the city.

The economic impact study showed that the rail rapid transit line aided Quincy in changing its economic base from one dominated by manufacturing to a more balanced economy consisting of the new growth industries - service, finance and insurance - with more construction, new jobs, and more taxes. The new commercial and residential developments are located in areas adjacent to the transit stations, particularly at North Quincy and Quincy Center, and additional major development is expected to focus on these two sections of the city.

The land use impact study found that because Quincy prepared for the extension with programs for arterial roadway improvements, land development, and rezoning, the impacts of the rapid transit extension have been beneficial to the community.

Study data of traffic volumes and patterns [collected before last Winter's energy crisis] indicated that the transit extension's two-way ridership increased 55 percent from September 1971 [18,750] to November 1973 [28,990].

Of these riders:
 • 56 percent originated in Quincy, 11 percent in Weymouth, and nine percent in Braintree.

• The remaining 24 percent originated in several other South Shore communities.

• Almost one-half of the riders arrive at the stations by automobile.

• Eighty-one percent of the riders use the line to commute to work; nine percent to go to school; four percent for personal business trips, and the remaining six percent for shopping, recreation, or other purposes.

• Forty-five percent of the riders are new transit users and of these, two-thirds formerly drove to Boston and the other one-third had never made the trip before.

State Representative, Sheriff Races Local Features

30% Voter Turnout Predicted

By HENRY BOSWORTH

More than twice as many Quincy voters are expected to stay home than go to the polls in next Tuesday's Democratic and Republican state primaries.

City Clerk John Gillis predicts no more than 30 per cent of the city's 47,062 registered voters will cast ballots.

"And we'll be lucky if we get 30 percent," he adds. "There are no real big battles to bring the voters out. The interest just doesn't seem to be there."

He doesn't think the gubernatorial nomination races between Gov. Francis Sargent and Carroll Sheehan on the Republican side and Michael Dukakis and Atty. General Robert Quinn on the Democratic side have so far at least-generated enough steam to power many voters to the polls. And the fact Republicans could not produce candidates for seven offices—state treasurer, auditor, congressman, governor's councillor, state senator, Norfolk County district attorney and county commissioner—hasn't helped matters.

One Quincy name is on the state-wide ballot. Former Lt. Gov. Francis X. Bellotti is making a political comeback attempt as a Democratic candidate for attorney general and political observers will watch that outcome with considerable interest.

It will be the first election since Quincy was redistricted from three to four state representative districts.

There are only three local contests—all three Democratic—which seem to have created much voter interest.

Perhaps the best race of all is for the state representative seat in the First Norfolk District being vacated by Democrat Clifford H. Marshall to run for Norfolk County Sheriff.

Seeking the Democratic nomination are Robert A. Cerasoli, Patrick J. Faherty Jr., James P. Papile and Thomas F. Williams.

Cerasoli, Papile and Williams have staged an all-out door-to-door campaigns throughout the district which includes all of Ward 2, Precincts 1, 2, 5 of Ward 3 and Precincts 1 and 11 of North Weymouth. Little has been seen of Faherty, a retired businessman, however, who is ill.

Cerasoli is a former assistant to the Senate Committee on Rules; Papile an employee of the Mass. Electric Co., and Williams an attorney and real estate broker.

Winner Tuesday will face Summer H. Given of North Weymouth in the November final election. Given is running unopposed for the Republican nomination. The Quincy nominee, however, is expected to be the November winner, too.

Second best battle is at the county level with five Democrats—four of them from Quincy—seeking the nomination for sheriff.

5,166 last year.

This year, there are still more women than male voters by a 5,120 margin: 26,091 women have registered versus 20,971 men.

Both Democratic and Republican registration dipped by almost 1,000. Only the number of registered Independents has increased over last year.

The breakdown: Democrats, 25,915; Republicans, 8,270; Independents, 12,877.

HN Marsh Not To Be Flooded For At Least Year

The Houghs Neck Third Marsh controversy has been resolved - for at least one year.

The marsh will not be flooded during that time while tests are made.

Mayor Walter Hannon said this week that the decision was made at a recent meeting attended by Conservation Commission Chairman James Donahue, the commission's executive secretary Clara Yeomans, Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly and Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti.

Hannon noted that during that year, tests of tidal flow and tidal action would be conducted.

Several weeks ago, Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred Mahoney declared the flooding of the marsh "a serious health hazard" and refused, as commissioner, to allow any flooding.

The Conservation Commission, which supported the opening of a tidal gate in order to save the supposedly dying marsh, has now agreed to let the matter lie for one year.

QUINCY HERITAGE RESTORATION project at historic Hancock Cemetery involved spelling out the name of the cemetery in pieces of sod along the cemetery's entrance side next to Quincy City Hall. Workers here are from the Neighborhood Youth Corps. [NYC] and students in the Quincy Public Schools.

54 New Teachers

Enrollment Dips To 16,000 As School Bells Ring Out

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Fifty-four new teachers joined the Quincy Public School staff of over 1,000 in greeting approximately 16,000 elementary, junior high and high school students during opening day of the 1974-1975 school year, Wednesday.

Although enrollment falls short of last year's official registration of 16,203 students, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon said, "The downward trend is not a tremendously significant one."

Dr. Creedon did note that last year's kindergarten enrollment of 1,100 decreased by 100 pupils.

Three administrative offices are open and yet to be filled. Dr. Creedon said he hoped to fill the post of assistant principal at North Quincy High School - "obviously a key position," he noted - by the end of September.

Also vacant are the posts of an elementary school principal and a co-ordinator of Foreign Languages.

Nineteen of the 54 new teachers will instruct students with special needs in accordance with Chapter 766 which deals with the education of children with learning disabilities.

Obviously proud of his staff's work on the implementation of Chapter 766, Dr. Creedon said the state had lauded Chapter 766 developments generated in Quincy as "a significant contribution to the Commonwealth."

"It's very flattering to the people who worked towards the implementation of Chapter 766," he said.

Blames MDC Facilities

Brownell Seeks A.G.'s Action Against Quincy Bay Sewage

Rep. Thomas Brownell has requested the Attorney General's office to issue an official complaint against MDC pumping facilities in the Quincy area.

Brownell said the MDC pumping station facilities were "the only possible source of such great quantities of polluted water."

Brownell noted that over the Labor Day weekend, "large quantities of sewage discharges" appeared on Quincy Bay beaches, including Wollaston, Merrymount and Weymouth beaches.

He said he investigated the Merrymount beach area Sunday, finding "ample evidence of sludge on the water."

Although Brownell found no evidence of raw sewage, he did say, "The rancid odor was very bad." He also noted a red tinge - "like the red tide color" - in places along Wollaston Beach.

Allison Hayes, director and chief engineer of the city's sewage Division, said he was notified on Saturday that Weymouth beaches had been closed.

However, when he searched the Weymouth shore from the Fore River Bridge to the Back River Bridge, he said he found "no evidence of sewage."

Since he had not received any report of the closing of Wollaston Beach, he said he did not pay particular attention to that area during his investigation.

Hayes did say he was told "second or third hand" that Merrymount Assn. Planning Neighborhood Watch Program

Joseph Molloy and Janice Kelley of the Quincy Police Planning and Research Department will be the guest speakers at the Merrymount Association's general meeting tonight [Thursday] at 8:30 p.m., in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church parish hall.

Association President Paul C. Hussey will conduct the meeting.

Residential security will be discussed by Molloy and Miss Kelley with emphasis on organizing a "Neighborhood Watch" program in the Merrymount community.

The program has as its goal the reduction of house breaks and is designed to alert citizens, through the self-help program, to protect their own home and that of their neighbors.

In addition, Hussey said, various locks will be displayed by the speakers and a movie film will be shown to demonstrate the most effective way in which a home can be secured against illegal entry.

SURPRISE! - Twenty-eight neighborhood children attended a surprise party honoring a friend - respected and adored - Miss Evelyn Perley of Wollaston. Miss Perley, surrounded by the youngsters, wears the orchid corsage which they gave her. [Bob Persson Photo]

'Thank You!'

Miss Perley Gets A Surprise

Miss Evelyn Perley of 113 North Central Ave., Wollaston, was honored by a troop of 28 neighborhood children saying "thank-you" for her years of kindness to them.

Approximately 50 children and neighbors attended the Labor Day surprise party held at the home of Florence MacDougall of 109 North Central Ave.

Miss Perley, a graduate of Quincy High School and Massachusetts College of Art, worked at Rust Craft Greeting Cards, Inc. in Dedham until her retirement. She used to help the neighborhood children in making cards for all occasions. Children knew they were always welcome at her home.

The youngsters gave Miss Perley a clock radio and an orchid corsage, after enjoying a delicious and copious buffet. They all want to visit their long-time friend when she moves to the Eventide Home at the end of the week.

Changes In Voting Locations

City Clerk John Gillis announces two changes in voting locations.

During the state primaries on Sept. 10, voters in Ward 1, Precinct 1, who used to vote at Adams Academy, will now vote at Woodward School for Girls on Hancock St.

Voters in Ward 3, Precinct 4, who used to vote at the Lincoln School, will now vote at the Hancock-Lincoln School with entrance on Water St.

Polls open at 8 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Lydon Criticizes Unclean Conditions At Center MBTA Station

City Councillor John J. Lydon criticizes unclean conditions at the Quincy Center MBTA and says he has received a number of complaints.

In a letter to MBTA General Manager Joseph C. Kelly, Lydon declared:

"The problem, as I have seen it, seems to fall on the weekends. Whether or not a porter is stationed there or whether you need additional personnel in the area is a question I think that you have to resolve.

"Recently, the garage portion of the Quincy station has come under criticism by our Board of Health, inasmuch as urine saturated cement walls and other debris is prevalent in the garage area. I would state that it is not just the garage area which is not up to par with maintenance, but

LWV To Hold Handgun Panel

The Quincy League of Women Voters will sponsor a panel discussion on handgun control Sept. 11 at 8 p.m. in the second-floor cafeteria at State Street South, Newport Ave., North Quincy.

Panel members will include: Quincy Police Chief Francis X. Finn, Sam Davis of the Massachusetts Council on Crime and Correction and a representative of the Gun Owners' Action League of Burlington. A question-answer period will follow.

For further information contact Marie Caristi, 160 Davis St., Wollaston.

that the entire complex of the Quincy Center station needs much improvement.

"Recently, the City of Quincy entered into an agreement with the MBTA and has housed our Quincy Heritage Corp. at the Quincy Center station, which is a public projection and public image toward the upcoming 350th Bicentennial celebration. This is the first stopoff for visitors and tourists taking the MBTA to Quincy.

"To have these condition continue, I feel, would be wrong when merely an increase of maintenance and cleanliness will solve the problem.

"We have also seen, with the coming of the MBTA stations here in Quincy, an increase of calls being answered by our own Quincy Police Department. I would ask also, where the MBTA has their own police force, that increased surveillance be given to the Quincy Red Line."

Let girl keep posters

By DR. WILLARD
ABRAHAM
Copley News Service

Q. If a girl, aged 11, puts up posters all over her room about the beauty of the world and the need for people to get along with each other, and her father objects, should we force her to take them down? He says they are infantile and stupid. I say it's her business. What do you say?

A. I agree with you. Does she tell him what to take off the walls in his room?

Q. My mother is senile, I'm sure, and insists that our children call her "Nana." They think it's foolish, and I do too, but if they try to use any other word she corrects them and makes a big scene over it. I suppose we could just give in to her foolishness and avoid the arguments. What do you think?

A. Why don't you give in? And what makes you associate her request with senility? Most of us have a preference for what we'd like to be called by friends or family members. Why not respect her right to the same privilege? It's really not that unreasonable or unusual.

Q. Our little boy is 4½, and about six weeks ago he started having nightmares. I didn't know what was going on at first. He screamed my name and cried, and when I went to his room he moved into the corner of his bed and kept saying, "No, no."

I finally got him to settle down the first time so he could tell me what was wrong. He said he was dreaming that a car came down a hill and hit two children.

Sometimes he runs out of his bedroom, into the living room, all around in circles. When I try to comfort him he clings to me for a few seconds and then moves away nearly hysterical again. I keep asking him what's wrong, what he dreamt about, and he usually says, "I don't know."

It takes a few minutes to get him fully awake, and then he's fine. He has two or three nightmares every week, and it certainly upsets me.

A. Nightmares are not unusual in children your son's age. There are some additional things you can do about them.

Quiet time before he goes to sleep (for an hour or so), a nap or rest-time in the afternoon so he isn't too tired at night, and a warm bath in the evening may all be helpful.

Whatever you can do to make his bed time calm is a good idea. Providing comfort and a soothing manner when he has the nightmares should of course be continued.

Some people recommend tranquilizers or sedatives, but I'm skeptical about suggesting them.

Letters may be sent to Our Children, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column as space permits.

What kind of parent am I? Am I realistic in what I expect from my children? Send stamped return envelope to Dr. Abraham, P.O. Box 572, Scottsdale, AZ 85252 for information.

Today's Women

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY

Why mothers cry at weddings

By ANN RUDY

It is not surprising that Women's Lib has said nothing about the exclusion of mothers when it comes to giving the bride away.

Even the most militant female would not insist on walking her daughter down the aisle while father sits meekly in a front pew.

Nor would she consider walking their daughter down the aisle together to hand her over to the waiting groom on an equal basis. Because, over the years, practice has proved a woman's place is in the pew.

Equality be damned, the poor dear needs the rest. After all, a father simply has to sign checks and practice his two-step for the first dance with his daughter at the reception.

But a mother must give her daughter guidance and, as every mother knows, giving any girl over five years old guidance is an exhausting process.

By the time the head usher is ready to guide mama to her pew, she is not only ready to sit down, she may call for a sedan chair if the last few hours before the wedding have been too hectic.

Consider the case of a friend of mine whose daughter was married recently: everything was perfectly organized until the last minute when the best man backed out, the florist sent the wrong flowers and the wedding preceding theirs went into overtime.

This chain of events sent the mother into a state of glassy-eyed anxiety so acute she had to be introduced to her own husband. And, even then, she couldn't place him. This poor woman was in no condition to fight for the right to give her daughter away on an equal footing with her husband.

She was led quietly to a front pew where she wept softly until word was passed to her that the best man had shown up, the flowers had been exchanged and the other wedding party had cleared off the church steps.

So let it be known: mothers who cry at weddings are not always lamenting the loss of a daughter. Sometimes they are just regaining their composure.

Stay Alive!

PARENTS AND YOUNG DRIVERS

Young drivers [under 25] are involved in over twice as many accidents as any other age group. Traffic safety experts agree that the single most effective influence on improving their driving performance is parental control. Here are some of their suggestions:

Make sure your teen-ager takes advantage of a driver education course. Many schools offer them and they'll save you money on your insurance bill.

Most teenagers begin their driving in the family car. Don't be afraid to assert your authority from the start and be consistent. Learn to use the word "no" when you feel you should.

Make it your business to know teen drivers' whereabouts and how they behave on the road. Don't hesitate to restrict driving privileges when unsafe driving warrants such action.

Do your best to control drinking and driving by youthful drivers in your family. Alcohol is a factor in 71% of deaths of drivers under 21.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — The reaction from a hectic pace may leave you feeling depleted both emotionally and physically. Get lots of rest and use the time to plan for future action. Be open and cooperative with mate or partner — friendly.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Employees, coworkers and servants appear to be under stress. Be considerate and understanding. Take the time to do a project carefully — rushing it could lead to errors. Entertain interesting friends at home.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Make those contacts and move to achieve your personal desires. You're in fine form and mind works clearly. Pressures at home lift and domestic or real estate affairs show gain. Consider other's ideas carefully.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Review your financial picture with the aid of someone knowledgeable in these matters. Home improvement of work done in your home is accented now. Stick to a routine schedule in work matters — don't scatter energies.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Good time to contact authoritative persons who benefit you. Complete projects in process and add finishing touch to those in the planning stage. Be especially tolerant and fair in your dealings. Finances improve.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Do not despair if you seem to be misunderstood or blocked in your desires — it is temporary. Be discreet and conservative in your actions now. Romance coming now could be more illusion than reality.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Work alone and in seclusion for the most part this week. Curb tendency to be overly critical — you seem hung up on details. Intuition is very high now and your ideas are sharp and have merit. "Brain storm" with others.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant)

— Professional matters and social friends are equally important now — one helps the other. Stay in the middle of things so you are available for opportunities. Find the answer to a problem involving career.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — "Think before you speak" should be your motto now, especially in personal affairs. Agreements can be reached through careful discussion. Good time to spruce up your wardrobe and your home.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Prepare for the possibility of being in the public eye soon by adding to your wardrobe and personal appearance. Complete projects in process and attend to routine tasks. Good time to start a study program.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — You may be confused and somewhat unrealistic regarding financial matters now. Exercise patience and logic regarding work and associates. Publicity, advertising, writing are all favored. Goals are defined.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Pay attention to all public relations matters — put your best foot forward. Use logic and practical thought regarding publicity and advertising. Follow your intuitive hunches. Romance could blossom now.

Who should play Gable, Lombard?

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — Warren Harris, the young writer whose first book, "Gable and Lombard," is selling like tickets to the premiere of "Gone With The Wind," says Paramount has approached him about turning the volume into a movie with Peter Bogdanovich directing.

"They want Burt Reynolds to play Gable," says Harris, "and they're talking about Faye Dunaway for Lombard."

Faye Dunaway! He's gotta be joking!! "Well," says Harris, "a couple of years ago there was talk of making a picture about Gable and Lombard with Sandy Dennis as Lombard. And that would have been worse."

He's right. It would have been worse.

"Goldie Hawn has the personality to play Lombard," the young writer continues, "but she doesn't look right for the part."

Right again. In fact, I'm not so sure Burt Reynolds is right for Gable though he has the screen virility of The King.

What do you think? Who'd be your choices for Gable and Lombard in a movie based loosely on their lives and love?

Meanwhile, I'm wondering when Loretta Young is going to file a suit because of the mention she gets in Harris' book.

"I haven't heard from her," says Harris. "After all, I didn't make statements about her as fact. I just said that certain things were rumored."

Myrna Loy who was "very cooperative," Harris says, when he was gathering material for the book, refused to attend a party in his honor after she read it.

"She told me the story about Tracy's drinking that I used," the author explains, "but I think she was sorry I used it."

The commotion's over on "The Hawaii Five-O" set where, for a few days recently, there was more excitement and suspense off camera than on.

Thanks to the scripts, thugs, thieves and killers have never been able to do away with Steve McGarrett, the cop-hero of the show, but, because contention between Jack Lord and the producer, Lord, who plays McGarrett, almost left the action.

The controversy which started over a small point got bigger and bigger until it looked like either Lord or the producer was going to go — probably Lord.

Happily peace was restored when no less than the lieutenant governor of Hawaii mediated.

Jack and his series have meant a lot to the islands not to mention to his fans who seem to be legion.

● Market Report

Still Plenty Of Native Corn

Rumors of the demise of the native Massachusetts sweet corn crop have grown almost faster than the corn this summer - and they're all premature, reports the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture [MDA] this week.

Output has been steady, and is expected to be even more plentiful now that the fields have had some good rain. Roadside farm stands and produce counters should be well supplied with fresh bi-colored corn right now, and picking will continue until the first severe frost, according to the experts.

As the weather cools, the kernels hold their sugar content longer, so sweet corn in the early fall is very much a reality.

If you have the freezing capacity at home, this week and next should be an excellent time to buy corn by the box from your nearby farm stand.

An excellent pamphlet on choosing, preparing and freezing corn is available from the MDA. The process is quite simple, but we'll leave the details to the instruction booklet.

You can request the pamphlet, "Massachusetts Sweet Corn" by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Division of Markets, MDA, 100 Cambridge St., Boston 02202.

Freezing corn yourself retains all the goodness of the fresh-picked ears, and should come out even better than the commercially-frozen corn marketed through the winter. But before committing a large supply, you can test the process: freeze half a dozen ears, and try them in a week or ten days. Then - go for full production.

Tomatoes Plentiful

Massachusetts fresh tomatoes are plentiful this week, says the MDA, though the supply will taper off shortly, with higher prices fairly certain. If you plan some canning of red tomatoes, your best opportunity is right now.

Many Good Buys

Still good buys at farm stands throughout the Bay State are green cabbage, beans, cucumbers and pickling cukes, eggplant, Boston and Salad Bowl lettuce, green peppers, yellow and zucchini squash, and Swiss chard. The latter is very well priced currently, and makes a good substitute for spinach. It is somewhat milder than spinach, which is more costly right now. It is cooked the same way. Look for it at roadside stands and market produce counters this week.

Family Planning Parents Discussion Sept. 16

As part of their Community Education program, the Quincy Family Planning Project, the Weymouth Youth Office and the Family Service Association of Greater Boston are sponsoring a seven week discussion series to help parents answer questions raised by their teenage sons and daughters.

The meetings will be held on Monday mornings from 10 to 11:30 a.m., starting Sept. 16, at the Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St., Quincy.

The meetings will provide an opportunity for parents to talk over questions with each other and a family counselor. Learning about teenager's emotional development and how to improve communication between parents and children is the main purpose of the series.

John Eaton of the Family Service Association of Greater Boston and Gloria Burke of the Weymouth Youth Office will be the leaders.

No fee will be charged for those participating. Enrollment will be limited so anyone interested in participating in the group must contact the following by Sept. 11 - John Eaton of the Family Service Association of Greater Boston at 471-0630; Gloria Burke of the Weymouth Youth Office at 843-1735; or Norma Barriere of the Quincy Family Planning Project at 471-1321.

Social Activities, Courses Listed At 1000 Southern Artery

Fall classes at 1000 Southern Artery begin on Monday, Sept. 30.

This year's schedule features courses ranging from decoupage to quilting to pool lessons for women to contract bridge. Some classes are free, some require no registration, but others - sponsored by the Quincy School Department - carry a registration fee.

Anyone interested in registering for courses may do so at the Senior Center Office from 9 a.m. until noon or from 1 to 4 p.m.

The Fountain Photo Club will open its 1974-1975 season tonight [Thursday] with a slide show entitled "Memories of Yesteryear". Miss Marion Belcher has prepared the show and will present it in the auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Membership dues for the year may be paid during the evening.

The Club is also sponsoring a bus trip to Heritage Plantation on Saturday. Luncheon will be served at Bert's Restaurant in Plymouth. The bus leaves Southern Artery at 10:30 a.m.

Rev. Edward Nowlan S.J. will be the emcee for Peg Cavanagh's Variety Show Sunday at 8 p.m. in the auditorium. Rev. Philip Moriarty S.J. will play the piano.

On Tuesday, Sept. 10 Joe Lamparelli will be the featured entertainer at the monthly birthday party. The party will begin at 2 p.m. in the auditorium.

The next afternoon, John R. Graham, director of Quincy Heritage, will present a program in the auditorium at 2 p.m. entitled, "Quincy's Pride: Patriots, Presidents and Possibilities." The presentation includes slides narrated by Win Bettinson of WJDA.

Margaret Phelan, an active volunteer at Southern Artery, will show slides which she took of Mexico City - 1000's destination in November. The presentation will begin at 2 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 12 in the auditorium. Reservations are still being accepted for the seven-day sightseeing tour to Mexico City.

Although the bus is full for the scheduled trip to Onset on Friday, Sept. 13, anyone interested in taking the three-hour cruise of Cape Cod Canal can drive or ride in a car to Onset. Contact the Senior Center Office if interested.

A program is planned for Tuesday, Sept. 17 at 2 p.m. in the activity room to explain the Diet Workshop course offered this fall. Lea Allen will show slides and explain how the Diet Workshop can help.

Three films have been scheduled for this month, one being shown during the day.

On Monday, Sept. 9 at 7:30 p.m., "High Society" will be shown. Bing Crosby, Grace Kelly and Frank Sinatra star.

On Monday, Sept. 23 at 7:30 p.m., the comedy "The Long, Long Trailer" starring Lucille Ball, Desi Arnaz, Marjorie Main and Keenan Wynn will be shown.

On Thursday, Sept. 26 at 2 p.m. the National Geographic film "Voyage of the Brigantine Yankee" will be shown by Linda Beeler of the Thomas Crane Public Library staff.

All movies will be shown in the auditorium.

HELPING HANDS - Residents of 1000 Southern Artery prepare muscular dystrophy coinboards which will be distributed to merchants and organizations throughout Plymouth County for the annual Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America (MDAA) campaign. Third row, Marion Curran, Fred Paris, Muriel Trotman, Mildred Harriman, Ethel Butterfield and Harry Weinbaum. Missing from photo are Mike Folan, Julia Shine, Ethel Garfield and Alfretha Lester who also gave of their time and energy.

WHAT ABOUT RETIREMENT?

How Are Widow's Benefits Decided?

By FRANK CORRICK

Q. I received $398.10 in Social Security benefits before the 4 per cent increase. If I should die my wife, who is 74 and has no Social Security of her own would like to know how much she would receive? — H.G.R.

A. The $398.10 is a combined benefit payable to you and your wife. Without knowing how much of that amount is payable to each of you, it is not possible to compute the exact amount of the widow's benefit. Your Social Security office has a record of the amounts payable to each of you and can supply you with accurate information if you call them.

A Story about the self-employed, retirement, and Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The Self-Employed. If you're a part of a corporation, retirement plans are usually a principle benefit.

But what about the self-employed?

In the past, he's had to fend for himself. While the corporation could always set aside tax-free dollars to provide retirement funds, it wasn't until recently that the independent individual has been able to do the same.

Retirement. When in 1967 Congress passed the Keough Act it suddenly became legitimate for the self-employed to set aside tax-sheltered dollars for his own retirement.

Colonial Federal Savings' Role.

Now, he can contribute up to $7,500 or 15% of earned income -- whichever is less.

The plan also takes care of your principle employees.

It's very easy to start a retirement plan. It's simply a matter of completing a few short forms. Various types of Savings and Loan Association Retirement plans have full Internal Revenue Service approval for self-employed people as well as their employees.

Under retirement plans of this sort there are specific requirements as to the kinds of investment that can be used.

Security. The Savings and Loan Association is probably your best consideration since perhaps you'd be interested in the kind of investment that will provide the highest possible return with the greatest possible security.

Competent studies have recently shown that savings and loan accounts may be more advantageous in a variety of ways than are AAA corporate bonds. . . in fact, studies have shown that the savings and loan accounts can produce a higher average yield.

Come to Colonial Federal for a detailed account.

Kelly Cites Public Works, Improvements

Ward 1 Councillor Leo J. Kelly, chairman of the Council Committee on Public Works, has presented a progress report to Political Advertisement

members of the council

In reviewing activities of the past year he points out after two years of discussion, debate, modification Quincy's Topics Program Number 3 representing over a million dollars in traffic improvement was resolved.

Kelly said in his report:

"This program means that the entire traffic corridor between Sea St. at Quincy Shore Drive to the Fore River Circle will have a safer, easier traffic flow.

"Traffic improvements, for example, along Washington St. will provide signalization at new locations including St. Joseph's Church. These are major improvements at Washington St. and the Southern Artery, combined with ongoing neighborhood improvements and business property improvements on Washington St., are substantially upgrading Quincy Point.

"Again, after much planning, discussion, conflict and change, your support and assistance on the Committee on Public Works helped finalize the $950,000 dredging program in the Blacks Creek Basin.

"Our action on this much needed flood control and recreation program means the people of West Quincy and those along the Furnace Brook Parkway have a much greater chance to avoid the perils of flooding in their neighborhoods. It also means that the young and old from throughout Quincy can be assured that our community boating program will operate successfully in the future as a result of the dredging program.

"Even one or two more years silting in the Blacks Creek Basin without this dredging could have killed a recreation activity enjoyed by thousands of Quincy youngsters over the years. Your actions helped save this program.

"The Committee on Public Works also took final action this past session to acquire 10 acres of open space in Germantown; to finalize land transfers for Newport Ave. Extension; to initiate land taking procedures for land at the Quincy City Hospital; and to start the demolition of blighted property at the corner of Washington St. and the Southern Artery.

"In short it was a busy and productive session; a session which produced $1.7 million in outside financial aid for needed public works projects in Quincy and started the ball rolling in several other areas.

"Your participation and assistance on the committee was vital and appreciated. You can be proud of these accomplishments for our city. As we look forward to a new work session I seek your continued support and assistance," Councillor Kelly concluded.

Mike Dukakis should be Governor because we don't have to put up with the deals, compromises and cronies on Beacon Hill.

Brownell Seeks A.G.'s Action Against Quincy Bay Sewage

lifeguards at Wollaston Beach had urged swimmers to use the other end of the beach since there was, Hayes said, "an accumulation of sewage near Black's Creek."

Hayes continues, "This problem goes back to last Wednesday's and Thursday's storms during which we got a good amount of rainfall. I can only surmise what happened."

Hayes suggested that storm water drains - idle since the last large storm on July 5 - had plugged up with sewage and that the storm flushed out the accumulation in the pipes.

Noting the difficulty in pinpointing the cause of such a discharge, Hayes said, "We'd like to know ourselves what happened. But after the fact, it's difficult to find out what happened during the fact."

Brownell said he believes the MDC pumping facilities are at fault. Citing past problems with discharge from MDC facilities, Brownell told The Quincy Sun, "People have been more than patient with the problem. But the situation is getting worse, not better."

He said he had taken "both color photographs and water samples" of the "deplorable conditions" in the area and would make this evidence available to the Attorney General's office.

Brownell urged the environmental protection division of the attorney general's office to enjoin the MDC "from making dumpages of this kind in the future" and to require the MDC to give prior public notice of large sewage discharges.

"If the MDC has to discharge material during an emergency situation, there should at least be some prior warning so people can stay out of the water," Brownell said.

Hayes said that water samples of the Wollaston Beach area had been taken over the weekend but the results had not yet reached his office. Wollaston Beach, nonetheless, has not been closed.

Brownell Seeks Cause Of Samoset Ave. Flooding

Rep. Thomas Brownell has requested the Quincy Engineering Department to conduct "an immediate survey" to pinpoint the cause of recent flooding on Samoset Ave., Merrymount.

Engineer Edward Leone said that he would "certainly cooperate", but as a matter of procedure, he said the request for a survey must come from James J. Ricciuti, Commissioner of Public Works or from Mayor Walter Hannan.

Brownell said that in his opinion, the flooding should not have occurred and that "some condition in or around the area" caused the flooding.

Leone said he had transferred Brownell's request to the Department of Public Works, but he could not indicate when survey would be conducted.

Beltone Hearing Aid Service Opens New Downtown Office

The Beltone Hearing Aid Service has opened a new office at 1474 Hancock St., Quincy, announces Eric B. Parker, local authorized dealer for Beltone Electronics Corporation.

Chicago-based Beltone is world leader in hearing aids and electronic hearing test instruments.

Parker said the new office location was selected to permit his dealership to provide continually improving service to the hard-of-hearing persons on the South Shore and also for the convenience of his customers.

The new office is fully equipped to provide electronic hearing evaluations, as well as complete repair facilities for all makes of hearing aids.

To commemorate the event, a "GRAND OPENING CELEBRATION" has been planned for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 9, 10 and 11, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Parker said free gifts will be distributed, door prizes given away and refreshments will be served. All hearing aid batteries will be on sale at half price [battery limit one pack].

Quincy Public Schools recently acquired use of St. John's School whose last class graduated in June. Dr. Crendon said the second floor of the building will be used as an early childhood education center consolidating all such centers in the city. The first floor will be retained by St. John's Church.

Last year, North Quincy High School was in danger of losing its accreditation from the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools because of lack of classroom space. According to Dr. Crendon, the school's two-year accreditation expired at the end of the 1973-1974 school year. Another accreditation application has been submitted to the association, he said.

Although the official decision will not be made until the association's annual meeting in December, Dr. Crendon said that he would know the association's decision before that time.

He noted that negotiations are in process over the price of land designated as the likely site of a new North Quincy High School. The plot of land being considered is located at the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

In the meantime, Dr. Crendon reported that the state has approved the educational specifications for the new building based on a 2000-student capacity. These specifications, he emphasized, do not include any architectural plans for the school but consist of bounded volumes delineating the name of each course of study to be offered, the number of students to be enrolled in the course, as well as the time of meeting.

Speaking of the accreditation decision, Dr. Crendon said, "I don't think that the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools will accredit North Quincy High unless there is an action by the City Council to take the land designated as a building site for a new school."

He continued, "The Council is certainly not dragging its feet. There is no official order before them yet."

Dr. Crendon hopes, however, that the association will grant North Quincy High School a three to five year accreditation.

Last Wednesday, the first day of a three-day orientation program for new teachers, Dr. Crendon addressed his 54 new staff members. Recalling the educational philosophy of Quincy's first superintendent Col. Francis W. Parker, Dr. Crendon told the teachers that Parker called his staff "a heroic band of teachers gathered together for the study of education."

Addressing his new staff members, Dr. Crendon said, "This is true even today. You teachers are students of education."

"You entered into a profession of service, of giving more than you receive," he said. "It is a beautiful calling. I'm excited about it. I'm in love with it. And I invite you not only to share that love but to cultivate yourself through seeds of service to the 1,600 young people in whose education you now share with a full measure of responsibility."

Bellotti: 'If Elected I Can Change Things'

Francis X. Bellotti, 50-year-old candidate for Massachusetts attorney general, describes his view of government as "simple and uncomplicated."

"The purpose of government," he said, "is to make sure the quality of life is reasonably maintained." He continued:

"No one wanted change until a few years ago. But with the high cost of living - which I consider to be a central issue in the campaign - people want change."

Educated at Boston English High School, Tufts and Boston College Law School, the Quincy Democrat was the state's lieutenant governor, elected in 1962. Two years later he was the Democratic nominee for governor but lost the election to John Volpe. In 1966, Bellotti was his party's choice for attorney general but lost to Republican Elliott Richardson.

Now, in 1974, making his second bid for the office of attorney general, Bellotti says: "This is my time. I've got a new feeling...the best feeling I've had...I have more broadly-based support. If I'm elected I can change things."

Bellotti, who says that he does not believe in campaign slogans, sees the squelching of organized crime as "a matter of organization, desire and priorities."

He pledged: "As attorney general, I will launch a drive against organized crime in conjunction with the district attorneys of Massachusetts, the proportions of which have not been seen before" in the state.

Bellotti also advocates the spending of federal funds not on voluminous studies of police departments but on actual improvements: new equipment, increased salaries and increased manpower.

If elected attorney general, Bellotti said he would attack "the more sophisticated forms of discrimination" such as discrimination because of sex and age.

In 1965, he sponsored the first bill in the country prohibiting discrimination against women in employment.

If elected, he said he would create a Division for Women's Rights within the department of the attorney general, in order to enforce already-existing laws and especially to pursue equality in the area of loans. Bellotti said:

"It's impossible for a married woman to establish credit on her own. This area is just not being handled well."

Bellotti called the plight of the elderly "one of the tragedies of our society." He feels that unkept promises for improved elderly housing need investigation.

He also advocates tighter, more rigid control over utility companies, introducing meaningful adversary hearings to represent the people during rate-setting procedures.

Bellotti said he also seeks to protect the people by installing "an educational program in consumerism" - a program which would "be open 24 hours a day, seven days a week" to answer consumer questions promptly.

"The attorney general needs to move aggressively and forcefully, superimposing his personality on the operation of the office," he said.

Bellotti also supports the passing of a mandatory prison sentence for the illegal possession or theft of firearms. He feels, too, that the present furlough system needs revamping. He would require inmates in the maximum security prison (Walpole) to earn a transfer to the minimum security prison (Norfolk) before the granting of a furlough.

Although Bellotti said that ideologically he favors the death penalty for the commission of certain crimes, he called the issue "a make-believe one." "It is not for the attorney general to say," he commented.

Bellotti, an active trial lawyer, is trying to devote most of his time to campaigning. "I may get caught up in one or two cases, but the last case I tried was in April."

Denying any aspirations for the governorship, Bellotti said, "I address myself to the office of attorney general."

Pessimistically, Bellotti noted "an erosion of what a true democracy ought to be."

"We are at a special and tragic time in our country," he noted. "Bad things have surfaced."

Yet, optimistically, he concluded, "Now is the time to try and build again."

Dukakis Sees Patronage, Economy, Judicial Reform, Transit Top Issues

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Michael Dukakis, Democratic candidate for governor, has pledged to eliminate the "patronage system" of appointment which he claims is infesting Governor Sargent's administration.

"There is a political system in the state...that has destroyed people's confidence in government," said the Brookline-born, 41-year-old Dukakis in a visit to The Quincy Sun. "It's a patronage system, a political buddies system, that lessens the quality and competence of state government."

Labelling the present administration a "third rate government," Dukakis cited this system of favoritism as contributing to the financial "waste, mismanagement, and flabbiness" in the present state government.

"Apparently Massachusetts is the only state to face a major budget deficit in 1975," he said.

Criticizing Governor Sargent's "lack of personal attention" in the area of job and economic development, the former legislator said, "Passing bills, by itself, doesn't do a blessed thing."

Dukakis also criticized Sargent's cabinet, saying, "No one has come out of a business-economic background." He dubbed the coupling of Sargent and his cabinet "a fatal combination."

Dukakis emphasized that the next governor must focus upon economic development as his "principal concern." Describing present economic planning "haphazard and ineffective," Dukakis accused the state government of failing to create "the kind of climate in which business and investment can be encouraged and our citizens can be reasonably guaranteed decent employment."

To alleviate the state's economic sluggishness, Dukakis has prescribed a strict diet of rational, planned budgeting linked to the state's actual rate of economic growth. He has also called for the end of "mindless scatterization" of businesses throughout the state and would outline "a comprehensive master plan for the state's physical and economic growth."

In addition, Dukakis would seek to improve the effectiveness of the state's job training and placement program. Commenting that thousands of young people enter adult life jobless and untrained, Dukakis said:

"The solution to this problem is wholly administrative. It needs no new legislation."

Dukakis would also "seek out and aggressively recruit" new business for the state. He has supported, too, a change in the corporate tax structure which would provide a tax credit for business in exchange for the creation of new jobs.

Dukakis was elected to the House of Representatives in 1962 and served there for eight years. In 1967 his colleagues in the legislature voted him the year's Outstanding Legislator.

Dukakis feels that his "tough and independent-minded" stance in the House will help him to change things in Massachusetts, if he is elected governor:

"It's easier to change things," he said, "when you've had experience and have demonstrated you can be effective without being swallowed up by the political buddies system."

His major victory in the House came when the Legislature passed his innovative no-fault insurance bill in 1970. He left the House that same year, entering the race for lieutenant governor.

Dukakis won both the convention endorsement and the primary but in November, as part of the White-Dukakis ticket, the Democrats were defeated by the Republican incumbent.

Since then Dukakis has established volunteer, consumer research groups which have investigated the strengths and weaknesses of state agencies such as the Insurance Division, Mass. Port Authority and the Outdoor Advertising Board.

As of mid-August, Dukakis had raised $300,000 in campaign funds through 6,000 individual contributions. "Every dime has been reported," he said. He said he has refused to accept contributions from state employees and lobbyists. "Chances are we'll be walking into office with no promises, no debts, no strings," he noted.

Second only to the economy on Dukakis' list of priorities is the issue of judicial reform. He has co-sponsored legislation seeking a constitutional amendment to create what he calls "an independent, non-partisan commission" of nine men who would screen applicants for judgement. If the amendment is passed, the Governor's Council - which Dukakis calls "an arena for the payment of political debts" - could be abolished.

Dukakis also favors the phasing out of the special judgeship system of part-time judges. This system must be replaced, he said, by a staff of full-time qualified judges.

Dukakis' third priority is transportation. He lambasted Sargent's $300 million proposal to construct a third tunnel under Boston Harbor "just so people can get to Logan five minutes faster." He said that a project such as the building of a new Fore River Bridge is "the kind of project we should be spending our time on."

Dukakis advocates the completion of highway projects in central Massachusetts and "substantial additional aid" to towns and cities for road and road-related purposes. He wants the state to "get moving with transit" and to "avoid the constant ripping up of highways at an incredible cost." He added:

"By getting 10-15 per cent of the cars off the highways, we could loosen up traffic congestion."

Dukakis has also suggested the development of high-speed rail transportation in the northeast instead of the expansion of facilities at Logan Airport. Citing the fact that "fully half" of the flights out of Logan are bound for New York, Philadelphia, and other northeastern cities, Dukakis said that the high-speed rail - already in use in Europe and in the Far East - could eliminate the need for these flights, transporting passengers from downtown Boston to downtown New York "in less than 90 minutes."

Dukakis has proposed an alternative to forced busing, an alternative which he now feels is inevitable because of the recent Supreme Court decision handed down in the Detroit ruling.

The proposed plan would establish de-centralized community control of Boston schools as well as integrated educational experiences through busing to "resource centers" such as museums and zoos. Dukakis said:

"The resource center puts something of interest at the end of the bus ride."

If elected, Dukakis hopes to nurture a new relationship between the governor and the legislature.

"This endless squabbling between governor and legislature has got to stop," said Dukakis. "It's one way to increase the people's confidence in state government."

3 Council At-Large Seats Open Next Year?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

There hasn't been a ballot cast in this year's state primaries yet and already the local Speculation corps is looking ahead to next year's city election.

And, if you're politically inclined, try these on for size:

All three council at-large seats could be up for grabs next year. Two have been previously reported here as good possibilities: Joseph LaRaia vacating to run for mayor and Arthur Tobin stepping out because of his increased duties as he rises in power in the Senate.

Now, try this one: If County Commissioner George McDonald is elected sheriff, insiders think that Councilor John Quinn may be named to fill his unexpired term.

The fact that there will be one, two, or three council at-large seats open next year could, in turn, create a couple of open ward seats. Most likely to seek those open at-large seats would be Ward 3's John Lydon, Ward 4's James Sheets and Ward 5's Warren Powers.

Then, of course, if Ward 2 Councilor Clifford Marshall should be elected sheriff, that seat would probably open up.

Never a dull moment in politics.

SPEAKING OF NEXT year's council at-large action, you may see a familiar name on the ballot: Charles L. Shea. But it won't be Charles L. Shea Jr., former Ward 1 councillor and one-time mayorality contender.

It would be his son, Charles L. Shea, III. The latter, who is 18, graduated from Boston College High School and will be entering U.-Mass., Boston majoring in political science.

His father, remembered as a political pepper-pot in the council which he left in 1963, is now an assistant in the legislative research bureau. If his son is a chip off the old block, his political debut could be quite interesting.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: The plaque unveiled last June at the Houghs Neck fire station in memory of Mrs. Dorothy Rae who for 20 years as a traffic supervisor had religiously guarded Atherton Hough School youngsters crossing the street, was made by the Hancock Monument Co., North Quincy.

Quincy Public Works Commr. James J. Ricciuti who co-owns the firm with his brothers, did the job at cost—$145. They didn't make a penny on it.

After receiving the check, however, Ricciuti and his brothers sent it back. The money will go into the Dorothy Rae Scholarship Fund established by the Houghs Neck Community Council.

"Mrs. Rae did a tremendous amount of good for the kids, always being watchful of their welfare," says Ricciuti. "It's the least we could do."

WHENEVER Mayor Walter Hannon has gone out of state, he has written a letter to Council President Arthur Tobin which reads something like, "I hereby appoint you as acting mayor during my absence..."

Last week Tobin, and his wife Shirley, accompanied their son, Arthur, 18, to South Bend, Ind., where young Tobin has entered Notre Dame.

Before they left, Tobin wrote a letter to Hannon saying, "I hereby appoint you as mayor during my absence..." Hannon got a big charge out of it.

Incidentally, young Tobin looks like he may be following in his father's footsteps. He's majoring in government and law.

AND SPEAKING OF sons, Councilor Clifford Marshall is quite proud of the three young hockey players in the family. In one game just recently Paul, 7, scored seven goals for the Mite Yellows, Mike 9, got four goals and three assists for the Squirt Greens and Chuck, 11, came up with three goals and two assists for the Pee Wee Greens.

SCHOOL COMMITTEEMAN Frank McCauley is Quincy coordinator for Josiah Spaulding's campaign for the Republican attorney general nomination. McCauley is a member of the Republican City Committee.

IF YOU'RE WONDERING where your money goes, you might ask yourself: What money? According to the current Readers Digest the 1940 dollar was worth 31 cents in 1973 and it is estimated, it is now worth 29 cents.

Cut The Fat, Can The Baloney

EDITOR, Quincy Sun:

Would that Quincy's "business-like government" could cease hitching its cart before the horse [putting a phony budget ahead of delivery of basic services.]

Federal or state largess is calculatingly garnered mostly for further patronage proliferation, regardless of performance. Every project has its czar, imposed by the polls. And volunteers are organized to death. Thus, there are few examples of "magnificent obsession" [putting service to others above self, without acclaim.] Economy is tossed out as press releases flow from typewriters.

When taxes are hiked, citizens are not fooled by the relativity of the final amount. Slick ballyhoo statements of "fiscal responsibility" and "budgetary efficiency" are typical coverups for the continuous shell-game of fund transfers, played at every council meeting.

We are aware that garbage collections, hospital morale, and cemetery peace were eliminated while rank, new, cushy jobs were created. The nepotism involved taints any qualifying standards of civil service. Public servants should serve, not boss, nor participate in land grabs.

Give us a look at the books. We want Quincy's bonded indebtedness itemized in categories and published like a corporation report. Willy-nilly, taxpayers are stockholders of their government. We demand a fair return on our investment.

Likewise, politicians' real estate should be publicly listed with assessments openly evaluated on the same basis as ordinary taxpayers' holdings. Under our Constitution, none can be above the law.

The economy is such that each can eat, only if we share our "loaves and fishes". It's high time to cut the fat and can the baloney.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Procrastination...A Destroyer'

Doug was a Real Estate and Insurance man. He was mediocre ... didn't really fail ... neither did he have much to point to as success. He was a good looking fellow ... 45 and graying. His wife, Blanche, was average in education ... in looks ... somewhat ambitious ... and very unhappy. She wanted more in life and blamed Doug for not providing it.

"He's lazy" ... she blurted out. "He doesn't get out in the mornings until after 10:00 ... he comes back home for lunch ... he doesn't call back on his telephone calls. He leaves everything to tomorrow ... or to me. I'm tired of covering for him."

Doug came up with some lame excuses for the charges Blanche had made ... which he knew ... and I knew ... and Blanche knew were only excuses. The truth is that Doug had been the same way since boyhood. He was the youngest of four boys. His mother had protected him ... having chores done by his older brothers. "Douglas is too little" ... his mother would explain. Now at 45 Douglas is following the same script ... "someone else will do it". He procrastinates ... delays ... "leaves undone what he ought to have done" as the prayer reads. It's his way of life.

Of course ... there are some people who have learned to use the technique of delay deliberately advantageously. Laymen become very disgusted with the way many lawyers work ... the delays ... the waiting ... reaction rather than acting. There are times when this may be to the client's advantage. It's a way of working in the legal profession. In a home ... in relationship ... procrastination can be destructive.

Another reason for procrastination is INDECISIVENESS ... the fear to make decisions (decidophobia). This often results when parents are too overwhelming ... too controlling. This was another of Doug's problems. His mother was not only over protective ... she was also domineering. The boy was afraid to make a decision or take an action for fear "it would be wrong" in his mother's eyes.

Doug is learning now at his middle years to overcome the misguided parental "over-care" of his earlier life. How is he learning? First ... by planning his day. Up at 7:00 ... good breakfast ... telephone calls pertaining to his Insurance work ... then he's out and keeping appointments. He tries to lunch with business friends for more exposure. More telephone calls ... more appointments. He's working two evenings each week. His insurance business has doubled this past month.

Secondly ... Doug is facing up to himself ... instead of letting himself be lazy he is pushing himself. At first he was overdoing it ... the new thrill which he felt at the new successes he was having was so exhilarating. Now he's learning to pace himself.

The third benefit is the greatly improved relationship with Blanche. Blanche is proud of the changes in Doug ... and she tells him so. "I never dreamed he could come alive as he has" ... she said. "He's so much fun to be with now." They go dancing each Saturday night ... take a week-end vacation three or four times a year. Their lives have changed. Whatever destroys people ... or a marriage is an enemy. Doug saw this ... and took action in time.

"NELSON, DROP THE NICKNAME 'ROCKY'"

[Cont'd from Page 1]

The five are Paul E. Barry, a Mass. Electric Co., employee, Alan J. Boyd, Registry of Motors inspector, Deputy Sheriff John H. Brownell, Rep.-City Councillor Clifford H. Marshall and County Commissioner George B. McDonald. All but Boyd are Quincy residents. Boyd, a Braintree resident, formerly lived in Quincy.

Winner will meet incumbent Charles W. Hedges in November. Hedges is unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Ranked third in voter local interest is the Democratic Third Norfolk District state representative contest where incumbent Joseph E. Brett is seeking his ninth term.

Challenging him are Mrs. Mary P. Collins, Squantum mother of four and active woman's club member and Ward 6 City Councillor Dennis E. Harrington.

The big question: Can Harrington do it again?

Harrington, unseated Councillor J. Vincent Smyth a year ago after running against him two years before that. But with Mrs. Collins in the race, Harrington's chances of an upset would seem to be reduced with the pair splitting anti-Brett votes.

The winner will meet Jens E. Thornton, Squantum conservationist and frequent candidate, in the November runoff. He is unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, seeking a second term, is opposed by Fred A. Sisti for the Democratic nomination in the Second Norfolk District. Sisti, some years back, came close to winning the Ward 3 City Council seat. There is no Republican candidate.

Rep. William D. Delahunt, running for a second term, is unopposed for the Democratic nomination in the Fourth Norfolk District. Mrs. Joyce Baker, president of the Quincy Women's Republican Club, has no competition for the Republican nomination. They will square off in the November final.

Herbert Reppucci, running as an Independent, is not on either ballot next Tuesday. He will meet both Delahunt and Mrs. Baker in the November final election.

Without a single ballot being cast, Senator Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy] and Dist. Atty. George G. Burke of Quincy can consider themselves re-elected.

Neither Tobin nor Burke has any competition for the Democratic nomination and no Republican is running for either post.

For the first time in 16 years, Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] has a challenger. He's Boston City Councillor Joseph M. Tierney who has been working at it but is given little chance of upsetting the powerful incumbent. There is no Republican running.

County Commissioner Thomas K. McManus [D-Norwood] is opposed by James J. Heggie Jr., of Canton. There is no Republican candidate.

Governor's Councillor Patrick J. McDonough, seeking re-election in the Fourth District which includes Quincy, is opposed for the Democratic nomination by Charles E. Carroll and John A. Hart both of Boston and Edward W. Owens Jr., of Weymouth. No Republican is running.

Of the state-wide contests, one of the most interesting for Quincy voters is the six-man scramble for the Democratic nomination for attorney general.

One of the six is Francis X. Bellotti of Wollaston, former lieutenant governor who came close to unseating Gov. John Volpe in 1964 and bowed to Republican Elliott Richardson for attorney general in 1966.

Bellotti is considered the front-runner by most political experts this year but is up against some strong competition in Norfolk County Register of Deeds Barry T. Hannon of Braintree; Edward F. Harrington, supervisory attorney in the Criminal Division, State Department of Justice;

Governor's Councillor Edward M. O'Brien of Easthampton; Somerville Mayor S. Lester Ralph and former Rep. George L. Sacco of Medford.

There's also a good three-man race for the Republican attorney general nomination: Dover Selectman Charles C. Cabot Jr., former Asst. Atty. Gen. William I. Cowin and Manchester's Josiah A. Spaulding.

Four Democrats seek the lieutenant governor nomination: Eva B. Hester of Clinton; Boston City Councillor Christopher A. Iannella; John Pierce Lynch, Springfield Register of Deeds; Rep. P. O'Connell of Braintree; and State Auditor Thomas P. Sisti of Weymouth.

Jr., and Randolph Selectman Thomas Martin Sullivan.

On the Republican side, Lt. Gov. Donald R. Dwight is running unopposed.

Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren is challenged by Rep. Paul H. Guzzi, of Newton for the Democratic nomination. Senator John M. Quinlan [R-Norwood] is running for the GOP nomination unopposed.

Treasurer Robert Q. Crane is opposed by Charles Mark Furcolo, former assistant attorney general and son of former Gov. Foster Furcolo, on the Democratic ballot. There is no Republican seeking the nomination. State Auditor Thomas P. Sisti is unopposed.

Democratic ballot and no Republican is seeking the nomination.

In Quincy, the polls next Tuesday will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Although there are now four state representative districts instead of three in Quincy, most voters will cast their ballots at their usual polling places with two exceptions.

Voters of Ward 1, Precinct 1 who formerly voted at the Adams Academy will vote at the Woodward School for Girls on Hancock St.

Voters of Ward 3, Precinct 4 who vote at the old Lincoln School will now vote at the new Lincoln School with the Woodward School on Water St.

Heritage Hopes To Plant 500 'New Birth' Trees

Quincy Heritage general chairman Lawrence P. Creedon announces that Quincy Heritage is working with local insurance executives to raise funds to plant 500 trees in the city over the next two years.

Present estimates indicate that at least $20,000 would be needed for the project, Dr. Creedon said.

He noted that the plan had been scaled down from its original design to plant a tree for each child born when it was learned that some 1,600 children are born here each year. A project of that size was felt to be "unrealistic" as it would require a two-year outlay of about $128,000, Dr. Creedon said. Then too the city has a "real need" for only 200-300 new trees yearly to replace those diseased or damaged, Dr. Creedon commented.

The idea sprang from the personal motto of Quincy-born

John Adams, second president of the United States. His motto was "plant trees for the future". While President he had 100,000 trees planted in Florida so that young America would have wood for ships in its future.

"It is our intention to have perhaps two plantings a year with the aid of the Park and Recreation Department. The trees planted at those times would symbolically represent all of the children born in the city during the year," Dr. Creedon explained.

To "personalize" the plantings the mother and father of each child born would receive a certificate stating that a tree had been planted in their child's name in the city. The certificates would be prepared through the graphic arts production department of the Quincy Public Schools.

Tree planting committee members include Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon; Nils Johnson, Richard Chase Insurance; Albert Marchionne, Marchionne Insurance; Francis McNally, John Hancock; Henry Myers, Kemper; Dorothy Osborne, Osborne Insurance; Sam Tuttle, Tuttle Insurance; Douglas Fleming, Connecticut Life Insurance; Atty. Alan Finer; Richard Koch, Park and Recreation; Clara Yeomans, Quincy Conservation Commission; John Graham, director and Bruce McClain, asst. director, Quincy Heritage.

The committee will meet again at 9 a.m. September 5 at City Hall for reports on the cost and feasibility of tree plantings, funding possibilities, and the inclusion of the Norfolk County Extension Service in the effort.

Powers Proposes $10 Hike For For Election Workers

Ward 5 Councillor Warren Powers has proposed a $10 pay increase for election workers which would boost their hourly wages from $1.66 to $2.22.

In a resolve introduced at the City Council's meeting Tuesday night, Powers suggested the pay hike be retroactive to 1974 "to insure that these election workers received the proper wage for their work this year."

Powers noted that the election workers perform "an important municipal function" requiring experience as well as careful, diligent recording, counting and tabulating of election results.

He said that according to the Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Department of Labor, election workers are entitled to federal minimum wage [$1.90 per hour] or state minimum wage [$2.00 per hour] - whichever is higher - even though they work only two days a year.

Powers said: "These workers spend many hours each election day and are underpaid. Because of the part-time nature of their service, they have no review of their wage rate. We have an obligation to see that everyone is fairly paid regardless of the nature of their work."

Champion Renegades Compete At Somerville

The Quincy Renegades, champions of the Junior Drum and Bugle Corps Division of the CYO Music Circuit will be a strong contender in the CYO Festival to be held Saturday and Sunday at Dilboy Field, Somerville.

There will be 50 musical and marching teams including bands, drum and bugle corps, and drill teams performing during the two day pageant.

The Junior and Prep Division entries will compete Saturday starting at 10:30 a.m. The Senior Teams will compete Sunday starting at 11 a.m. The Renegades, unbeaten in seven contests, put the finishing touch on the Music Circuit race last Sunday at the final contest hosted by St. Francis of Weymouth at the Legion Field, Weymouth.

The Renegades and other divisional champions crowned at Weymouth were presented the Music Circuit Championship including flags and streamers by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Robert W. McNeill, Archdiocesan Director.

Gary Shaw Aboard Cutter

Coast Guard Machinery Technician Third Class Gary R. Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Shaw of 10 Homestead St., Houghs Neck, is serving aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Firebush, homeported at Governor's Island, N.Y.

He and his shipmates recently celebrated the 30th anniversary of the cutter's commissioning, hosting an open house and buffet meal.

As a member of the ship's crew, Shaw participates in coastal patrols, search and rescue missions and various assignments related to the enforcement of marine laws.

A 1971 graduate of Quincy High School, he joined the Coast Guard in October of 1971.

O'Brien Would Change Prison Furlough System

By MARY ANN DUGGAN

Six Democratic candidates are elbowing for their party's attorney general nomination in the September primary.

Only one of them - Edward M. O'Brien - does not hail from Greater Boston.

The 41-year-old lawyer comes from Easthampton, a Hampshire County town nestled in a valley rimmed on one side by Mount Tom and bounded on the other by the Berkshire foothills. He was educated at Williston Academy, Yale University and Boston College Law School.

O'Brien served as secretary to former Gov. Foster Furcolo from 1958 to 1961. He was voted Hampshire County Commissioner in 1968 and was elected to the Governor's Council two years later. In 1972 he was re-elected to the post by over 107,000 votes.

O'Brien feels that his background in government and in law qualifies him to fill the "action office" of attorney general. If elected, he would re-organize the present furlough system, giving the office of attorney general a "co-decision" in granting furloughs now solely awarded by the Corrections Department. O'Brien would also recommend that each furlough applicant undergo "an independent psychological examination" administered not by a prison consultant psychologist but by someone who could make "a more valid determination" of the applicant's ability to adjust within society, not within prison walls.

As attorney general, O'Brien would also emphasize criminal justice through court reform. He has cited the circuit system presently used as a possible means of providing "more even-handed, impartial justice" in Massachusetts courts. In Connecticut courts, according to this system of circuit, judges do not sit in any one court. Instead they rotate within a judicial district thus insuring that a lawyer and his client do not continually face the same judge.

To safeguard consumers, O'Brien has tagged public utilities as a prime target of investigation within the office of attorney general. "There's where the consumer crunch will come in the next eight to 10 years," he said.

He recommends an annual audit - not a spotcheck every three or five years - making "an in-depth inspection" of public utilities' so-called 'basic overhead costs.'

"These figures are almost taken for gospel," O'Brien said. "They should be questioned."

He emphasized, however, that the inspection would not be a question of honesty but of accuracy.

Philosophically and legally, O'Brien is opposed to abortion on demand and supports the Right To Life amendment.

"I disagree with the Supreme Court," O'Brien said.

He would condone an abortion he said only when "a clear, medical showing of danger of death to the mother is established by a doctor and at least one other staff physician."

Calling a statewide ban on the sale of handguns an "effectual law," O'Brien said that only a national ban would check the flow of guns into Massachusetts. He noted that Massachusetts residents could cross state lines and easily obtain a handgun.

However, O'Brien does oppose the sale of the "Saturday night specials". He favors a mandatory jail sentence for the possession of handguns and for the possession of firearms during the commission of a felony.

O'Brien has also proposed a mandatory course of instruction in gun safety, maintenance and laws for all new gun-permit applicants. The course, O'Brien said, would be given by gun officers from local police departments or units and funded entirely through applicant fees.

"The course would acquaint people with the fact that they are dealing with a dangerous instrumentality," O'Brien said. "And it would also give insight into the calibre of people wanting guns."

Admitting, with a smile, that candidates sometimes evade the question of political ambitions, O'Brien said:

"My aspiration now is to be at least a four-year attorney general."

He added, "I take my elections one at a time. You don't get to Round 2 until you get by Round 1."

How can Quincy be represented by a 'Political Boss from Boston' who stays in Florida 5 months of the year?

The answer is simple! It can't! The incumbent in this new district ... Sonny McDonough ... spent nearly 5 months in Florida last year and claimed he handled the duties for his district 'by telephone'. Need anymore be said? Quincy needs something better. Quincy needs Ed Owens.

Ed Owens has had close to a 100% attendance record in public service during the past 12 years as an elected and an appointed official in Weymouth. Public Works Commissioner, Town Meeting Member, Zoning By-law Committee Chairman, Industrial Development Commissioner and as president of the Norfolk Tourist and Development Commission. Tierney Proposes Income Tax Credit On Energy Costs Eleventh Congressional District candidate Joseph M. Tierney, proposes a federal income tax credit for low and middle income families based on rising energy costs.

Under Tierney's plan the amount of tax credit each family would receive would be tied to the increased amount of tax credit each family would receive would be tied to the increased amount it was forced to pay for home heating fuel, gasoline, and other necessary energy costs.

Citing a Ford Foundation study, Tierney said, "Right now there is no question but that the working man and woman are being forced to bear the entire brunt of the energy shortage. It is high time those in government recognized that the expenditures middle income families make on energy costs are not luxuries but necessities."

Tierney also suggested the elimination of the oil depletion allowance and foreign tax credits for oil companies as a way to increase United States tax revenue.

"There is, of course, no panacea to the energy crisis," Tierney remarked, "but common sense dictates that we begin now in searching for alternatives such as solar energy instead of remaining dependent on the dwindling and costly supplies of available oil."

Cerasoli Supports Proposed Historic Commission, District

Robert A. Cerasoli, candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District favors supporting the proposed ordinance to establish an Historic Commission and two Historic District in Quincy.

In a letter to Ward 5 Councillor Warren Powers, Cerasoli, chairman of the ordinance committee, said - "As a city, we are about to embark on the 350 anniversary of the founding of Mount Wollaston and the bicentennial of our nation. These are important events to all of us. Yet, their value will be lost if we don't take definite action to add to our heritage."

"I have become increasingly aware of the concerns of the people of South Quincy. They are concerned with how change and development have been handled in their area of the city. At a series of property owner meetings, these people cited the need to upgrade and beautify the area.

"The establishment of an Historic District around the Adams Birthplaces will ensure that the commercial area and future changes are sensitive to the concerns and qualities of this neighborhood. Moreover, it will give the people of South Quincy a voice in formulating plans for the future of their neighborhood, as well as offering them a way of protecting the investments which they made made over the years."

Cerasoli urged that the City Council take favorable action on the proposed measure.

Marshall Rally, Dance Saturday In Norwood

The committee to elect Rep. Clifford H. Marshall (D-Quincy) Sheriff of Norfolk County, will sponsor a rally and dance in his honor Saturday, from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Norwood Armory, Nahatan St., Norwood.

Refreshments will be served, and music will be provided by the Bill Blair Orchestra. Tickets may be obtained from chairwoman Barbara Chiasson [471-3848] at Marshall campaign headquarters or at the door.

What you get, you deserve.

Nothing is easier to come by than more of the same old thing. Face it. To make things better, you have to change them. Joe Tierney is your first real chance for change in 12 years. This Primary Day, vote as if he's your last.

ROBERT A. CERASOLI

IS THE ONLY CANDIDATE WHO HAS MADE AN OPEN COMMITMENT TO FULLTIME REPRESENTATION

The Honorable John F. X. Davoren
Secretary of the Commonwealth
State House - Room 340
Boston, Massachusetts 02133

21 Whitton Avenue
Quincy, Massachusetts 02169
July 22, 1974

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I am presently seeking the Democratic nomination for the First Norfolk Representative District. In these times of crises, the legitimate needs of the people demand constant attention. The position of State Representative is one of Public Trust. This position should be considered a full-time profession, not a hobby.

Therefore, I am pledging to the citizens of the First Norfolk District, that I will be a Full-Time Representative; and at no time while in this public office, will I hold another salaried position.

I believe that actions speak louder than words. Therefore, on June 28, 1974, when I formally became a candidate for State Representative, I officially resigned my position as Legislative Assistant to the Massachusetts Senate Committee on Rules.

This action was taken because I believe government is in serious need of change. I wish my candidacy to exemplify this seriousness by being above reproach in this matter.

I am formally submitting this notarized letter to you because I believe that this statement, pledging full-time representation, should be a public record.

At a time when people have become frustrated with the political system and its leaders, we should have elected officials who believe in trust and integrity and follow through with what they say and believe in.

Sincerely
Robert A. Cerasoli

Personally appeared before me Robert A. Cerasoli who takes oath that the above is a true statement.

Alcoholism Clinic Without Walls Receives $37,500 To Increase Services

The South Shore Alcoholism Clinic Without Walls has been given a grant of approximately $37,500 by the Mass. Division of Alcoholism, to increase the services of the Clinic.

The extension of services has resulted in the appointment of Robert E. Walsh of Marshfield as a full-time program coordinator. Walsh, a former Boston Globe reporter is the author of two books, "Your Community Hospital" and "Sorry ... No Government Today". He is a member of the Board of Directors of the Alcoholic Family Rehabilitation Program of Plymouth and has been involved in programs in half-way houses both in Boston and Plymouth. He has been actively involved in working with alcoholics for about ten years.

Mary Lawson Vallier, R.N., M.S., of Quincy who has been program coordinator will now become Clinical Coordinator on a part-time basis. Mrs. Vallier is a Psychiatric Nurse Clinician who is currently teaching at the New England Baptist Hospital School of Nursing. Mrs. Vallier has been working in the field of alcoholism for more than a decade.

Mrs. Vallier heads a staff of five counsellors who are specially-trained to deal with problem drinkers and alcoholics and their families. Two of the counsellors have completed the 18-month training course given at Boston City Hospital.

Dr. Richard S. Makman, M.D. coordinator of the Drug and Alcoholic Services at the South Shore Mental Health Center is the Physician-in-Charge of the Clinic Without Walls.

The Clinic has been operating on a limited budget and time schedule for the past nine months. The basic objective of the program is to make help more accessible, to involve communities in the treatment process and to help people find the needed services. The Clinic offers individual group and family counselling and makes sure the clients seek and receive appropriate health and welfare services. The Clinic works closely with the South Shore Council on Alcoholism and the Quincy Detoxification Center.

Last June the Clinic and the South Shore Council on Alcoholism began a pilot program with the Quincy District Court on an Alcoholic Re-education Program. The people who have been referred to the Clinic by the Court are currently involved in group counselling. The Clinic also recently started a counselling session for couples.

In reaching out to the community and to be truly a Clinic Without Walls, offices have been set up in various churches and community centers in Cohasset, Braintree, Milton, Weymouth and Quincy. All appointments to meet counsellors in these offices can be made by calling 471-0350 at the main office in the South Shore Mental Health Center at 77 Parkway in Quincy.

McDonald Calls For Updating Inmate Rehabilitation Programs

Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison of 18 Perkins St., West Quincy, recently entertained a large group of friends from Braintree, Brookline, Weymouth and Quincy at a garden reception in honor of Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald, Democratic candidate for Norfolk County Sheriff.

McDonald spoke briefly to the assembled group outlining the duties of the Sheriff's office. He said it is an administrative position in charge of the security of the courts, the running of the jail and the house of correction.

McDonald said "there is a definite need to study and evaluate all federal and state benefits as well as all benefit and assistance laws."

He said he is interested in filing for grants which would help to alleviate some of the present burden of the Norfolk County taxpayer.

He said "I am very interested in seeing all rehabilitation programs relating to inmates updated and improved, as well as new improved training for employees to meet the high standards of today's penology."

Stephen Johnson President N. E. Life Employee Assn.

H&R Block Conducting Tax School For Homemakers

Summer is ending, the children are off to school, and many homemakers find extra hours in their day.

H & R Block offers a challenging way to fill these extra hours which can lead to financial profit for the homemaker.

Beginning in mid-September, H & R Block is conducting a tax school which will meet twice a week for 13½ weeks and will consist of 81 hours of instruction. Instructors are veteran H & R Block tax men and women.

After completion of the course, job interviews are available to top graduates if they desire. However, there is no obligation on the student's part to seek or accept employment and H & R Block is not obligated to offer employment.

Henry W. Block, president of the firm, said his company alone - with over 6,500 offices throughout the country - will employ approximately 15,000 women during the coming tax season.

Anyone may enroll and anyone with a desire to learn can grasp the necessary principles. No previous tax knowledge or accounting experience is required.

The nearest H & R Block office can be contacted for further enrollment information. The phone number is 848-4240.

Survival, Inc. Seeks Crisis Line Operators

Survival, the multi-faceted program serving the youth of the South Shore, is looking for concerned volunteers to help operate their 24-hour crisis line.

A training program for the volunteers will begin in late September consisting of an initial weekend session and a few follow-up sessions in specific areas.

The role of a crisis line volunteer is a unique experience. Volunteers, after training, help people with a wide variety of problems including loneliness, alcohol, drugs, family crises, sex and suicide. The line has been receiving an average of over 400 calls a month.

An interest in other people and the concern to help them are the major requirements. All persons from the South Shore are welcome. The only restriction is that volunteers must be at least 18. Shifts are available at all times during the week and weekend.

Those interested to serve as volunteers, are asked to send a self-addressed stamped envelope to 725 Southern Artery, Quincy for an application, or call 471-7100.

'Man' Christian Science Lesson - Sermon Topic

The Lesson-Sermon Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy, is on the subject of "Man".

"Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him; and He shall bring it to pass. And He shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgement as the noonday."

Psalm 37: 5,6.

Special Assignment Man

Quincy's Sam Mele A Red Sox Scout Plus!

By TOM SULLIVAN

Although the Red Sox continue to list Quincy's Sam Mele as a scout, the former major league player, coach and manager is far more than that.

Sox officials refer to Sam as a "special assignment scout" and "trouble shooter".

"Sam is an invaluable member of our staff," said Ed Kenney, director of minor league clubs. "He is responsible for the rapid development of many of our younger players. When our scouts throughout the country recommend players to us, we send Sam to see them and tell us which of them look the best to him."

Mele, who piloted the Minnesota Twins to the American League pennant in 1965, is a keen judge of baseball talent and is a special instructor to the Sox rookies and minor league players, working on their hitting and outfielding. Sam was a fine major league outfielder for several years.

"I have been traveling all over the country looking at the Sox draft choices and working with the players on our various minor league teams," Sam said.

"I've been to California, Carolina, New York and New Jersey among other states. I was at Pawtucket and Bristol for series and eventually will visit all our other minor league teams, Winston-Salem, Winter Haven and Elmira."

At the present time Dwight Evans, the Sox right fielder, is rated one of the finest outfielders in the league and much of the credit goes to Mele.

Two years ago Evans was having his troubles hitting with Louisville and Manager Darrell Johnson called Mele in to work with the young outfielder. After Sam worked with him, he came alive and was named the International League's Most Valuable Player.

"Sam deserves the credit for Evans' improved batting," says Haywood Sullivan, the Sox vice president in charge of player personnel. "He did a tremendous job with him."

Mele is, among his many other duties, director of the Sox minor league spring training camp, which this year ran from March 14 to April 19.

He also is one of the coaches for the Sox team in the instructional league which plays in the fall and which, in Sam's words, "has the youngest lineup in the league."

Mele, with Frank Malzone, another special assignment scout, go to Elmira of the New York-Penn League to work with the players and get them ready for the season.

Among the promising Sox minor league players who have shown rapid improvement is Jack Baker, Bristol's 6-5 first baseman, who was a unanimous choice this year for the Eastern League All-Star team and the Sox will call him up with other minor league players when his season ends. Baker has been one of the top home run hitters in the Eastern League.

"Jack has always had the power to hit the ball out of any park in the country but he was off the ball too much last year," Mele explained. "We worked hard with him and he has overcome his big weakness, pulling the ball all the time and he is now a tremendous hitter."

Mele agrees with many others that Pawtucket's Jim Rice and Fred Lynn are ready for the major leagues right now. "There is nothing I or anyone else can teach these two, they are just great batters," Sam said.

Another player who Mele said a few years ago would make the big time and who is fast making the grade is Pitcher Steve Barr, who was handicapped by arm trouble but who recovered and has been having a sensational season at Bristol.

"I have seen him this year and he looks great and is now living up to our expectations," Mele went on. "His arm trouble had greatly slowed his progress."

The Sox have had Mele working with Eddie Ford, son of Yankee Hall-of-Famer Whitey Ford, who recently was sent down from the Sox Class AA Bristol team to Elmira of the Class A New York-Penn League.

Young Ford, a very promising shortstop, was batting only .167 for Bristol but, under Mele's tutelage, has shown steady improvement for Elmira.

Mele recently received a fine compliment from the American League's leading batter, Rod Carew of the Twins.

"Sam Mele is one of the few people who ever took the time to work with me on my hitting," said Carew, who is on his way to his third straight batting crown. "If I make hitting look easy now, it is because of him."

Foster, Dwyer Win Cade Cup Tourney

The 27th annual Cade Cup Member-Guest Tournament at Furnace Brook Golf Club finished Monday with Frank Foster of the host club and Bill Dwyer of Framingham the new champions after some outstanding competition.

Foster and Dwyer defeated Joe DiFede of Furnace Brook and Lou Baba of Sharon, 5 and 4, in the finals of the championship flight.

This year's tournament began last Friday in a driving rain and, following two days of sunshine, finished Monday on a cold and blustery day.

To make the finals, Foster and Dwyer had to defeat the defending champions, Jim McNiece of Furnace Brook and Bill Bemis of Thorny Lea. McNiece and Bemis were this year's headstarts, each shooting a 68.

The turning point for Foster and Dwyer may have been on the 10th hole when Baga missed a 3½-foot putt for a birdie.

While the new champs were defeating McNiece and Bemis, DiFede and Baga eliminated Roger Milmore of the host club and Richard Olson of Ponkapoag to move into the championship match.

In the first flight Joe Gilmartin of Furnace Brook and Roy Cavich Jr. of South Shore defeated Bill Crowley Jr. and Bill Crowley Sr., unattached, 3 and 2, in the finals. Gilmartin and Cavich Jr. had defeated Jim Morrison of FB and George Robbins of Braintree, while the Crowleys had eliminated Paul King of FB and Dave Packard of George Wright.

Second flight winners were Jerry Buchanan of FB and Ken Parsons of Stowe Acres, who defeated Lou Cugini of FB and Henry Berry Jr. of Wollaston, 2-1, in the finals.

Buchanan and Parsons had eliminated Earl Sylvestre of FB and Dave Ryan of Ponkapoag, while Cugini and Berry had ousted FB's Tom Quinn and Ed Bock of Wollaston.

In the championship flight consolation Arthur Clifford of FB and his brother Frank [Spike] of Poquoy Brook defeated Matt Smith of FB and Dave Bailey of Braintree, 1-up.

In the first flight consolation George Flate of FB and Bill Montgomery of Rockland defeated Marty Healey of FB and Don Cove of Clinton, Conn., 2 and 1.

In the second flight consolation Dick Corbin of FB and Charley Kusser of Braintree defeated Hal Sager of FB and Bob Youndt of Bear Hill, 4 and 3.

In a special medal playoff tournament, Joe Fitzgerald of FB and Roy Cavich Jr. of South Shore were the winners.

S.S. Coast League Planned

Plans are underway to organize a South Shore Coast Baseball League next year which may eventually develop a rivalry with the strong Cape Cod League and give baseball in this area a shot in the arm.

The Coast League is the brain child of Don Antonangeli of Plymouth, who played in the Atlanta Braves farm system.

"I feel there is a definite need for quality amateur baseball in this area," he said. "The Cape League and Boston Park League offer only limited opportunity for local talent. A lot of good players come out of Legion and college ball and their careers end because there is no local semi-pro league they can play in."

Quincy and Randolph teams have already indicated a desire to join the league, which will be open to those 19 and older. It is expected there will be two Quincy teams in the league.

Tentative plans call for the league to be split into Northern and Southern divisions with teams playing a 40 to 50-game schedule, mostly doubleheaders on weekends with home and home series.

The northern division would probably consist of two Quincy teams and teams from Weymouth, Braintree and Randolph. The southern division would be made up of a team with players from Hingham, Hull and Cohasset; a team with players from Hanover and Marshfield, a team from Duxbury, Kingston and Plymouth and another from Abington, Rockland and Whitman.

Several fund raising projects are planned and Antonangeli will seek recognition from the National Baseball Congress.

Volunteers with financial, organizational or management experience and an interest in baseball are needed. Volunteers, persons interested in forming a team, or players may contact Antonangeli at 11 Chapel Hill Drive, Plymouth; Tom Edwards of Hanson, Maury Simonds of Randolph, Rollie Bolduc, Dick Silva or Stan Freidman, all of Plymouth.

Doherty, Lasher FB Low Gross Winners

In the annual ladies-member guest day tournament at Furnace Brook Golf Club, Jeanne Doherty of the host club and Fay Lasher of Walpole shot low gross of 81. Ginny McCann and Polly Mucciaroni of Sharon and Mimi DiFederico and Tel Fisher of Brockton tied for second gross of 82, while Florence Eramo and Helen Fallon of Bass River and Florence Eramo and Sandi Robbins of Hatherly tied for fifth gross of 86.

Low net of 58 was scored by Mary Morrissey and Georgia Mellon of Sharon, followed by: Jeanne Doherty and Dorothy Fallon of Strawberry, Fallon and Rena Roche and Bronsie Novicki of Wollaston with 59, Rena Hodges and Helen Novicki of Wollaston, 61; Florence Eramo and Esther Aimola of South Shore, 62; Barbara Spinello and Roseann Galleazo of Braintree and Jo Hinkley and Helen Kelley of Braintree, 63; Joyce Robbins and Kitty Serafini of Wollaston and Mel Corbin and Key O'Neill of Sharon, 64; Audrey Sager and Julie Crossen of Sharon, 66; Helene McPeck and Natalie Kane of Ponkapoag, 67; Priscilla O'Neill and Blanche Shallow of Hatherly, 68; Aileen Hoag and Wini Gibson of Braintree, and Edna Phelps and Marion O'Connor of Cummaquid, 71; Dolly Nogler and Margaret McNiece of Milton Hoosic, 72; Pag Cugini and Connie Harrison, unattached, 77; Edna Phelps and Gerry Kusser of Braintree, 78.

Mimi DiFederico had the longest drive on the 17th hole and Priscilla O'Neill came closest to the pin on the 15th.

Barbara Spinello and Joyce Robbins were chairmen for the event.

Atlantic Flames Win, Clovers Pick Up Consolation Prize

The Summer Senior Hockey League completed its first season last week at the Quincy Youth Arena with the second place Atlantic Flames edging the first place Boston Budmen, 10-9, in a free-wheeling playoff finale.

In the consolation game the third place Quincy Clovers walloped the fourth place Newman Club, 6-1.

The new league featured many outstanding college, amateur and pro hockey players and the fans were treated to some of the best hockey in the area each week. In addition to some of the top college players in New England, a few of the New England Whalers and some of the best schoolboy players were in the league.

Jim McMahon of the Budmen received the Most Valuable Player trophy, McMahon and teammate Buddy Powers shared the regular season scoring trophy, the Budmen won the Granite City trophy for first place finish and the Flames the President's City trophy as the playoff winner.

In the playoff finals Atlantic piled up a 9-4 lead in two periods and had to stave off a furious finish by the Boston club.

Quincy had no trouble polishing off the Newman Club as it rolled to a 6-0 lead in the first two periods.

P. J. Flaherty put Quincy on the scoreboard at 9:21 of the opening period with Fred Ahern assisting. Ahern made it 2-0 at 10:18 with Flaherty having an assist. Joe Dunderdale scored at 12:52 with assists for Ahern and Tim Morrill and Dunderdale scored again at 12:59 with Morrill assisting.

In the second period Flaherty made it 5-0 at 2:45 with Ahern having an assist and Mike Farina completed Quincy's scoring at 12:30 with Brian Nevins assisting. The Newman Club scored its only goal at 7:35 of the last period.

Young Quincy Sailors Capture Junior Red Fleet Honors

Laurel Bumpus and Doug Smith of the Wollaston Yacht Club captured the Red Fleet division of the South Shore Junior Sailing Regatta with a total of 6½ points.

The two back-to-back days of racing were held last week at Hingham Yacht Club.

Sailing in "The Bumpy", Laurel and Doug placed fifth in the opening day's first race. Racing was then cancelled due to high winds.

On the second day of sailing, two races were held. "The Bumpy" won both, finishing with the winning total of 6½ points.

Laurel, a 13-year-old attending Central Junior High School, has been skipping her own boat for two years.

Doug is a 12-year-old entering grade seven at Milton Academy.

St. Ann's Hockey Registration Sunday

Boys who were registered in the St. Ann's Youth Hockey League last season can register for the 1974-75 season Sunday at 2 p.m. at St. Ann's Youth Center.

Each boy is required to bring his birth certificate.

Girls can also register at the same time for the mother and daughters' skating hour.

Registration fee is $2.

Raiders In Advanced Training Stage

Thanks to what Coach Ralph Frazier and his assistants agreed was a "most fruitful experience football-wise," North Quincy's football team is in fine shape and well advanced as it gets ready for its first Suburban League season.

The North coaches were speaking of a week at the Mass. Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay during which the Raiders and the Norwood High squad put in a lot of hard work but also enjoyed many other activities.

"The facilities there were super and the boys were in high spirits," Frazier said. "Morale-wise it was wonderful for the squad [about 100 Raider hopefuls made the trip] and we really got a lot out of it. The sophomores are more advanced at this stage than they were at the same time in past years. Last year we enjoyed a week at Camp Wono in Brewster with the Milton squad but the facilities at the Maritime Academy were better and we were able to get more accomplished."

North will open Sept. 21 when it resumes an old rivalry with Milton in one of four non-league games and Frazier was pleased with the team's performance in the first outside scrimmage last Saturday against Catholic Memorial.

"We moved the ball fairly steadily against Memorial and I think we should be able to move the ball this year," Frazier said. "What we need most is experience, as we are very green on offense. I've always stuck to the policy of using as many seniors as I can and, although we have few starters returning, we do have boys who have worked their way up in our system and have played a good deal of football."

The only returning starter on offense is Co-Captain Mike Reale at end. The only other letterman on offense is Center Richie Joyce, called a "superlative" player by the coaches. Some of the other players on offense have had a smattering of varsity service.

Among the other top hopes on offense are junior Mike Nee, doing a good job at tackle, tackle Bill Driscoll, Frank Chiachierri and Paul Doherty at guard, Mike Kelly, Joe Wilkinson and Cooper Jordan, all looking good at end.

Mike Holleran, up from the sophomores, and Mike Meehan, backup to Carl Leone on the varsity last fall, are battling for the quarterback job and both will see their share of service.

One of the brightest prospects is Brian Doherty, a junior halfback, who made a sparkling touchdown run for the varsity last year and who was outstanding for the sophomores. Paul O'Donnell is another fine halfback and Rich Marino, currently out with an injury, is a good prospect. Jack Hatfield, a defensive regular, will see action this year on offense.

Matty Constantino looks good at fullback and is an excellent blocker. He is backed up by Jim Wiswell and other backfield hopes are Paul McGuigan and Greg Egan.

Other offensive linemen include Bob McCullough, John Gallagher, Bill Pitts, Dennis McGuire and Dan Noonan, a transfer from Boston Tech.

"Speaking of the offense, I'd say I am pleased generally but time is of the essence and we have to work awfully hard to get ready for the opening game," Frazier concluded.

-TOM SULLIVAN

North, Quincy Players Holy Cross Standouts

Several former Quincy and North Quincy High players figure highly in this year's Holy Cross College football plans.

Sophomore Bobby Morton of North Quincy has the inside track on the varsity quarterback job.

Former Quincy teammates, Seniors Jon Provost and Paul

Picarski, are two of the Crusaders' Top defensive backs. Provost has been brilliant and needs only four pass interceptions this fall to break the school record.

Another former Quincy teammate of Provost and Picarski, Wayne Richards, will be another defensive star if he recovers from an injury which sidelined him last year. He played excellent defense as a sophomore before being injured.

Another former North Quincy star, speedy halfback Tom Burke, rates as one of Northeastern's top running backs. The Huskies are coached by another former North Quincy standout, Bo Lyons.

Janice Kelly Receives Sportsmanship Plaque

Fourteen-year old Janice Kelly, undefeated sprinter for the Quincy Track Club this summer, was the only girl to receive a sportsmanship plaque at the first annual United States Youth Games banquet last week in Boston.

Janice received her award for track and field athletes. Other outstanding sportsmanship awards were given for basketball, bowling and tennis.

Janice, who competed in the U.S. Youth Games in Baltimore, recently won the Quincy City Track Meet titles in the 100 and 220-yard dashes. She holds the QTC record for both events and was undefeated in both events during the club's regular season.

S.S. Juniors Tenpin Registration Saturday

The South Shore Juniors Tenpin League will soon open its seventh season at Quincy Wonderbowl on Southern Artery.

Registration will be held Saturday, Sept. 7, from 9 a.m. to noon. Boys and girls age 6-21 are welcome.

The league bowls every Saturday during the season and is supervised by adult volunteer coaches and certified instructors. Director is Ernie Villeneuve, who will be giving class instruction to the new bowlers each Saturday during September. Registrations also will be accepted through the month.

Each year the Greater Boston Association has an annual tournament. Last season Quincy Wonderbowl's South Shore Juniors fielded more than twice the number of teams and nearly three times as many singles entries as any other group in the association.

There were 128 teams and 360 singles entries.

O'Brien Club Bows In Finals

The O'Brien Club basketball team of Quincy, which lost to the Roxbury YMCA, 110-98, last week in the finals of the Boston Neighborhood League playoffs, will finally take a break and rest up for two months before opening the Cranberry League season. The O'Briens were co-champs of the Cranberry League last year.

After defeating Lena Park in the first Boston Neighborhood playoff, the O'Briens, with only six players, surprised the first place Boston Bruins, 100-88, in the semifinals, with Ron Bradley scoring 31 points.

The O'Briens, who won the Quincy Y Summer League title and tied for second in the Boston League, played in the Boston League mainly to keep in shape for the upcoming Cranberry League season, and used several new players, who may be with the team this winter.

Coach Leo Papile had regulars Bob McNamara, Bradley, Al Dalton, Eddie Miller, Gary Bowen and Gene Walcott and also used Ron Cabral, Jim Nelson, Dave Johnson, Tom Cairnes and last year's North Quincy High sparkplug, Steve Miller.

"We will have most of our regulars back in the Cranberry League this year with a few outstanding newcomers and expect to have an even stronger team than last season," Papile said.

It'll Be Musical Chairs For Presidents

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy Football Coach Hank Conroy has a number of holes to fill as he prepares the Presidents for their first season in the Suburban League.

Conroy was stripped of most of his starters both on offense and defense and expects to change many of his candidates around and use them at different positions.

Quincy opens its season on Sept. 21 against one of four non-league opponents, Dedham, and his offense will be built around three returning starters.

From among his 85 candidates, the veteran coach has only right end Jeff Little, fullback Paul Vespaziani and halfback Preston Carroll returning from the 1973 starting offensive squad.

"We'll be building around these three but we have a number of other boys who did see quite a bit of action last year," said Conroy, whose team will meet Somerville, a former Greater Boston League opponent for years, Saturday in the first outside scrimmage. "Many boys who want to play a certain position will have to play at a different spot and I'll be making many personnel changes."

Mike McKenzie at left end played a good deal last year.

Tackle Jake Columbus played regularly on defense last season and will probably go both ways this year, while Conroy is high on two juniors, 230-pound Steve Coleman and big Steve Grimmett, who goes over 250 pounds. Both excelled for Mark Conroy's sophomores in 1973.

Another junior, Ken Sunnenburg, has the inside track on center, while Jerry Durante and Dave Golsin are experienced guards, playing both varsity and junior varsity ball a year ago.

Terry O'Day, who would have seen a lot more action than he did last year but was sidelined much of the year with an injury, will see considerable service at halfback as will Paul Ramponi, who looks good, has a good pair of hands and shapes up as a fine pass receiver.

At quarterback Jimmy Forrester and Scott Mitchell are battling it out. Forrester is the more experienced, seeing some varsity action last year until injured in a junior varsity game. If he is fit, he probably will start.

At fullback Ted Wiedemann, one of Quincy's outstanding hockey players, will see a lot of action. He played football as a sophomore but did not play last year.

Other offensive backs include Paul Coletti, a transfer from Abp. Williams who played at Broad Meadows Junior High; and several up from the sophomore team, Jim Rose, Anthony Cedrone, Dom Ignani, Paul Ferris, Bobby Nolan, Rick Hebert and Steve Sylva.

Doug King was a defensive regular at end last year and will play guard or tackle on offense, while 230-pound Bob Varrasso, brother of Mike, who started every game for three years for the Presidents, is a fine tackle and prospect and Bob Carrella is a good guard candidate.

Mark Wysocki and John Riggs, other juniors, are expected to see a good deal of action at end.

Bill Popsie, expected to be a starter, is nursing an injury, and Conroy lost a prospective starter, Joe Cortese, injured in a motorcycle accident.

"We lost some fine players and have some big holes to fill and that is why I will have to change a lot of players around to find the right position for them," Conroy said. "This is the hardest part of high school coaching. Many boys have their heart set on a certain position but some of them have to be moved around."

"I'll be able to tell more about our outlook after we scrimmage Somerville. We have average size, some boys with good speed but our success is going to depend to a good extent upon last year's sophomore players."

Ted says hitting tougher now

By LARRY HARNLY

ST. LOUIS — Twenty years ago, Ted Kluszewski was in his prime as a hitter. He led the National League with 49 home runs and 141 runs batted in while compiling a career-high batting average of .326.

Kluszewski turned 30 that season and was listed at 6 feet 2 and 225 pounds. Those were the days when Kluszewski wore sleeveless shirts and exposed his bulging biceps — perhaps an effective device to strike fear in the hearts of a few National League pitchers.

In 1974, Kluszewski is in his 13th year of retirement from playing major league baseball but is still working for the Cincinnati Reds, serving in his fifth year as batting coach. His uniform style has changed. The muscles are covered. His weight has changed, too. The Reds' press guide lists his weight at 260 pounds.

Kluszewski sat in front of his locker here and discussed a subject on which he is well-versed — hitting. When Kluszewski talks about hitting, the tendency is to pay attention. He spent 13 years in the National League, from 1947 to 1959, and carved out a lifetime .301 batting average with 257 home runs. He put in his final two years in the American League and completed his career with a .298 average and 279 homers.

The purpose of the interview was for Kluszewski to analyze current National League hitters. But to appreciate what those hitters are accomplishing, read what Kluszewski has to say about those people who are working against the hitters — the pitchers.

Kluszewski says it's tougher to hit now than when he played. "The hitters have a problem in comparison to my day," he said. "The pitchers have more of a variety of pitches. They'll throw you the slider or the screwball on 3-0. When I was playing, you'd get the fastball."

"The secret to stopping hitters is changing speeds. They throw more of a variety of pitches now, and they're not afraid to throw them in all situations. Hitters who are over .300 now are doing better than hitters who were over .300 when I played."

Who is the best pitcher in the National League? "Andy Messersmith," Kluszewski replied. "He has good stuff and a variety of pitches. Mike Marshall is doing a great job. He has an oddball pitch (a screwball). Don Gullett has an awful lot of natural ability."

Kluszewski singled out Robin Roberts as the best pitcher he faced. "Roberts pitched as hard as he had to," Kluszewski recalled. "When there was a man on third base, the percentage was in Roberts' favor."

So it should be kept in mind that Kluszewski thinks the young pitchers are ahead of the young hitters when they arrive in the majors. Thus success by young hitters is meaningful.

Which young hitters have particularly impressed Kluszewski? "The one who has really impressed me is Mike Schmidt," Kluszewski said of the Phillies' third baseman.

"But every good player has one or two years when his average is not up there. Look at the records of all the good players, and you'll find at least one bad year."

What causes hitters to start to go downhill? "They start to lose their coordination and concentration," Kluszewski replied. "You have to concentrate 100 per cent. I think age causes you to lose your concentration. Your legs are an important factor, too. When your legs start to go, you make adjustments in your swing."

Which young hitters have particularly impressed Kluszewski? "The one who has really impressed me is Mike Schmidt," Kluszewski said of the Phillies' third baseman.

"But every good player has one or two years when his average is not up there. Look at the records of all the good players, and you'll find at least one bad year."

What causes hitters to start to go downhill? "They start to lose their coordination and concentration," Kluszewski replied. "You have to concentrate 100 per cent. I think age causes you to lose your concentration. Your legs are an important factor, too. When your legs start to go, you make adjustments in your swing."

Ellen Sullivan Manager At Norfolk County

Ellen A. Sullivan has been promoted to manager at Norfolk County Trust Company, announces John S. Marsh, Chairman of the bank's Board of Directors.

Miss Sullivan joined the staff at Norfolk County Trust Company following graduation from Archbishop Williams High School. She has specialized in all types of Consumer Credit and as Manager will continue in that field at the bank's Elm Street, Dedham office.

Miss Sullivan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Sullivan of 142 Butler Rd., Quincy.

Williams Discusses Issues At Coffee Hour

At a coffee hour sponsored by Mrs. Emily Rahaim, and Ann Marie Burrows, Atty. Thomas Williams, candidate for state representative in the First Norfolk District, spoke on four issues.

The coffee hour was held at 432 Washington St., Quincy Point, and attended by 40 persons.

Williams said he was the most qualified candidate because of his profession and his proven record of community involvement. When elected, he said he would be a full time representative.

He expressed "concern for the condition of our neighborhoods" and pledged "to continue the fight to remove the derelict buildings at Baxter Corner." Williams suggested that a park, such as the Robert Burns Park, would enhance the condition of the area.

Williams said he would "be a constant watchdog against polluters of the Town and Fore Rivers." He also pledged to fight to clean, and keep clean the beaches.

Williams supported the desire of area residents for a Quincy Point library branch, and a small post office.

He cited the need for a small post office for residents, and the many senior citizens in the area.

"Too long has Quincy Point been last in the receiving line", he said.

If elected, I will fight to change that.

Marshall Meets With Shipyard Union Workers

Rep. Clifford H. Marshall [D-Quincy], candidate for the Democratic nomination for Norfolk County Sheriff met with union officials of Local 5 and General Dynamics employees last Friday at the Quincy shipyard.

Marshall then met residents of the South Shore at the MBTA stations and shopping areas throughout Quincy.

"I am trying to create visibility for the office of sheriff by meeting as many people as possible and discussing with voters the sensitive and critical responsibilities that are within the sheriff's office," he said.

"I believe it is imperative that the voters realize that during the six-year term, the sheriff has a direct involvement on thousands of human lives. I know the voters are interested in what the sheriff's responsibilities are in Norfolk County and I intend to make voters aware of the responsibility."

Edward Owens Seeking Governor's Councillor Nomination

Edward M. Owens Jr. of Weymouth is seeking the Democratic nomination for Governor's Councillor from the Fourth Councillor District which includes Quincy.

Owens is President of Owens Associates, Inc., an engineering, architectural and consulting firm, and is a registered professional engineer.

He is currently elected member and vice-chairman of the Weymouth Board of Public Works, the Democratic Town Committee and a town meeting member. He formerly served as chairman of the Weymouth Zoning By-laws Committee, chairman of the Industrial Development Commission and vice-chairman of the Zoning By-laws Study Committee.

He is a member of South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Weymouth Rotary and is president of the Norfolk County Tourist and Development Council which was established to promote the economic growth of Norfolk County.

Owens received a Civil Engineering degree from Northeastern University and a degree in Business Management from Northeastern University and is a member of the Sigma Epsilon Rho Honor Fraternity.

Owens lives at 44 Jacqueline Road, Weymouth with his wife, the former Florence Davis of Dorchester, and five daughters, Rosemary, Maureen, Linda, Patricia and Nancy.

Jack Conway To Moderate Realtors Bermuda Convention

South Shore Realtor Jack Conway will moderate an all day seminar Saturday, Sept. 14 at the Holiday Inn, St. George, Bermuda.

The seminar will be a feature event of the annual State Convention of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors.

Conway is a past President of the Association as well as Realtor-Of-The-Year for 1970 for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Conway will lead discussions on his topic: "How To Compete In A Changing Real Estate World".

Serving on the workshop panel with him will be: Phil Drew, President, Cape Cod Board, Orleans; William Maren, President, Greater Lawrence Board, Andover and Bernard Schorr, President, Greater Springfield Board, Springfield.

"Conway Country" covers the entire South Shore and Cape Cod with 14 offices, 11 in Plymouth and Norfolk Counties and including Quincy, three on Cape Cod. Over 200 professionals are associated with the Conway firm, with headquarters in Hanover. In addition, the CODESCO division is exclusive sales agents for six condominium projects, two apartment complexes and two large single family home sub-divisions.

Among his professional

activities Conway is a director and second vice president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; director, RELO/Inter-City Relocation Services, Inc.; vice president of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank; National Chairman of the Realtors Political Affairs Committee. He is also a member of the Convention Committee of the Brokers Institute; director, South Shore Master Builders Association; and Trustee of the Massachusetts Real Estate Political Education Committee. Conway, his wife Patricia and their three children reside on North Main St., Cohasset.

John Walsh, Jr. Promoted At Norfolk County

John C. Walsh Jr., of Quincy has been appointed an Assistant Treasurer at Norfolk County Trust Company, announces John S. Marsh, chairman of the Board of Directors.

Walsh is a graduate of Bentley College and has attended Northeastern University and the University of Oklahoma.

Since joining the staff of the bank in 1967, he has worked in various departments and at several offices of the bank. He was first made an officer in 1970 and manager in 1971. He is presently assigned to the bank's Installment Loan Department at the Elm St., Dedham, office.

He is married to the former Paula Kenny.

Pritzker Elected PEPP Chairman

Paul E. Pritzker, head of Pritzker Associates, a Quincy consulting engineering firm, has been elected chairman-elect of the Professional Engineers in Private Practice (PEPP) division of the 68,000-member National Society of Professional Engineers.

He will take office as PEPP chairman and vice president in July 1975.

Pritzker is immediate past president of the Massachusetts

Society of Professional Engineers and a past president of the state society's Western Middlesex Chapter. He served two terms as Northeastern Regional vice chairman of NSPE/PEPP before becoming chairman-elect.

Pritzker is a member of the Consulting Engineers Council of New England and the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers, and is Consulting Engineering Chairman of the Electric Institute.

Ann M. Brown Promoted At N.E.

Ann M. Brown of Quincy has been appointed group pension underwriter for the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, Boston.

Responsibilities of her new position include coordinating the issue of new policies and changes in old ones. She is also involved in special projects related to this work.

A New England Life associate since 1969, she was a group pension contract writer before her appointment.

Mrs. Brown has been a Quincy resident for two years.

Closing-Cost Regulation Changes Would Aid Home Buyer

The National Association of Realtors is suggesting to Congress a number of changes in closing-cost regulations designed to reduce home buyers' misunderstandings and confusion in this area - and possible reduce closing costs themselves.

"Closing on a home of their choice should be family's happiest hour", says Virginia Crismond, president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, Inc. "Instead, many have to pay more than they anticipated in closing costs. It's no wonder they become angry with those involved in the closing, including the Realtor who has little to do with these charges."

She listed suggestions being presented to Congress during its consideration of possible closing-cost legislation and commented on these suggestions:

All settlement costs should be disclosed to the buyer at the time commitments are made for obtaining a loan. At the same time, information booklets should be distributed by the lender that fully explain costs involved in the transaction.

"This early disclosure would eliminate problems created by last-minute unforeseen details. The buyer would have days in advance of closing to acquaint himself with these costs, or seek better terms from other lenders and closing-cost services. This would encourage competition, and possibly lead to lower costs. The settlement statement should be a substitute for the Truth-in-Lending statement. Overall, Realtor experience with Truth-in-Lending statements has been that the disclosures have created more confusion than they eliminate. They contain only some of the costs involved in transactions, making it necessary to present a second set of figures.

"Any further action in this area should be to create on simple, comprehensive disclosure procedure," she added.
